Local Marine in Beirut reassures his family

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

It was probably the best phone call ever made by Shirley Erickson's family.

The Westland residents had spent many sleepless hours Sunday and Monday, waiting for word about what had happened to Shirley's son, Marine Lance Cpl. Donnie G. Phipps Jr., stationed in Beirut, Lebanon. The Ericksons were one of several area families waiting to hear news about loved ones there after a suicide bomber crashed a truck loaded with explosives into a building filled with sleeping Marines and Navy personnel on Sunday.

Then late Monday morning, by a stroke of luck, Tammy Erickson was able to get through to the U.S. Embassy in Beirut and speak directly to her 20-year-old brother, who was guarding the embassy. Tammy quickly put the rest of her family on the line, and the household was filled with "screaming, laughing and crying," according to Shirley Erickson.

"Everybody was going crazy, and he was trying to calm us all down," she said. "He was saying, 'Calm down, calm down. It's me and I'm OK.' All I could do was cry, and he would say, 'Mother, don't cry. I'm OK. I'm going to be coming home.'"

"We were all shook up," said Charles Erickson, Shirley's husband. "We just wanted to hear him."

PHIPPS, ONE of four children in the family, is a member of 1st Battalion, 8th Marine Regiment, 24th Marine Amphibious Unit (MAU). He joined the contingent five months ago and was assigned to guard the American embassy after he injured his back digging bunkers at Beirut International Airport. The airport is near the encampment that was the tragic scene of the explosion.

"I told him, 'You stay right there (at the embassy). You don't volunteer for nothing,'" Shirley Erickson said. "He said, 'Mom, I have to go where I'm needed.' He was always like that, even as a kid, always helping out. I knew if they needed someone, he'd be the first to volunteer."

Phipps had spoken with his family last Friday, two days before Sunday's nightmarish incident. Last week, he was looking forward to going on liberty, Mrs. Erickson said.

"Three times their liberty had been cancelled, and on Nov. 1 they were going to start liberties again," she said.

AFTER HEARING about the explosion Sunday, the Ericksons "tried and tried and tried" to reach someone to find out about Phipps, Shirley Erickson said.

Tammy, 21, kept calling the embassy number, which she had obtained from the out-of-state wife of a marine stationed with Phipps. The Ericksons' phone was tied up Monday, so Tammy called from the nearby home of her grandmother, Myrtle Wolfe, and finally was able to get through to the embassy.

"When she was trying to call, the operator said, 'Well, good luck,'" Mrs. Erickson recalled.

"God is just so good to us. For us to get through to him, and him standing there..."

In his two years with the Marines, Phipps had traveled to California, North Carolina and Iceland. The family wasn't concerned at first about Phipps being stationed in Lebanon, according to Shirley Erickson.

"We thought they were just over there for a peacekeeping mission, and it was nothing to worry about," she said. "But the first thing I ever heard

Westland residents Charles and Shirley Erickson proudly display a portrait of Marine Lance Cpl. Donnie Phipps Jr., who is stationed in Beirut, Lebanon. Many agonizing hours passed for the Erickson family earlier this week before they heard that Phipps, Shirley Erickson's son, wasn't hurt in Sunday's explosion in Beirut.

City cops out of drunk driver patrol

Westland police won't be among the teams of suburban police officers and sheriff's deputies that will patrol targeted roads throughout Wayne County to increase drunk driving enforcement.

The patrols that start today are possible thanks to a $400,000 grant and will involve some 43 departments from around the county.

Westland's police department won't be taking part in the program because it has been unable to work out an answer to the question: Should all officers in the department, or only those from the traffic bureau, be available to participate in the patrols?

"We have a clause in the contract calling for equalized scheduled overtime," Westland Police Chief William Rechlin said. "We went to the union with a proposal that only officers in the traffic bureau would work it. The union said they wouldn't consider it. We were unable to work it out with the union."

"They stay in there and get a lot of overtime in there. In 1979 we negotiated language that the overtime would be equalized."

"The union's executive board sat down, and we decided that this is a good program. It may help save a life out there," Hayes continued. "He (Rechlin) offered not to compromise. He wouldn't compromise his position in any way. We met with a stonewall."

Suggestions made by the union offered "no improvements," according to Rechlin. The suggestions included se-

Ford says forces are 'hostages' in Lebanon

Area Congressmen will be watching the Lebanese peace talks scheduled to start in Geneva on Monday for direction on how the U.S. should react to the massacre of 216 Marines and Navy personnel in Sunday's bombing of a military compound at the Beirut airport.

"The onus has to shift quickly on the Lebanese to come to terms with each other," said Rep. Sander Levin, D-Southfield, whose 17th District includes Redford Township.

Levin discussed the coming Lebanese talks after attending a two-hour briefing for members of Congress Monday afternoon by Secretary of State George Schultz and Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger. He was one of five congressmen interviewed for their reactions to the bombing.

"My feeling — and the sense of everyone — is that things have to happen," Levin said. "Steps have to be taken or else the U.S. won't stay there in any form."

Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, agreed with Levin.

"If there is strong direction to sitting down in Geneva and negotiating some degree of peace, we should remain," he said. Pursell, whose 2nd District includes Livonia, said he wasn't optimistic about the outcome of the peace talks.

"My ultimate guess is there will be a partition of Lebanon — break it up. I don't know if it's the right thing, but it probably will happen," he said.

THE TWO CONGRESSMEN were among those who voted in favor of a compromise on the 1973 War Powers Act. Voting with them was Republican William Broomfield of Birmingham, whose 18th District includes parts of Farmington and Troy, the Rochester area, West Bloomfield and Bloomfield Hills.

"I supported it — not that I was happy about the 18 months, but that was what was in front of us," Broomfield said. "I've never been really keen on U.S. forces there on a multinational basis. I would have preferred a United Nations force, but it was felt the Soviet Union would veto it."

President Reagan used the War Powers Act to send the peace-keeping contingent to Beirut for 60 days. The compromise, which passed the House by a 270-161 vote, extended the use of troops for another 18 months. But the number of troops was limited to the 1,600 originally sent there, and their mission must remain the same. To exceed that level, the president would have to get permission from Congress.

The Senate also approved the compromise by a vote of 88-11. Michigan's two senators, Donald Riegle and Carl Levin, supported it.

VOTING AGAINST the compromise, which was signed into law by President Reagan two weeks ago, were Democratic Reps. William D. Ford of Taylor and Dennis Hertel of Detroit. Ford's 15th District includes Westland, Garden City, Canton Township and a southern portion of Livonia. Hertel represents part of Troy in the 14th District.

Ford said that if those opposed to the compromise had prevailed, the Marines would have been home by now.

'There is no worthwhile purpose for Marines to be there.'

— U.S. Rep. William D. Ford

"There is no worthwhile purpose for Marines to be there," he said. "Are we prepared to back one side of a multi-faceted civil war?"

Like Ford, Hertel complained that there is "no military objective for the Marines" who are "unable to protect themselves."

"Disasters of this kind are common with terrorists any place. That area (airport) was more exposed than it should have been," he said.

Expressing concern about the contingent of Marine replacements headed to Lebanon, Hertel said that the focus of Congress now would be how to get the Marines out and what U.S. foreign policy objectives are.

BUT OTHER CONGRESSMEN think that it would be a mistake to pull the Marines out immediately.

"If our Marines are going to be shot, I think we ought to get out of there... though it would be a sign of weakness to pull out immediately," Pursell said.

"A majority (of Congressmen) feel that to leave at this point would sanction a terrorist act," Sander Levin said. But he added that the incident "shortens the time sequence the Lebanese have to put their house in order."

Levin criticized Schultz for putting off Congressional inquiries until after the Marine commandant returns from Lebanon. Levin called for careful analysis and candor from the administration.

Not wanting to see any further involvement of Marines, Broomfield said he hopes that the administration doesn't enlarge the perimeter.

"We should put the men on ships, at least at night, and not have them exposed to fire," he said.

Calling the Marines hostages because they couldn't fight back, Ford said, "The purpose of the hostages being there was gone after the first Marines were killed."

All Congressmen, said Levin, have a "feeling of utter horror in the pit of our stomachs."

Voters face ballot question on mayor's veto powers

By Sandra Armbruster
editor

Westland voters will decide whether to limit the mayor's veto powers when they go to the polls on Nov. 8.

On the ballot will be a charter amendment placed there by the city council that would "provide that city council appointments to office and its appointment of the independent auditor shall not be subject to mayoral veto."

The proposal would "usurp the mayor's authority — not just mine," said Mayor Charles Pickering.

The mayor's veto power became an issue after he rejected the appointment of Kent Herbert, a former city finance director whom he had fired, to serve the remainder of Justice Barns term on the council. Barns left the council to serve as a state representative.

The issue was resolved — to neither side's satisfaction — in circuit court. The judge making the decision ruled that the charter does grant the mayor power to veto council appointments, but he gave the council a time extension to override the mayor's veto, which they did.

PICKERING CHARGES that the council is looking for "political revenge" with the proposed charter amendment. He calls it a "blatant move to undermine the checks and balances of the city charter."

"What bothers me is that the amend-was that someone stepped on a mine at the airport, and I've worried ever since.

"You're never prepared," she added. "You think about it anytime something happens, and you always just hope and pray it's not your son."

MRS. ERICKSON wrote to her son three or four times a week. She sends him packages of homebaked goods and gifts and, above all, prays, she says.

"He's on the prayer list at church every week, and I always put a little smile face on the letters and say, 'I love you, and God is watching over you,'" Shirley Erickson said. "He told me, 'I know those prayers are working.' He says the guys all gather around and pray every day.

"You just want them home so bad." Phipps' past comments about Lebanon included how happy the men in the unit were to find and soak in an old bathtub, his mother said. But she said he was touched by the children of that war-stricken country.

"He would say, 'These little children are so pitiful,'" Mrs. Erickson said. "When you go down the street, they run out and touch you. And when you talk to them and pat them on the shoulder or head, it really makes their day. It makes our day, too."

THE ERICKSONS' home appears calm, with a photograph of Phipps on the living room wall and an American flag by the front door. But things there have been hectic this week, as the family has been contacted around the clock by members of local and national news media.

Now the Ericksons are making plans for Phipps' homecoming. His unit is scheduled to leave Beirut Nov. 17, and Phipps is expected to arrive home Dec. 26.

"Everybody will be here, and he will have his carrot cakes," Mrs. Erickson beamed. "He loves carrot cakes."

Shirley Erickson says her prayers are with other families of Marines, especially those who haven't heard about their loved ones in Beirut. She says her advice to other families would be to "just keep praying."

"Prayer works," Mrs. Erickson said. "The Lord works in mysterious ways. He meant for him (Phipps) to get his back hurt (so he would be away from the encampment), I said, 'Oh, thank You, dear God, he's hurt his back.'"

Barns disputes mayor's veto power

ment is there by the council, not a petition drive by the citizens," Pickering added. "If the citizens were concerned, there would have been a petition drive.

"To my knowledge, there has been no uproar at all."

The mayor said that his right to veto is essential in a strong mayor form of government. He said that he has discussed the issue with members of the Westland Charter Commission who worked with the Citizen's Research Council of Michigan and the Michigan

Municipal League in establishing the roles of mayor and council.

"It's clear that the commission spent a great deal of time and study on this point as being central to the entire concept of our charter," Pickering said.

BUT BARNs, who was a member of the Charter Commission, a former council president and who served many years as a representative to the Michigan Municipal League, disagrees with the mayor.

Barns said that although there never had been a veto before, it was "always understood" that the council had the right to make appointments without a veto.

"Let me cite an example," she said. "Of times the mayor would try to make the (city) clerk part of the administration. I said it was fine for the clerk to attend the administrative staff meeting, but the clerk was the appointment of the council.

"I especially remember a conversation with (former mayor) Gene McKinney. He never questioned it," she said. Barns said that McKinney was successful in getting former councilman Jim Paffel appointed to a vacancy, but that he had done so through informal means. She added that she has no objection to a mayor getting a candidate on the council as long as he has four votes or a majority of the council to do it.

Barns added that she has supported separate legislative and executive branches since she was on the charter commission.

"If the charter needs clarifying, I support the amendment," she said.

Livonia schools revenue tops district spending

By Dan Vecchioni
staff writer

The Livonia School District banked excess revenues in the 1982-83 school year, according to a report prepared recently by accountants who audited the district's financial statements.

The report indicated that actual general fund revenues exceeded budgeted revenues while actual general fund expenses were less than budgeted expenses. These differences amounted to a $1.8-million gain for the Livonia district.

In the Wayne-Westland district, however, expenditures exceeded revenue, forcing the district to dip into its ending fund balance from the previous school year. However, district administrators managed to keep expenditures below levels that had been budgeted. The overall budget picture was presented to the board at its meeting last week.

Excess general fund revenues in the Livonia district were added to its excess building and site fund revenues, which more than offset losses in its special revenue and debt retirement funds. As a result, the district was able to increase its fund balances by nearly 30 percent, from last year's $9 million to $11.6 million.

Wayne-Westland's ending fund balance going into this school year was $96,000.

THE AUDIT reports are required annually from an independent party to determine the fairness of the districts' financial statements, said William Bufo, a partner with Plante & Moran Certified Public Accountants, which conducted the audits of both districts.

Plante & Moran determined that both Livonia and Wayne-Westland presented their financial statements fairly.

The Livonia audit report was presented by Plante & Moran to the district's board of education at a recent meeting. In addition to reviewing figures in the report, the accountants drew several multi-year comparisons for the district.

A "Halloween Party on Ice" will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 29 at the Westland Multipurpose Arena, 6310 N. Wildwood. Children accompanied by a parent will receive a 50-cent discount off the $1.75 admission price. Admission is $3 for adults. Call the arena at 729-4560 for more information.

Westworld Family Entertainment Center. The free event is open to the physically disabled and the mentally impaired at Westworld, on Merriman north of Warren.

Disabled youngsters ages 3 through 12 are being encouraged to dress up for the event from 5 to 6:30 p.m. The Westworld staff is constructing a group of houses inside the facility that youngsters may go to for trick or treating. In addition, they will see a magic show, listen to music and have refreshments.

Brothers and sisters are welcome to attend.

From 7:30 to 10 p.m., disabled persons ages 13 and older are invited to dance with a disc jockey in attendance, refreshments and surprises. Prizes will be awarded for the scariest, funniest and most original costumes. For more information, call the Bailey Center.

Grownups can get in on Halloween fun, too. Singles Depot is having a Halloween dance at 9 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 29 at Something Nice, 8701 Inkster in Westland.

Rubbish site closes Nov. 12

Last day for Westland residents to use the city's rubbish transfer site is Saturday, Nov. 12. The site is at 87137 Marquette.

Residents are being reminded that household furniture and appliances will still be picked up at homes by the city's garbage contractor if arrangements have been made previously by calling 724-1770.

Regular garbage trucks also will pick up tree branches that are cut in about three-foot lengths and tied in bundles of not more than 40 pounds in weight.

Down on the farm

Helping Michele Metzger choose a pumpkin to take home for Halloween is farm owner Paul Clymer. Picking pumpkins is almost as much fun as carving them when you visit the Clymer farm, 39740 Cherry Hill west of Hix. The farm features about three acres of pumpkins, hay ride paths and a greeting from Mopsy, the farm dog. Groups interested in calling the Clymers may do so by phoning 397-2220.

Games help pupils

Games come in many shapes and forms. Spanning a long history of fun and entertainment, games have served many purposes from oldtime parlor pastimes to modern day Dungeons and Dragons and video arcades.

Bringing games into classrooms and picking those with real learning value has been a worthwhile project in Garden City Junior High.

Youngsters have the chance to combine learning with fun in a new 10-week academic games class that shares a semester slot with a course offered in the new computer lab.

Linda Switzer, who teaches three of the four games classes, is pleased with the progress of the students who are enrolled.

Interestingly, Switzer said that the brightest students are not consistent winners in the board competitions.

"The student levels haven't really mattered that much. We don't have all the bright students winning all the time," she said.

Classes consist of about 30 students who meet daily.

IT TAKES about two class periods to explain the game and go through the rules, and each game lasts about a week's time, she said.

The board games cover basic English, math, and social studies skills in the form of Scrabble, maps and basic equations. A favorite has been a states game where students must identify individual states by their shape.

"At times we may look a little bit chaotic with individual groups working separately, and the students do get enthusiastic," she added.

Principal Gerri Kjesel heartily endorses the class concept.

"The best learning takes place when it's fun," she said.

Students agree.

"I'm learning and enjoying it," said Julie Swincicki, eighth grader who has competed in several championship matches within the class.

Games classes have gained popularity over the last few years and tournaments with other districts have cropped up across the state.

Synchronized swimming starts 25th year

By Margaret Neubacher
staff writer

While a bevy of girls in bright-colored bathing suits kick and splash in Garden City's Community Pool, their coaches are calling out commands and giving encouragement from the pool's edge.

The heated water of the pool makes the air warm and humid but that's not the only reason one might feel warm here. The obvious camaraderie of these girls on Garden City's Synchronized Swim Team gives off a special warmth.

The team is getting underway for its 25th year of competition, yet many people still look puzzled when they see the word "synchronized" on their jackets.

"One guy thought we were a group of therapy patients," said Coach Pat McKarge, "but that couldn't be further from the truth."

The sport originated from water ballet, which movie star Esther Williams popularized in the 1940s.

Since then the sport has become more elaborate and demanding of its participants. Basically the sport involves doing routines in water to music.

"It's very much like figure skating and gymnastics," said McKarge "It demands lots of skill and practice as well as creativity and artistry."

The Garden City team spends a lot of time on the road each year traveling to meets around the country and that's enabled them to swim with some of the best.

RHONDA OLIVER, a master swimmer and coach, recalls competing with Tracy Ruiz of Seattle. "We were doing figures and I performed right after Tracy. She was a tough act to follow because she was earning near perfect scores on each figure."

It was no surprise to Oliver when she learned Tracy would be representing the United States in the 1984 Olympics, which for the first time has recognized synchronized swimming as an Olympic sport.

"Our national headquarters report that tickets for the synchronized swimming finals were first finals to sell out," said Oliver "We hope the international attention boosts our membership."

But even if you were to put aside the glamour of Olympic gold medals and traveling around the country as a team, Oliver says she would still be hooked on synchronized swimming.

"It's fun," she said.

But more importantly, she adds, the friendships she's made through the teams will last a lifetime.

"When I was in high school," Oliver recalled, "during the months of February and March we traveled every weekend. That meant leaving after school Fridays and getting back very early Monday morning."

"We were eating, sleeping, practicing and well... just living together during that time. We talked about our different religions and nationalities and learned a lot about ourselves and each other."

Like many groups of athletes who work hard, the swimmers play hard too.

Numerous stories are told and retold about the teasing and pranks they've all shared over the years.

"IT'S LIKE an extended family," said McKarge, 34, who started swimming 22 years ago. She points out how people seem to get caught up in synchronized swimming. One girl will bring her sister, then a neighbor or a friend or even a friend of a friend. They in turn bring their friends and neighbors.

"One of the greatest satisfactions for me has been to watch these girls grow up to become fine women," said McKarge.

A former Garden City resident, Lois McDonald, founded the program in 1958.

She was succeeded by Shirley Burlingame, another Garden City resident who has since retired to Florida.

McKarge swam under both McDonald and Burlingame and took over as coach in 1969.

McKarge welcomes anyone, age 7 and older, with or without prior experience to join the team.

"We'll take girls who can just manage a dog-paddle and have them competing before long."

Garden City is unique in that it has a masters' team for people 19 and older.

Glady Palmer, 67, of Garden City, is the team's oldest member.

MANY MEMBERS once swam for their high schools and colleges and still enjoy the practice and competition.

The synchronized teams take a break from their competition schedule to hold a show for the public every April.

Those who attend can get a preview of what's to come in the 1984 Olympics as well as enjoy the efforts of a hard working group of athletes.

Anyone interested in the team may call Pat McKarge at 421-6044.

County board OKs Lucas budget

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners adopted a $357 million operating budget for fiscal year 1983-84, with all but about $500,000 approved as proposed by County Executive William Lucas.

The commissioners approved the budget 13-1, with Commissioner Kay Beard dissenting because of reduced health care appropriations. "We've all seen and heard of the recent problems of indigent patients being shuffled from one hospital to another seeking medical aid," explained Beard.

"This budget is being balanced on the backs of the poor and uninsured."

Approved Oct. 20, the budget cuts indigent medical treatment programs from $25.5 million to $3.9 million. It also reduces funding of the County General Hospital by nearly $7.5 million, down from the $57.5 million allocated in the current fiscal year to $50 million for the next fiscal year.

ALTHOUGH the board granted "better than 99 percent of his (Lucas) wishes," in the words of chairman William G. Suzore, commissioners denied a request for three additional attorneys in the office of Corporation Counsel. Lucas' request for authority to impound funds also was denied.

Most commissioners expressed some dissatisfaction with the budget, but agreed that it was the best decision available under present circumstances. Commissioner Mary E. Dumas pointed out that operating funds for the new jail had not been determined and would likely require a supplemental appropriation.

Commissioner Milton Mack said he saw no alternative to the hospital problem and would vote for the budget to avoid further delay.

