Blaze guts Hunter Park businesses

Massive traffic tie-ups reported

By Leonard Poger and Tedd Schnelder staff writers

A fire gutted at least four businesses in the Hunter Park Plaza strip retail center Wednesday afternoon, causing massive traffic jams and spreading soot and smoke in the neighborhoods south of Warren Road and east of Venoy.

Westland fire officials said there were no injuries in the blaze, which was fought by 25 firefighters, including eight off-duty people called in to help.

Dispatcher Michael Harvey said the first call was received at 6:32 p.m. with the first pumper, stationed at the Merriman-Ann Arbor Trail station, arriving at the retail center six minutes later.

Firefighters had a hard time bringing the blaze under control. The roof of the center collapsed, said Fire Chief Larry Lane.

ONE PROBLEM reported at the fire was insufficient water pressure, said one fire official at the scene, but Lane said he had no knowledge of the problem, although he said Thursday morning that his investigation wasn't complete.

Flames from the fire on the north side of Warren Road east of Venoy were visible a mile away nearly an hour after the fire was reported.

Large billows of smoke blew south into nearby Garden City neighborhoods. Several residents reported soot falling onto their properties.

The fire started in a party store on the northeast corner of the center. Among the businesses destroyed by the fire were Dr. S. G. Gilbert's Optical Center, Karen's Flowers and Gifts and Celebration, a party goods store.

Businesses in a nearby but separate building weren't affected.

There was no immediate damage estimate, but Lane said the damage was "extensive."

A fire gutted several businesses in the Hunter Park Plaza on Warren Road east of Venoy.

"We still have a lot of digging to do," the chief added.

The center was opened about a year ago by the LaKritz-Weber development company.

TRAFFIC WAS tied up on Warren Road and Venoy while Garden City and Westland officers routed motorists away from the fire trucks at the scene.

There were also hundreds of people standing nearby watching the firefighters battle the blaze. The fire was the fifth major blaze for the Westland fire department in the past four months.

The others, in order, were at an apartment development in Warren Road and Venoy near Warren; Riverbend apartments on Merriman near Warren Road; a Big Boy Restaurant on Wayne Road at Hunter; a house on Wayne Road near Cherry Hill; and a retail strip center on Warren Road east of Middlebelt.

The house fire and strip center blazes were set by an arsonist, the Westland fire department said.

LEONARD POGER

Billows of smoke dropped soot on Garden City neighborhoods south of Warren Road. Several businesses were gutted by the Wednesday blaze. Cause of the fire is still under investigation.

3 face expulsion for gun incident

By Tedd Schnelder
staff writer

Three suspended Adams Junior High School students involved in a March gun-selling incident face expulsion from the district Monday.

The Wayne-Westland school board will vote on a recommendation from Superintendent Dennis O'Neill to expel the students at a special meeting called for 7 p.m.

Board members heard O'Neill's recommendation and discussed the case with one student and his mother during a 55-minute closed meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The other parents and students failed to show up for a second closed meeting scheduled immediately after the first one.

The superintendent refused to comment on his recommendation, which wasn't made public. But a school official said it called for expulsion of all three students.

It was unclear Wednesday whether the hearing for the other students would be rescheduled before the school board vote. One of the students has moved out of the district, according to a school official.

"THAT'S TOTALLY confidential," O'Neill said. "You'll find out Monday."

The mother declined to comment on either the meeting or the recommendation as she walked to her car with her son following the session.

School officials returned to closed session after the first meeting to discuss the matter.

"No decision has been made, we just heard facts," said one person who attended the meeting.

The students, two 15-year-olds and a 14-year-old, were suspended March 9 after Adams principal Ronald Stratton told police he received information about the purchase of a gun that was stored in the locker of the 14-year-old.

Police confiscated the gun, a .38-caliber Smith & Wesson revolver, and two bullets from a duffel bag inside the locker.

Police charged the 15-year-olds as juveniles for illegally carrying a concealed weapon.

According to police, one of the 15-year-olds stole his grandfather's gun March 4 and sold it to the other for $100. The grandfather had inherited the gun from another family member and hadn't registered it in his name, police said.

The 14-year-old told police he was asked by the gun buyer to keep the duffel bag in his locker. He said he didn't know the gun was in the bag but he heard rumors around school that the other boy was buying the gun.

SPECIAL SECTION IN TODAY'S ISSUE

Myers mixed on anti-dropout plan

By Tedd Schneider and Tim Richard staff writers

Suspending driver's licenses of high school dropouts and chronic truants could be "a real plus, if it works," according to James Myers, John Glenn High School principal.

But Myers stressed that he has mixed feelings about two proposed state laws that would do just that.

"The more efforts we make to keep kids in school, the better," Myers said. "But when you're dealing with kids who have problems paying attention to (school) authority figures, I have to wonder if they're going to listen to police authority."

Wayne Memorial principal Francis Winter was unavailable for comment.

Sponsors are Reps. Philip Horton, R-Horton, and Claude Trim, R-Waterford.

The Michigan Association of High School Principals supports the proposals.

But members of the House Education Committee were skeptical at a hearing this month concerning the proposed legislation.

The hearing occurred a day before the federal government reported Michigan's high school graduation rate had dropped to 62 percent — 48th in the nation, ahead of only the District of Columbia, Florida and Louisiana.

The 19-member panel, chaired by Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, will study them further before deciding whether to report them to the House floor.

"WHAT IF a student dropped out for a good reason and needed the auto to support the family?" asked Rep. Robert DeMars, D-Lincoln Park.

The John Glenn principal agreed. "I've known students in that situation," Myers said. "You can't deny them the opportunity to make a living just because they decide school isn't for them at this time."

"It's ironic," said Rep. Nelson Saunders, D-Detroit, "that the state says you can drop out at 16 and then (would) take away your driver's license. Many make a conscious decision they can't survive in that (school) environment."

"The purpose is laudable," said Rep. Gary Randall, R-Elwell. "But it's a radical departure (to lift a driver's license for a non-driving offense)."

Several members said students might turn surly if forced to return to school in order to drive legally.

"Do you want someone in your class whose only purpose is to keep a driver's license?" asked Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton.

"What if you had expelled them as incorrigible?" asked Rep. Nate Jonker, D-Clio.

MYERS COULDN'T provide a dropout figure for John Glenn, but said he didn't see that as a major problem at the 2,000-student high school. "It's difficult for us to track dropouts because they may leave our school and enroll a month later in another community," he said.

But Myers acknowledged that driver's licenses are top status symbols for today's high school students and pulling them could really "send a message."

He said high attendance in driver's education classes showed that students are really concerned with getting their license. "They know that if they miss more than a few classes they won't get to take the test," the principal said.

cop calls

POLICE ISSUED a ticket to a 24-year-old Westland man Friday afternoon for cruelty to animals after he deliberately placed his sharp dog in a neighbor's backyard on Grandview and ordered it to fight with the neighbor's dog.

There were no injuries, police said.

The neighbor, a 30-year-old woman, told police the man had repeatedly taunted her and threatened to send his dog after her dog, a doberman shepherd mixed breed.

The woman told police the man appeared intoxicated when he lifted his dog over her fence and into her yard.

shall's store, 34600 Warren Road, closed the business briefly May 1 when he received a bomb threat, police said.

A search of the store failed to turn up any explosives.

Police said the department store's main office received the threat at 4:25 p.m. A female caller said a bomb had been placed in the store by her son.

The caller said her son was chased out of the store by employees two days earlier for shoplifting.

The store manager told police he recovered merchandise in the parking lot, but the alleged shoplifter escaped.

POLICE ARRESTED a 16-year-old Inkster youth Sunday night in the parking lot of the Landings Apartments for attempting to steal a car.

Officers were called to the complex, off Warren Road east of Wayne Road, at 6:19 p.m. by a witness who said she saw the boy break into a 1987 Ford Mustang GT.

When they arrived, officers found the youth inside the car.

The car's right-side window was smashed and the youth had several hand tools in his pocket, police said.

TWO FORD Road drivers reported to police May 3 that a hitchhiker damaged their vehicles when he threw stones or rocks as they passed by.

A Garden City man told police the windshield of his 1985 Pontiac Sedan was chipped by stones as he drove westbound on Ford, near Farmington Road, at 1:15 p.m.

A Belleville man said the right side of his 1989 Ford pickup truck was damaged also.

The hitchhiker, a 33-year-old Garden City man, told police he threw stones at the pickup after a man in the passenger seat yelled obscenities at him.

Asbestos to be removed from junior high school

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

A southern Wayne County waste management company will remove a 350-square-foot patch of hazardous asbestos from a hallway ceiling at Marshall Junior High School this weekend.

School officials said they expected the cleanup to be complete in time for school to open as scheduled Monday morning.

The Wayne-Westland school board Monday unanimously approved an emergency measure to pay for the removal.

Environmental Pollution Control Inc. of New Boston turned in the low bid of $7,618 for the work.

That doesn't include testing for asbestos content in the air before and after the removal, which will be handled by a third party and paid for with money from the district's maintenance budget, said Jerry Weidemann, executive director of district operations.

The asbestos targeted for removal is flaking because of water damage to the ceiling tiles, Weidemann said. "Conditions are so bad that we need to do it (the removal) this weekend."

"Down the road, the entire ceiling will be removed," Weidemann told the board. "But this is the only area that poses an immediate threat."

THE DAMAGED ceiling area is at the east end of the main hall, near the school office. There are no classrooms in the immediate vicinity.

Recent tests showed the asbestos content for the area at 2 percent, a level considered dangerous by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, school officials said.

The asbestos will be taken out in sealed containers and the area will be cordoned off, Weidemann said.

Tom Svitkovich, associate superintendent for communications and finance, said the school should be open Monday. "Obviously, if there's any danger Monday morning we wouldn't occupy the facility," he said.

Devising a plan to ensure Marshall students uninterrupted classes was mentioned briefly, but not discussed by board members.

Environmental leaders have urged asbestos management and removal programs in schools because asbestos fibers can be inhaled and cause debilitating or fatal diseases, according to an EPA publication.