"I disagree with many things, but I'll vote for it," said Commissioner Arthur M. Carter. "I hope it is received by the CEO (chief executive officer) without being vetoed so we can all proceed together to make county reorganization a success."

ADEQUATE health care is a statewide problem, observed Commissioner Joseph L. Jurkiewicz. "And hopefully we can eventually provide proper care with help of the state."

Commissioner Samuel A. Turner said he regarded the budget as a tool the commission was providing Lucas to restore the county to financial stability.

The commissioners also put a $10,000 limit on Lucas' ability to switch funds from one itemized account to another without the board's consent.

This came after a disclosure last month of Lucas spending $263,000 without authorization.

The commissioners also transferred $303,000 from a professional services account to an unallocated appropriations account to thwart the executive's ability to spend funds without board approval.

LUCAS had been using the professional services account to pay the salary of his chief of staff and fees for Lansing and Washington, D.C. lobbying firms and local independent auditing services.

Adult abuse laws explained

Agnes Mary Mansour, director of the Michigan Department of Social Services, will be luncheon speaker at a conference on the new state adult protective services law. The daylong session will be Thursday, Nov. 10 in Mercy College Conference Center, 8200 W. Outer Drive, Detroit.

Mansour will address community leaders and human service professionals at the meeting to discuss the impact of Public Act 519 of 1982 which became effective in April.

The law requires a wide range of health and human services professionals and others to report to the Michigan Department of Social Services (DSS) suspected cases of adult abuse, neglect, exploitation or endangerment.

The law specifies who must report, what must be reported and outlines procedures for investigating reports of adult abuse.

Invited to attend are more than 1,500 representatives of public and private agencies in the fields of health care, mental health, law enforcement, social services and education.

"The Community Cares" is the theme for the day, which includes workshops on topics like identifying adult abuse, causes and prevention of abuse, spouse abuse and domestic violence and interagency coordination.

Keynoting the conference at 9:45 a.m. is Freida Gorrecht, president of the National Coalition for Nursing Home Reform.

Other speakers will include Robert L. Little, DSS director of Field Services Administration; Lillie M. Tabor, director of Wayne County DSS; and Joseph LaRosa, DSS director of Adult and Family Community Services.

People interested in attending the conference should call conference coordinator Patricia Smith at 256-1061.

"Under this new arrangement, the CEO will have to return to the commission for approval to keep spending on these arrangements," Suzore said. "He has been spending money without contracts and without commissioner approval, a violation of the charter. Now we can adhere to the charter."

"We have approved what we felt was equitable and fair to all departments within revenue available to county government. And the changes we made simply reflect our desire to fulfill the responsibilities of an appropriating body."

EMU students improve city government

Renee Merchant helps improve city

Garden City's municipal administration is tapping a college program to save money and give students a chance to apply classroom concepts to the real world.

The activity is part of Eastern Michigan University's organization development program.

Garden City was picked as a project site because of its efforts to involve community members and employees in improving city government, an administrative spokesman said.

"Garden City is an organization with an unusual management style, said Nick Blanchard, assistant professor in the university's business management college.

He is coordinating 17 students who are surveying local residents and interviewing city employees.

"Three resident surveys are being conducted to identify community attitudes about major and local road and sewer improvements, to follow up on residents whose homes were burglarized and to obtain feedback from business persons about the city's new sign ordinance policy," Blanchard said.

Residents and merchants will be contacted within the next week by EMU students doing the survey, he added.

City employees will be interviewed by students to follow up on an attitude survey done recently by the city administration.

"The students will be focusing on obtaining employee suggestions to improve the work environment. We will be asking employees what they think management can do to help employees be better informed about work problems.

"In addition, we will be seeking feedback about the best way to involve those employees in setting goals and determining work methods for the respective city departments."

Lisa Sellers, an EMU student in the project, is involved in developing a team building workshop for city council members elected Nov. 8 and the administrative staff.

Council candidates and administrators are being interviewed to prepare for the workshop.

RENEE MERCHANT, another EMU student and a local resident, last year completed a 15-month assignment in the city. She is a recent graduate of the college's organization development program.

In her assignment, Merchant helped the fire department's labor management committee and conducted the city's first employee attitude survey in July, 1982.

"My experience as an observer of the Garden City management process, especially as it related to employee involvement, helped me to understand what I was learning in the classroom and helped me to appreciate the difference between good theory and practical application," she said.

"Most importantly, my 10 years as a Garden City resident gave me a context from which to understand the issues which I heard employees and management discuss.

"Garden City is attempting to give employees legitimate input about decisions that affect them on the job.

"I believe that is one reason why the city has been successful in making meaningful change and improving city services, despite financial times."

Merchant said she was impressed by a majority of city workers who are dedicated and highly motivated.

"LIKE MANY organizations, however, there are a few vocal leaders who don't really understand what the city is attempting to do by involving employees," she said.

"The key for the city is to encourage those employee leaders to work with management rather than to resist change."

The city has good supervisors and department heads who are attempting to work together with employees, she said.

"If the traditional gap between labor and management can be bridged through developing greater trust, I believe there will be even greater progress than we have seen in the city over the past few years," she said.

"My experience with Garden City has been an excellent practical experience to assist me to be more prepared to assist other organizations as an organization consultant," she said.

The relationship of the college and the city has been mutually beneficial for both sides, she said.

Benefit to help kids mark Christmas

A Garden City group is planning its 18th annual benefit dinner-dance Friday, Nov. 4, to enable hundreds of handicapped youngsters to meet Santa Claus.

The Mayor's Committee for Underprivileged Children (UPC) of Garden City is sponsoring the benefit to bring hundreds of children to Santaland on Dec. 17.

The children who are physically and/or mentally handicapped will be bused to the Santaland complex in City Park where they will visit Santa's workshop, see his animals, meet Santa, have their pictures taken, and receive gifts.

The children will be bused to VFW Post 7575 hall, 33011 Ford, where they will have lunch, refreshments and entertainment.

Expenses of the annual program are financed through donations from civic groups, businesses, individuals and fund-raisers.

THIS YEAR'S fund-raiser is the Nov. 4 dinner-dance at Harris-Kerber VFW Post 3333 hall, 1055 S. Wayne Road, Westland. The post is among several Westland organizations and businesses which have long supported the program.

The evening will start with cocktails from 7-8 p.m. with dinner between 8-9 p.m. Dancing to the music of Front Page Band, featuring vocalist Diane, and a floor show by Edna Brown, comedienne; Dennis Sally, MC, comic and song and dance entertainer; and magician George Bowman, all well known in the greater metropolitan area.

Tickets are $12.50 which includes cocktails, dinner, floor show and all drinks for the entire evening.

Charles Cook, committee chairman, said the ticket prices are kept low through the donation of the hall by Post 3333 and through Al Cole, president of Al Coles Varieties, the agent who made the arrangements for musicians and entertainers.

Entertainers are donating their time and talents.

Garden City High School administrators are trying to have left turns prohibited from the O'Leary Auditorium parking lot exit in the wake of an Oct. 5 accident in which four students were injured, none seriously.

The Board of Education Monday formally allowed the administration to work with the city's police department to decide where the signs should be posted and what hours left turns would be banned.

The accident three weeks ago resulted when a car carrying four high school girls made a left turn onto southbound Middlebelt and was struck by a northbound Middlebelt auto. A passenger in that car was also injured.

Dan Quinn, high school associate principal, told the board

Monday there has been one accident and several near-misses and a left-turn ban "would solve a lot of problems for us."

Under questioning from parents in the audience, Quinn added that, while the initial request is to ban left turns during school hours, a 24-hour prohibition hasn't been ruled out.

School Supt. Michael Wilnot said the district has contacted the Wayne County Road Commission to adjust traffic lights.

There is no light in front of the school parking lot exits but there are lights a short distance away at Maplewood and Cambridge, just south and north of the school, respectively.

But Wilnot said the move to adjust the Middlebelt traffic lights will take some time.

Grants ready for energy conservation

Garden City residents can get help in paying for energy conservation improvements to their homes.

The help is provided by a federal program administered by the Michigan State Housing Development Authority and Wayne County.

Garden City's planning and community development office is running the program locally.

The program offers financial aid by providing an interest-free loan when funds are borrowed for an energy-conservation improvement from First Federal of Michigan.

Helen Smith, Garden City planning and community development director, said grants are available for families with an income of up to $46,200 a year with the degree of help geared to income.

As an example, a family with an annual income of up to $24,640 could qualify for a $1,250 loan.

Judge pens true story: Son's life makes film

By Kathy Parrish
staff writer

District Court Judge Keith J. Leenhouts drove a hard bargain when a Dallas producer asked how much he wanted for movie rights to his book "A Father . . . A Son . . . and a Three-Mile Run."
"To show you what a poor negotiator I am, if I had the money I'd pay you to do it," answered Leenhouts.
For the judge, who is nationally known for his Volunteers in Probation (VIP) program, it was enough just to get his true life story on film.
"I always thought it would lend itself best to a movie," explained Leenhouts, who really never expected anyone but his family to see the effort.

SUNDAY THE film's hometown premiere brought out 860 people, who snifled their way through the inspiring story of Bill Leenhouts' struggle to achieve in school and on the track field.
The movie ends with his making Michigan's All State Cross Country Team.

But the real message lies in the support given to their son by Audrey and Keith Leenhouts during his youthful battle.

"It was tough when I was younger and they hung with me," recalled 29-year-old Bill, who now teaches sixth grade and coaches high school cross country.

"They gave me praise when I needed it and the opposite too."

NOW A VISITING judge in Madison Heights District Court, Leenhouts became nationally famous by enlisting volunteers to work with youthful offenders.

Marking its 25th year in 1984, the Royal Oak-based program has grown to more than a half million volunteers working in 5,000 juvenile and criminal justice programs around the country.

But the judge's book deals with his relationship with his eldest son, whose grade school years were marked by inability to achieve at academics or sports. Bill's problems were later traced mainly to a paralyzed eye muscle.

But throughout the ordeal, the Leenhouts encouraged their son to do his best. And he plugged away, determined to succeed at whatever he tried.

"My whole being cried out for the world to know how much I loved Bill, how proud I was of him, how defeat had finally changed to triumph, how love had conquered the odds," wrote Leenhouts.

IN 1972, the Royal Oak Kimball High School student took "All-State" honors in the Michigan High School Cross Country Championships.

The Christmas after graduation, Leenhouts presented his 19-year-old son a 40-page manuscript describing their years together. Family and friends urged him to submit it to Reader's Digest, which published the story in 1974 as "Race for Love."

"I find writing is a very good way to express feelings and emotions," explained Leenhouts, who also wrote manuscripts for his two other sons.

"It's all my thoughts, emotions and feelings. Poor Bill can't get blamed for any of it."

"I was pretty taken back with the manuscript. That was neat — just between him and me," said Bill.

"It meant more to me than the book and movie."

THE STORY was expanded into a book and in 1975 published by Zondervan Publishing, which sold 100,000 copies in English and about 15,000 in Dutch, French, Portuguese and Spanish. Royalties from the paperbacks all go to VIP.

As part of its Family Film Series, Evangelical Films retold the story which singer Pat Boone called a "fantastic spiritual tonic."

Two years in the works, the movie had its national premiere in September in the Bob Hope Theatre at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas.

Despite a teacher's prediction that he'd never go to college, Bill Leenhouts graduated from Central Michigan University in 1977 with degrees in physical education, elementary education and social studies. He now teaches sixth grade in Hazel Park and coaches boys' cross country at Dondero High School, Royal Oak.

Experts advise

Stay 'in sync' with your work place

Employees who are "in sync" with their organizations are likely in a job that fits their personality.

But those who are "out of sync" could benefit from asking: "Is my job right for me?" And "What can I do to improve it?"

"Organizational Sync: Making Your Job Work for You" is the answer that a University of Michigan-Dearborn psychologist has provided to help employees analyze their work situations and help their supervisors.

EACH ORGANIZATION has a "valued personality type," says Dr. Barbara Forisha-Kovach.

She observes that "when organizations and individuals are mismatched, energy that could be used for productivity is absorbed by frustration and bewilderment."

Dr. Forisha-Kovach explains through real-life examples that individuals and organizations well matched in personality benefit from "organizational synchrony." These people make the most use of their capabilities, she says.

Her book was written with her husband and partner, Randy Kovach, and associate Glean Morris and published by Prentice Hall.

It includes self-assessment exercises to help readers examine their skills, interests and expectations and then decide how closely they match those reflected by their organization.

A PROFESSOR of psychology and consultant who has tested this concept of organizational synchrony in training sessions for corporate managers, the author describes the structure of organizations in two ways:

• Pyramids — traditional hierarchies relying on power.

• "Circles" — for shared decision-making.

All structures, she points out, are hierarchical or flat, or somewhere in between.

In hierarchical structures, says Forisha-Kovach, "expectations focus on getting things done" while communication flows up and down between those who are higher and lower in status and power.

Flat structures, on the other hand, are "created to share information and generate new ideas." Members in these structures are equal in status and communication flows freely among all.

A sense of self-worth comes from accomplishing tasks in pyramids. But these structures, according to the author, "are not suited for creating a sense of belonging among individual members, nor for highlighting their value as total human beings."

A WELL-FUNCTIONING organization, however, combines structures that are both pyramids and circles "so that individuals experience themselves as competent and valued for their contributions."

The task of most corporations in this time of scarce resources, adds Forisha-Kovach, is to increase the number of circles within their pyramidal shape.

Three kinds of workers fit within the author's categories of personality: producers, processors and integrators.

Producers are most comfortable with the doing phase and with handling details, but distressed by the lack of rules and regulations in circular structures.

Processors feel restricted by rules and spend much of their energy thinking about their difficulties.

And integrators, who she says must learn to create a team and inspire others, "perform best when allowed to manage units within a pyramid."

In her view, a manager is "an orchestrator of human resources, highlighting individual talents as people work together." She also points out the employee's responsibility to "grow into" a job that fits individual expectations.

fitness

by Barry Franklin

Tough job? Fireman

Recently I was asked to settle a wager among three friends, all claiming to have the most physically demanding occupation. They were a construction worker, a firefighter and a heavy machine operator.

Although I tried to be diplomatic, noting all three required a high level of physical fitness, I was forced to take a stand. Indeed, a beer or two rode on my response.

Having previously reviewed the physical demands of a variety of occupations, I realized there was really no contest. Fire fighting was clearly the most physically demanding of the three — perhaps of all occupations for that matter.

I pointed out that in contrast to most conventional jobs, firefighters cannot control the requirements of their work environment. They must respond to every changing emergency condition, often involving extreme environmental as well as physical stresses.

The firefighter began to smile, knowing he had won the bet. My analyses continued.

Firefighters may be required to increase energy expenditure by 12 to 14 times, a fitness level compatible with that of many professional athletes.

Firefighters also have a high strength requirement, both of the upper and lower extremities. Furthermore, they must have above-average agility, speed, power and reaction time.

I noted that many firefighters are exposed to a variety of harsh environmental stressors — high temperature, excessive noise and deadly gases.

The ambient temperature inside a burning building can rise to 450 degrees F. Heavy protective clothing, designed to keep heat and fire away, inhibits the dissipation of body heat and increases the work load on the heart.

Finally, I cited a 1969 survey which showed that 104 firefighters died and roughly 37 percent of all firefighters were injured while on duty that year.

At the end of the evening, the firefighter assured me that seldom had a cold beer tasted so good — except, that is, after fighting a fire.

Barry A. Franklin will deal questions about health and physical fitness as he resumes his bimonthly column. Topics will include the benefits and limitations of exercise, heart disease and obesity, diet and exercise myths.

Nature programs set

By Lem Maseo
outdoors writer

Huron-Clinton Metroparks have many nature programs lined up for the weekend of Oct. 29-30 as Michigan's fall color nears its peak. Most are free unless otherwise noted, and last 1 1/2-2 hours. Vehicle admission to the park is charged. In each case, pre-register by calling the park office.

"Waterfowl Cruise," 9 a.m. Saturday and Sunday aboard the "Island Queen" excursion boat on Kent Lake in Kensington; $2; call 685-1561.

"Autumn Fruits and Nuts," 1:30 p.m. Saturday, a nature walk, nature center of Kensington; 685-1561.

"Animal Signs," 2 p.m. Sunday, nature walk, nature center of Kensington; 685-1561.

"Halloween Hayrides," 7-9 p.m. Saturday at Kensington Farm Center; 685-1561. Fee is $2.50 for kids, $3 for others, and includes cider and doughnuts.

"Nature by Bike," 10 a.m. Sunday, from park office of Hudson Mills Metropark northwest of Ann Arbor; 685-1561.

"Autumn Sensitivity Walk," 2 p.m. Sunday, nature center of Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock; 697-9181.

It is one of the few in Michigan with a heated toilet and shower building to be kept open all four seasons. All sites have electrical outlets and cost $7 per night.

And campers who want to make use of the campground on consecutive weekends can make special arrangements to leave their equipment there. Call the manager at 685-2433.

A dormitory-style building called the Huron River Outdoor Center is also available for weekend and weekday use. It can accommodate groups ranging from 32 to 128 with sleeping facilities, dining hall and meeting room.

The Proud Lake area stretches east and west of Wixom Road along the Huron River and its impoundments — Proud and Moss lakes. It's one of the most popular in Michigan with space for hiking trails, horse trails, boat launch, hunting areas, picnicking, cross country ski trails and a snowmobile area.

A HUNTER safety course for 12-year-olds and up is being sponsored by the Wayne County Sportsman's Club on its grounds on Inkster between Pennsylvania and Sibley roads in Romulus.

The course will run 8-4 on Saturday, Nov. 5; and 9-4 on Sunday, Nov. 6. Cost is $3. For pre-registration information, call Art Maclean in Livonia at 427-1482.

Pets of week

Michigan Humane Society's Kindness Center, 37255 Marquette, Westland (telephone 721-7300) needs homes for two 3-month old pets. Both Thad III, a domestic male cat, and Bannie, a female mixed labrador, have had shots and been wormed.

Incentive to homeowners Solar tax credit extended

By Penny Wright
special writer

Following overwhelming approval in the Michigan Legislature last week, the solar tax credit bill awaits Gov. James Blanchard's signature.

When signed, House Bill 4622 will extend through 1988 the system of granting state income tax incentives to encourage residential investments in solar, wind and water energy systems.

The Senate passed it 34-1. The House vote was 100-2.

THE NEW tax credit will last five years and be more generous than present incentives.

Currently, a 10 percent credit on your state income tax bill is allowed for the first $2,000 investment in renewable energy devices, and 5 percent for the next $8,000 spent. Maximum credit is a total of $600.

The new bill will allow a 30 percent tax credit for the first $2,000 investment and 15 percent of the next $3,000. A maximum credit of $1,050 may be deducted directly from your state income tax obligation.

The bill will be retroactive to Jan. 1, so the credit can be taken for the year 1983 when you file your return next April 15.

The bill eliminated a property tax credit for solar equipment.

LEGISLATIVE backers viewed the bill as a means of supporting development of a variety of energy resources within Michigan.

'Solar has already proven itself in Michigan. We should provide renewable energy incentives for the commercial and industrial sectors as well.'

—state Sen. Phillip Mastlin

"Everyone believes we should explore lots of energy sources — this is critical," said Rep. Wilfred Webb, D-Hazel Park, a member of the House Taxation Committee, which reported out the bill.

"I don't think anyone in my district has solar. Maybe this will change that," said Webb, a first-term lawmaker whose district includes part of Troy.

State Sen. Phillip O. Mastlin, D-Pontiac, a member of the Senate Finance committee, sees wisdom in encouraging development of solar resources.

"Solar has already proven itself in Michigan, Mastlin said, pointing to a substantial shift to supplementary solar heating systems by homeowners. "We should provide renewable energy incentives for the commercial and industrial sectors as well."

DAN SHARP, an aide to the bill's sponsor, Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, heralded the legislation as a push for one of Michigan's growth industries.

"Extending the tax credits is good for everyone," Sharp said. "The incentives will stimulate spending that will in turn generate jobs and economic spinoffs, plus annual energy savings (to homeowners)."

Sharp noted the higher percentage credit on the lower end of the cost scale.

"The high percentage up front will encourage the purchase of systems with the lowest costs and the quickest paybacks. It will mean more bang for the bucks," he said.

THE NEW BILL is a compromise of an earlier version which passed the House in September.

According to Joann Neuroth, director of the Michigan Energy Administration, the revised bill is wise to provide a more modest credit.

"I believe the credits will help expand the energy market," Neuroth said, "but I am hesitant about government subsidies of any fuel for very long."

She observed that the state's solar industry, which in 1981 ranked sixth in sales nationally, is approaching cost-competitive status.

The administrator said she sees solar energy as a supplemental technology which will become one resource for energy needs. "Solar will never be the sole source of heating here, but it will reduce the heating season and bring significant savings."

The writer is a Plymouth free-lancer who also teaches energy-related topics.

It's a crime city, police union can't agree

"It's the first time I can recall all of the police agencies have gathered in a common cause."

— Charles Wilmoth, chief Garden City police

NOT QUITE ALL police agencies, Chief Wilmoth. Westland won't be participating in a county-wide attempt to collar drunk drivers.

Beginning Thursday, two-officer teams in marked cars armed with portable breathalyzers will patrol targeted roads under terms of a $400,000 federal grant. Deputized officers will be patrolling in 25 teams on Wayne County roads from 6 p.m. to 3 a.m. Friday and Saturday and during the "happy hours" of 3-6 p.m. weekdays.

Officers will cross their normal city boundaries in strict enforcement of drunk driving laws. Police are determined to be tough, even if business falls off as it has in at least one section of Oakland County.

"I'm not in the bar business. I intend to enforce the law," said Wilmoth.

FOR ANYONE who has suffered the loss of life or property due to a drunk driver, for anyone who has driven defensively around an obviously intoxicated person at the wheel, the program sounds like a much needed first step.

Unfortunately, Westland won't budge. It's not that Westland doesn't have drunks at the wheel. In fact there were 446 arrests made in Westland last year for drunk driving.

But petty fighting between the union and the city administration over which police officers would get the overtime has mixed the patrols here.

The issue is a contract clause that says overtime will be scheduled equally among the officers, not just those in the traffic bureau. Police officers think the drunk driving patrols are a good idea that could save lives, but the union is holding the city to the promise of equal overtime.

Westland's police chief described union suggestions, including a lottery, as unworkable. Six weeks ago he said the two sides are at an impasse.

The union said it "met a stonewall" and insisted that anyone can recognize a drunk driver.

THE GRANT money will still be spent, even if Westland doesn't join the patrols.

"If Westland doesn't participate, that means more money for the other cities to do alcohol enforcement," Wilmoth said.

Once again the city renews its reputation as being a place that can't get its act together. This program has been in the planning stage for six months. It isn't a last-minute thing, but as of Tuesday morning, the mayor had yet to discuss the problem with the police chief.

Westland stands to lose a lot more than just a share in a federal grant and some overtime.

"I would certainly hate to see the program not used," said Jamie Hayes, president of the Westland Police Officers Association. "With some type of additional enforcement action, maybe we can get a drunk driver off the road 10 minutes before he would have killed somebody."

Amen.

Taylor 'empire' must crumble

To the editor:

In an effort to find out why the council of Westland and the Mayor seem to have been on a collision course since January 1982, I set out to see what is happening and why. Armed only with the knowledge that our former mayor was Thomas Taylor, and that he had re-entered the scene on behalf of the four council members who are up for reelection, I looked for the bond that kept him near.

I started in January 1982, when Pickering took office and the council took its stand. First were the dismissals of Shaw, Spisak, Gunther, and Herbert, which enraged the council. With the decision not to keep the City Attorney Charlie Bokos, who was appointed by Taylor, the lines were drawn, and the battle was on.

Why is our current Council so hell bent on keeping things the way they were when Taylor was the mayor, even though we always had layoffs, requests for millage increases, reduction in city services (but not taxes), and a budget deficit looming at the beginning of each fiscal year? How can this ideals and thinking of the former mayor live on through the current council after he had left office?

Starting with the council president, and working down I found a very strong bond with the council and Taylor that has left anyone who tries to change things on a collision course with them.

Tom Artley was appointed to the parks and recreation advisory committee in 1976 by Taylor, and later was appointed to the council to fill a vacancy.

Ken Mehl was appointed to the planning commission in 1976, and as Mr. Mehl has said, the mayor had quite a voice when it came to who would be on the Commission.

Ben DeHart was appointed to the planning commission in 1978, and after a recall for council, ran for and won a seat on the council.

A. Kent Herbert was a member of the Taylor administration from 1976-1981, with the blessing of Taylor. After being let go by Mayor Pickering in 1982, Herbert was appointed to council to fill the opening left by Justine Barnes.

Bob Wagner was hit with recall in 1978. Wagner survived the recall, but learned not to stand in opposition with Taylor and what he wanted.

Charles Griffin ran and won a seat on council during the race when Taylor ran for mayor. With Taylor's help Griffin knew who to work with if he wanted to stay on the council.

During Taylor's term as mayor of Westland he ran things with an iron hand, by dismissing people and putting in his own. He oversaw who got appointments made by council so those appointments reflected what he wanted. The four council members who were hit with a recall in 1978 knew who was behind it. Since the first reason listed on a notice sent out in September 1978 advocating that recall was the rejection of Taylor's appointee Sylvia Kozorosky.

Yes, it becomes quite clear, with the support for Evan Callanan for judge, the people he wanted in key departments and those on council that he wanted, Taylor had built a self-sustaining empire that would run as if he were still the mayor. The proof is in the conduct of the council when it came to stopping mayor Pickering from removing any more of Taylor's people, as witnessed at council meetings and the appointing of Herbert when the opening in council came. In their conduct, the six councilmen have shown that they will stand by the man who got them there, and who would remove them if he so chose.

After seeing the re-emergence of Taylor personally on the scene attending their meetings, and with their pictures together, I know the empire must be cracking, the monster that was created must be gasping to stay alive, and grasping to keep control of our lives. I hope, for the sake of the city, that the monster dies, that the empire that should have stopped in 1982 will crumble once and for all.

Grow up, says former mayor

To the editor:

"You can fool some of the people all the time and all the people some of the time, and that may be enough to stay in office." It appears this is the policy of the current mayor.

Does he really expect people to buy his latest investigation scam? Here's a person who has been in office for over 22 months. That's plenty of time to find out what took place during preceding administrations, especially since he has a person on his staff who was the chief finance officer for the city during my administration and also served as the head of the maintenance department, which oversees all construction projects and consulting engineering contracts.

So, for 22 months, not a peep. Certainly never a request for information from me, information which I would have gladly supplied. Then, suddenly, two weeks before the city election, he announces his investigation. And he has the gall to say that it's not politically motivated.

We all know that when we are unjustly criticized, we first consider the source and then the possible motivation of the source. The source here is the mayor. A mayor who has been in constant state of war with the city council for two years.

During those two years, what's come out of the city hall that's going to benefit the city? You tell me. Can you fight and build at the same time?

During the six years I was mayor, we built two senior-citizens highrises, the Bailey Community Center, the Senior Friendship Center, four industrial parks and a new court facility. There were other projects but these are the largest and you get the idea.

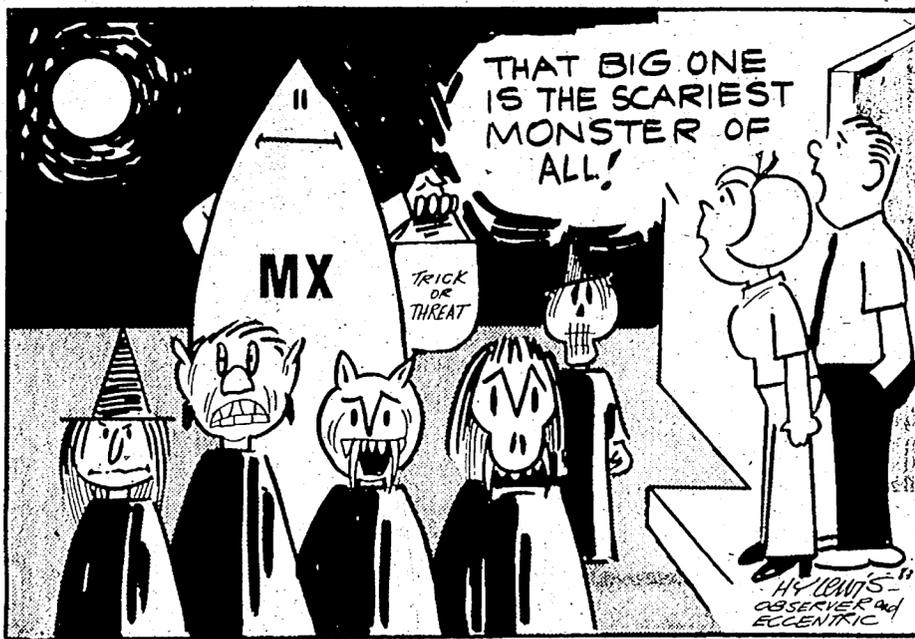

We were able to build all this because we didn't fight like children over who was the boss. We were all secure in our roles, and we did our jobs. When one is insecure, one tends to constantly overreact. Vetoes and court fights — these are the acts of an insecure person. Not the first time, of course. But, when they become the standard reaction, they indicate a person in a position who is over his head and liable to do anything to survive.

The mayor's real motivation in calling for his sham investigation was an attempt to discredit Mr. Kent Herbert. Mr. Herbert was the finance officer for the city when the mayor came into office, and the mayor fired him. Subsequently, Mr. Herbert was appointed to the city council to fill a vacancy, and the mayor did everything he could including going to court to keep him off the council.

Mr. Herbert, because of his experience, is, without a doubt, the most qualified candidate from the standpoint of knowing about how government operates. By the same token, Mr. Herbert's knowledge of the proper function of government had been a thorn in the side of the mayor, whose operation procedures haven't always been consistent with what's proper. It's understandable from the Mayor's point of view: Herbert is an embarrassment to him because he points out the Mayor's deficiencies.

I have not spoken out publicly against the mayor since I left office, and that is not my purpose here. But, I do have some advice for him. Master Mayor, grow up. You're giving my town a bad name. And see if you can get the grass cut around City Hall. It looks terrible.

Allo's crime: UAW symbol

A POLITICAL minority doesn't fight the majority or the chief executive on every issue. It picks a handful of important issues on which to do battle, preferably issues which will illustrate a difference in philosophy.

We will see that in the Oakland County Board of Commissioners when Democratic leader Larry Pernick of Southfield carefully chooses his shots at Republican County Executive Dan Murphy's budget.

And we saw it in Lansing when the state Senate Republicans forced Gov. James J. Blanchard to withdraw his nomination of Clifford Allo as a member of the Workers Compensation Appeals Board.

That was too bad because the case against Allo was a poor one. Indeed, it was practically non-existent.

THE MICHIGAN State Chamber of Commerce led the charge against the 38-year-old former Bloomfield Township resident.

I saw the mail from business people in Troy, Southfield, Livonia, Plymouth and Detroit to a Republican senator. The word "bias" was used in virtually every letter.

The odd thing, as I look back on it, is that there wasn't a single fact to support the charge. There wasn't a single quotation from an Allo speech or University of Detroit Law School lecture. There wasn't a single anecdote about his work in the Milliken Administration. They kept repeating bias, bias, bias so often that they, the chamber and the Republican senators, came to believe it.

In the two-plus hours confirmation hearing last week, Senate Republican Leader John Engler of Mt. Pleasant came up with only one solid charge. It was that Allo, in representing a UAW member in an appeal to the state Supreme Court, had made some pretty harsh generalizations in his brief against General Motors.

Big deal. A lawyer isn't supposed to be a dispassionate scholar or detached intellectual when he represents a client. A lawyer is a hired gun. We don't hold it against lawyers who represent murderers and sodomists and con men. Why should it be held against a lawyer who lays it on thick for a UAW member?

THE WORD "SYMBOL" popped up constantly in the hearing.

"The Senate has to look at the symbolism," said Engler.

"I'm concerned about the symbolism," said Sen. Nick Smith, R-Hillsdale. "What would you do to overcome that symbolism?"

Engler again: "If the symbolism of an Allo appointment would hurt Michigan, shouldn't you resign?"

Sen. Connie Blinsfeld, R-Maple City: "I have a folder of letters from employers. . . There is a strong perception you should not be on the job because of lack of objectivity."

Tim Richard

And after the hearing, Sen. Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, said, "I think if the nomination had been approved, that would have sent the wrong signal to the business community."

Poor Allo tried to answer symbolism with facts. He couldn't make a sale.

ASKED IF HE were a UAW lobbyist, Allo said: "No. I never spent $50 on anyone. Someone over-generalized. I couldn't twist an arm if I had to."

Asked if he were a "UAW puppet," Allo replied that he had tried internally to moderate the union's position on allowing retirees to double-dip into workers comp benefits.

No one chamber of commerce member, no industrialist, no senator offered a word of rebuttal to Allo's answers or offered to call the man a liar.

In short, there was simply no case against Allo. Because he was a part-time consultant to the UAW for two or three years, he was selected to be the lightning rod for thunderbolts which were really aimed at the UAW and at Blanchard's efforts to develop a pro-business image.

It wasn't a nice way to treat a human being.

DID YOU KNOW that Bob-Lo Island at the mouth of Lake Erie was once sold for $40? The purchaser was Col. Arthur Rankin, who later sold it to his son, Arthur McKee Rankin, a famous actor of his day. The younger Rankin stocked the island with deer, wild turkey and elk. He spent money lavishly on a house and stables. He spent so much money, in fact, that he lost the island to a mortgage company in 1887.

DID YOU KNOW that Henry Ford was by no means the inventor of the automobile? Ford did not have a car until 1893. Charles Duryea had brought out a "horseless carriage" in 1892. Carl Benz had built a gasoline-powered car in Germany as early as 1886. This was probably the first gasoline-powered car in the world.

Tales of great Tiger owners

NOW THAT the pennant races and the World Series have been written into history, one big question remains for followers of the Detroit Tigers: What kind of an owner will Thomas Monaghan, the young pizza king from Ann Arbor, turn out to be?

This question is paramount because at 46 he is the youngest owner the team ever has had.

But one thing is certain: He is bound to bring in some new ideas to the handling of the team and stadium.

He will be compared with some of the most honored of all baseball owners, and he has a big task ahead of him to join in the company of Frank Navin, Walter O. Briggs and John Fetzer.

Edgar

Each man was a shrewd negotiator and brought some great moments to the corner of Michigan and Trumbull avenues.

NAVIN, WHO began life as a bookkeeper, once chased one of his players and his agent out of the office.

Paul "Dizzy" Trout, thinking he was entitled to more money, called on Navin and brought an agent with him.

No sooner had the agent been introduced than Navin, in that cold Irish style, ordered them both out of the office.

"Come back alone," he shouted at Trout, "and maybe we can do business."

High tech businessmen are among the wealthiest

Your wealth would have to be in excess of $125 million to be on Forbes magazine's list of America's 400 richest people.

The special fall issue of the magazine lists the richest people in America. Among the wealthiest, those with net worth more than $1 billion, are three men who made huge fortunes in high tech industries.

The top 10 American billionaires are: Gordon Peter Getty, Sam M. Walton, Daniel K. Ludwig, David Packard, Wang, Nelson Bunker Hunt, Caroline Hunt, Schoellkopf, H. Ross Perot, Margaret Hunt Hill, and George P. Mitchell.

DAVID PACKARD of Los Altos Hills, Calif., founded Hewlett-Packard, a California-based computer firm, in 1939. He supplied the business management know-how. William Hewlett, his Stanford classmate and co-founder, provided engineering talent.

The firm emphasized high technology, research and development, premium quality, and price. Originally working from a one-car garage, it manufactured the audio-oscillator, then calculators, mini-computers and other EDP (electronic data processing) products. Packard once served as deputy defense secretary for Richard Nixon.

His current wealth includes 18.5 percent of the stock in Hewlett-Packard. During the bull market of August 1982 to August 1983, he personally made $1.2 billion.

AN WANG emigrated to the United States in 1945 from Shanghai. He received his doctorate in physics from Harvard and, at the age of 28, invented magnetic-core memory, which was essential for computers for 20 years.

In 1951 he founded Wang Laboratories, and the company has grown 40 to 50 percent a year since. Now a word processing leader, Wang founded the Wang Institute in 1981 for the sole purpose of training computer scientists.

His net worth is $1.6 billion, of which $357 million was made during the current bull market.

H. ROSS PEROT grabbed world headlines in 1979 when he solved his own Iranian hostage crisis. Two of his employees were taken hostage, so Perot and a team of other employees embarked on a successful rescue mission.

Perot lives in Dallas where he founded Electronic Data Systems (EDS) in 1962. He is still the chief executive officer and was the first man to lose $1 billion (on paper) in 1969.

Perot is recognized as the inventor of "facilities management" as an independent business which provides computer services. Besides his 47.6 percent of EDS, he also owns oil, gas and real estate worth more than $1 billion.

Perot also fared well in the 1982-83 bull market, accruing more than $412 million in one year.

THE NEXT group on the Forbes list included those individuals worth $500 million and up. Again, high tech Ronald R. Watcke three high tech businessmen are on the list in addition to William R. Hewlett of Hewlett-Packard fame. He is worth at least $950 million.

Stephen D. Bechtel Sr. is worth $800 million. He built the family railroad construction company from moderate size to a global giant building dams, pipelines, refineries, airports and nuclear power plants. Junior took over in 1960 and expanded the company even more.

Kyupin P. Hwang, founder of TeleVideo Systems Inc. in 1975, is now battling Apple and IBM for the home computer market. He is from Korea and is a true Horatio Alger story about rags to riches.

Hwang began working in this country as a dish washer at a Lake Tahoe casino earning money for college. He became a citizen in 1974, and his company is now the world's leading independent supplier of video display terminals.

TeleVideo Systems Inc. went public in March of this year, and his 28.2 million shares suddenly were worth $575 million.

WHILE WORKING for IBM, William H. Millard saw the potential for retailing personal computer equipment. He opened his first Computerland in 1976. Now, some 550 franchises later, the company has revenues over $1 billion.

Millard said, "I am the biggest winner of all in the microcomputer industry." His corporation takes 8 percent of gross, plus franchise fees, etc. He owns 97 percent of the company and has assets in excess of $500 million.

To be sure, there are many other millionaires on the Forbes list who made their megabucks in high tech ventures. What are your chances? See next week's column in which I will review some of the hot high tech stocks and investment plans available for the small investor.

Dr. Watcke is dean of liberal arts at Wayne County Community College.

Area lawmakers agree

House approves covert aid cutoff

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Oct. 17-20.

HOUSE

COVERT AID. By a vote of 227 for and 194 against, the House adopted an amendment cutting off covert U.S. financing of CIA-backed forces conducting a guerrilla war to topple Nicaragua's Sandinista rulers.

The amendment was attached to a bill (HR 2968) funding fiscal 1984 intelligence operations. A conference with the Senate, which supports work of the Contras, will determine whether the House vote holds.

Supporter Michael Barnes, D-Md., said Administration Central American policies including the Nicaraguan action mean "we are heading straight for war."

Opponent Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said CIA-directed attacks are necessary "to drive (the Sandinistas) to the negotiating table."

Members voting yes wanted to cut off U.S. aid to the anti-Sandinista rebels.

Voting yes: Pursell, Hertel, Ford and Levin.

Voting no: Broomfield.
SENATE

MILK. By a vote of 188 and 208 against, the House rejected an attempt to bypass floor debate on a bill (HR 1528) to cut surpluses by paying dairy farmers to not produce.

This thwarted the milk-producers lobby and lawmakers who wanted the measure to go directly to conference with a sympathetic Senate that has voted to institute "paid diversion" for dairy farmers.

Full House debate on the bill now is expected.

The bill extends to milk the paid diversion that applies to many other commodities. Farmers would get $10 per hundred pounds for forfeiting 5 to 30 percent of normal production.

roll call report

The cost to taxpayers would be defrayed by a slight cut in dairy price-supports and, backers said by reducing surpluses that cost the Treasury $2.7 billion last year.

Supporter James Olin, D-Va., said: "Our milk producers have had to wait too long already... (the bill) is the best we are going to get."

Opponent Robert Michel, R-Ill., said paid diversion for milk means the government "will pick these 'loafing payments' from the taxpayer's pocket and present them to grateful dairy farmers."

Members voting yes wanted to bypass the pitfalls of full House debate on the dairy bill.

Voting yes: Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit.

Voting no: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Not voting: William Ford, D-Taylor.

EXPORTS. The House rejected, 199 for and 215 against, an amendment broadening presidential authority to stop U.S. multinationals from trading with the enemy.

A defeat for the White House, this preserved language requiring congressional approval of presidential decisions to block overseas U.S. subsidiaries from selling sensitive technology to hostile nations.

The bill at hand (HR 3231), extending the Export Administration Act of 1979, was passed for a final vote.

Debate touched on President Reagan's unsuccessful attempt to stop U.S. subsidiaries from selling technology for Reagan's unsuccessful attempt to stop U.S. subsidiaries from selling technology for the Siberian natural gas pipeline.

John Erlenborn, R-Ill., who sponsored the amendment, said "we must not undermine the ability of the president to carry out U.S. foreign policy."

Don Bonker, D-Wash., said the amendment would agitate allies and add to "the growing reputation that we have as unreliable suppliers in a competitive world market."

Members voting yes favored broad presidential powers to keep enemies from getting U.S. technology that is produced offshore.

Voting yes favored broad presidential powers to keep enemies from getting U.S. technology that is produced offshore.

Voting yes: Pursell, Hertel and Broomfield.

Voting no: Ford and Levin

KING The Senate refused, 12 for and 76 against, to send back to committee a bill (HR 3706) creating a national holiday for the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. The objective was a committee probe of charges that King had communist ties.

Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who wanted the committee probe, said "the record is clear about (King's) association with far left elements and elements in the Communist Party, U.S.A."

Crowley's marks 75th year

Crowley's celebrated its 75th anniversary during a party Sunday evening at Roma Hall in Livonia. Over 2,000 employees attended the event.

Among its nine department stores are those in Livonia, Birmingham and Farmington. Crowley's also has two stores in Detroit and stores in Westborn shopping center, Macomb Mall, Lakeside Mall and Universal Mall.