Studies of asbestos workers have shown that exposure to asbestos increases the risk of developing lung cancer, cancer of the lining of the lung and abdomen and chronic lung disease, the publication said.

Tips for kite-flying safety

Watching the grace of a kite riding the wind can sometimes lull you into forgetting about the danger of the kite's coming in contact with utility poles or equipment. So Detroit Edison has a few reminders.

If you plan to enjoy this popular hobby, Detroit Edison suggests you do it safely by following these tips:

- Select a good, level, open space. Wires, poles, trees, large stones, ruts and ditches can cause injury.
- If a kite becomes lodged in a high tree, utility pole or wires, don't try to get it down. If kites or other objects are caught on Detroit Edison poles or wires, please inform us of the location and circumstances.

- Don't fly kites in threatening weather. Lightning is electricity and wet string conducts electricity.
- Use light-weight wood for kite frames.
- Use strong, dry cord for kite string. Don't use kites containing wire or metal parts which could serve as conductors if they came in contact with electrical equipment or wires. Nails or pins left exposed may cause injury to arms or hands.

- Handle kites alertly to prevent being thrown off balance by a sudden gust or high wind. This also can cause burns as the cord slips through your hands.
- Avoid areas used by moving vehicles, such as streets, highways and railroad rights-of-way.
- Don't fly kites from rooftops or other elevated structures unless they are protected by enclosures high enough to prevent a fall.

Music Marathon set Friday

Eight hours of music performances by Franklin High students will highlight Franklin's 1989 Music Marathon from 4 p.m. to midnight Friday at the school, on Joy east of Merriman.

Through the 14th annual event, students seek to raise money to enhance music education at the school. The performing groups include the girls chorus, male chorus, bel canto choir and ensemble — 250 students.

Funds from this year's marathon, sponsored by the Vocal Music Boosters, will be used to pay for choral risers, music scholarships and part of the cost of choir camp.

Students wearing music marathon badges seek pledges before the marathon.

Pledges by check should be made out to "FHS music boosters." Extra proceeds come from pledges for solo performances, sale of souvenir badges and refreshments.

SC graduation honors its friends

Schoolcraft College took time to remember its friends during Saturday's commencement ceremonies.

Honorary degrees were awarded to the families of former trustee Rosina Raymond and former Livonia Superintendent of Schools James Carli during ceremonies in the college gymnasium. Both Livonia residents died within the past year.

Honorary degrees were also awarded to Jean Wagner and State Superintendent of Schools' Donald Bemis.

Virginia Sayles, an associate dean at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, received the college's distinguished alumni award.

The Livonia-based community college awarded 870 degrees during Saturday's commencement.

RAYMOND WAS honored for her long involvement with the college, including her 18 years as a Schoolcraft trustee. A past chairwoman of the Schoolcraft board, Raymond was board secretary at the time of her death. She was member of the early 1960s citizens group that helped found the college as well as the Schoolcraft College Foundation, the non-profit group that administers college scholarships. Active with library and historical organizations within her hometown, Raymond was Livonia's "First Citizen" in 1980. Raymond's degree was accepted by her son, Eldon, an Ann Arbor resident.

Carli was Livonia Schools superintendent from July 1986 until his death in December. Before becoming superintendent, he served the district in numerous capacities, including teacher, coach and assistant principal. He was the district's assistant principal for personnel immediately before becoming superintendent. Schoolcraft Trustee Jack Kirksey, director of community education for Livonia Schools, accepted on behalf of the Carli family.

Wagner, is a partner in the Plymouth-based law firm of Millar, Weinberg, Necker, Johnson and Wagner and recently retired from active practice. She served on the college's Women's Advisory Committee from 1976-89 and provided legal expertise to the college's Women's Resource Center. She has received "Woman of the Year" honors from the Plymouth Chapter of Business and Professional Women and is an honorary life member of Plymouth Family Services.

Commencement speaker Bemis is Michigan's chief education officer. As superintendent, he oversees 1.6 million students in 567 public school districts.

Sayles, associate dean of academic affairs at UM-D, graduated from Schoolcraft in 1987, before earning her master's and doctorate from the University of Michigan. She is a Livonia resident.

Two mother-daughter combinations were among those receiving associate's degrees from Schoolcraft. Degrees went to Fay Saleh of Livonia and her daughter, Linda, and to Cheryl Mathiesen of Westland and her daughter, Gloria.

MADD criticizes anti-drinking bill

By Mary Rodrigue
staff writer

A bill that would toughen sanctions against minors caught buying or drinking alcohol is being criticized by Mothers Against Drunk Driving, who said it will restrict prosecution of bars, stores or adults who sell to minors.

But lawmakers, hoping to grab the attention of minors by revoking driving privileges and levying fines, overwhelmingly support Senate Bill 119.

Currently the only penalty for an under-age person trying to purchase or consume alcohol is a civil fine or participation in a substance abuse program. Under SB 119, retailers selling alcohol to minors (an individual must be 21 years old to purchase or consume alcohol in Michigan) would be penalized only if the minor purchasing the product was punished, except in cases where law enforcement agencies deliberately send in the minor to make a purchase.

Minors could have their drivers license revoked for 90 days and up to one year for subsequent infractions. They also would be convicted of a misdemeanor, and be fined from $50 to $500.

A MAJORITY of western Wayne County legislators supported the bill, which awaits action by Gov.

Blanchard to become law.

"It was a fair bill on a complicated topic," said state Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth.

"It deals with the issue from both sides — buying and selling. The system now is forced to penalize only store owners. Now minors and those who buy for them will hopefully think twice."

Law said the bill was prompted by store owners who wanted more enforcement for minors.

"Some of the false identification is very cleverly done. The bill is pretty straightforward. Unless the minor is penalized, the retailer shouldn't be penalized," said Law.

State Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, explained her support by saying "the rules should be equitable for anyone who violates the law."

"We have such a high drug abuse culture in America. Somehow we have to give our young people a message that society can't handle those abuses. Alcohol is one of the cheapest and easiest drugs to get. We have to slow them down."

STATE REPS. John Bennett, D-Redford, and James Kosteva, D-Canton, also supported the bill. Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, did not vote on the bill.

County targets infant mortality

By Wayne Peel
staff writer

Fifteen of every 100 babies born in Wayne County in 1987 died before reaching their first birthday, according to recently released county statistics.

County officials released the figure Monday to promote a county-wide campaign aimed at reducing infant mortality.

Figures show 566 children born in the county during 1987 died before reaching their first birthday. The death rate among newborns hovers near 20 percent in Detroit and near 10 percent in the out-county area.

"We're losing babies at a rate higher than some Third World countries," County Executive Edward McNamara said.

Compounding the problem, officials said, is a rise in the number of babies born with drug-related conditions. County statistics show a 200 percent rise in drug-affected newborns. The figure rose from 162 four years ago, to 364 in 1987. The increase is linked to the rise in crack cocaine use. Statistics for 1988 are still being compiled.

What is frustrating, county officials said, is that health care programs are available to all county mothers and mothers-to-be, regardless of income level.

Programs include the county's "healthy baby service." The program, begun late last year, provides five vans to transport infants and their mothers to county health centers.

A COMPLETE list of county programs is available by calling the county's infant care hotline: 961-

BABY (961-2229).

To promote those programs, McNamara and county commissioner Bernard Kilpatrick, D-Detroit, announced they were forming a task force to promote county pre- and post-natal care programs.

The week of May 8-14 has been declared "Infant Mortality Prevention Week" in Wayne County. McNamara, Kilpatrick and other task force members will be appearing on television and radio shows to promote county child care programs.

Teenagers are among those targeted. Infants born to teenage mothers are particularly at risk, county health director Verne Davis-Anthony said.

Others who will be participating include Lem Barney, MichCon executive and former Detroit Lions football star; Yvette Bing, wife of Bing Steel president and former Detroit Pistons basketball star Dave Bing; and Rev. Edgar Vann, pastor of Detroit's Second Ebenezer Baptist church.

A Mother's Day gospel music concert will be held 7 p.m. Sunday in Masonic Temple, Detroit, to raise money for county infant care programs.

Jobs to be in focus at free S'craft fair

A career opportunity day: "Focus on Your Future" is planned Tuesday, May 16 at Schoolcraft College in Livonia. Admission is free.

The event will include a career fair, job fair, tours and presentations. Individuals will be able to apply for jobs and meet specialists from a variety of occupations.

At the career fair, participants will learn about entry-level jobs, higher education, career skills, salaries and more. They can talk one on one with specialists in a variety of fields.

At the job fair, employers from a variety of businesses will be available to hand out job applications, interview individuals and accept resumes. Employers will be looking for full-time, part-time and summer employees. The job fair will give participants an opportunity to meet directly with employers and to learn more about job opportunities in southeast Michigan.

Tours to the departments of laser optics, computer-aided design, mechanical drafting, electronics and computer service, culinary arts, graphic design, computer operations, robotics, nursing and child care will take place throughout the day.

Students will be able to see a career fashion show and learn about job skills and non traditional jobs. They can participate in a personal occupational search using the Michigan Occupational Information System program.

Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads.

McNamara sets outing

The second annual McNamara's Band golf outing is slated for Friday, May 19, at Warren Valley Golf Course.

Proceeds will benefit the McNamara Charly Fund. Edward McNamara, former longtime Livonia mayor, is Wayne County Executive.

Tickets are $125 and tee off time is 7:30 a.m. or (for late risers) 12:30 p.m. In the event of rain or other weather that would cancel golfing, the fees will be considered a donation. Dinner and entertainment would not be cancelled.

Checks can be mailed to: McNamara Charly Fund, 18278 McNamara Park, Livonia 48152.

PTA lobbies for new image, more power

By James Radebaugh
staff writer

If one clear message came across to local delegates attending the Michigan PTA convention last week it was that PTA members want to change their image.

No longer do they want to be seen as a benign group of mothers who bake cookies for after-school functions. The 800 delegates who converged on the Troy Hilton Hotel last Thursday, Friday and Saturday talked about ways to increase their influence in their communities, on school boards and in the state and federal governments.