Crowley's began on July 13, 1908, when Joseph J. Crowley and William L. Milner bought the controlling interests in a Detroit department store operated by Partridge and Blackwell. The store occupied half the block in downtown Detroit bordered by Monroe, Farmer, Gratiot and Library.

By 1917 the two partners had acquired the entire block, making Crowley's the largest department store in Michigan.

In 1914 Crowley's was the first store to replace its horse-drawn trucks with gasoline-powered vehicles. In 1928 Crowley's installed a six-story escalator, the largest one in Detroit at the time.

Since July, 1908, Crowley, Milner & Co. has been a Detroit landmark. The downtown store closed its doors in 1977. In 1980 the central offices were moved from the original Crowley's location to offices on W. Lafayette, just west of downtown.

Security?

Waters doubts arms race makes us safe

By Sherry Kahan
staff writer

From the beginning of time, mankind has searched for economic and physical security, noted Dr. Maurice Waters, professor of political science at Wayne State University.

But Waters doubts that the escalation of nuclear arms since World War II has "made anyone feel more secure than they did earlier."

In a speech to the Livonia League of Women Voters, Waters pointed out that "since the end of WW II, more than $3 trillion has been spent by the U.S. alone on armaments" without improving the physical safety of Americans.

"In three years we will be spending $1 billion every day for military weapons," he said.

He added that the arms buildup has resulted in our "using up our most important metals, the ones our civilization depends on for industrial use. In 17 years we may have to import the metals we need."

He also believes that research funds are being used for military purposes rather than industrial. "That explains why we fell behind in designs for the automobile, and why our trains don't stay on the track at 55 miles per hour, while trains in other countries go 225 miles per hour and stay on the tracks," he observed.

MOST THIRD world countries have obtained weapons from six developed countries, he pointed out.

"Many of these countries would not have been able to engage in war without the arms provided by the super powers," he said. "Until three years ago the U.S. was the major supplier (of weapons), but in the past two years the Soviet Union passed us in the dollar value of weapons."

Waters stated that the U.S. "has more warheads than the Soviet Union, but they have more missiles. However, we have more warheads on top. We've reached the point where each side can destroy the other many times over, and we don't feel any more secure."

In the past the U.S. has been a leader in most new developments, such as the long-range bomber in WW II, he pointed out. Then we dropped the atomic bomb on Japan and moved toward the hydrogen bomb, which has 1,000 times the destructive power of the atomic bomb.

The rocketry developed by the Germans was brought to the armaments scene, making it possible for weapons to reach the Soviet Union in 30 minutes. Then came the Trident submarine with its 16 missiles, each with multiple warheads. Each of them is targeted to a special city, and could destroy every city of 100,000 or more, according to Waters.

But Russia made a desperate effort to "catch up," said the speaker. "The point," he stressed, "is that at no time have we ever found ourselves able to get far enough ahead of the Soviet Union to feel reasonably comfortable about our lead."

He added: "We are now aware Russia has reached parity with us. It built a great arsenal."

When parity is discussed, he remarked, it is rarely mentioned that the U.S. has nuclear partners like England, France and NATO to aid it, while the Soviet Union does not.

THE PUBLIC has become concerned over the extent of the devastation that would be caused by a nuclear exchange. Waters believes they have a reason to be. He estimated that 120,000 could be killed in half an hour.

"We are advised that we will still have people left," he said. "But conditions would be unspeakable. The water, the air, nutrients, animal life would all be contaminated. This attitude is hard to understand."

He noted that the government has said we could survive.

"It has developed a defense program, not for the public but for 3,000 top government leaders," he said. "A redoubt has been dug in the earth in Virginia. The Russians have emulated it and done the same in Russia."

"The only groups to be left will be the groups who started the conflict."

THE NUCLEAR FREEZE movement and the role of the United Nations also brought remarks from the WSU professor. He reported that 11 million Americans voted in November 1982 for a freeze on the production and deployment of nuclear weapons.

Former president Gerald Ford once was asked what the president would do if every state had a referendum on the issue. "The president would probably have to ignore the results," said Ford.

"Eleven million don't vote for a freeze because of emotional feelings alone," said Waters. "They have studied and thought about this."

He then underlined the fact the nuclear war is not like previous kinds of war.

"Japanese children are born with mutations because of the bomb," he stated. "Yet we continue to think in terms of the old slogan that more is better, rather than organizing our thinking about the use of weapons."

TURNING HIS ATTENTION to the UN, Waters said every major power has violated the United Nations Charter. The use of the UN as a way to solve problems has not succeeded, and we turned away from it.

"Not a single member country has contributed the amount of money it pledged in 1940," he continued. "Its budget is $753 million a year, which is less than Michigan gives yearly to Wayne State University, University of Michigan and Michigan State University."

He took umbrage at criticism of the UN by New York City Mayor Edward Koch.

The U.S. gets $700 million a year from UN delegates through money paid for food, clothing and shelter, most of which is spent in New York City, asserted the speaker. "We collect back from the UN much more than we're paying in."

He added: "The U.S. is spending $200 billion a year for arms. It gives $182,500,000 yearly to the UN. If we all were assessed for the cost, each of us would be paying 76 cents for the UN."

JANET KOZYRA MAY have her head in the clouds, but her feet are firmly on the ground.

One reason for that is her 3 1/2-year-old son, Mark.

"I can always tell when I've been studying too long. Mark starts to sit on my books or begins coloring in the pages," said Kozyra with a smile. "Then I stop for awhile and we play."

The 30-year-old Livonia Franklin High School graduate shared the anecdote with over 300 members of Zonta International at the service's organization's fall convention at the Plymouth Hilton recently.

Kozyra was honored by the group for her achievements in aeronomy for which she has received a fellowship from the Zonta organization.

She is among 30 recipients across the world to receive a 1983-84 Zonta Amelia Earhart fellowship. The $5,000 grant, offered annually to women qualified for graduate study in aerospace related science or engineering, memorialized Zonta International's famous member and air pioneer, Amelia Earhart, who disappeared over the Pacific Ocean in 1937.

KOZYRA WAS GUEST SPEAKER at the Saturday afternoon "Amelia Earhart" luncheon and was presented with a medallion and a pair of wings, signifying her high achievements that include degrees from the University of Michigan in astronomy and physics in 1979 followed by a master's in 1982. She is currently working on her Ph.D. in aeronomy.

She will use the fellowship to do thesis research in upper atmospheric physics. Her interest centers on the interaction of planetary bodies with the external interplanetary environment.

Her research will deal with highly technical data from a U.S. Dynamic Explorer system satellite dealing with that phenomenon known as the stable aurora "red arcs" found directly below the aurora borealis.

Specifically, she is doing research on the energy transfer mechanics that power that arc. Technically, it is described as an investigation of the magnetospheric ionospheric coupling mechanism that extracts energy derived from the solar wind and deposits it in the upper atmosphere.

Conceivably, it would be at this point that Mark would begin coloring in the books — or messing up her speech — if he had been at the luncheon instead with his grandmother.

The audience of business and professional women were slightly in awe as Kozyra illustrated the area of her work with a slide presentation developed for her by her husband, David, who is a graphic artist and photographer.

KOZYRA PAID HIGH tribute to her husband, a Thurston High School graduate, and to her widowed mother, Rose Urbanski, for their support.

"I have the best baby-sitter in the world — my mother," she said.

Kozyra, one of seven children, recalled that as a girl growing up in Livonia she was a science fiction devotee and found astronomy exciting. She had hoped to attend the University of Michigan but had to drop those plans when the university did not offer financial aid.

Instead, she enrolled at Central Michigan University which did offer funding. Enrolled in physics, she had to leave CMU after two years when the federal funding ended. She then worked for several years as a secretary to save money to go back to school.

By this time, the U-M had funding available and she was able to go back to school. She said she spent the next 2 1/2 years "juggling books and jobs." She was offered a fellowship by the university upon her graduation. She married soon after and became pregnant.

Trying to study was further complicated by morning sickness and medication for that which she took that made her drowsy in the afternoon. She delivered in mid-semester.

Grenada: picture-perfect island caught in a struggle

Travel writer recalls vignettes

My job sometimes take me to places that are in the news, leaving me with a dilemma. I am a travel writer, not a political writer. I go to a country to report on travel possibilities, not to comment on political situations.

I am seldom in a place long enough to develop in-depth reportorial observations. For that reason I include politics in my travel stories only to the extent that readers need such information to make travel decisions.

On the other hand, I usually come away from such a trip with images and experiences in my mind that affect the way I hear the news. That's the way it was this week when U.S. and Caribbean forces invaded Grenada. And therein is my dilemma.

Would such images and experiences be useful to readers in evaluating the news? And how do I avoid that terrible traveler's temptation: assuming that I know all about a country that I have only visited briefly?

I KNEW the factual background when I visited Grenada two years ago. It was a British colony which became independent in 1974. Prime Minister Eric Gairy headed the elected government for several years. In 1979, opposition leader Maurice Bishop overthrew Gairy's government in a bloodless coup and suspended elections.

Cuban workers were helping the government to build an international airport when I was there. The U.S. government considered Grenada to be a threat because of its left-wing connections.

This month, of course, two new chapters were added: Last week Bishop and several of his political associates were killed and his government overthrown by a more radical group, this week, U.S. and Caribbean forces invaded the island.

While I was listening to all this on radio and television a series of images and a multitude of voices kept flashing into my head.

THE SIGHT of this 133-square mile island rising mountainously out of the blue sea as we landed at a mountain airport big enough for small and medium sized planes. A luxury of nutmeg, coffee and fruit trees tumbling downhill as we drove an hour over potholed roads to the town of St. Georges.

A poor proud town scattered around the edges of a huge bay. I could easily imagine a nineteenth-century sailing ship cruising into the harbor. What entered instead was a 20th century cruise ship.

A long strip of glorious sand beach with low but fairly luxurious little hotels tucked into the palm trees. A rough winding road leading through fishing villages around the perimeter of the island.

That's the physical setting. Grenada looks exactly the way a tropical island should look: tropical trees spilling downhill down flowered hillsides to an emerald sea.

And there were images of the people of Grenada: Young immigration officers being officious in a simple wooden airport terminal. A serious young voice explaining that Grenada needed the new airport being built at the other end of the island; it would bring tourists in to enrich the economy. (Americans had to stay overnight in Barbados and fly in the next day on a smaller plane, which certainly limited tourists from the U.S.)

Another young man leading us po-

Grenada is a 133-square mile Caribbean island which looks the way a tropical island should look — tropical trees spilling down flowered hillsides to an emerald and blue sea and sandy beaches with small hotels tucked in among the palms.

lity through an old wooden building to the ministry of tourism. Sincere talk about a struggling economy, a tiny nation of poor people trying to survive out there in the eastern Caribbean with lots of salable spices but little industry.

I couldn't argue with their premise that it was a perfect setting for tourism: an unspoiled island with magnificent mountains and beaches but no high rise hotels or casinos. Their plan was to keep things small, and a little luxurious, but not too expensive. Like many underdeveloped countries, they saw tourism as their main economic hope for the future.

THE VOICES of the middle and upper class, especially the voices of American residents, surprised me. I assumed that they would be most resistant to the Bishop government, since it was left wing and had closed down the newspapers. There were many voices, but they all said more or less the same thing:

"Let's give Bishop's government a chance. The so-called democratic government of Eric Gairy, who ruled here for years, was a farce. He was a corrupt dictator. This new bunch of politicians are mostly young, and they don't know what they're doing, but maybe they will be able to make this island work. Let's give them a chance."

Outsiders, like myself, can seldom evaluate that kind of talk.

All we can do is listen. I asked guides and fruit sellers and bystanders for their opinions. They were mixed. Some said, "We like this government," Some said, "They were going to do great things, but they're terrible."

AND THEN there was Dr. John Waite: a Grenadian educated at Michigan State University, an island politician for 25 years under the Gairy regime and chairman of the Grenada Tourist Board under the Bishop regime. Educated, blunt, friendly. "Grenada is a 17th century country in a 20th century situation," he said. "The U.S. would do better to help us develop economically than to fight us because Cubans are helping us to build an airport."

All these images come back to me this week as I watch the news. Images of billboards that read "If you know, teach, if you don't, learn." Of a man who painted pictures on his housefront to celebrate the Bishop government that threatened us because it was too left wing and threatened those who overthrew him because it wasn't left wing enough. Images of the remaining newspaper, a terrible rag full of rhetoric about "yankee imperialism."

So what is happening in Grenada now? I don't know. I'm just a travel reporter with images in my head. I can tell you one thing though. In this, as in almost every other politically touchy country I have visited, things are not as cut-and-dried as they look on the television screen.

Grenada looks like a paradise but has poor proud towns scattered around the edges of the island. Many Grenadians work long hours to provide food for their families.

In world of travel

Handicapped are making inroads

Anyone who drives is familiar with the international symbol of the handicapped, a stylized human figure in a wheel chair. Unless you are handicapped yourself, you may not realize how welcome a sight that sign is when you travel or how hard handicapped travelers have fought to be included in the travel world.

Although the handicapped are still waiting for the day when they can easily use a washroom in an airplane, a great deal of attention has been paid to the handicapped traveler in recent years. The law demands ramps and toilet facilities in public buildings. Many hotels are installing braille signing, wheelchair-wide doorways on shower stalls and other services.

Access guides are being published so that you can know in advance whether travel is accessible. I highly recommend a book called "Access to the World" (1983) by Louise Weiss which can be ordered from your bookstore or from Facts on File, 460 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10016, for $14.95.

This 221-page guide gives information about facilities available on airlines and ships, in hotels, on railways and buses, but its greatest usefulness may be in the many reference guides listed for the handicapped traveler.

ANOTHER BOOK worth consideration is "Travelability, A Guide For Physically Disabled Travelers in the United States" by Lois Reamy, $11.95 from your bookstore or from McMillan Publishing Co. Inc., 101 K Brown, Riverside, N.J. 08370. This was first published in 1979, and a lot of things have happened since then, so you may want to ask about an updated edition before you put your money down.

Many access guides are published either free or for minimal cost by cities, states and federal government agencies. I have on my desk a book called "Access National Park, A Guide for Handicapped Visitors," available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

This book gives you information about the accessibility of facilities, services and interpretive programs in almost 300 areas of the National Park System.

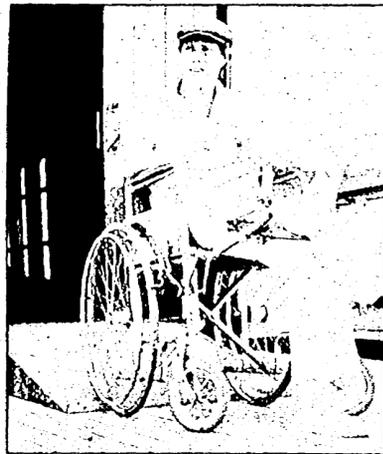

HEALTH INFORMATION of all kinds is a major topic in tourist bureaus around the world.

Central Kentucky Riding for the Handicapped Inc. has information about a program called "Free to Ride," for children and adults with a variety of handicaps. Contact them at Kentucky Horse Park, P.O. Box 8007, Lexington, Ky 40533.

Special accommodations for the handicapped are available in towns around the forests of Germany's Harz mountains. Contact Harzer Verkehrsverband, Postfach 1669,3360 Goslar I, Federal Republic of Germany.

Flying Wheels Travel has trips year-round for the disabled, including a Caribbean cruise on the Queen Elizabeth II Nov. 11-21. Call toll-free 1-800-533-0363.

For free health data about shots, foods to avoid etc., call Worldwide Health Forecast toll-free, 1-800-368-3531.

This traveler finds that ramps have been provided aboard ship to allow him to maneuver. A great deal of attention has been paid to the handicapped traveler in recent years. New laws demands ramps and handicapped toilet facilities. Many access guides are available to help travelers.

Ghost writer

Chance meeting uncovers suspense tale

By Diane Gale
staff writer

An Ethiopian woman meets a Canton author and the outcome is an intriguing, hair-raising story detailing one family's escape from the grips of a military junta to freedom in the United States.

The story is about Marta Gabre-Tsadick who was born in poverty and became the first woman to sit in the Ethiopian Senate. She endured countless setbacks, but finally managed to flee her country in 1975 after the death of Emperor Haile Selassie precipitated a violent power struggle among various factions.

When Sandra Picklesimer Aldrich, 38, of Canton met the prominent African woman, they found a common thread in their unending optimism, determination, ambition and most importantly their strong faith in God.

"I knew nothing about Ethiopia, but I knew I liked Marta, and that she had a story to tell," said Aldrich.

The book, "Sheltered by the King," is referred to by editors as "an eyewitness account of the intrigue that toppled the oldest Christian nation on earth," "a Cinderella story," and "an account of a woman who has gone from rags to riches and back to rags again."

During the civil unrest, hundreds of people were shot or beheaded, especially people with rank or privilege. Gabre-Tsadick's only hope of staying alive was to escape through the desert with her family.

HER HUSBAND Deme's ingenuity and persistence spirited them through 14 problems with their car. After their escape they lived in poverty, a dramatic fall from the opulent lifestyle they enjoyed a few months earlier.

Gabre-Tsadick works diligently in promoting agencies to aid refugees in Ethiopia, Aldrich said.

Aldrich was Gabre-Tsadick's ghost writer, meaning she wrote the African story in a first person format.

"Ghost writing means that Marta gets the credit, and I get the money," said Aldrich, an English teacher for Garden City Public Schools. "It was more exciting to tell it in the first person account, than for me to say, 'she felt,' all the time."

Religion played an important role in the process of writing the book.

For instance, the title has a religious connotation.

"She was sheltered in the court of King Haile Selassie, and she was also sheltered by the ultimate king," Aldrich said.

Also, the theme of the story is, "Do what you possibly can on earth and leave the outcome to God," Aldrich said. "It's important for us to apply this to every aspect of our lives."

A minister was instrumental in bringing the women together. They struck up a working relationship that developed into a devoted friendship.

That person was Dr. Bartlett Hess, pastor of Ward United Presbyterian Church in Livonia. He invited Gabre-Tsadick to speak before his congregation. Aldrich then invited the woman, her husband, Deme, and two sons to stay with her family.

The long, sometimes tedious, process of writing the book began.

IT TOOK so many hours of interviewing, transcribing tapes, organizing facts, writing and rewriting, that Aldrich said she couldn't possibly count the hours. The book was written from January 1980 to July 1982.

"If you asked my children, they'd say they couldn't remember a time I wasn't writing during that period," Aldrich said.

The book was released in April 1983. Copies have been sold in France, Germany, Great Britain, Norway, Sweden, Indonesia and the United States.

The hardest part of putting the book together was writing it, Aldrich said.

"Red Smith, the famous sports writer said, tongue in cheek that, 'anyone could write, all you have to do is sit in front of a typewriter and open a vein.' Good writing is agony."

The most enjoyable task in preparing

DAVID DEAN/staff photographer

Sandra Aldrich knew nothing about Ethiopia but knew she "liked Marta and that she had a story to tell."

the book was doing the research, Aldrich said, "because I love spending time in libraries."

She only used 10 percent of the reams of information she gathered. But, the effort wasn't futile, she said, because the learning experience was enjoyable.

"I'm thrilled to have been able to do this, because by meeting them I was able to see beyond my little world here in the United States," she said.

The encounter between the women has become much more than a working relationship.

Before leaving their home, Gabre-Tsadick told Aldrich that the author's hospitality made her feel like they were family. This is the highest compliment that an Ethiopian can give to another person. The praise is given sincerely and holds a lot of meaning.

Aldrich reciprocated the honor. Her husband, Don, died in December 1982 after a long fight with cancer. Aldrich asked Gabre-Tsadick to sit in the family area in the funeral home.

Even though Gabre-Tsadick's home is in Fort Wayne, Ind. she's kept in close contact with Aldrich.

When Aldrich speaks of the African woman, she shakes her head in awe and repeats "what a regal person" Gabre-Tsadick is.

The book isn't Aldrich's first experience seeing her name in print. She's had more than 70 articles in 17 national and international publications.

CONGREGATIONAL

It's easy to move through the years... acquiring this, buying that... thinking that the more we possess, the happier we'll be. That's not necessarily so!

Very often what happens is that instead of having possessions, they have us! The grip can get so tight we may feel, not just pinched, but overwhelmed and dangerously caught in a hold that won't let go.

Jesus taught that real life isn't found in buying, getting, or acquiring things. Because things can't love you. Only people can love, support, accept, and care. Get involved with people who care, and get a hold on life!

We promote violence in a variety of ways

Violence is a part of the mood and temper of our age. The Congress of the United States has yet to pass an effective gun control law. There are firearms in over 60 million American homes, allegedly for self-defense.

Violence is a major industry, since billions of dollars of America's national resources are allocated to provide for the production and maintenance of those tools of violence required for national defense.

We are complacent about the violence portrayed by mass media and its impact on our lives and the lives of our children. No generation growing up in any other era has had to face such a deluge of violence as modern American youth. Many youngsters play with toys guns before they can read.

In "action comics," television, and movies, children learn how men are killed before they can talk. The mass media blur the distinction between reality and fantasy, between right and wrong.