Carl Cohen, state PTA president, told delegates Friday that to become more effective local PTA members need to stand up and make themselves heard.

LOCAL PTA GROUPS need to learn to promote themselves by forging stronger ties with their business communities and keeping closer tabs on their boards of education, Cohen said. And they need to broaden their membership.

To do that, Cohen said PTA members will have to update their terminology to reflect an age when men are expected to be more involved in the activities that affect their children.

If Cohen could have his way, the term "room mother," used to describe those volunteers who help out where school staffs fall short, would be banished.

"You cut out 50 percent of your population when you say room mother," Cohen said. "I've never met a man who wants to be called a room mother."

THE PTAs are also encouraging greater involvement by the students themselves. In fact, many PTAs have become PTSAs — parent, teacher, student associations.

Of the 800 delegates at the convention, 20 of them were junior high and high school youth delegates who served in the same capacity as the adult delegates and with equal voting power.

Ken Kalousek, a 16-year-old Livonia Churchill High School student whom the delegates elected student representative to the state PTA board for the 1989-90 school year,

Michigan PTA president Carl Cohen, a Birmingham resident, told delegates at the PTA convention in Troy last week that they need to "change their attitudes" and become more aggressive in promoting their concerns.

Racism conflicts workshop target

By James Radebaugh
staff writer

What does a student feel when confronted with raw bigotry such as that scrawled on a locker or fliers recently posted at a suburban high school?

Anger, hurt and shame are all likely responses, according to Dr. Norman McCrae, a Detroit Public School administrator who conducted a workshop on racism in public schools Saturday at the PTA convention in Troy.

"It depends on who you are and what you know," McCrae said in an interview last week responding to a recent problem at Groves High in Birmingham.

"Some kids might even laugh at it because they're so secure."

Like any black American, McCrae has had his share of brushes with hatred and ignorance. The 63-year-old educator said incidents that happened long ago left scars on his soul.

But the years since he graduated from Saginaw High School in the early 1940s have taught him a sense of security, an understanding that bigotry is a sign of ignorance.

"TODAY IF SOMEBODY called me a nigger, I'd probably just laugh because it shows what they don't know," he said.

McCrae, who holds a doctorate in history from the University of Michigan and has taught elementary school, high school and college during his 35-year career, said that while there are many ways to deal with the problem, communication is his approach.

said he wants to see more students get involved in the PTA.

"It's not just for parents and teachers, and it's not just something that's stupid," he said. "You have to tell (students) that they can get involved and that they can make a difference."

THE DELEGATES began flexing their political clout last Thursday. They adopted resolutions to urge legislation in Lansing to require merchants to keep all tobacco products in areas not accessible to minors, and to require parental approval on moped registration applications.

With PTA membership in Michigan exceeding 80,000 this year, the highest it has been since 1975, the organization has more clout to flex than ever, according to publicity chairman Darcy Kovach.

"That's a pretty strong voice when you go to Lansing and want something pushed," she said.

The delegates also were expected to consider resolutions to lobby the state Legislature to adopt stricter regulations for school buses; to provide money for programs to aid hearing-impaired children; to abolish corporal punishment in private schools; and to promote policies to provide adequate housing for families with children.

SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF GARDEN CITY COUNTY OF WAYNE, MICHIGAN

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The Board of Education of School District of the City of Garden City, County of Wayne, Michigan, will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time, on May 22, 1989, in the office of the Board of Education, Michigan, on the proposed school tax levy for the 1989-90 fiscal year.

Due to anticipated operating costs and in order to fund the School District's proposed operating budget and maintain services, the School District finds it necessary to restore its operating millage levy reduction as permitted by law. Because of an estimated increase in the state equalized value of existing property in the School District, state law (Act 5 of 1982) provides that the base tax rate for 1989 school operating taxes be reduced by 2.3698 mills ($2.3698 per $1,000 SEV) from the 1988 operating tax rate.

Within its authorized millage rate, and as allowed by state law (Act 5 of 1982), the School District proposes to levy an additional millage rate of 2.3698 mills estimated 6.02% increase in School District operating tax revenues. The total number of mills to be levied, including the proposed additional millage rate, would remain within the voter approved and previously authorized millage rate and is the same as the operating millage levied for 1988. The proposed levy will not produce any additional revenues for school operating purposes because increased property tax revenues will be offset by a corresponding reduction in school aid payments. The proposed levy will, however, prevent a reduction in state school aid payments.

The School District has complete authority under state law to establish the number of mills to be levied within its authorized millage rate.

Public comments, oral or written, are welcome at the hearing on the proposed additional millage rate.

It was a day for fun when the Wayne County Park System celebrated its 70th anniversary Saturday. Nichole Exel, 12, of Westland (at left) was a winner in the parks' birthday card contest, earning tickets to a Detroit Tigers baseball game for her efforts. Meanwhile, 4-year-old Steven Nicholas of Livonia (left) and Anna Watkins, 5, of Plymouth battle it out for first place in the parks' Big Wheel race.

Oakwood Vs. Cancer

The role of interventional radiology in the management of cancer

By Kyriakos Demetropoulos, M.D.

Q. What is interventional radiology in reference to cancer management?

A. Interventional radiology uses highly sophisticated imaging devices for the diagnosis and treatment of cancer. The equipment allows the interventional radiologist to "see" what is happening inside the human body to identify problems, and in some cases, to help in the treatment of those problems.

Q. How does it work?

A. Of course it differs from case to case. However, sometimes we inject a dye into the patient to make the cancer visible. This injection may be made through a needle or a small catheter. Following the path of the dye on the imaging equipment allows us to accurately identify the exact location of the problem.

Q. How is it used in the management of cancer?

A. It is valuable in both diagnosing and treating cancer. Specialized guiding techniques are used to locate and remove tissue that is suspected of being cancerous for a biopsy. Sometimes, it is used to shrink tumors, and in some cases it may be helpful in relieving the blockage of an organ.

Q. In addition to diagnostic procedures, how is it used to treat cancer?

A. Of course, every patient is different, but many times interventional radiology is an important part of treatment. For example, it may be used to administer high concentrations of chemicals directly into the cancer site. This allows for higher doses of medication to be given, without the same degree of unpleasant side effects. Another way in which it contributes to the treatment of cancer is a procedure called tumor embolization in which the blood supply that feeds the tumor is blocked. This may kill the tumor, or may cause it to shrink so that an inoperable tumor becomes small enough to be removed surgically. Sometimes tumors bleed, which threatens the life of the patient. In these cases, interventional radiology may be used to stop the bleeding without major surgery, or to help stabilize the patient so he or she will be strong enough for the necessary surgery.

Q. Can interventional radiology cure cancer?

A. In many cases it contributes to the early diagnosis and treatment of cancer. The earlier the cancer is treated, the better the chances for cure. Sometimes, it does not contribute to a cure, but helps relieve suffering and makes life more pleasant for a cancer patient. For example, interventional radiology procedures may be used to drain bile from a diseased liver or unblock an obstructed organ, such as a kidney. In these instances, the treatment does not cure the disease, but it makes the patient more comfortable.

Q. Is it appropriate for all cancer patients?

A. Every patient is a special case and must be evaluated individually by the treating physician and the interventional radiologist. There are many procedures available today and the physicians must select the best mode of treatment for each patient.

Q. Are these procedures safe?

A. Interventional radiology is considered very safe. The patient is awake during the procedure, which eliminates any risks associated with anesthesia. And, it avoids the possible complications of surgery. However, all medical procedures carry some risk. There is always some danger of infection when equipment, even a very small needle or catheter, is put inside the human body. In some cases bleeding may be a risk.

Q. Are these procedures painful?

A. The procedures are not usually painful because they are done under a local anesthesia. The patient remains awake and alert throughout the procedure. The recuperation period is very short.

Q. Who performs interventional radiology procedures?

A. Interventional radiology is a highly technical field, therefore, the doctors who perform it have specialized training and expertise in the effective use of imaging equipment. The interventional radiologist is a consultant, and works closely with the patient's treating physician to achieve the best management of the patient's problem.

Q. How were these problems handled before?

A. Most of these problems were handled by surgery. Today, in many cases, interventional radiology is a safe and effective alternative to surgery. Often, it helps simplify or avoid extensive surgical procedures.

Thousands enjoy bakery tour, treats

Redford resident Adele Maslak and her children, Michelle and Matthew, looked at the desserts in the Thrift Shop after last Sunday's bakery tour.

By Mary Rodrigue
staff writer

They came, they saw, they ate. With an enormous hot air balloon shaped like their trademark Windmill tethered nearby, Awrey Bakeries Inc., Livonia plant played host to 8,321 visitors last Sunday.

The occasion was the company's annual public tour, which has been growing since it began in 1980 — minus 1984 and 1988 when tours were canceled due to construction.

"It was a delightful day. We heard wonderful comments," said Betty Jean Awrey, director of public relations and company spokeswoman.

While thousands came from Livonia and neighboring communities, some families drove in from Mt. Pleasant and Kalamazoo. They had heard Awrey talk about the open house on a Friday afternoon radio talk show.

"There were scout troops, families coming before and after church, people in wheelchairs," she said.

"Other than the cold, it was an absolutely wonderful day. It was a good clean family experience."

Despite unseasonably cold temperatures and blustery winds, people began lining up at 7 a.m. to walk through the plant, located on Farmington Road south of the Jeffries Freeway. Tours began at 8 a.m. and continued to 2 p.m. — an hour past the scheduled time.

"We wanted to accommodate those who were in line at 1 p.m.," Awrey said. "And we had calls to the switchboard from people who wanted to know why we didn't keep it going until 4 p.m., which is the time the thrift store closes. But that's a separate operation."

Visitors walked through the entire baking operation while it was in production, with 100 office workers acting as tour guides and making sure tiny hands steered clear of automated machinery. Awrey said the average wait in line was 30 minutes, and the tour took another 35 minutes.

"We normally produce on Sunday," she said. "The workers loved it. It makes you feel good to show off what you do."

Biscuits, several types of bread, chocolate layer cake and Black Forest torte were in production under the mouthwatering watch of the masses.

"We fed everybody. There were donut samples and everyone got an individually wrapped danish pastry to take home for breakfast Monday," Awrey said. "And there were free samples in the thrift store."

Watching all that baking made visitors hungry, too. The Awrey Hot Oven Shop and Thrift Store adjacent to the bakery rang up $11,000 in sales during the tour.

Group seeks 'dialogue' with advertisers

By Louise Okrutsky
staff writer

After trying to divorce "Married... with Children" from its advertisers, Terry Rakolta's gone on to announce the start of a new group, Americans for Responsible Television.

Its formation comes at a time when a growing number of groups are exerting pressure on television advertisers to quit sponsoring programs with explicit references to sex, drugs and violence.

"I think advertisers are taking a harder look at the end product," Rakolta said.

The Bloomfield Hills resident came to national attention earlier this year for lobbying national firms to pull their advertising from the Fox Network comedy, "Married... with Children." Fox Network continues to air the program.

Since then, other groups had joined in the debate over the content of prime time television. They hadn't really chalked up a victory until last week when ABC abruptly pulled two specials from its lineup at the height of the May ratings period.

Both shows probed sensational topics such as the death of Playboy centerfold Dorothy Stratton and an affair between a stepmother and stepson.

RAKOLTA ARGUES that such programming harms children.

"Sex and violence does sell. But is it in the best interest of the children that watch it?"

"We're in a new era with trash television. We haven't seen the result of it on children."

She supports a return to mandatory family oriented shows during early evening hours.

Her newly formed group continues tactics she used in her campaign to convince advertisers to dump "Married... with Children."

ART's first project is to poll advertisers on written policies regarding the content of television programs.

Membership and fund-raising drives have begun for the organization that Rakolta says cuts across ideological and party lines.

"We want to create an open dialogue between advertisers and our group. We want to give them a different view of programming."

THE GROUP'S taking aim at advertisers instead of story content to circumvent involvement in a debate over First Amendment rights.

"Sponsors are a natural. We don't want laws, we just want to be heard," she said.

They're also concentrating their efforts on network television instead of cable television, the video industry or print media. "These are the public airways. Where do we have to go for free family entertainment?"

Network executives, she said, tend to think in terms of New York and Los Angeles and consider the Midwest, the "flyover group."

"I think the flyover group wants to be heard."

Critics counter that dissatisfied viewers remain free to turn off their televisions. They resent any group, regardless of their intentions, attempting to control television content.

"I resent a small group of people setting the values for a whole country," Rakolta said of the television industry.

Programming "is coming into your home free. You have a right to object. You can turn off the television. But at the point in time you turn the TV off, you're adjudicating a powerful public resource into private hands."

The man who took care of this animal took better care of his tractor.

Burros are generally thought of as beasts of burden. But no beast should have to bear the burden Milton did.

He was adopted more than a year ago under a Federal program to save wild burros from being slaughtered by western ranchers. Ironically, Milton would have been safer in the wild than in the hands of a farmer who treated him worse than a piece of farm equipment.

On February 25, in response to a neighbor's call, Michigan Humane Society investigators found Milton. He was standing in over 14 inches of his own excrement with hooves so overgrown he could barely walk. Milton weighed less than half of what a healthy adult burro should weigh. Doctors worked desperately to administer emergency care. But the attention came too late. Five days after his rescue and just three days after this photo was taken, Milton died. Veterinarians called it the worst case of abuse they had ever seen.

We call it barbaric.

That's why at the Michigan Humane Society we're committed to the fight for stronger legislation and tougher prosecution of animal abuse. And now, during Be Kind To Animals Week (May 7-13), we ask you to make a contribution to help us in that fight. Do it for Milton and for the thousands of other abuse cases we receive each year.

Milton's story is a painfully ironic one. Especially since you've just spent more time thinking about Milton than the man who took care of him ever did.

Thousands of animals are cared for lovingly each year by the Michigan Humane Society. During "Be Kind to Animals Week," won't you help us help them? The Michigan Humane Society is a non-profit organization funded by private contributions. All contributions are tax deductible. Thank you for caring.

Support is scarce for anti-dropout bills

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Its three sponsors are adamant, but bills to suspend the driver's license of high school dropouts and truants are in trouble in a state legislative committee.

"If the sponsors don't have 10 votes, we won't waste the committee's time next week," said House Education Committee chairman William Keith, D-Garden City. The 19-member panel meets at 10:30 Tuesday mornings.

Members from Livonia, Detroit, the Flint area and the Upper Peninsula spoke against the bill, as did a lobbyist for 10 western Wayne County school districts.

House Bills 4234, 4183 and 4184 would require a public school superintendent to report dropouts' and truants' names to the Secretary of State for license suspension, and require license issuance to be dependent on school attendance.

Sponsors are Republican Reps. Philip Hoffman of Horton, Michael Nye of Litchfield and Gerald Law of Plymouth, respectively. Chief supporting group is the Secondary School Principals Association.

JERRY DUNN, lobbyist for the western Wayne school districts, said the superintendents consider the plan a state-mandated service for which they wouldn't be paid, although state reimbursement is required by the constitution.

"There's no provision for an option. The bill says 'A superintendent shall . . . It's one more thing you expect superintendents to do for nothing,'" said Dunn, a former state senator whose clients include South Redford, Livonia and Plymouth-Canton.

"It's a noble idea, but it's the wrong way to attack the problem," said Dunn.

"My superintendent said this was a toothless tiger," added Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, a member of the Education Committee. "In my school district, the dropout rate is 5 percent and usually less than 3 percent. In others, it's 60 percent."

'If the sponsors don't have 10 votes, we won't waste the committee's time.'

— Rep. William Keith
D-Garden City.

Another member, Rep. Claude Trim, R-Waterford, favored the bill, telling Dunn: "The original bill made it mandated policy. This (version) is permissive."

"WE SOMETIMES have to have a hammer," said sponsor Nye. "It (suspending a dropout's license) grabs their attention real quick."

Asked Rep. Nate Jonker, D-Cllo: "I can't think of any research that supports the hammer — just the opposite. Do you have any data?" asked Jonker, a former teacher who called the license bills "negative." Jonker favors mento and alternative education programs to lower dropout rates.

"I have my own experience," replied Nye. "The Vietnam war was a hammer. They (draft-eligible men) were still in law school to avoid the Vietnam war. No one gave them any 'incentive' or 'counseling.' That hammer is gone."

TO LAWMAKERS who blamed dropout problems on kids' emotional, family and alcohol problems, Law of Plymouth replied:

"This legislation isn't written to handle substance abuse and emotional problems. This is one of many tools to motivate kids."

"It won't motivate a kid with a substance abuse problem, but it will have an impact. I've talked to them."

"The bills are geared at school attendance, too. A lot of kids show up every day, but they're attending only a fraction of their classes."

THREE COMMITTEE members attacked the bills as unfair.

"Isn't this holding (kids' licenses) hostage to the classroom?" asked Rep. Gary Randall, R-Elwell.

"There's a double standard, one for those 1618. . ."

Rep. Bart Stupak, D-Menominee, said penalties for a dropout driving on a suspended license are stricter (three days in jail, fine and costs) than for driving without an operator's license.

"This encourages kids not to have a driver's license," said Stupak.

Rep. Joe Young Jr., D-Detroit, said, "This puts pressure to drive without a license and insurance," adding he believes insurance companies would hold a dropout's suspended license against him in setting rates.

West Virginia last year passed a similar law. Preliminary results show the dropout rate is falling and attendance rates rising, according to one supporter.

MADD won't back teen drinking bill

Wolf called the bill "hysterical legislation. (The Legislators) didn't look at what the bill is about. It reduces the liability of the server."

Because of a memo from MADD that crossed her desk, Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, said she voted against the bill.

"I am a strong opponent of drinking and driving, but I thought maybe they saw something in the bill that was wrong. I'm a member of MADD and that's where I took my direction from," Bankes said.

Some House members, including Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, called it an attempt by owners of bars, liquor and grocery stores to make it less likely they would be penalized for selling to minors.

The original bill was approved unanimously by the Senate March 15. The House added amendments and approved the measure 66 to 29.

The Senate approved the revised bill last Tuesday by a vote of 33 yes to 3 no. State Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, whose district includes

Sen. George Hart, D-Dearborn, whose district includes Garden City, stayed with his original yes vote.

Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, voted against the revised bill.

"The Liquor Control Commission had problems with the (House) amendment," said Ron DeCook, a Faust aide.

"Although well-intentioned, the House amendment makes enforcement all the more difficult by adding extra steps and procedures."

AN ANALYSIS from Bruce Timmons, legal counsel for the House Republican Office, to the House Republican Caucus, raised several questions.

"Is it a bill designed by and for bars and retailers to minimize their risks in selling to minors?" Timmons wrote. "Could enforcement restrictions come back to haunt legislators if local law enforcement blames this bill for tying their hands against drinking by minors in bars?"

"Law enforcement's support is more with a sigh of relief than a lot of enthusiasm. An earlier substitute would have gutted undercover operations against bars and stores selling to minors. Senate Bill 119 looks good next to a worse option."

'(It is) hysterical legislation.'

— Sandy Wolf

Sneaky Major issues being covered?

WESTLAND residents are being cheated about knowing how city council members vote.

Residents may also have the wool pulled over their eyes by the method in which city officials prepare agendas for city council business meetings.

Elected officials typically don't want controversy or debate on an unpleasant topic — particularly in an election year like 1989.

While they are required to vote in public, officials have found a neat way to hoodwink the public who may be interested in a specific topic.

The method used — while strictly legal — is ill-intended and should be changed.

The problem — abuse of the city council's consent agenda — surfaced about a year ago and has been worsening in recent months.

The consent agenda is part of the council's twice-a-month business agenda and is valuable because it saves time. The savings is gained by the council using one formal motion to approve a number of non-controversial and routine matters.