Mark anniversary

Unveiling of the sacred iconostasis altar screening bearing the likenesses of the Virgin Mary and Jesus and major saints will be one of the highlights of the 12th anniversary observance for parishioners of Holy Resurrection Orthodox Church Sunday at the 10 a.m. liturgy. A banquet will follow at 1 p.m. The 60-family parish moved to Livonia three years ago after purchasing the building formerly owned by Pilgrim United Church of Christ at 36075 Seven Mile Road. Previously, services were held in Southfield. The church is affiliated with the Orthodox Church of America. Fifteen separate ethnic groups are represented by the parish families. Pastor is the Rev. Klement Palmer.

Teens collect food for needy families

Teen members of the Metro Pathfinders Club of the Seventh Day Adventist Church, Haggerty and Five Mile, will be out collecting canned food for Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets for needy families in the area.

Between 1 and 5 p.m. Saturday, the group will canvass the Lyndon-Six Mile-Haggerty area. They will carry identification. The project is part of an ongoing project by the club that will continue through November. For more information, contact Don Samborski at 527-6536.

moral perspectives

Rabbi Irwin Groner

ON TELEVISION, minutes are expensive and men are cheap, so killing is a frequent occurrence. Movies have become explicitly more violent, displaying a pornography of violence which conveys every twitch, shriek and contortion of the victim. This disregard for human life cannot but affect the attitudes, the fantasies and, perhaps, the behavior of mass audiences.

What is violence? It has been defined as the destructive physical action against another person. But there is another form which is figurative, or symbolic. It reveals itself in statements like "I'll break your neck," "I'll punch you in the nose," "I could kill you."

From a moral perspective, violence is not only a matter of murder or grand larceny. It begins with and consists of the petty crime, the small insult, the thousand little assaults that we perpetrate every day against a neighbor's sensitivity, a friend's ego, an employee's peace of mind, a parent's dignity, a child's self-respect, a colleague's self-worth.

Every time we sneer at a human being, we spill a drop of his blood. Every time we utter a cutting or unkind remark, we kill the victim a little bit. Whenever we humiliate another person, we do violence to his self-image.

THE POOR and deprived are victims of another kind of violence that is subtle, and hidden, but not less powerful and destructive. Consider the violence to the human spirit that is the daily portion of those who live in urban slums with their sub-standing housing, and filth, and inadequate education.

Lack of opportunity, elimination of hope, growth of despair and the diminution of life are the products of this form of covert, but no less real attack upon the lives of the poor, the victims of society's indifference.

We cannot expect a secure and safe world if we teach violence in formal and informal ways.

Upsets enrich true believers

THERE I SAT, spouting sports with friends (as a writer of the subject, people often feel it necessary to add their insight into my occupation) when an unknown passerby nonchalantly announced: "Harrison lost."

"What?" I said in disbelief. Impossible. Farmington Harrison, the state's best team, winner of 29 games in a row, could not possibly lose to the likes of Livonia Churchill, a squad with one win in six games this season.

"13-12," the stranger insisted before wandering away.

Not until the next day, when I searched the Sunday paper for the undeniable truth, was I convinced that Churchill had indeed shocked Harrison.

KNOW WHAT? Right then I checked myself and asked a very pertinent, insightful question: Why?

Why was it so surprising to me that Churchill won? My answer: Because Harrison had the incredible streak, an amazing feat in this age of state playoffs. The Hawks were simply an awesome team. Certainly they would lose, it was inevitable. But not to a weak Churchill squad.

Then I examined it more closely, taking both teams apart piecemeal. Know what I found? On both sides of that line of scrimmage last Saturday were high school kids. Not computerized machines that react the same way each time the ball is snapped. Not refined pro or college players.

Teen-age kids. And teen-age kids are liable to do some crazy things. Especially if they think they can get away with it.

The Chargers thought they could get away with something crazy against Harrison. They dared believe what no one else could imagine. They believed they could beat Harrison.

BELIEVE ME, believing can be a potent weapon.

"That's the exciting thing about amateur sports," Churchill coach Ken Kaestner said Monday. "When kids do more than they're capable of."

Games like Saturday's Churchill-Harrison clash should prove that what kids are capable of is virtually limitless. As Kaestner put it, "We had to play close to a perfect game, and we did."

Which may explain what high school coaching is all about: teaching how to win. To persevere. To believe.

Churchill's upset victory wasn't the first of its kind. Earlier this season, Rochester met Birmingham Groves. Both teams possessed perfect records: Rochester was 4-0, Groves 0-4. Groves prevailed, 13-10, beating a team that had won 12 of its last 13 games over two seasons.

"IT'S PEOPLE believing in people," was how Groves' coach Bill Rankin explained it. "I kept preaching to the kids to practice hard, to make sure everybody's ready to play, and that the wins and losses will take care of themselves."

"And yet we were still 0-4. I've never coached an 0-9 team, but I've got to admit the thought crossed my mind. If Rochester blows us off the map 40-0 we're 0-7 now."

That didn't happen. Instead, Rankin's Falcons did what nobody expected. They knocked off Rochester. Then they won their next two games, too.

"That (Rochester) game meant a great deal," Rankin continued. "We've got a good group of kids, not overly talented but real hard workers. The kids believe in themselves now."

GROVES, WHICH HAD been the Metro Suburban Association power two seasons ago, reversed what looked to be a downturn in the program back towards promise for the future.

Teaching how to win is no easy task. Look at the nature of sport. There is always a loser. As Rankin said, "Football is a high fatality sport. Fifty percent of the teams that play every week lose."

It isn't easy to make believers out of kids who, despite long hours of hard work, still come up on the short end. Yet both Kaestner and Rankin managed, as others have.

"This is something we'll never forget," Kaestner said of the win over Harrison. "I've just got to compliment the guys I work with, coaches Herb Osterland and Darrell Copley, and the kids."

"Our finest hour was that final winning drive. I think about it now and it still gives me goosebumps. We could have folded our tents but we didn't."

TENT-FOLDING isn't found in successful football programs. What is found are players who believe the same things that Rankin told his troops: keep working, keep trying, and it'll show up in the win column. Sooner or later, your invested efforts will pay dividends.

It might come in a 29-game win streak, like Harrison's. Or it may reach fruition in a single afternoon, like last Saturday for Churchill.

Whatever or whenever, it takes talented teachers to convince teen-age kids they can accomplish the seemingly impossible. I'm glad there are guys like that around; they make doubters like me believe that no goal is unreachable.

Bentley's Theresa Aragona blocks a shot attempted by Salem's Fran Whittaker during Tuesday night's Western Lakes showdown. Bentley lost 34-28.

Bentley falls in Lakes test

By Chris McCoosky staff writer

No last-second heroics could save the Livonia Bentley cagers this time.

The Plymouth Salem defense made sure of that.

A 35-foot Laurie Day jumper at the buzzer gave Bentley a 40-38 win the last time these two rivals met. This time, the Rocks jumped ahead and stayed there, winning 34-28 last Tuesday.

"When we play Bentley, we know we're in for a hard game. They are a hard team to play," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "This is a tremendous rivalry. An easy shot in any other game isn't necessarily an easy shot in this game."

THUS, A lot of easy shots were missed, especially by the Rocks in the early going.

Bentley had built up an eight-point lead with five minutes left in the first half, thanks to some good outside shooting by Sheri Wolfe and some poor inside shooting by Salem.

That's when the Rock defense began asserting itself. In the next 11 minutes (a quarter and a half), the Bulldogs scored just three points. Day, Bentley's premier scorer, didn't even get off a shot in the second quarter.

girls basketball

In that time span, Salem outscored Bentley 11-3 to take control of the game.

"They completely took us out of our offense," said Bentley coach Tom Lang. "We wouldn't go basket at all. We were content to play catch around the perimeter and make turnovers."

PAM McBRIDE'S three-point play at the beginning of the second half seemed to spark the Rocks offensively. McBride and Dawn Johnson teamed for all 10 of Salem's third-quarter points. Both finished with 11 points to lead all scorers.

Johnson hit a pair of free throws with 2:10 left in the third to put the Rocks ahead for the first time in the game. They never trailed after that.

Bulldogs, Stevenson step into soccer finals

By Paul King special writer

Livonia schools Bentley and Stevenson will each have the home field advantage in Saturday's Class A regional boys' soccer finals.

Stevenson (17-2-1) advanced with a 4-0 semifinal victory Monday night over visiting Farmington. The Spartans, defending Class A champs, take on Northville, one of two teams to beat them this season, at 2 p.m.

Bentley faces the winner of Wednesday's

Plymouth Canton-Harper Woods Notre Dame game (2 p.m. Saturday at home).

In the first half, Bentley scored first at 25:37 (Pulice from Patchett), but Churchill came back just 4:04 later to tie the game (Dave Clark from Paul Lomas).

The 400 fans saw Bentley outshoot Churchill, 16-15, as Jeff Wilkinson was the winning goaltender.

Also keying the Bentley victory were play-makers Steve Hollar and Pete Lomas. Churchill is now 8-5-3.

Four different Stevenson players scored in the win over Farmington.

Defensively, Chris Banyai and Steve Karfis were outstanding for the Spartans. They helped goalie Terry Harshfield gain his 10th shutout of the year.

SALEM 3, BENTLEY 2: Playing without their star forward, the Bulldogs (17-2-2) were outscored 3-0 in the second half. Kevin Sultana scored the game-winner on a header from Randy Johnson with three minutes to play.

Salem moved into second place with the Lakes Division win Tuesday at home.

Mark Flowers tallied a goal in each half for the winners, the first coming at 15 minutes (from Eldon Nash) and the second at the outset of the second half (from Johnson).

Bob Bowling picked up the slack on the defensive line for starter Jeff Neschlich, who broke his arm during the first minute of play.

Steve Moran, another starter, was also out.

Bentley's Torin Gnewek opened the scoring just after Neschlich was carried off the field, while Abe Yaffai scored the Bulldogs' other goal (Pulice assisted).

FARMINGTON 3, NORTH FARMINGTON 0: The Falcons, now 9-7-3, claimed the city championship with the victory Tuesday.

North, meanwhile, drops to 0-13-2.

Farmington took a 1-0 halftime lead on Alex Juncaj's goal from Chris Hackman.

The Falcons added two more in the second half — Hackman on a penalty kick followed by Mario Said (unassisted).

Discover a Super coach with a Super game plan

By Brad Emons staff writer

You've heard of the famed "Cradle of Coaches"? Miami of Ohio was a fertile ground for football's most influential minds — Woody Hayes, Ara Parseghian and Bo Schembechler, to name a few.

The same thing is happening in junior tennis where an ex-paratrooper — Nick Bollettieri — is nurturing children to compete on the same level with adults at his growing tennis academy in Bradenton, Fla.

Slim, trim and tan, Bollettieri paid his first visit to Detroit and its surrounding suburbs during the final weekend of the Virginia Slims pro tennis stop recently.

He was the guest of Tom Seavy, a Nike sales representative who showcases his line of products on Northwestern Highway, just east of Middlebelt

in West Bloomfield.

Bollettieri is coaching some of the game's future greats — upstarts Aaron Krickstein of Grosse Pointe and Lisa Bonder of Saline.

He's also working with Jimmy Arias, Carling Bassett, Fritz Buehning, Chip Hooper and Pam Casale, to name a few. One of his first pupils was Brian Gottfried.

BOLLETTIERI conducted clinics and met players and coaches during his two-day Detroit visit.

"I'm also interested in the inter-city or grass roots programs," Bollettieri said. "It's the desire of our sponsors."

Gaining admittance to the academy is quite expensive, costing thousands of dollars. But with the help of sponsors such as Nike, Ellesse Sportswear, Atari and Prince sporting goods, Bollettieri can also attract the less fortunate.

"I think blacks will be more in the picture," he said. "The more exposure they get, the more they'll be able to get in the limelight."

"We try to find those kids with potential that have no money. We try to help with our sponsors."

Bollettieri's growth in tennis has been enormous. His academy is at full capacity — 215 students and 47 full-time employees. His new projects include building a library, coaching center and an indoor arena.

HE ALSO owns a nearby club and conducts two summer camps, one in Deerfield, Mass., and the other in Beaver Dam, Wis.

Bollettieri also plans to open a tennis academy before the year is out in Japan.

The Florida coach admits his style of teaching "is not the only way." That's why he meets with coaches from around the country at clinics and speaking engagements.

"I like to exchange ideas," Bollettieri said. "I think coaches can benefit from each other."

The Florida coach stresses stroke production, discipline, physical fitness and sportsmanship.

Castonguay sparkles in Rocket cage win

Sophie Castonguay poured in eight straight points in the third quarter to help Westland John Glenn's girls' basketball team overcome a six-point deficit and send the Rockets to a 51-49 triumph at Wayne Memorial Tuesday.

Castonguay, who led all scorers with 18 points, played what Glenn coach George Sommerman called "her best of the season." The senior forward also netted six points in the final quarter, as the Rockets (11-3) held off the Zebras.

Wayne closed to within a single point with 30 seconds to play, but Glenn worked the clock down to four seconds before Darla Bergman was fouled. Bergman made the first in a one-and-one free throw situation to clinch it for the Rockets.

Wayne grabbed the early lead behind some hot outside shooting by Julie Cobrea (16 points), Barb Engle (14) and Lynne Niebert (11). The Zebras raced to an 18-22 advantage after one quarter and a 28-22 halftime lead.

Castonguay got scoring support from Julie Pucel in the third quarter (six points) as Glenn outscored Wayne, 18-11. Pucel finished with 12 for the game and Cheryl Dozier contributed 10.

W.L. WESTERN 65, REDFORD UNION 39: RU kept it close until the third quarter, when Walled Lake Western blew it open with a 20-2 surge to bury the Panthers Tuesday at Western.

Val Hall topped the unbeaten Warriors (15-0) with 14 points, including six in the third quarter rally. RU (7-7) was paced by Kellie Szabo's 10 points, 14 rebounds and four assists, and Lisa Vial and Marie Becker, who had eight points and 10 rebounds apiece.

CHURCHILL 47, NORTHVILLE 34: A first-quarter blitz, sparked by a strong defensive effort, got Livonia Churchill a lead it never relinquished at home Tuesday.

The Chargers, 6-9 overall and 6-7 in Western Lakes play, jumped in front, 15-6, after one quarter and gradually pulled away. Patti Schmidt, who finished with 16 points for the game, poured in six in the first quarter. Amy Brow had 10 for the game and LaDonna Sevakis chipped in with seven points and 10 rebounds.

GARDEN CITY 32, DEARBORN 29: The Cougars built a 16-point bulge in the last quarter and coasted to topple Dearborn at Dearborn Tuesday.

After Garden City (7-7) took its 10 point lead in the fourth quarter, Dearborn connected on three straight baskets to narrow the gap to four with four minutes left. But the Cougars hung tough, never allowing the Pioneers to get closer than that until the final two seconds when they hit two meaningless free throws.

Tammy Narramore's 15 points was high for Garden City. Marne March notched 13 for Dearborn.

W.L. CENTRAL 57, STEVENSON 38: Patti Fitzgerald dominated inside as Walled Lake Central blasted Livonia Stevenson Tuesday at Stevenson.

Fitzgerald hit seven of 13 shots in the first half, most from close range, as the Vikings (11-4) sped to a 28-20 lead. She finished with 17 for the game.

"Fitzgerald plays a physical game," Stevenson coach Wayne Henry explained. "How well she performs depends on how close the referees call the game. Tonight, she used her body, her strength and her experience to get open."

Lisa Bokovoy topped Stevenson (8-7) scorers with 11 points. Mary Kay Hussey had 10 and Amy Rozman nine. Shauna Anderson added 13 to the Central cause.

CLARENCEVILLE 21, HARPER WOODS 20: Gina Carneseshi scored her first varsity basket at just the right time — with 19 seconds left in the game to give Livonia Clarenceville a 21-18 advantage and insure the Trojan victory over Harper Woods Thursday.

In one third-quarter stretch, Bentley came down the floor 11 times without scoring. In eight of the trips they turned the ball over — mostly as a result of the Rocks' defensive pressure.

"As Bobby (Blohm, Salem assistant coach) told the girls afterwards, 'you came out in the second half believing you could win and you did,'" Thomann said. "They went ahead and hung on strong. Hey, anytime you hold a Bentley team to 28 points, you've done a good job. Because Bentley can score."

DAY SCORED eight points on the night, six in the fourth quarter as Bentley was scrambling to get back in the game.

"The key to our defense is keying on the opposition's tendencies," said Thomann. "And one of Bentley's tendencies is to go to Day. So, in that sense, we were keying on her."

Lang, while praising the Rock defense, was miffed at his team's unwillingness to challenge the basket. When asked about Day not getting any shots in the second quarter, he said, "That's her fault. I kept saying 'go to the basket, go to the basket.' But, they wouldn't."

The Rock offense had the same problem early in the game. They didn't seem interested in challenging the basket.

"WE SAT JOHNSON down in the first half. I asked her what kind of game she was going to play tonight. Was she going to get aggressive and challenge the basket, or was she going to run the perimeter?" Thomann said.

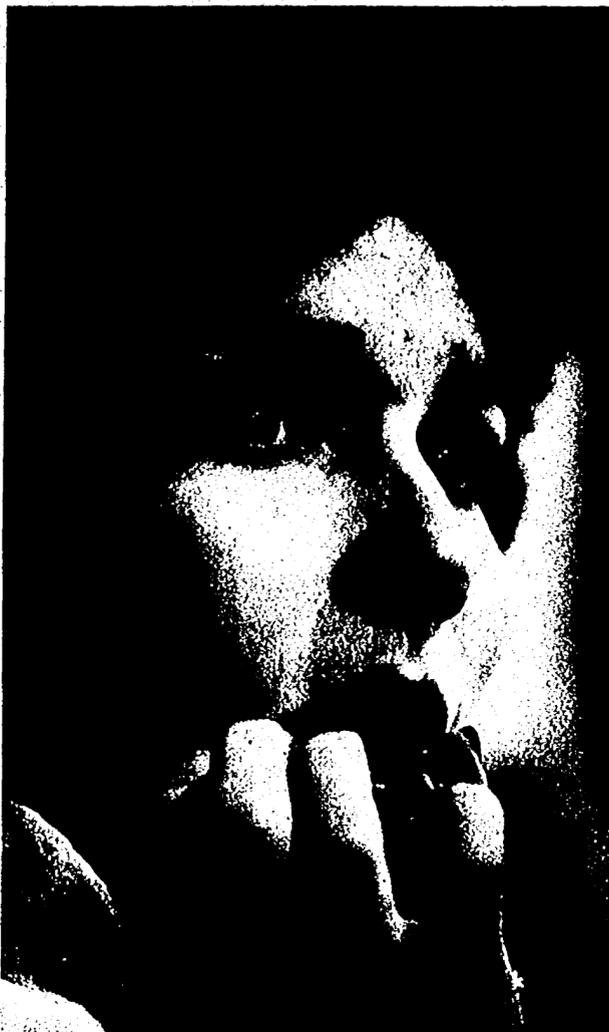

Johnson responded by taking charge of the Rock offense. Her drives to the basket forced numerous fouls. Three Bulldog players finished the game with three fouls and another, Bridget Nicol, fouled out.

Johnson made seven of eight free throws, four of four in the third quarter.

Lang, though not pleased with his team's performance, was consoled by the fact that his team (10-2 in league play) remained a game ahead of second-place Salem (9-3) and Walled Lake Central (9-3) in the Western Lakes Athletic Association Lakes Division.

"I think this is the first time ever we have come into Salem and it wasn't a do-or-die situation for us," he said.

Salem and Central square off Thursday at Walled Lake.

Agatha assistant coach Marge Crittenden shows signs of a tense finish. The Aggies won on a shot at the buzzer.

Freshman's shot keys Aggie upset

Freshman Maryanne Kick's jumper at the buzzer Tuesday gave Redford St. Agatha an upset 36-35 girls' basketball victory over division leader Dearborn St. Alphonsus.

It was only the Aggies' third win of the season. Junior Tia Littlejohn scored 11 points for the winners, while Kick added nine.

Julie Lopez of St. Alphonsus led all scorers with 20 points.

"The team's really young, but tonight it looked like they did the kind of things that I've been teaching them," said Agatha coach Jim Murphy. "We really played tough tonight. We used a 2-3 match-up zone, and I think we took them out of their game."

MERCY 63, BISHOP BORGESS 22: The defending state Class A champs jumped out to a 20-8 first quarter lead Tuesday night and never looked back in clinching at least a share of the Central Division title.

Mercy, sporting a 12-2 overall record, got 14 points and seven rebounds from junior center Mary Rozowski, while teammates Amy DeMatia and Bev White added 11 and 10, respectively.

Coach Larry Baker emptied his bench early and sophomore reserve Terri Nalodka responded with 13 rebounds.

Carol Klotz, a senior guard, led Borgess (1-13) with eight.

LADYWOOD 72, BISHOP GALLAGHER 57: The Blazers (12-2) stayed a game behind Mercy in the Division chase with a strong team defensive effort, according to coach Ed Kavanaugh.

"I thought we came back strong," said Kavanaugh, whose team lost a heartbreaker last week to Mercy. Juniors Char Goyan and Emily Wagner, who sparked a 27-13 Ladywood third quarter spurt, finished with 25 and 22 points, respectively.