IN THE PAST, those matters included proclamations requested by civic organizations, congratulatory certificates to persons being honored, to name a few.

Other city councils use the consent agenda for the same purpose and it does save time in a long business session.

Many council watchers getting agendas in advance of the meetings got into the habit of skipping the consent portion of the agenda and then scanning the balance of the business agenda.

If there was nothing on the business agenda, residents could decide whether to attend the council session or stay home.

Local newspaper reporters who cover council know better and continually flyspeck the consent agenda for major issues.

But a problem has surfaced in recent months with major issues affecting union contracts and property developments sneaking into the consent agenda.

The council seems to be hiding key topics under the consent agenda blanket, reserved for routine and non-controversial matters.

In past years, those issues were clearly identified as separate items on the council agenda.

IN THAT WAY, the public and city employees could make sure that their issues would be debated and voted on.

But there were several examples which flout the concept of the consent agenda.

One was the recent adoption of the Westland Police Officers Association contract, originally on the consent agenda until a protesting councilman asked that it be voted on separately.

On another level, several major property developments have been placed on the consent agenda where officials probably hoped that neighboring homeowners who might oppose the rezoning or site plan may not notice the small print in the consent agenda.

Another political benefit of placing major issues into the consent agenda is that a single roll call vote covers the dozen or so items. If a council member is later challenged on why he/she voted for a specific contract or rezoning, the official would have the perfect alibi and could say:

"Where is the roll call vote showing that I supported the rezoning? It was part of the consent agenda and I didn't want to vote against the Boy Scout Week proclamation."

It's time for the consent agenda to be restricted to the purpose for which it was meant and have legitimate business matters individually identified on the agenda.

Bright lights Academic All-Stars honored

OVER THE past few years, parents have been deluged with bad news about the educational system. From the federal government on down to the local school district, we have been plugged into this tale of gloom.

And it is true that improvements do have to be made. But every year through the Observer & Eccentric All-Star program, the principals of our local high schools sit down to pick this area's best and brightest.

The All-Stars are selected based on grade point average and national college test scores. The tabulation of scores and selection is done by a committee of area high school principals.

You will find in this edition a special insert highlighting the achievements of these students. In addition to being profiled in a special section, the students also receive a dictionary embossed with their name and a special certificate of recognition. This year, 16 students from Observer-area high schools are All-Stars. Twenty-seven others have been named runners-up.

These are youths who are more than just brilliant. They are achievers in many areas of life. And very likely they will be the leaders of tomorrow.

These are the students who prove that through discipline, determination and a lot of hard work that achievement is possible in every school district — no matter how funding is determined.

We hope you join us in congratulating these students in their achievements and wish them luck in their college careers.

Anindya K. Roy of Plymouth Salem High School, Bradd W. Szonye of Stevenson High School, Sarah R. Andrews of Plymouth Salem High School, Jeremy D. Findley of Churchill High School, Alan L. MacNeill of Clarenceville High School, Matthew D. Downer of Stevenson High School, Viet "Tony" Le of John Glenn High School, Erik J. Sunday of Catholic Central, Marc W. Bockrath of North Farmington High School, Lane T. Beatty of Plymouth Canton High School, Anthony A. Mikulec of Catholic Central, John D. Mueller of Bishop Borgess High School, Ajay K. Arora of Farmington High School, James E. Hartnett of Plymouth Canton High School, Yolanda Wu of North Farmington High School and Robert M. Hutchman of Franklin High School.

Teachers They help mold young scholars

TEACHERS do matter, even for the high achievers who seem to excel no matter who is standing up front near the blackboard.

Doubters need only listen to some of the comments from our Academic All-Stars. When asked who provided the major influence for their academic careers, most put their parents and teachers at the top of the list.

"Each of my teachers has contributed in their own way," one Thurston High School senior wrote. "While some pushed me to further my knowledge with text books, others encouraged me to keep an open mind."

A TROY Athens senior planning on a career in medicine — who admitted he wasn't big on writing — talked about an English teacher who showed him the importance of written communication in every profession.

A Livonia Franklin student said it was an athletic coach, strangely enough, who influenced him academically by teaching him to "strive for excellence" whatever the endeavor.

What this tells us is that no matter how we tinker with the educational process, the push to turn out young adults capable of dealing with the problems of the 21st century isn't going to get very far without a continuing cadre of bright, dedicated teachers to lead the way.

Also, with all the talk these days about the growing role of computers and other high-tech gadgetry in the classroom, it's nice to know that the human element still plays perhaps the most important part in shaping young minds.

Stifling free expression

TERRY RAKOLTA is going national.

And from the Hills of Bloomfield to the halls of Plymouth-Canton schools to the skyscrapers of Madison Avenue, rumbblings and chain-rattlings are getting louder.

While Rakolta, the Bloomfield Hills housewife who got piqued when she inadvertently saw an episode of "Married . . . With Children," expands her campaign to have programs that she finds offensive replaced with "family fare," Diane Daskalakis, the Plymouth jewelry store owner, keeps on hunting witches and devils in the Plymouth-Canton school system.

Rakolta and Daskalakis are not the only ones being abetted by the ghosts of Thomas Bowdler, Anthony Comstock and Will Hays. A wave of New Moralism is sweeping the country.

Like all reform movements, this one is sure to get louder and more hostile as the self-appointed arbiters of taste and decency tell the rest of us what is good for us and what is not.

FOLLOWING RAKOLTA'S letter-writing campaign against "Married . . . With Children," several advertisers pulled their commercials from the show. And more advertisers decided to bail out of their sponsorship of "Saturday Night Live," after a fundamentalist group of crusaders operating out of Tupelo, Miss., filed complaints.

The Chrysler Corp. just recently agreed to end its advertising boycott of NBC's "Nightingales" — a boycott brought about by a complaint from the American Nurses Association — after the production company agreed to revise the scripts if the series is renewed.

The advertisers didn't care a whit about the content of the programs in question; they were terrified of a boycott of their products by viewers who could easily have become non-viewers simply by changing the channel.

Television, of course, is not the only target of the new reformers. X-rated videocassettes are coming under fire, too. In Owensboro, Ky., after two individuals and one organization complained to the city manager, Owensboro police "advised" all video store owners to get rid of the adult-only tapes. And not one of the store managers challenged the "advice."

In Decatur, Ga., a similar purge occurred after a law was passed giving prosecutors the power to halt the distribution by wholesalers of videotapes they (the prosecutors) believe to be obscene.

AND IN CHICAGO the board of trustees of the prestigious Art Institute ordered a "re-examination" of the institute's exhibition policy, after two exhibits at the institute's art school set off public protests.

One of the disputed works was a portrait of the late Chicago Mayor Harold Washington wearing women's underwear, the other pictured an American flag draped on the floor. They may have been offensive, but that's beside the point.

Museum officials defended the displays, based on the right of the artists to freedom of expression. But the trustees ordered that a committee be established to, among other things, fashion a policy that "maintains the delicate balance between freedom of expression and community issues."

In other words, freedom of expression is valid only as long as the reformers aren't offended by it.

A GROUP OF eighth graders in Muskegon learned that lesson recently when they spent their lunch hours over a five-month period writing a play that they later performed for their middle school classmates.

The play showed how a group of apathetic and disrespectful students gradually became concerned about the depletion of the ozone layer to become activists, planning a march on Washington. But some fifth and sixth grade teachers were offended by a few of the early scenes, especially one in which a student comments, "This class sucks."

The young playwrights ended up apologizing for and rewriting the offensive scenes. They may not have learned much about freedom of expression from the experience. But they learned a valuable lesson about what to expect in a society in which bowdlerism and Comstockery are on the rise again.

Condo zoning is opposed

To the editor:

At the May 2 Westland Planning Commission meeting, a proposal to rezone property on Cowan Road from single family to condominiums was covered.

After much heated exchange, the Planning Commission, with the exception of Mr. Taylor, concurred with the concerned citizens that the proposal should be denied.

Many comments dealt with the increase in traffic that the condominiums would generate. I don't feel this is the true issue. I'm sure most all of us living in this unique area of Westland would agree that we'd like the property to remain in its undeveloped state.

However, this is unrealistic. If the property is to be developed, it should be done in a manner consistent with the area. Our homes are all custom homes unique and distinctive.

Our lots are large and wooded, retaining many of the original trees. All of us in this area bought here for basically the same reasons — the privacy, and country-type setting. Although there is a market for condominiums, I don't feel this property should be developed in that fashion.

Westland is a diverse community. There are areas yet to be developed where the condominiums would make a positive impact. Our area, however, is not one of them. The issue now must be voted on by the City Council. I strongly urge all families living in this area attend the next City Council meeting on May 15.

If we want to retain the uniqueness that attracted us to this area, we must urge the City Council to deny the proposed rezoning request.

Thanks for taking stand on protest

To the editor:

There have been many times that I have wanted to write to a newspaper columnist just to say "I agree!" This is the first time that I have actually sat down and written.

Jack Gladden's column "The battle's over, but victory remains in doubt" was perfect. His argument was carefully thought out and clearly stated. Will Mr. Dawsey back other minority groups when they take over a building and demand an Arab department? (or Chinese or Vietnamese. . .)

They have as much right to demand half a million dollars as Darrell Dawsey . . . absolutely no right at all. His point to "work for such a goal" instead of making demands is at the heart of all of this. Where will Mr. Dawsey's half million dollars come from? I suspect that other department(s) will suffer.

Thank you for taking a stand. I'm tired of hearing people cry "racist!"

as soon as someone black is accused of something. This standard form of behavior is going to backfire soon. It's not fair to pin a negative label on me just because I choose to live in Livonia and not Detroit.

Pretty soon suburban Detroit will not put up with this anymore. It's just too bad that David Adamany did not show us the way.

Pick up after your own dog

To the editor:

Regarding "Scoops on dog controls" by Judith Berne.

Judith Berne asks in her column what are her choices regarding the dog excrement removal ordinance. In my opinion there is only one choice — pick it up.