Julie Dunne paced Gallagher with 13.

Spartans 7th in Class A golf

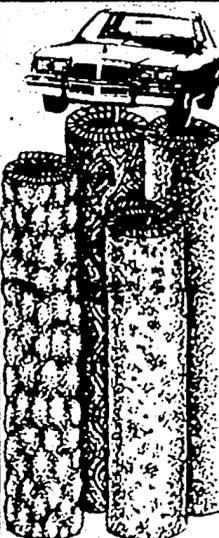

It wasn't the long hitters or strong putters that made the difference at Saturday's Class A boys' golf final at Michigan State's Forest Acres Golf Course.

Not according to Livonia Stevenson coach Ray Kugler, anyway. "The guys who won showed tremendous concentration," Kugler said after his Spartans finished seventh overall on a course swamped by heavy rains.

East Lansing, led by Dan Olson's medalist effort 73, won the Class A crown with a 312. Lansing Sexton was second (317) and Walled Lake Central, the Western Lakes Activities Association champion, was third (327). Stevenson scored 334 and Livonia Churchill tied for 10th at 338.

Craig Szewc led the Stevenson scorers with an 80. Jeff Dixon fired an 81, Don Williams had an 85, Harry Youmans finished with an 88 and Rob Mudry shot a 98.

"It was the worst weather I've ever seen (for a golf final)," Kugler said. Stevenson finished its dual meet season with a 9-1 record.

RU gridders clip Eagles

Don Angel broke open a tight contest with a pair of breakaway runs as Redford Union raced to a 34-22 Northwest Suburban League (NSL) football victory at city rival Redford Thurston Saturday.

The win lifted RU to 3-4 overall and 2-3 in the NSL. Thurston fell for the sixth time in seven games. The Eagles finished 0-5 in the NSL.

After RU opened the scoring in the first quarter on Keith Manus' live-yard run and Bob Macek's two-point conversion, Thurston tied it on a seven-yard dash by Dave Kress early in the second. Raffi Kostegian passed to Dan Starinsky for two points to tie it at 8-all.

But the Panthers took control after that, running off 19 straight points to put the game out of reach. Angel started the scoring onslaught with a 55-yard jaunt in the second quarter that gave RU a 14-8 advantage.

Before the half was over the Panthers struck again on a 22-yard Rick Holme-to-Matt Kaser pass. RU missed its second straight extra point attempt, but its lead was 20-8.

ANGEL WINGED one again in the third quarter, streaking 71 yards to boost RU's advantage to 27-8. Kostegian fired a 37-yard scoring strike to Starinsky, then ran for two points, to get Thurston back to within striking distance at 27-16.

RU put it away with another quick strike before the end of the third quarter, as Bob Hillis scooped up a Kostegian fumble and rambled 48 yards for the TD. Thurston's final score came in the last quarter, on a Kostegian to Brian McGrath pass play.

"We could have won two or three games if we had better defense," said Thurston coach John Switchenko. "We have to play better defense against Romulus in order to be competitive (this Friday)."

"Offensively, we're coming around but our defense has not been doing the job all year. That's where we have to improve."

Switchenko was pleased with the play of junior quarterback Kostegian, who completed 15 of 25 passes for 203 yards and two TDs against RU. It was his second straight solid performance. In the overtime loss to Garden City, he hit 10 of 17 for 182 yards and two more scores.

McGrath was his favorite target against RU, grabbing seven passes for 123 yards. Kress accounted for 60 of Thurston's 101 rushing yards.

Angel rang up 153 yards on just 13 tries to pace RU. Manus finished with 93 yards in nine attempts and Macek had 58 on eight carries.

ST. MARY 12, ST. AGATHA 0: The McDonald's theme could find new meaning after Redford St. Agatha's loss to Orchard Lake St. Mary Saturday at Kraft Field.

The Aggies "Need a break today." Or any day a football game is scheduled. Against St. Mary, they turned the ball over three times inside the Eagles' 15 to thwart their own offensive threats, then gave it up twice deep inside their own territory to set up two short St. Mary scoring drives.

"We should have won," said St. Agatha coach John Goddard. "We outplayed them. We really played well. I feel bad for our kids."

Jim Taluto scored both Eagle TDs in the first quarter, the first on a one-yard run and the second on a seven-yard bolt.

Tom Zacharias rushed for 87 yards on 11 carries to lead an Aggie ground game that generated 127 yards. Frank Hill hit on five of 11 passes for 59 yards. St. Agatha (2-5) had 188 yards in offense to 196 for OLSM (5-2).

CATHOLIC CENTRAL 13, NOTRE DAME 0: It wasn't just the field that was stoppy in Redford Catholic Central's win at Harper Woods Notre Dame Saturday.

The Shamrocks made a bundle of mistakes — including over 100 yards in penalties — but overcame them to post a shutout win that kept them in the hunt for a Catholic League playoff berth.

CC is now 2-2 in league play (4-3 overall). A Shamrock win over Warren DeLaSalle, combined with a Redford Bishop Borgess loss to Birmingham Brother Rice, would force the point differential tiebreaker to decide who gets the final playoff berth.

CC's touchdowns against Notre Dame came on a one-yard run by Tom Bridenstine in the second quarter and Mark Renkiewicz's 70-yard dash in the third. Renkiewicz finished with 139 yards rushing in 16 tries to lead the Shamrocks. CC outgained Notre Dame, 218 to 178.

Farmington ruins Bulldogs' day

Farmington's Falcons (2-5) spoiled Livonia Bentley's homecoming Friday night, 14-9, on a 43-yard TD fumble return by Ken Waker followed by Don Hannah's four-yard TD run.

Both scores occurred in the second quarter of the Lakes Division football encounter.

Bentley (2-5) scored twice in the third quarter when Dom Sassanelli, leading a host of tacklers, pinned the Farmington punter in the end zone after bad snap.

The Bulldogs, outgained 215-98 in total offense, scored later in the period on a four-yard run by quarterback Pat Schneider, capping a 45-yard drive.

Farmington won the battle of penalties, 115-90 yards, and first downs, 17-6.

Payne pays his dues in Rome battles

By Brad Emone
staff writer

Craig Payne, fresh from a runner-up finish in the World Amateur Boxing Championships in Rome, Italy, has already begun to focus on his next goal.

The Livonia super-heavyweight, rated No. 1 in the world recently by one boxing publication, will try to win the only national title that has eluded him — the U.S. Amateur Boxing Championships, which start Nov. 7 in Colorado Springs.

The 22-year-old Payne has captured four national tournaments — the Golden Gloves, Sports Festival, Ohio State Fair and PAL events.

He reached the final last December at the U.S. Amateur in Indianapolis, but lost a 3-2 decision to Baltimore's Warren Thompson.

"This will be my last shot for this national title," Payne said. "I'm going to give it my best shot."

Payne seems to be a good bet to win this year's U.S. Amateur after beating Cuban gold medalist Teofilo Stevenson earlier this month in Houston to go along with his respectable showing in Rome.

HE OPENED the World Championships with a 5-0 decision against Alexander Miroshnychenko of the Soviet Union, ranked No. 8 in the world, 5-0.

But Italy's Francesco Damiani beat Payne for the title on Sunday with a 4-1 decision before a raucous crowd in Rome.

"A lot of people thought I won the first and second (Damiani) he won boxing

the third — I'll give him that," said Payne. "A decision wouldn't get it, I was going for the knockout."

"People were going crazy. We went toe-to-toe, middle of the ring, on the ropes — we gave everything we had for nine minutes."

Dick Quilton of the Livonia Boxing Club, worked Payne's corner for the championships.

"I thought his conditioning hurt him more than anything," said the Livonia coach. "It was good, but he was a little overweight. In both fights he got weak in the third round."

"IT CHANGED his whole fight plan. In the first fight he had two good super rounds, then the Russian kid started pressing him."

"Craig had a good first round and a half against Damiani. He thought he could fight off the ropes. The Russian was not as strong as Damiani who had the ability to throw flurries inside — faster than any super-heavy I've seen." Despite the loss, Payne said he "stole the peoples' hearts over there."

"Even though Damiani was the favorite, people were on my side. People wanted to shake my hand and sign autographs. I had a great time. It was a lot of fun."

Quilton thought the trip was productive and saw some encouraging signs from Payne.

"I like the fact that he had a lot of confidence," Quilton said. "He had a game plan when he came out, and it was working until he got tired. It was probably the fairest judged fight that I saw in terms of fighting an Italian, because I saw some great fights. Some fights were close, but the scoring was not."

Blazers 9th in state tennis

Livonia Ladywood tennis coach Bob Sims said his team pretty much achieved its season goals.

"Before the start of the season we wanted to finish second in the Catholic League, which we did," he said. "We wanted to win the regional, which we did, and finish in the top eight in the state."

The Blazers got as close as they could get to their final goal, finishing ninth overall in last weekend's Class B state tournament at Holland, scoring four points.

Okemos, sweeping all seven flights, took the team title with 29 points followed by East Grand Rapids (18), Sturgis (12), Grand Rapids Forest Hills (11), Saginaw MacArthur (9), Holland Christian, defending champ Bloomfield Hills Kingswood and Monroe St. Mary (6 each), and Ladywood.

Five other schools figured in the team scoring.

At No. 1 singles, Ladywood's Janet Milezarski, seeded No. 6, defeated Holland Christian's Sharon Van Tubbergen, 2-6, 6-1, 6-3, before being eliminated by MacArthur's Amy Lichon in the third round, 6-2, 6-0.

Kathleen Monecka of Okemos, the top seed won the flight by defeating Kathy Goodrich of East Grand Rapids, 6-4, 6-0.

LADYWOOD SCORED its other team points at No. 3 doubles as Regional champs Judy Taylor and Robyn Watts edged Forest Hills' Stacy Boonenberg and Ashlee Meyers, 7-6, 7-6, before losing to Kingswood's Cackie Boomer and Ingrid Carlson, 6-1, 6-1.

Ladywood's Cathy Mein lost a tough match at No. 2 singles to Ann Rania of Muskegon Catholic, 4-6, 6-1, 6-0, while teammate Shelly Bagdady (No. 3) was ousted by No. 3 seed MacArthur's Pam Gomez, 6-1, 6-0.

At No. 4 singles, Ladywood's Karen Colliareno was a first-round loser to No. 3 seed Jenny Lindsey of East Grand Rapids, 7-6, 6-4.

CC, Chargers grab crowns

Redford Catholic Central, led by Steve Shaver, captured its fifth meet of the season and second straight Catholic League cross country title Saturday on a rainy and wet course at West Bloomfield's Marabank Park.

The Shamrocks bested 11 other teams, scoring 23 points. Birmingham Brother Rice was second with 60 and Dearborn Divine Child gained third with 68.

Shaver, a junior, took first place individual honors with a time of 16:15. He was followed closely behind by teammate Marty Hegarty, second, 16:21; Mark Anderson, fifth, 16:42; Jim Cuzzillo, sixth, 16:44; Bob Shaver, ninth, 16:57; Chris Rito, 13th, 17:07; and Pat Isom, 18th, 17:18.

Besides winning the Catholic League title, CC has also won invitational meets at Sturgis, Haslett and Royal Oak Shrine.

The Shamrocks compete Saturday at the Royal Oak Kimball regional.

REDFORD UNION, sporting a 5-0 Northwest Suburban League dual record, had to settle for second place Tuesday in the six-team NSL boys' meet at Farmington's San Marino Golf Course.

Livonia Franklin, winning under a tiebreaker format, scored 55 points as did the Panthers, who ended up being the league's overall champion based on dual record and Tuesday's finish.

North Farmington was third with 66 followed by Westland John Glenn (69), Garden City (101) and Redford Thurston (180). See statistics on page 5c.

Glenn, however, boasted the individual winner, Jay Hunt, who covered the three mile distance in 15:45. Dave Homann of Garden City was second and Franklin's Gary McDougall took third. Eric Buchanan was RU's top finisher, placing fifth.

Thurston's Katie Showick captured the girls' race with a time of 20:30. Glenn's Karen Opp and Laura Grazulis gained second and third, respectively.

LIVONIA CHURCHILL won the Western Lakes championship for the second straight year behind Julie Recla's first place finish Tuesday at Cass Benton Park.

Recla was clocked in 20:02 as the Chargers had 46 points (see page 5c). Livonia Stevenson, spurred by Sue Taglian's third place finish, took second with 80.

Other Churchill girls' finishers included Kristen Schultz, eighth, 20:45; Dorene Dudek, ninth, 20:57; Amy Masternak, 10th, 21:01; and Jennifer Huegll, 18th, 21:36.

Ken Dubois of Stevenson repeated as league champ with a time of 18:18.

Churchill's Don Miller and Doug Plachta grabbed second and third, respectively with times of 16:37 and 16:50, respectively.

Rounding out the Churchill contingent were: Paul Schwartz, 16th, 17:38; Nick Talovich, 24th, 17:54; and Scott Sinclair, 32nd, 18:10.

"I think we surprised a few people in the boys' race because we've been hurt," said Churchill coach Dave Westover. "Some thought we might be fourth, but this is the first time we've had our whole team together."

Kickers United in victory

The Westland United captured the boys' under 19 Great Lakes Soccer League title Sunday at Patchin Field with a come-from-behind 3-2 victory over the Redford Celtics.

Trailing 1-0 at the half, Westland rallied for a trio of second half goals.

Westland finished the season with a 6-2-1 record, while Redford completed its league schedule at 5-3-1.

Rounding this year's Westland squad were: Dale Charron, Varinder Sooch, Doug Seifert, Tom Donnelly and Dan Lingg, midfielders; Dennis Korzetzki, Dave Sallus, Bob Wilson and Robert Sayyae, defenders; Michael Bobby, Jim Beaver, Shinoo Mapleton and Drazen Masock, forwards; Chris Yantzy, goalie.

The team is coached by Fred Matthews. He is assisted by Sharon Charron.

Soccer siblings

O'Shea brothers lift respective programs

By C.J. Riak
staff writer

Talk about chain reaction. OK, let's talk about it. Soccer would be a good example. The reaction hasn't been as swift as a nuclear explosion, but the sport's popularity has increased every year over the past decade.

Examining that popularity chain reaction closely will reveal dozens of O'Shea stories. Few, though, could match the success.

The O'Sheas — a trio of brothers, all Livonia Franklin graduates — got interested in soccer one by one, passing it along the family chain. Not only interest in the game trickled down, talent blossomed as well.

THE OLDEST of the soccer O'Sheas, Nick, started the family on its current course. Nick never played in high school, with good reason: The school had no soccer program when he graduated from Franklin in 1977.

He enrolled at Schoolcraft College, where a friend suggested he give the sport a try.

"I thought it would be a good way to keep in shape," Nick recalled. After two years of learning soccer at Schoolcraft, he took a year off and traveled to Ireland where he lived with relatives and played with the Shamrock Rovers.

"When I went to Ireland I didn't know how the game was played, really," Nick said. "Everything I had learned previously was in two years at Schoolcraft. That was all the experience I had."

"I learned a lot about the game (in Ireland), how to move the ball around. The competition was much better."

NICK GOT A TRYOUT with Exeter City, a third-division English team, but didn't make it. He returned home and enrolled at Oakland University, where he holds down a midfield position for the sixth-ranked Pioneers.

Dan O'Shea

Nick's interest spread through the family. Brian, the next oldest, and Dan started their playing careers in the Livonia YMCA leagues.

Brian ended up on an experienced Livonia YMCA team that needed a goalie. Since he wanted to play rather than sit, that's the position he chose.

But Dan, on a younger age-group team with few experienced players, liked the position Nick played — midfield.

"THAT'S WHY I started out there — because of Nick," Dan said. "And probably because I could run a lot."

The O'Shea ability led both Brian and Dan along Nick's path: to Schoolcraft. Brian started in goal last year, but academic problems sidelined him this season. Dan is a starting midfielder for the Ocelots, who have won their regional title and are gunning for national junior college honors.

Dan, who graduated from Franklin in June, credits Nick with kindling his interest in soccer.

"When Nick started playing I got into it," Dan said. "That's where I learned to play — from Nick."

"He never really sat down and taught me anything, but he told me what I was doing wrong."

Nick's counsel to both brothers was to attend Schoolcraft.

"IT'S BETTER than going to a four-year school and sitting," Nick said. "If you go to a two-year school and play for two years, you'll have playing experience when you transfer to a four-year school."

Both Nick and Dan have been invaluable members of their college programs this season. And the experience has been mutually educational. As Dan put it, there's still "too much to learn" on the soccer field.

"It's hard to go from high school, where it's a kick-and-run game, to college, where the emphasis is on passing."

Dan has picked up a lot by playing in a Windsor summer league, where Nick and Brian also play, and by watching his more experienced older brother — "Nick calls it, 'getting a clue,'" Dan said. "We play the same style," said the youngest O'Shea in comparing himself with Nick. "People say we look a lot alike. Our styles are the same, only he does it much better."

Nick, a senior at OU, isn't certain where his soccer ability will take him after this season. Dan, too, is not sure what four-year school he'll attend after Schoolcraft. OU is a possibility, where coach Gary Parsons "has expressed some interest (in me) to Nick," Dan said.

If the chain remains unbroken, look for another O'Shea to be patrolling midfield for the Pioneers over the next few years.

Bollettieri schools youngsters

"We're into aerobics and dancing," he said. "We try to explain the benefits of nutrition and the importance of a balanced diet."

"And mobility plays an important role in becoming a player."

With hard work, Bollettieri believes Krickstein, the top junior in the world, could break into the top 20 or even the top 10 within two years.

"Aaron has to spend time when we're not around with his physical make-up," he said. "With the stretching and preventive exercises, he can be physically fit if he wants to be."

"Everyone likes Aaron. He can become the best, but he has to pay the price."

BOLLETTIERI is asked most about the on-court attitude of today's players.

"What I talk to these kids about is 'does it hurt you or help you when they throw a racket?' We just had two kids who threw rackets and we had to punish them, and the parents were delighted."

Bollettieri believes tennis has too many organizations, which hinders standard procedure on court etiquette.

"In college you have one body of rule — the NCAA," Bollettieri said. "In baseball it's the commissioner. Tennis has so many governing bodies."

Arias, rapidly moving toward the top of the pro tennis ladder, credits Bollettieri with controlling his temper.

"Brian Gottfried was my student for 20 years," Bollettieri said. "He's just had a fabulous demeanor on the court and he's a total gentleman off it."

"I'd like all my players to be like Brian."

Bollettieri realizes, too, you must walk a fine line with parents.

"YOU HAVE to realize you're dealing with their most precious commodity," Bollettieri said. "They naturally know more about their child."

"Their natural reaction is 'do it my way,' but we try to keep the unity together and work around a framework. That's what my book, 'Winning Combination,' deals with. The parents are letting us do a lot more."

His philosophy is the same when it comes to stroke mechanics.

"We try to mold stroke production with your style of movement and personality," Bollettieri said. "The top 10 players all hit different. The way you grip the racquet determines how you hit. My ideas have changed."

"I've become more flexible in dealing with the student. There's entirely no one style."

"I try to produce an all-around player. You can't restrict yourself to being just a baseline player."

Although he's "flexible," Bollettieri's disciplinary edicts are basic: "No drugs, alcohol or stealing."

He Felt Better, So He Didn't Take All His Medicine. Then He Felt Worse.

It's a familiar story. He started taking the antibiotic the doctor prescribed and within a day or two most of his symptoms were gone. He felt so much better that he decided not to finish the bottle.

"What's the point of taking it all?" he asked himself. "I'm over the worst. Besides, I don't like taking medicine all that much."

But the symptoms came back. With a vengeance. Antibiotic medications include directions to take the medication until it is used up. Otherwise, the bacteria or other organisms that are causing the problem may not be completely eliminated. And that can mean trouble.

So, when you get any prescription, be sure you know—

- The name of the drug
- Its purpose—what conditions does it treat?
- How and when to take the drug—and when to stop taking it
- What food, drinks and other drugs to avoid while taking it
- What side effects may result—are they serious, short-term, long-term, etc.?

If you have any questions about your prescription, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

Prep acid tests

Harrison, Borgess regrouping this week

By Chris McCosky and Brad Emons staff writers

Unbelievable! Farmington Harrison, Westland John Glenn and Plymouth Salem lose. Livonia Churchill, Farmington and Livonia Franklin win. What are the prep football prognosticators to do? Things get tougher this week. The non-league games are back on the card, but we've done a little research (we hope). The top games: Birmingham Brother Rice visits Bishop Borgess, while Harrison and Walled Lake Central meet for a second time this season — for the Western Lakes title. Emons went 6-5 last week and is now 58-27 for the season, while McCosky gained some ground, going 7-4 to increase his mark to 53-32.

BIRMINGHAM BROTHER RICE vs. REDFORD BISHOP BORGESS (7:30 p.m. Saturday at Old GC West). Rice (7-0) could well be on its way to the Catholic League playoff spot, while Borgess (6-1) is in a must-win situation. A Spartan win coupled with a Warren DeLaSalle victory over Redford Catholic Central would throw the Catholic League's Central Division into a three-way tie. Then the playoff champ would be decided on point differential. PICKS — Rice cooks up a playoff spot (two votes).