My dog and I walk three miles a day. In my pocket I carry my "pooper scooper." A plastic Zip-Lock bag with a plastic fork. It is a simple matter to roll back the Zip-Lock, use your plastic fork to scoop in the poop and the fork, zip it shut. No odor, no mess carry it with you and dispose of it at home.

I have always picked up my dog's do-do. I'm surprised that anyone would even consider leaving it wherever.

If everyone who walked their dog would practice this small common courtesy, we wouldn't need an ordinance on doggie do-do.

Why schools differ

Q: Our educational system is often compared with Japan's educational system. What makes Japan's educational program better than our program, if it indeed is better?

A: This question is more than an educational question, it is a cultural issue. Let's compare cultures and you and other readers can draw your own conclusions.

The school year in Japan is 240 days; in the U.S. 180 days.

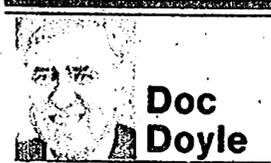

Japanese children attend school 60 more days per year than American students. Note the following simple calculation. If we multiply the 60 extra days per year that Japanese students attend school times 13 years (which includes kindergarten); Japanese students are shown to be in school 780 more days or about 4.2 more years than an American student by the time both the Japanese and American student graduates. Theoretically, one could say that Japanese students have been in a K-12 school experience equal (in terms of time spent in the classroom) to an American student who has graduated from college. Some educational advantages for Japanese students should have occurred if you accept the premise that four extra years of training/education can give a student an edge.

Indeed, if the average American child is coached four more years in tennis or given four more years on the tuba than a peer, he/she should be more proficient assuming both parties are somewhat equal in mental and physical abilities at the outset. Let's look at other areas impacted by cultural beliefs; information extrapolated from the United States Department of Education; Japanese Ministry of Education.

Students: The Japanese student's job is to be a student from kindergarten through 12th grade; no after school jobs, no cars — other than the very wealthy. In the United States many students get a job and car while in high school.

Homework: In Japan, 76% of students spend a minimum of five hours on homework at home per week. In the United States, 35% of students spend five hours or more on homework per week.

Supplementary Help: Juku School: Japanese students who need remedial help or enrichment go to Juku, an after school-school for two or three hours per day, two to three days per week. In the U.S., we have no after school teacher-directed system other than an individual teacher's commitment. Also, can you envision one of our students saying to the band director or coach, "I can't make practice Wednesday or Thursday. I'm going to Juku, but will see you at the game Friday?"

Mothers: Japanese mothers are, by culture and tradition, set aside two hours (plus or minus) per night, to physically and mentally monitor a structured homework setting. In the United States, many mothers are working to keep pace with inflation and the cost of living; running a home, shopping, belonging to organizations, etc.

Teacher's Pay: In Japan, teachers by law must be paid 10 percent more than the top civil servant; a teacher in Japan is a highly respected person. In the U.S., teachers are among average college graduate wage earners; respect has to be earned.

High School Completion Rate: Japan, 90 percent; U.S., 72.7 percent.

Literacy Rate: Japan, 99 percent; U.S., 79.6 percent.

Japan also has "cramming schools," a highly intensified educational learning environment that teaches to a high school entrance test. It is for students to prepare for the "big test" which determines what high school a student attends. High schools are leveled in terms of prestige. Students who score in the top one-third go to a Level I High School considered the best high school in the country. Other students go to schools with state-of-the-art computer laboratories, business and other vocational experiences that lead directly to job placement.

Therefore, Japan has a culture in which a child's main responsibility is to go to school, be respectful, study and learn, attend Juku a couple hours a day if supplementary study is needed, attend school on Saturday, be in school 4.2 more years than American students by graduation, be in a home where the mother's job is to structure the homework environment in preparation for tomorrow's class work, which is in a safe and disciplined environment and where the teacher is one of the most highly respected and paid servants in the culture.

Your Final Exam: If all students in Japan and the U.S. were given the same standardized test, which scores would be higher, Japan or the U.S.?

All this withstanding, I know and believe that the top third of our students will score as high as the top third of the Japanese students on any test. We break down in our educational approach to the "neglected majority," the average of low functioning student, too many of whom are in a historical college-bound curriculum that is frustration to them and to those who teach them. Much more attention should be paid to our industrial arts, (computer aided design technology) and vocational education in general.

And, all this withstanding, we in America always rise to the challenge. In a speech at the Detroit Economic Club, the Japanese president of Sony Corp. said (in essence), "Although our students score higher on tests than your students and our workmanship here receives high marks — name me one thing — anything — we have invented. We did not invent the car, the airplane, the computer. We perfect and are disciplined in our work but America is already closing that gap. We in Japan must nourish creativity over and above our Japanese art, we must teach reasoning skills, logic and higher level thinking. The area that has kept America the world leader."

It appears we could both learn from each other. A good trade would be our creativity and thinking skills for Japan's student, parent and cultural commitment to education.

Messenger is blamed for giving bad news

LET'S ALL close our eyes and pretend it never happened. Then it will go away.

That seems to be the philosophy of school administrators in Birmingham. A rash of racial incidents at Groves High School has been duly covered by the media and school officials have reacted by attacking the messenger and blaming the media for blowing things out of proportion. If we just went away, everything would be OK.

Where have we heard that before?

IN THE American South where the white establishment complained about outside agitators and blamed the media for stirring up trouble. And if the media had gone away, would facilities still be separate and grossly unequal, would blacks still be beaten when they tried to vote, would anything have ever changed?

And why must we repeat what is in these files, the school officials moan. If we don't say what the hate literature says, I guess everyone can pretend that it isn't all that bad. It's true words sting and we can't fairly report the sting without repeating what has been said.

But it's only a small minority of students, they say.

Maybe. Surely only a small minority of students are ever active about anything. The skinhead image is sure to be attractive to only a minority of students excluded from other students in the usual high school pecking order. But that doesn't mean that the attitudes are necessarily representative of just a small minority. Nazis were a small minority in Germany and held power for 15 grotesque years.

Hugh Gallagher

Birmingham school officials haven't learned the lessons of the past.

THE POLARIZATION of the races seems to be growing. A continuing economic disparity, the pervasive influence of drugs in the inner city, the general decline of the city as white-owned businesses move farther away have all contributed to this unsettling atmosphere.

The young pick up on the attitudes of adults and other teenagers. They can feel it. They know how Dad hates to drive into the city anymore, how Mom makes sure all the doors are locked and prays that she doesn't hit a red light when she has to take an unfamiliar city street. They can see the big brick houses and the fresh green lawns of Birmingham and contrast them to the tumble-down condition of the inner city. They know themselves the tension when a group of young blacks approaches, always suggesting danger and maybe even death.

They don't know history, sociology, economics, politics. They've never actually lived in the city. They've never been black. They know everything and nothing at all and that's how Nazis and skinheads and Ku Klux Klanners come to be.

The job of newspapers is to break through all that ignorance, not to hide the truth and hope it goes away. We don't always do a very good job of that. But we cannot ignore the evidence of racial and religious and social bigotry that seems to be growing. For not only blacks but also Jews and Arabs have become targets of bigots.

We don't know enough about bigotry, either. The skinheads are both purveyors of bigotry and victims. Remember, these are the kids who couldn't fit into the accepted social cliques for one reason or another, so they formed their own unacceptable social clique. Kids, you see, are natural bigots, they have to learn it. They always divide themselves, they always create a social hierarchy, they always discriminate. For the skinheads, as for poor whites in the South, blacks are people they can dump on in the way everyone dumps on them.

The school administrators point with pride to their programs to teach racial tolerance. Those programs are fine, but only if they are open to the truth, whatever that truth turns out to be; only if they deal with the basic problem of social elitism that is part of high school life; only if they do not turn a blind eye to the intolerance within and blame the messenger for giving them the bad news.

'School-of-choice' bill passes without debate

By TIM RICHARD
staff writer

Without a word of debate, the Michigan Senate passed a bill allowing parents to choose which school their children will attend. Senate Bill 51 goes next to the House.

The vote was 30-4. Sen. Jack Fax-on, D-Farmington Hills, joined three Detroit senators in opposition.

Sens. Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, and R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, missed the vote.

"School choice is the wave of the future in education," said the sponsor, Sen. Richard Posthumus, R-Lowell, after the vote. He added the bill would "make schools more competitive and improve the brand of education available."

THE BILL, if enacted, will allow parents to choose between school buildings within a district.

There is a formidable hurdle: 25 percent of those voting in the most recent annual school election would have to sign a petition asking for an election on the question.

"From Gov. Blanchard to President Bush, school choice is regarded as one critical step we can take to improve educational quality," Posthumus said.

A Gallup Poll in 1987 showed 68 percent in favor of the right to choose between public school buildings, he said.

The concept was pioneered in Minnesota under Gov. Rudy Perpich. In southeast Michigan, it was pushed by Metropolitan Affairs Corp., a research and idea forum funded by major corporations and unions.

As a state senator, Perpich discovered, while he was serving in St. Paul, that his children were repeating school work they had done in their home town of Duluth.

FAXON SAID the bill was on a fast track, and the roll call was under way before he had a chance to speak. He had two basic objections:

- Suburban parents in effect have schools of choice because the parents chose to live in a particular community. Many school districts — such as Ferndale, Berkley and Novi — have only a single high school, while Farmington and Southfield have only two.

- In Detroit, the system would result in "administrative chaos. The logistics are impossible," he said, citing transportation costs.

Parents who had moved to a desirable neighborhood within Detroit so that their children could attend a particular school, he said, would be irate if suddenly they found their children excluded because others had registered first.

THE BILL could be applied only where a district has two or more schools with the same grade level.

Voters would have to petition for such an election before Jan. 1, 1990. The local board of education must submit the question at the next regular school election.

The plan also would have to explain "how pupil assignment and transfer policies will maintain school district standards of racial and ethnic integration."

'To Mom, with love'

WHAT WOULD the world be without mothers? The Earth probably would be a barren planet. Maybe that's why we've set aside a day in which to honor mothers, young and old alike.