FARMINGTON HARRISON at WALLED LAKE CENTRAL (7:30 p.m. Friday). The Vikings will be out to prove that they're not 31 points worse than the Hawks, who won the first meeting convincingly. Harrison will be out prove that they're still champions, despite the stunning loss to Churchill last week. PICKS — Simply, Harrison rebounds.

CLARENCEVILLE at HARPER

WOODS (4 p.m. Friday). The Trojans lost a heartbreaker last week to Metro Conference leader Country Day. This rare Friday afternoon game, however, should belong to Clarenceville. PICKS — It's unanimous. Clarenceville prevails.

GARDEN CITY at WOODHAVEN (7:30 p.m. Friday). The Cougars battled with Northwest Suburban co-champ North Farmington last week before falling, 20-13. They should have an easier way with 1-5 Woodhaven, idle last week. PICKS — GC comes back home with a win — the prognosticators agree.

HIGHLAND PARK at WESTLAND JOHN GLENN (7:30 p.m. Friday). Glenn should remember from last season that this is no pushover (an 11-7 loss). Highland Park is 5-2 overall and lost to Suburban Athletic leader Robichaud two weeks ago 7-0. Glenn saw its outright NSL title slip away last week against Franklin. PICKS — McCosky likes Highland Park, while Emons goes with the home team.

REDFORD THURSTON at ROMULUS (7:30 p.m. Friday). Romulus (2-5) took a 50-6 pounding last week from the state's top-ranked Class B team — Marysville. Before the season began, this looked like one Thurston could win. PICKS — Why not Thurston, Emons says? Why? says McCosky, I'll take Romulus.

REDFORD UNION at WATERFORD MOTT (7:30 p.m. Friday). Mott (1-6) is coming off a 27-0 loss to Pontiac Northern, while RU is seeking its fourth straight victory after starting the season at 0-4. The RU ground game of Don Angel, Bob Macek and Keith Manus ran wild last week against Thurston. PICKS — RU ready for another Panther win?

grid predictions

NORTHVILLE at PLYMOUTH SALEM (7:30 p.m. Friday). These two neighbors have never met on the football field. Northville is big and strong and will test Salem's "Smurfs," but Walled Lake Central was mighty on the line, but the Rocks dominated. It's Northville backfield, Steve Smith and John Quinn, pitted against Salem's offensive threats — Scott Jurek and Mark Tindall. Should be a good ball game. PICKS — McCosky sticks with Salem, while Emons has a hunch (Northville).

WALLED LAKE WESTERN at LIVONIA STEVENSON (7:30 p.m. Friday). What a break in the crossover week for Stevenson, which gets to bypass Northville or even Churchill (which they play next week). The Spartans' passing combo of Dan Gilmartin and Rick Rozman should ride high again. PICKS — Stevenson in a rout.

LIVONIA CHURCHILL at LIVONIA BENTLEY (7:30 p.m. Friday). This is the first meeting ever between these backyard rivals. Can Churchill, led by juniors Dave Mize and John Stoitsiadas, come down after beating mighty Harrison last week? PICKS — Say yes to Churchill two times.

DEARBORN at LIVONIA FRANKLIN (2 p.m. Saturday). Can Franklin, behind the emergence of sophomore quarterback Dave Drabicki, pull another one off? The Pats made many North Farmingtonites happy with their 14-11 win over Glenn last Friday. Dearborn, 4-3, is coming off a tough loss to Ann Arbor Huron. PICKS — Both say nay to Franklin.

PLYMOUTH CANTON at FARMINGTON (2 p.m. Saturday). The battle for the Western Lakes basement pits winless Canton against the upstart Falcons. Tide upstairs up and shocked Bentley last week 14-9. It was Farmington coach Don Kuick's second win with the Falcons. Canton, meanwhile, saw its rally fall six points shy against Stevenson last week. PICKS — Emons says the Chiefs notch win No. 1. Farmington, McCosky says, wins its second straight.

WATERFORD KETTERING at NORTH FARMINGTON (2 p.m. Saturday). The Raiders, who gained a share of the NSL title last week thanks to Franklin, will be tested by Kettering (5-2), the Greater Oakland Activities League leader. Running back Ken Goss carried the load for the Raiders in last week's one touchdown win over Garden City. Can he do it again? PICKS — We're flying North again.

REDFORD ST. AGATHA vs. PONTIAC CATHOLIC (7:30 p.m. Saturday at RU's Kraft Field). PC likes to intimidate, but Agatha has played most of the C Bracket favorites tough. Pontiac (5-2) has slipped somewhat after upsetting DePorres, losing games to Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes and Orchard Lake St. Mary's. PICKS — PC gets by this year.

REDFORD CATHOLIC CENTRAL vs. WARREN DeLaSALLE (7:30 p.m. Saturday at Clarenceville). What a battle in the trenches! Both teams will undoubtedly slug it out. CC maybe has played the state's toughest schedule, while DeLaSalle boasts an All-American tackle in 6-foot-3, 240-pound Bud Gereg. PICKS — McCosky likes CC, while Emons rides with LaSalle.

Bond or stock: Each one has its day

In recent times, because of the spectacular growth in the stock market and the rise in bond prices due to the significant decline in interest rates, the bond versus stock controversy has surfaced again.

One time-tested theory shows you how to move money back and forth between stocks and interest-rate investments as the economy changes.

Bonds finish first during business recessions when interest rates fall. But, after the recession, the galloping stock market leaves bond yields far behind.

ANOTHER METHOD OF analysis offers guidance on how long to stay with stocks. It divides bull markets into three phases, each marking a shift in the business cycle:

- An easy-money rally, toward the end of a recession. Interest rates fall, liquidity builds up in the financial system and professional investors move money into stocks. The market at times take a dip toward the end of this rally, before going on to new highs.

- An earnings rally, when the rising economy delivers higher corporate profits. Attentive small investors usually join the game at this stage.

- A speculative rally near the peak of the business cycle, when the investors take the plunge. Now the rally is almost over. Rising interest rates soon bring both stocks and the economy down.

SO, THE MORAL is clear: To survive in this market, it helps to have an investment theory that suggests when finances and you

to move from the bond market of the stock market, and vice versa. This article presents the basics of that theory.

Perk up your ears: New column debuts

This issue introduces a monthly column on the popular-music scene written by James Windell. For the last 10 years Windell has been a free-lance newspaper columnist, reviewer, feature writer and music critic. He has interviewed hundreds of musicians and is a regular contributor of music interviews to International Musician, the monthly paper of the American Federation of Musicians.

This is the first of what will be regular reports on music in Detroit and its suburbs.

And you should know right off about some of my biases and prejudices. While I try to hide my weaknesses, I like jazz and chamber music. But I'm also partial to funk, soul, blues and most any music that's honest and comes from the soul.

So, with that out of the way, what I'll try to do in On Music is give a preview of upcoming musical events as well as take a brief backwards glance at some noteworthy musical happenings.

IF YOU'VE BEEN wondering what ever happened to Bob and Linda Milne, wonder no more.

The ragtime piano-playing couple, who were regulars for many years at such Chuck Muer restaurants as Charley's Crab in Troy and Digger's in Farmington Hills, left the secure employment of the Muer chain for the risky freelance life.

But, they took on an even greater challenge in July when they bought their own saloon.

Originally called the Fenmore Lounge and more recently Shenanigan's, the Milnes rechristened it Bill Bailey's. Now with two of the country's best ragtime pianists in control of the saloon at 17740 W. Seven Mile Road, Detroit, (just east of the Southfield Expressway), you can be sure it features plenty of ragtime and lots of hospitality.

Friday night, Bob Milne was playing the upright piano that sits on a small stage built into an alcove behind the bar until bassist Mike Karoub drifted in around 10 p.m.

With sunglasses, a delightful sense of humor and an unerring sense of rhythm, Karoub joined Milne and

grew under his breath through bass solos, broke to snap his fingers, blew a mean solo on a plastic kazoo during "Black and Blue" and never once missed a beat.

"We have a good time in here," said Bob between sets. "We get all kinds of musicians in here and have had as many as nine guys on our little stage."

Linda handles the piano duties on Saturday night, while Bob puffs on a stogie and pounds out the boogie, stride or Scott Joplin on Monday, Thursday and Friday nights.

AND SPEAKING OF ragtime music, William Bolcom — who more than a decade ago helped the Joplin revival along with his own ragtime recording on Nonesuch Records — will be at Orchestra Hall with his wife Joan Morris at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Exponents of the American popular song, Morris with her bubbly mezzo-soprano voice and Bolcom with his classy piano accompaniment turn back the pages of music to a bygone era in American history.

"What we're probably best known for are Gay Nineties songs," says Bolcom, a professor of music at the University of Michigan as well as a noted pop composer. "Our first record of any significance was 'After the Ball,' which contains many of the songs that had some importance in those years."

In concert, Bolcom and Morris give their audience a historical perspective on what Bolcom calls "the huge panoply of American song," but their concerts always have an effect that's exciting, immediate and always entertaining.

IF YOU MISSED the jazz films of master jazz film collector David Chertok at last summer's Montreux-Detroit International Jazz Festival, you have a second chance.

It won't be a concert really, but Chertok says of his programming, "My films give people the opportunity to see the greatest concert that never was."

What he means is that he can put together film clips to form a jazz concert.

Chertok will show a "concert" featuring Bessie Smith, Benny Goodman, Fats Waller, John Coltrane, Thelonious Monk and Charlie Parker at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 15, in the Modern Language Building at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor (763-5924).

If you can resist that, jazz isn't your thing.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS native David Barrett, who's just released his first album ("Surprise") on the Brothers Records label, opened for Stephen Stills on Oct. 14 at the Royal Oak Music Theatre.

Barrett, a singer and guitarist with a soft-sell approach, had his hands full with a youthful audience that was after the more hard rock sounds of Stills.

Nonetheless, Barrett was impressive during his 30-minute set, particularly with a strong closing trio of original tunes. His maturity as a performer and his self-possessed professionalism stood him in good stead against some early shouts of "Stephen Stills!" By the end of his set he had won some new fans.

Cellist's 'instinctive approach' brings her acclaim

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Ofra Harnoy had several great cello teachers. But the best thing about them was that "they encouraged me to explore my own original style. Too many teachers try to make their students into photocopies of themselves."

The 18-year-old Toronto cellist, who will be heard locally Sunday, is already being compared to another great woman cellist from whom she took a master class: Jacqueline DuPre.

"We both started performing young," said Harnoy, who gave her first performance at 6 on a quarter-sized cello. "And there aren't that many women cellists who have become well known. We have an instinctive approach — not labored."

DuPre, not yet 40, has multiple sclerosis and gave up performing several years ago.

Harnoy was one of her last pupils in 1980 and recalled, "I was very impressed with her. She was so vital. She couldn't play herself, but she could sing and move her arms and had a lot of humor. I understand she is not teaching now and has to be spoon fed. It is very sad."

OFRA HARNOY (her given name is pronounced "Off-ra") will be guest soloist at 3 p.m. Sunday with the Oakway Symphony Orchestra in Detroit's Orchestra Hall, 3711 Woodward.

With Conductor Francesco DiBlasi and the orchestra, she will be heard in two of the staples of the cello repertory — and two of the most richly melodic pieces in all orchestral literature: Haydn's Cello Concerto in D from the classical era, and Tchaikovsky's "Variations on a Rococo Theme" from the romantic.

The orchestra will perform Brahms' "Academic Festival" overture, Stravinsky's brief Suite No. 2 and "Entrance of the Gods into Valhalla" from Wagner's "Das Rheingold."

Tickets at $8 are available at the door or from Madonna College in Livonia, Hammell Music in Livonia, Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills and Executive Office Supply in downtown Farmington.

THE HARNOY style is intense, individualistic, highly emotional. Usually wearing old-fashioned, loose-sleeved dresses, she throws her head back, sways and coaxes a wide variety of vibratos out of her instrument.

Depending on which audience her promoters want to reach, she is described as being both Canadian and Israeli. Actually, she was born Jan. 31, 1965, in Israel and moved to Canada with her father Jacob, an engineer and amateur violinist, and mother Carmen, a pianist, at the age of 6.

The Canadian press, wary that Canada will become a musical suburb of the United States, emphasizes her Canadian nationality. Harnoy is described in Maclean's magazine as "the most distinguished musician to emerge from Canada since Glenn Gould," the pianist who died at 50 this year.

Great horn player chooses dull score

By Avigdor Zaromp
special writer

had favorably impressed audiences and musicians in his debut here a week earlier.

In programming a musical event, some balance has to be struck between the standard classical diet and profound masterpieces on one hand, and minor, occasionally non-standard compositions on the other.

For the first category, we fortunately don't have to wait too long, with the two great ninth symphonies by Beethoven and Mahler scheduled for the coming consecutive weeks.

Last Thursday's Detroit Symphony Orchestra program at Ford Auditorium was in the second category.

It consisted of the Symphony No. 3 by Schubert, Concerto for Horn and Orchestra by Gliere, "Jeu de Cartes" ("Card Games") by Stravinsky and Dances of Galanta by Kodaly. Guest conductor was Ivan Fischer, who GUEST soloist was noted German-born horn player Hermaan Baumann. With his extensive solo career, he made a success with an instrument that only few others in recent musical history would dare to select for that purpose.

Everything considered, three of the compositions could be regarded as a good choice for an off-beat program. The one exception was the Horn Concerto by Gliere.

Gliere, of course, is primarily known for his popular "Dance of the Russian Sailors." Even with that, many people know the tune but not the name of the composer.

While he composed several large scale compositions, including concertos, symphonies and a few operas, most of these works are gathering dust in music libraries. As far as the Horn Concerto is concerned, its obscurity isn't totally undeserved.

Baumann proved to be a gifted and fine horn player, rendering the difficult passages of this work with superb skill and displaying tone-varieties on his instrument that few would consider possible. But the composition failed to have a significant impact on the audience.

THE FINAL movement is the only one with some merit, having lively Russian-style themes. But no part of it sounds truly profound.

The Schubert symphony was well done, with the exception of the second movement, which was too heavy-handed due to the excessive orchestral forces.

The most rewarding part of the program was the second part, with the works by Stravinsky and Kodaly. The Stravinsky ballet "Jeu de Cartes," was written with the poker game in mind. While an actual staging of the ballet, with knowledge of the poker game would enhance the "meaning" of various passages, this isn't indispensable for the musical appreciation and enjoyment.

IN THIS instance, Fischer demonstrated again his skillful knowledge and control of the vast orchestral forces. Combined with Stravinsky's ingenuity both as a composer and an orchestrator, the effect was most pleasing.

Even without knowing which "card" was being played, one couldn't fail to grasp the elements of suspense, surprise, and witty playfulness in this performance.

The closing work, "Dances of Galanta," proved to be equally enchanting. There was a remarkable balance between the woodwinds and the strings, with several impressive solo parts of the woodwinds radiating with inspired articulation.

The gypsy dances gathered momentum as the work progressed, resulting in a rare climactic impact on the audience.

'Beyond Therapy'

Matt Servitto and Kyle K. Baker are Bruce and Prudence in the Wayne State University Studio Theatre production of "Beyond Therapy." The new comedy by Christopher Durang continues at 8 tonight through Saturday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday on campus in Detroit. The play is about two New Yorkers who meet through the personal ads. For ticket information call 577-2972.

Musical rates near perfect

Performances of the Garden City Civic Theatre production of the musical "Once Upon a Mattress" continue at 8 p.m. through Saturday at the O'Leary Performing Arts Center, 6500 Middlebelt Road. For ticket information call 525-9238.

By Victoria Diaz
special writer

The Garden City Civic Theater opened its new season this week at the O'Leary Performing Arts Center with a lively, fun-filled presentation of Mary Rodgers' and Marshall Barer's musical comedy, "Once Upon a Mattress."

Under the direction of David A. Tucker, a 14-year veteran of community theater, the youthful, 20-member cast appears so well-rehearsed that there seems hardly a fluffed line or a wrong move throughout the entire 2½-hour production.

Based (loosely) on the familiar fairy tale, "The Princess and the Pea," the two-act play is set in a medieval kingdom and centers around the problem of finding a suitably aristocratic bride ("a genuine princess") for Prince Dauntless the Drab.

Marc Gawronski as Dauntless, however, is anything but drab. With his boyish enthusiasm, rosy cheeks, expressive eyes and perfectly coiffed golden hair, he seems to absolutely glow with a kind of wacky — but nevertheless, princely — charm.

CATHERINE STAGE is perfectly cast as the tomboyish Winnifred the Woebegone, who swims the castle moat in eager anticipation of meeting her darling Dauntless for the first time. Frizzy-haired and stick-thin, Stage's Winnifred is cute as a button and utterly charming — a perfect match for the smitten Dauntless.

Stage possesses a fine singing voice and it's a little disappointing that her rendition of "Shy," in the first act, isn't delivered with just a bit more punch and verve. As is, it's nice, but it has the potential of becoming a really rousing number and it's rather perplexing why she didn't pull out the stops and go for it all.

review

Bonnie Adler is deliciously obnoxious as the loquacious conniver, Queen Aggravain. And Mark Byars, while not particularly adept in his role of Sir Harry, does display a remarkable singing talent, which makes the rather wooden delivery of some of his lines easily forgivable. Although most of the dancers perform adequately, Jeff Weber, as Sir Luce, manages to stand out in a relatively minor role, mainly because he seems to be enjoying what he's doing so much.

that nicely complement the zany, comic-strip spirit of the play itself. Oranges, pinks, greens, reds and bright blues abound, shot through with generous touches of silver and gold. And, of course, what's a medieval castle without a lot of royal purple hanging around? It also displays a tendency now and then to almost completely overwhelm the rather thin singing voice of Susan Krekeler, who plays Lady Larken.

Visually, the production is a delight. Brightly lit sets and attractive costumes are done in exuberant, almost riotous colors that nicely complement the zany, comic-strip spirit of the play itself. Oranges, pinks, greens, reds and bright blues abound, shot through with generous touches of silver and gold.

In a class by himself, though, is Glenn Blankenship, who portrays the lecherous-but-lovable King Sextimus the Silent, father of Dauntless and mute husband to Aggravain. Uttering not a single word until the last scene of the last act, Blankenship manages to all but steal the show. He turns in a performance of professional quality, and his timing and sense of comedy are practically flawless.

Visually, the production is a delight. Brightly lit sets and attractive costumes are done in exuberant, almost riotous colors

ON A NEGATIVE note, the 10-piece orchestra, conducted by Martha Kuykendall, sounds a bit confused and under-rehearsed. In addition, most of the songs created by Rodgers and Barer for "Once Upon a Mattress" (with the exception of "Shy" and a clever little tune called "An Opening for a Princess") are, unfortunately, pretty forgettable. It's an indication of the strength of this community theater group that it is able to overcome that basic fault and go on to make this a production which is definitely worth remembering.

treat Symphony and Canadian Music competitions, she has embarked on a recital and concert career.

"I DON'T have a fear of heights," Harnoy quipped when asked about her frequent performance of violin works on the cello.

"I like violin pieces. The cello repertoire is quite limited. A lot of the works I play in their original are violin arrangements."

"The fingering has to be changed, but the bowings are approximately the same," she said.

Among the violin works on some of her earlier recordings are Sarasate's "Zapateado," Popper's "Dance of the Elves," Paganini's Caprice No. 24 and Rimsky-Korsakov's "Flight of the Bumblebee."

Her most recent recording, with the Cincinnati Symphony, is of the recently discovered cello concerto by Jacques

Offenbach. "The concerto itself is very good — what a Paganini cello concerto would have sounded like had he written one. There are many love duets between the cello and other instruments," she said.

OAKWAY'S DiBlasi was impressed with her Cincinnati performance and the audience reaction although he is less enthusiastic about the musical merits of the Offenbach concerto.

Harnoy said she plans to record the Haydn D major concerto, which she will play Sunday with Oakway, as well as the recently discovered C major concerto, with the Toronto Chamber Orchestra later this fall.

Harnoy uses steel strings on her 80-year-old cello, whose basic sound is "soft and mellow." She thinks "the gut tone is nice, but it has a soft quality which wouldn't come out in a hall." Ofra Harnoy, cellist

The Harnoy style is intense, individualistic, highly emotional.

"The Thing" (1951), 3:30 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 50. Originally 87 minutes.

Director Howard Hawks, whose career spanned silent pictures, gangster films, screwball comedies, war films and westerns, also made a sci-fi flick. "The Thing," in fact, stands at the forefront of the science fiction boom of the 1950s, and its memorable epilogue, in which a news commentator implores listeners to "Watch the skies" for alien invaders, set the tone for the genre. James "Gunsmoke" Arness stars as a humanoid vegetable on the loose at an isolated scientific outpost.

Rating: $2.90.

"Dracula vs. Frankenstein" (1971): 11:30 p.m. Saturday and 12:30 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 4. Originally 90 minutes.

How many movies can you think of that are both funny and scary? Probably very few, because the two genres don't mix. "Dracula vs. Frankenstein" attempts to blend comedy and horror, and the results are both unintentionally funny and sadly horrible. Film veterans J. Carol Nalsh, Lon Chaney Jr. and Russ Tamblyn star in this Count Scary presentation.

Rating: $1.

"Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte" (1965), 9 a.m. Sunday on Ch. 4. Originally 133 minutes.

Consider the plight of aging film actresses Bette Davis and Olivia de Havilland, who co-star in "Sweet Charlotte." Davis, upon reaching age 50 or thereabouts, was transformed into a screen shrew, playing bags and biddies in such films as "Dead Ringer," "The Nanny," "Sweet Charlotte" and "What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?" De Havilland, perhaps offered the same sort of roles, didn't work. She made two films from 1962 to 1969, a period that spanned her 50th birthday. Aging actors, meanwhile — Cary Grant, James Stewart, Henry Fonda to name a few — continued in leading man roles well past middle age. So much for equality in movies.

"Charlotte," a mildly engaging film at best, co-stars Joseph Cotten, Agnes Moorehead, Mary Astor, Cecil Kellaway, Victor Buono and the always-menacing Bruce Dern.

Rating: $2.60.

"Halloween with the Addams Family," 1 Monday night on Ch. 7.

This Halloween week's array of horror films probably won't scare you much, but "Halloween with the Addams Family" ought to provide a few yucks. Was there ever a whackler show on TV? ("The Munsters" doesn't count.) John Astin and the late Carolyn Jones co-star.

Unrated.

In repertory at the Hilberry

Katie Sikoreki is Emily, Mark Corkina is George and LeWan Alexander (foreground) is the stage manager in the Hilberry Theatre production of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town." The Pulitzer-Prize-winning classic runs in repertory through Nov. 10 at Detroit's Wayne State University. Evening performances are at 8 p.m., with matinees at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Two newcomers to the Hilberry

With stencils

Hobbyist gives home a colonial look

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

A trip to New England some five years ago turned out to be more than a vacation for Jeanette R. Bickham of Livonia. It introduced Bickham to a different type of home decoration that changed her home and her hobbies — stencils.

Many may think of stencils as block letters that are cut out and used as a lettering guide for posters and signs. But to Bickham, stencils can be flowers, horse-drawn sleighs or other designs that can add a distinctive touch to anything they are painted on, from walls to clothes.

"THERE WERE homes and shops and lodges (in New England) that had wall paintings, furniture paintings, lovely things around the ceiling and doorways," she said. "There was a distinctiveness about it. It was something I had never seen before."

Bickham was so impressed by the designs that she looked for them when she returned to Michigan. Stenciling wasn't as popular here, so she set about researching the subject.

Now Bickham stencils designs on furniture, clothes, stationery and other items in her home. She creates stenciled works and clothing on consignment and teaches classes on the craft. And she is preparing for arts and crafts shows Nov. 5 at the Nativity United Church of Christ, Henry Ruff Road at West Chicago, and Dec. 3 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 150 Fair in Plymouth.

Stencils can harmonize a room in a way wallpaper can't, according to Bickham. The same stencil pattern can be used on the walls, furnishings and curtains of a room.

"Wallpaper is really expensive," she said. "Stenciling is just about as reasonable. Your lampshades can be stenciled, and you can pull the whole room together. You can stencil right on the fabric, the wall, the furniture and all of it comes together."

NEAT ROWS of delicate flowers adorn walls in Bickham's home. The patterns could be mistaken for wallpaper at first glance.

"It's much more interesting (than wallpaper)," Bickham said. "People will see one of my stencils and say, 'That's so beautiful. I never heard anyone say that about my wallpaper.'"

Bickham's stenciling equipment includes thick, short-bristled brushes, acrylic paints, patterns and scalpels.

"It's very slow work," she said. "The cutting of the stencils is a very slow job."

MANY OF Bickham's patterns are purchased from craft stores. She cuts her own from a sheet of Mylar, a plastic-like material.

Bickham "paints" the stencils by blotting the spaces with a brush. The brush must be very dry, using very little paint, or else the colors will "bleed" or run together, she said.

Stencils can be applied to almost any surface, as long as it is slightly porous, Bickham said. All surfaces must be clean.

"I've tried every medium," she said. "The only thing I couldn't stencil was a filing cabinet. The surface was too slick."

BICKHAM COVERS the stencils on her furniture with polyurethane to help them last.

Cotton or muslin are the fabrics best suited for stenciling, while polyester can't be used, Bickham said. The fabrics must be washed and heat-treated with an iron before the stencils are painted.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Jeanette R. Bickham of Livonia has painted stencil patterns on almost everything. Here she displays the delicate designs she painted on clothing, a wall and a wooden chair.

The "heat-treating" process includes turning an iron to its highest setting and holding it to the material, protecting the fabric with cotton. Once the designs are dry, they will withstand washing and ironing.

"You gotta be terribly fussy about laying the stencil properly, and handling the paints. Once you paint a stencil, it's there. I have never touched a blouse with a stencil without feeling a moment of panic," Bickham said with a smile.

"You cannot be afraid to be bold," she continued. "It takes a lot of courage to paint the first stencil on. And once you touch it, in one minute you can go amiss."

Bickham, whose wide range of interests include embroidery and candleworking, is planning to stencil her shutters in the spring.

Stenciling was popular in America 300 years ago, when colonists painted their new homes to replace old art, according to Bickham.

"When the colonists came over, they couldn't afford to bring their tapestries and wall hangings from the old country," she said. "Skilled craftsmen used to travel across the countryside."

Now's the time to begin study of art

This is another in a series of lessons on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for eight years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 18774 Middlebelt, Livonia. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington MI 48024.

The appreciation and awareness of shape, color and texture seems to come at varied times in the lives of many. To some, appreciation and awareness never comes at all.

On the other hand, some are driven to take lessons in art to express themselves better, even if they possess no particular gift or ability.

But when do you begin lessons in art? The questions are many concerning art lessons. For example: "Is my child too young to begin art lessons?" "Can you teach an old codger like me to draw?"

Well, let's start with the youngsters.

IT'S SURPRISING that we expect 6- to 9-year-old children to learn to print the alphabet and yet we can't believe they are old enough to draw shapes. After all, did you ever really look at a W or the letter R?

I know of a kid who gave his teacher fits in second grade, because his R leaned too much to the left. But now R is one of my best letters!

Children learn to speak and develop motor responses at different ages. So when to begin art lessons varies with the student.

I remember Maria, who was 5 years old. After you lifted her on to a 24-inch stool, she could draw with the best of those big league 7- and 8-year-olds.

The most important question in children's art is do they draw from imagination or from what they see? If your child draws only from his or her imagination, there is little you can teach them.

For instance, if you say "Honey, why is that foot so big and this foot so little?" they might say, "Cuz that's the way I want it... sheesh."

Children are approaching art lessons when they try to draw from comics or real life. And be assured their first attempts could be no worse than Satchmo's first toot on a trumpet.

DURING THE sometimes eternal hour of art lessons for children (10 and under)—you may hear us say some strange things. For instance, "Jamie get out from under that table." "Brian, how did you get bubble gum on your picture?" "Now where did Aaron go?" and "Trisha, honey, please go under that table and tell Jamie to get over here."

So as an answer to prayer, Carol came along and I hired her to teach our little ones. Carol brought a perfect blend of discipline and art instruction. Some day Carol, and her helpers and I will have to get together and write a book. After all, Art Linkletter did it!

Probably the best aspect of children taking art lessons is that it can introduce them to the many media and techniques in art. For example: pen and ink, charcoal, pastel, scratchboard, felt tip pens, etc. Then they have a good foundation for more advanced instruction.

ENCOURAGEMENT can not be overemphasized. Did you ever notice how you clap a little louder for some little guy or gal who suffered through some musical recital?

Artifacts

You do that to encourage them. Well, you rarely clap over art work, but what you say or don't say about their work is remembered accurately in their little heads.

I can spot within weeks who will last and who will be discouraged by the attitude of the parents. Boy, do kids ever talk!

Some will come in and say, "My daddy said he's payin' good money and I gotta show 'em what I do every week."

Speaking of showing them, with some parents you just can't win. For example: If the picture turns out great, they want to know just what part the teacher did. Then if it fails poorly, they want to drop the child out of art lessons.

So, remember, just as you close one ear at musical recitals, learn to close one eye when viewing their art.

FROM 10 to 16, interest is the primary goal and art instruction is secondary.

For three years Eric has occupied his art curriculum drawing beasts, warriors and winged things beyond description. Mom, Dad, family and even his neighbors have begged him for even an occasional barn or flower.

But Eric probably will not draw a very good flower unless a flower can hold a sword or until his interests change. In the meantime, Eric has learned charcoal, pastel and colored pencil (dragons), pen and ink, ink on glass and linoleum block (warriors), scratchboard, watercolor, gouche and coquille board (winged things).

The interests of the student is what brings them each week to the teacher to learn technique. The primary goal of the teacher is to bend the technique to fit their interests.

It is truly amazing how fast students develop in their ability when encouraged by others and inspired with minor successes.

Between the ages of about 14 to 16, art students can actually take giant steps towards their career in art. I recently had one design studio ask me for the phone number of a 15-year-old boy named Shawn.

But I told them I am hiding him for another year or so. I would say around the age of 15, students should begin building their portfolio. Now here is where interest suffers.

For example, Greg is about 15 and he has worked for three weeks drawing pen and ink renderings of a chain saw... heavy bummer. But, as a young man, Greg sees his need to prepare his portfolio for the future, even if it is not exactly "fun."

From ages 16 to 18, a student usually makes a decision for art or some other field. Of course that is the student's decision and should not be influenced by others.

The world will get along fine without another artist. But what bothers me is when a student drops out for temporary interest. I once had a gifted youngster who, upon becoming driving age, wanted a car. So to get the car he had to work part-time. A very good artist is now out of school, stocking shelves at a drug store.

I HAD THE pleasure of meeting Clair this week at the art store. She is energetic, talented and has a very good sense of humor. Upon showing me photos of some of her work, she said, "For 50 bucks each I can sell these all day."

"I'm kind of slow but I have plenty of time. I'm 70 and I paint for fun... I'll let my grandkids sell my paintings."

I guess, just like we underestimate young children, we also underestimate older folks. The difference, however, is that it is the older folks that underestimate themselves.

Remember, as I stated several weeks ago, art ability never leaves you; it is a part of your perception, thinking and attitude. Even if it is left dormant for many years; it can be revived very easily, much to the surprise of the host.

Usually a break is very good for a student. Parents will carefully state that their son or daughter would like to drop out of art classes for a while.

They are sometimes surprised at my comment of "good." I feel that if the child has lost interest in art, it has at least been good exposure for him or her.

Usually this interest is revived within a year or so. As in any instruction, it is nice to take a break from time to time. It is no accident when the student returns that the level of ability seems to have increased. Of course, this is primarily due to rekindled interest.

So, if you have studied art in the past, consider taking a class somewhere to revive and polish your talent.

If you have never studied art but have played with the idea, then stop playing and start drawing.

ARTFUL HINT: Don't judge the field of art as a lost cause because of one or two class failures. Many times your failure can be traced to an uninspired teacher.

The word "inspire" means "to breathe life into," and believe me, some students need a lot of breathing.

Write on, would-be authors told

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

"Anyone who wants to be a writer and isn't... writing, doesn't."
Ernest Hemingway

The cardinal rule offered to the nearly 600 writers who gathered at Oakland University Saturday for the 22nd Annual Writer Conference was WRITE.

Loose sleep, farm out the kids, do battle with guilts, schedules, and intrusive telephones, but write.

Rule two. Read everything you can get your hands on. Rule three. Persevere. Writing is a tough business and only the stubborn get published.

This year more writers than ever came to talk shop and gain practical directing on their chosen craft at the conference co-sponsored by Oakland University and Detroit Women Writers.

An after lunch talk by Judith Guest, author of the recently published "Second Heaven" and the runaway best seller, "Ordinary People," highlighted the conference which featured manuscript workshops Friday and a feast of varied seminars on Saturday.

WRITERS could choose from 33 seminars designed for poets, fiction writers, and journalists, as well as for those who write for the youth and teen-age markets.

There were seminars on how to write personal columns, confession stories, and personality profiles, and how to write gag and spicy romances.

Experts told writers the advantages of having a literary agent, what Doubleday and Harlequin book houses want, and how word processing is changing the old slug-it-out-on-a-beat-typewriter image of writing.

One seminar addressed legal questions about copyright laws and contracts; another outlined how to write successful query letters and proposals.

Writing can be a frustrating business. Even successful writers boast they could paper whole rooms with their rejections slips. Margaret Mitchell sent out "Gone With the Wind" 27 times before it was accepted.

Every year New Yorker magazine receives 50,000 unsolicited manuscripts and publishes no more than five. If the odds in the writing business are bad, the pay is often worse. The average income for full-time writers in America is a meager $5,000.

Writers came to the conference in unprecedented numbers but not just for the practical meat the seminars offered on how to write well and get published.

They came to hear Judith Guest, the Cinderella of Detroit writers tell how she felt 11 years ago when she first came to the Writer's Conference as a hopeful, unpublished writer.

HER FIRST novel, "Ordinary People," which she calls a novel of appearances, was plucked from the slush pile (what publishers call the stacks of unsolicited manuscripts they receive) and published as a long shot by Random House.

It catapulted to the top of the best seller list and was made into an acclaimed movie directed by Robert Redford. Judith Guest has since published her second successful novel, "Second Heaven."

She is as unassuming and pleasant as a Cinderella ought to be, a down-to-earth person and a speaker full of provocative ideas. Underneath her "ordinary person" guise, Judith Guest is a concerned thinker who spoke of what's happening in American society.

"Too often," she said, "mind triumphs over emotions. Reason has become separate from feeling... Thinking should be used in the service of feelings and not as a substitute for them... A lot of problems people have, I don't think, are reachable through thought."

"People feel their lives are out of control. They have need for security and stability... Life is complicated, full of science and technology, and people yearn for a set of rules."

THE LAW and religion are two institutions people expect to fulfill their needs for stability, and Judith Guest says, "Institutionalized answers don't fit the needs of the individual."

"The main body of my sermon," she joked, "is autonomy. It's hard to be responsible for your own life... As a society we often behave as adolescents."

"We resent controls and that stems from our ambivalence about exercising our own personal power... It seems we focus on the consequences of breaking rules and forget that there are powerful consequences to keeping rules... People don't want to believe that things are a matter of personal choice as long as you're willing to accept the consequences of the act."

Of writing she said, "I'm bored reading novels that don't point any direction toward solution after taking a great amount of time to delineate the problem. You have to do more than describe problems and let the reader solve them if you're going to be a writer."

"The truth is I write for myself and I love the process."

Paint Creek Center
"Rainbow Woven Forest," 300 trees woven by Michigan artist Rosalind Berlin are on display through Nov. 12. Fascination with light shines through portraits

By Carol Azizian
staff writer

A pale, blond woman reclines on a lawn chair in languorous ease. Bathed in sunlight and surrounded by the lush greenery of her garden, Rozlyn is wistfully pensive.

Scantily dressed, Laura slouches in a chair in her boudoir, apparently reflecting about the day's events. Light filters into the dark, dreary room, casting shadows upon her face.

Surrounded by bright red begonias, Kim poses for her portrait in a studio. A spotlight shines on her face, capturing her youthful, innocent looks. The three portraits by Farmington Hills artist Jerrine Habsburg represent her continual experimentation with light. They are part of an exhibit which runs through Sunday at the Southfield Parks and Recreation Center Gallery, 26000 Evergreen.

"I'm concerned with what happens to things (and people) when light shines on them," Habsburg said. "What light does to a group of objects is pretty mystical, totally unexpected."

IN BOTH her realistic portraits and still lifes, her fascination with light shines through.

"Still lifes bore a lot of people," she admitted. "But an artist can take simple objects and glorify them by dealing with light."

Her attempts to elevate the mundane are evident in numerous still lifes such as "Still Life with Hydrangea," portraying a stone turtle next to potted flowers. "God knows, we pass a million things in our everyday life," she reflected. "We take many thousands of things in a light, off-handed way. We dismiss most of the information. But once you focus in on something and paint it, you become intimate with it. For example, you can become intimate with a bowl of flowers in a way that goes far beyond admiring it on a table in your home."

A painter for 35 years, Habsburg tries to convey this message to her art students. A former instructor at Oakland Community College, she now teaches classes for the Visual Arts Association of Livonia.

"I stress honesty and the willingness to deal with the subject matter at hand," she explained. "I believe strongly in working from real life. Nobody ever learned anything by painting from photographs."

But, she cautions, a painter "can't aim at a mood. It happens because you respond to a particular model."

HABSBURG follows the same logic when painting landscapes. The warmth and joy she felt absorbing the beauty of historic Hill House and its gardens in Livonia is clearly portrayed in her painting of the site.

"There are levels of interest in that work," she noted. "The filtering of sunlight in the trees gives you the feeling that you can walk right into it. It's a restful, lovely place."

A member of the Michigan Watercolor Society and Farmington Artists Club, Habsburg has exhibited her work throughout the Detroit area. She has won several awards, including "best of show" for Farmington Artists Club exhibitions in 1971, 1977, 1979 and 1982.

Others include a merit award in a competitive exhibit at First United Methodist Church of Birmingham; special award, "The Artist Speaks," for a juried exhibition at the American Center and second place in a Palette and Brush Club's show at Pontiac Art Center.

Habsburg continues to find new challenges in her art. She has never stopped painting — except when her five children were very young.

"We all need opposition and challenge in our lives," she said. "I love setting up a problem and solving it."

"I find I keep getting better at it all the time."

Varani scores with Poulenc album

By Mary Jane Doerr
special writer

Many classical music lovers aren't familiar with Poulenc's piano music. It has been far overshadowed by his more revered operatic, vocal and ballet music. Critics have always dismissed it as too shallow for serious consideration. The result is that only one pianist has recorded any of the piano literature.

Pianist Flavio Varani disagrees with the critics and in his first album, entitled "Poulenc Nocturnes," recently released by Orion Master Recordings of California (ORS 83459) he has recorded some of the works of this 20th century composer.

Poulenc was a member of the group of "Les Six," all composers in Paris who rebelled against the excesses of Romanticism such as Wagner, the mysticism of Franck and the vagueness of Debussy.

They were named for the similar movement in painting, Surrealism. Considered against the grandeur of Romanticism and the dissonance of so much of modern music, the simplicity of the style of, for instance, Poulenc, led many people to discount the importance of their work.

Of the six, Poulenc's music is emerging as having the most endurance. Having died as recently as 1963, he is already being considered as one of the important composers of this century.

THAT POULENC is the contemporary "master of the melody" can be plainly understood when listening to his piano music. It is pleasing, always melodic, light and airy, gentle, never heavy, at times moody, with sudden changes of rhythm and feeling. Often it is very descriptive. For structure, Poulenc draws on a wide range of classical forms. No "piece" lasts more than one to three minutes with cycles never more than 10-15 minutes.

For this release of Varani's, which was recorded at the RCA studios in New York City, he has drawn a selection from Poulenc's middle period when the bulk of his piano music was composed, from 1927-1943.

"8 Nocturnes," from which the album is named, was a series of pieces Poulenc composed during the nine years from 1929-1938, years that span the time of his conversion to Catholicism.

The group describes a variety of moods connected with anything from bells to bells. In several pieces Poulenc's surrealism in music is clearly pictured as he alters and changes his melodies in other forms, such as in the lovely G Major Nocturne and the "Coda to the Cycle."

review

Poulenc was first recognized for his ballet compositions. He arranged the "Pastourelle" from his ballet "L'eventail de Jeanne." Its gentle style and changing rhythms gives a two-minute hint of the reason for that popularity in that idiom.

The Suite Francaise comes from a chamber music work of the composer written in 1936. It consists of a number of delightful dances in various tempos and moods, two branles, a pavane, and even a military march. The cycle concludes with a "carillon" number.

Though Poulenc's style is not muscular, the Tocata from "Trois Pieces," composed in 1928, comes the closest on the album to being anything of a "showpiece." Though there is nothing easy in the technique, Poulenc obviously composed for melody.

BETWEEN his religious moments and his vulgarity, we are never really sure when Poulenc is being humorous. In his Valse-Improvisation he is being humorous about the number of compositions on the letters in Bach's name. Varani dedicated this number to Vladimir Horowitz who seems to be enamored of such pieces.

Varani's interpretation of this music is very spontaneous and free, using tempo rubato throughout. Comparing this record with the only other records available, the three of French pianist Gabriel Tacchino, Varani comes forth with a warmer tone and richer elucidation of the music.

"Still Life with Hydrangea," another work by Habsburg, is a realistic still life.

WHAT GOES WITH YOUR HOME?

We hear this question day after day. To the seller our answer is always the same. "Anything the buyer sees, they will most likely ask for in a purchase contract." As a seller, the best thing you can do is remove your favorite window treatments, swing or fancy lamp and anything that you think you will want to keep before your home is ever shown.

It is important that the seller state clearly in the listing agreement exactly what personal property will stay with the home. The seller must also check over the purchase agreement to make sure not only the terms of the sale are correct, but there is not any personal property included in the sale that the seller did not wish to have included. This simple action will save headaches and heartaches later on.

Listing your home with a full service multi-listing REALTOR makes sense. We will handle everything from listing to closing. Thinking of buying or selling? (Or just need information) Call RAY SIMPSON or TONY GARRISI of Real Estate One at 326-2000 or write c/o 33015 Ford Rd., Westland, MI 48185 and deal with "Michigan's Largest Real Estate Company."