Consider this:
 • Without Mother's Day, the greeting card industry would have to find a substitute for its fourth largest card sending holiday. It's estimated that 150 million Mother's Day cards will be bought this year. Fourteen percent of them will be sent by children under 13 years of age.

• Without mothers, retailers would see their sales dwindle by $1.5 billion. Forty-nine percent of children under 19 years of age give their mothers gifts on Mother's Day, with gifts in the $10-and-under range the most popular ones with the younger set.

• Without mothers, Christmas would stand alone as the biggest gift giving day of the year. Mother's Day is a close second to the yuletide when it comes to passing out presents.

Forget the statistics. Moms are moms. They are a national resource beyond comprehension.

All loving and all caring, they are there when we need them — and even when we don't. Their love knows no bounds and it's unconditional. Whether we're good or bad, they still love us.

So moms, wherever you are, this one's for you.

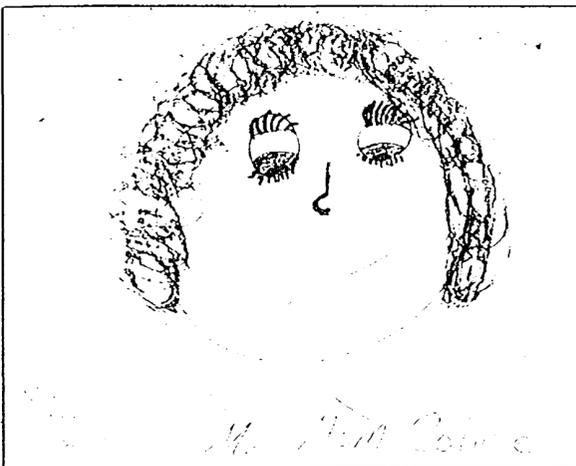

FAYE ADAIR

"My mother is very special. She is my best friend and sometimes, even a sister I never had. You see I have four brothers, so mother and I have shared everything. When I think of my mother, I think of love."

Nettus Osborne,
Westland

MARY ANN RENEDO

"My mother, Mary Ann Renedo, is my very best friend and the most beautiful person I know. And I love her very, very much!"

Denise Roe,
Garden City

NANCY JONES

"My Mom is special because she is always there for us. She is very supportive, loving and caring. She's also the best mom in the world!!!"

Kelli Jones,
Westland

CAROL BUNTING

"Carol Bunting selflessly, cheerfully raised three children and is now caring for her mother. She gave us the important values: hard work, independence, tolerance, compassion. My mom is the anchor of my life!"

Louise Dietrich,
Garden City

THERESA BOUCHER

"She's a very beautiful and special lady, always there for us when we need her, with her wonderful words of wisdom and her loving, comforting ways. We love you."

Brent and Patty Boucher,
Westland

JUANITA SUCHY

"Throughout a year of chemotherapy, surgery and radiation, my mom has continued to sing in our church choir and teach sewing and cake decorating for community education, and all with a bright, cheery disposition. Her positive outlook is truly an inspiration and deserves recognition. Ask anyone who knows her!"

Wanda Rykowski,
Garden City

CONNIE HARRIS

"My mom is special because she tucks me in at night so I can have sweet dreams. She also gives me lots of love."

Miranda Harris,
Westland

"My mom is special because she loves me very much, but it is impossible for her to love me as much as I love her."

Carrie Harris,
Westland

DEBI MERTZ

"My Mom is special. A hard worker, she's nice, talented, pretty, caring. When I need to talk to her, she always understands. You're the best."

Heather Mertz,
Garden City

LEONA WICHTMAN

"Our 94-year-old mom was the firstborn of 13 children, yet has outlived all of them. She loves Las Vegas, playing cards, baking, window shopping and jokes. She'll never grow old."

Jean Hartmann,
Westland
Ginney Klotz,
Garden City
Vince Wichtman,
Plymouth

GWEN PARSONS

"Our mom is a very special lady. She's loving, caring and beautiful in every way. She's the best we could ever have!"

Lisa Parsons,
Gwyn Street,
Westland

BARBARA KNOX

"Thanks for all the beautiful childhood memories that made you not only a special mother, but also our best friend when we became parents ourselves."

Ed, Linda and Carol
MARY McGEARY

"My mom is special to me: M is for Mary, A affectionate, R respectful, Y youthful, M is for McGeary, C caring, G giving, E enjoyable, A ambitious, R responsible, Y being yourself."

Diane Walker,
Garden City

MARGE TOCKSTEIN

"My mom is loving and caring. She has taught me so much about life. I feel lucky to have her as my mom and my friend."

Debbie Tockstein,
Westland

PAULA MORIN

"I just want you to know that you are all I could possibly ask for in a mother. And even though you always threatened to sell me to the gypsies, I still love you. Thanks for believing."

Daughter's bout with leukemia brings out her best

By Peggy Aullno
staff writer

Twenty years ago, Margie Harris was a typical housewife. Husband Don brought home the bacon; Margie stayed home and looked out for their five offspring. When the children got a bit older, she picked up some training and got a job as an office manager.

These days, Harris is typical in that she's part of a two-income family, and with most of the children on their own, she has time to do some quilting.

Between then and now, Harris was faced with the prospect of losing a child to leukemia. She didn't — her oldest daughter beat the illness. But the experience changed the course of her life. And now, unlike most empty-nest mothers, Harris is involved in more programs than the most energetic of PTA presidents.

Her daughter, Julie, whose last name is now Clark, was 17 when she was diagnosed with leukemia in 1976. She had been plagued by a throat infection and a wound on her hand that wouldn't heal.

One Sunday night, when a 102-degree temperature wouldn't break, Julie was taken to the emergency room. The following Tuesday, doctors arrived at a diagnosis.

"She really wasn't expected to survive," Harris said. "It was so new, they didn't have that many people who were living a long period of time."

THE FIRST response on the part of Harris and her husband — who is principal of Johnson Elementary School in Livonia — was denial.

"Of course we were sure they had mixed up the tests," she said.

Reality set in, and the demands of hospital visits were added to the daily tasks associated with raising children and running a household.

"You don't have time to register all of it. We were just going in a thousand different directions," Harris said. "Probably, the busyness kept me from thinking, from reacting."

JULIE, WHO is now a 31-year-old mother of two, said she thinks her mother suffered the most during the ordeal.

"I think it's probably harder for a parent to go through having a child with cancer than the child," she said. "I think it would be so hard to see my children sick like that and not know what the outcome is going to be."

There were times, Harris said, when her strength wavered. One such moment came when she was on the way home from the hospital, sitting in her car at a train crossing.

"I thought, 'I can't take it anymore,'" she said. "So I pulled over and screamed."

The lesson she took away from that incident was "when it hits, let it go."

The Harris family was surrounded with supportive friends and relations. Even strangers pitched in. When the family went to a clinic to donate white blood cells for Julie, they had to wait in line. A man was ahead of them — donating white blood cells for Julie. The donor had responded to a request by the Children's Leukemia Foundation (CLF) of Michigan.

JULIE WAS over the worst of it years ago, but her mother is still settling the score.

"I felt I needed to give back," Harris said. "I probably will never feel I have given back enough."

Today, she is president of the board of directors of the CLF. The service organization is involved with raising money for leukemia research and raising consciousness about the affliction.

In spite of all her volunteer work and a full-time job, Margie Harris still finds time to quilt and is making quilts for each of her five children.

Writing shows determination as a strong trait

Dear Ms. Green,

And you are able to work alone and behind the scenes.

Determination is a strong trait in your personality. You are detail-oriented. Once embarked on a project, you do not give up, but see it through to completion.

You appear to be a spiritual person who derives strength from your traditional background. You are a person who abides by the rules of society and is respectful of people in positions of authority. You are kindly, loyal and have a ready empathy for others. Still you seem to have a need to hold them at arm's length, so to speak.

You use discretion in your interpersonal relationships. And are inclined to make conscious selections as to how and with whom you spend time.

You are aware of correct behavior and tend to monitor yours to be loved and accepted by those who mean the most to you. Few people ever know when you are hurting as you prefer to work out your thoughts in solitude.

Speech, thoughts and actions are at a deliberate pace. You seldom rush or act out in impulse. Cautious by nature, you do not take risks, either. At this time, you appear to have a little concern about something in the future.

Spring 'Stars' in show

THE "LOOK OF Love" was in the air at Wonderland Mall recently and the "look" was the many fashions for everything from casual affairs to weddings.

The spring and bridal fashion show featured a selection of clothing from mall merchants.

It zoomed in on men and women who want to look their best while getting fit and trim for spring activities to start.

With physical fitness styles out of the way, the show switched to casual, carefree clothes for the "smart dresser" who enjoys a leisurely stroll or a casual evening out.

For those with a penchant for the night life, the fashion show highlighted clothing for intimate entertaining at home.

For shoppers with an eye on dressy attire, the show included "just right" outfits for those special occasions.

Capping off the show was the latest in fashions for the bride and groom and their wedding party from the Ultimate Bride and Dobby's Formalwear.

Breathtaking gowns, dazzling headpieces, bridesmaids dresses and tuxedos for the best dressed couples.

The models were members of Wonderland Malls' Fashion Board. Wonderland is at Plymouth and Middlebelt roads in Livonia.

Leslie Robinson, a member of the Wonderland Fashion Board, models a natty nautical number during the mall's recent spring and bridal fashion show.

Ida Mollet was radiant in a gown from Ultimate Bride, located in Montgomery Wards at Wonderland Mall.

Working is her way to say thanks

"There are still people out there who think it's contagious," Harris said, with an air not of exasperation but of determination. "There's so much to be done."

HARRIS IS also a volunteer in a

CLF-sponsored program called Snack Packer. It means visiting cancer patients every couple of weeks at the University of Michigan Hospital and bringing along some fast-food burgers and milk shakes.

"We just provide a little touch with the outside world, give them a break from hospital food," she said. "It feels good."

Then there's her work with the American Red Cross. She is a donor in its pheresis program. Every few weeks she goes in and offers a vein, from which blood is drawn. Platelets are removed, and the blood is pumped back into Harris' arm.

Her most recent undertaking involves bone marrow transplants. No, she's not directly involved in the procedure, but she's part of a committee that seeks donors. This is all on top of her full-time job, managing the office of two Farmington Hills podiatrists.

"She doesn't have to work so hard at it," Julie said. "She doesn't have to, after working all day, go out at night. . . . She still doesn't feel like she's given enough back. She's a neat person."

HARRIS CHALKS it up to her heritage.

"I come from a Scottish/German family. They are workaholics," she said.

And as for the extraordinary situations she was required to face upon the illness of her daughter, Harris is pragmatic.

"If someone had shown me my life, I would have said I can't do that. I'm not strong enough," Harris said. "But you do what you have to do."

Hospice plans bowling benefit

You needn't be a pro bowler, just able to knock the pins down to make Angela Hospice Home Care Inc. happy.

The non-profit, interdenominational organization will hold its second annual bowling benefit from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, June 3, at the Woodland Bowling Center, 33775 Plymouth Road, Livonia.

Participants will bowl three (free games in return for at least 10 pledges of a few cents per pin for the three-game total. Special sheets will record the donor and the amount per pin pledged. Prizes will be given for the most pledges and for high game scores. Participants also will receive gifts.

All pledge money should be turned in to Angela Hospice within two weeks after the benefit.

As part of the benefit, the Stroth Brewery's bowling team will stage a demonstration at noon.

ANGELA HOSPICE also is looking for businesses that will donate $500 to sponsor one of the 32 lanes at the bowling center. In exchange for the donation, the organization will provide a lane banner and complimentary advertising in its literature. Donors also will receive a complimentary thank you plaque, and a special sponsor's plaque will be displayed in the hospice's Livonia office.

Pledge sheets are available by calling Dorothy York at 591-5157. Angela Hospice is owned and operated by the Felician Sisters. It provides a home care program, addressing the psychological, physical and spiritual needs of terminally ill people and their families who live western Wayne County.

For more information about Angela Hospice, call 591-5157. Angela Hospice maintains its offices at 14501 Levan, north of Schoolcraft, Livonia.

Parents train child for a dry night's sleep

When the Wilsons first realized they had a problem, Billy was 5 years old. Now he is 10.

"Don't worry, he'll outgrow it," the doctors kept telling them. That was five years ago.

But Billy was still wetting his bed. He would wake up in a dry bed perhaps two days a week. "Five doctors had tried their best. The family doctor had prescribed some medicine which stopped his bedwetting; but then he had a relapse as soon as the drug was discontinued," says Billy's mother. "Our pediatrician examined Billy and found nothing physically wrong. He referred us to a psychologist whose comment was Billy was a little hyperactive, but not abnormally for his age." An internist and an urologist put Billy through many tests. Nothing seemed to work.

"Over the last 5 years, we felt fortunate if the bed was dry two nights in a row," says the boy's father. "Billy would go to visit someone and spend the night. But he might stay awake the whole time, because he was too embarrassed and did not want to wet the bed."

Then several weeks ago, the Wilsons heard of the Michigan Children's Center. They sent away for the free literature and saw their own son's story being played out. What had hit them hardest was an earlier story that linked bedwetting to a change in personality.

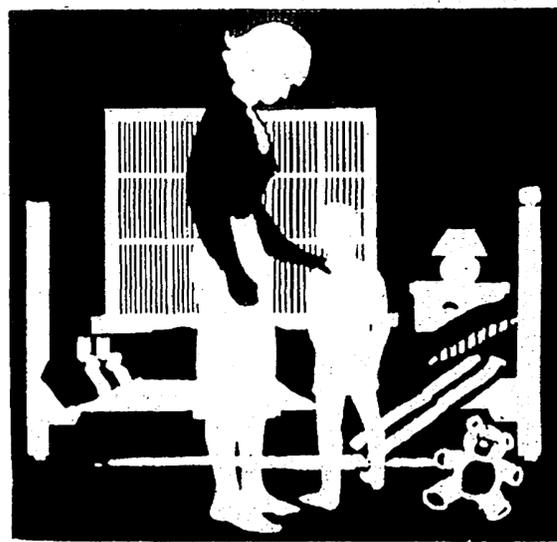

"My son tried to set our cat on fire. That's when I said I am tired of hearing 'don't worry, he'll outgrow it.' Also, I found out bedwetting is harmful physically and emotionally. If bedwetting can be stopped, why should we put our son through such a horrible experience. We did not hesitate when our daughter needed braces. The expenses have nothing to do with it."

Many don't outgrow bedwetting

Bedwetting is not life-threatening, so it's not a disease. But it endangers a child's mental health, so it's more than an inconvenience. Its symptoms are well known, so it can't be called a discovery. It does not fit into any recognizable category as a psychological phenomenon, so it's treated as a physical nuisance: A nuisance that the child hopefully would outgrow.

But children don't always stop bedwetting. One report showed an incidence of 40 percent at three years, 22 percent at five years, 10 percent at ten years and 1 to 2 percent at twenty years of age. Girls do not wet their beds as often as boys. Bedwetting is about twice as common among boys as among girls. In 14 years the Center has successfully treated thousands of bedwetters with an enviable rate of success, and receives a great number of inquiries from adults who still have the problem.

Quite often a doctor will say, "Don't worry, your child will outgrow it." That's because most doctors don't want to worry the parents. And if we look at the statistics between the ages of five and ten, he has a better than fifty-fifty chance to be correct. A history of bedwetting in the family can reduce the chances a child will outgrow it. Also Psychologist Dr. Warren Baller of the University of California at Los Angeles writes, "Evidence accumulated casts doubts that children outgrow bedwetting. Most bedwetters hide their feelings. Shame and embarrassment are their constant companions. Correcting their affliction often produces remarkable results in family relationships, behavior, school work and peer contact."

"To offer a child a reward for accomplishing something while he's asleep, is a no-win situation. It sets him up for failure."

Billy was dry nine weeks after the Wilsons sent for the Center's literature, and eight weeks without a wet bed, they started to notice other changes.

"My son has always been very quiet, very withdrawn. He seldom talks to us. I guess that's because he was teased a lot when someone who'd let him stay at his home let the cat out of the bag," says his father. Today Billy reaches out for affection from his family in a way they've never known. He also appears much more confident and less argumentative.

Harmful physical and emotional effects

Billy follows the pattern of many "nocturnal enuretics" as the condition is medically known. For them, the problem is more than just a "wet sheet nuisance." Unfortunately it's still a closely closeted problem few people are willing to discuss openly let alone seeking help. As a result, socially these children can develop poorly. Their bedwetting problem makes it difficult for them to join the crowd, making friends and learning the skill in a healthy relationship. They live in constant fear of ridicule—that somebody will uncover their problem. Bedwetting is not an accepted thing to do.

The resulting shame from bedwetting during the sensitive age of a child can be devastataccomplishing something when he's sleeping is a no-win situation."

He notes that a 3½ year study at the McGill University in Montreal, Canada concludes that deep sleep, not the child, is the No. 1 cause of bedwetting.

Causes and effects

Bedwetting can cause serious psychological problems in a child if not being looked after quickly. After a while, the child develops some strongly ingrained habits and negative self-expectations which in turn make it even harder to overcome the problem.

Early symptoms of this taking place are: Temper tantrums, putting things off, avoiding responsibilities, afraid to be alone, difficulty in making friends.

Staff psychotherapist at the Center, Arnold Keller says that the worst so-called solution, without a doubt, is for parents to wait for the children to outgrow the problem. Since toilet training points out the difference between right and wrong, clean and dirty, success and failure, bedwetting naturally reinforces negative feelings and can lead to a poor self-image.

"Most bedwetters hide their feelings in shame," says Keller. "They pretend that it doesn't bother them, and they stop talking about it. And when parents don't think it affects the child, and everything seems to be alright, that's when things can become serious."

"The majority of bedwetters don't work to their full potential," he says. "They often have difficulty communicating with their parents because of the guilt associated with bedwetting. One study showed three of every four institutionalized juvenile delinquent were or had been bedwetters."

Fortunately, bedwetting can be corrected in almost every case. The Center enjoys a success rate of over 97 percent of those accepted into the program. Using the Dry Bed Training method pioneered by the Center over the past 14 years, parents can stop their child's bedwetting problem right in the privacy of their own home.

ing. Often hostility, resentment and feelings of rejection or anti-social traits can carry over into adulthood.

"Our success goes beyond just stopping bedwetting," says case director, Adrienne Cline-Smith, R.N., B.S., of the Children's Center. "Most parents tell us that their children are happier with themselves. The children like themselves more and so do their parents. A child who likes and respects himself is more capable of liking and respecting others."

"A tremendous amount of stress is removed from the whole family. Often they weren't even aware it was related to bedwetting. Parents often find a great behavior and attitude change in the child."

"Schoolwork often improves and so does the child's attention span and concentration. These are some real, positive benefits from stopping bedwetting."

The concerned parent

Bedwetting can leave emotional problems both on children and on parents if the problem isn't treated quickly and corrected before attending school. "So the majority of our inquiries come from parents of pre-school children looking for a solution prior to starting school."

Some parents try rewarding their children for a dry night or scolding them when bedwetting occurs. But Cline-Smith says, "To offer a child a reward for

Police chaplain: It's a lonely job

By Julie Brown
staff writer

A police chaplain's work is never done. At times, the job can be a lonely one.

"We're like the Maytag repairman sitting by the telephone," said Paul Frederick, chairman of the Chaplain Corps for the Michigan State Police. Chaplains go out with the tools of their trade, serving as part of "God's SWAT team."

Frederick is a financial consultant for Thomson McKinnon Securities Inc. in Lansing. He's also an ordained United Methodist minister.

"I live in Lansing," Frederick said with a smile. "That's really why I got elected chairman of the Chaplain Corps."

He was in Canton Friday, May 5, for a Michigan Police Chaplains Association training seminar, hosted by the Canton Department of Public Safety. Frederick and Gene Hoekwater, from the executive division of the Michigan State Police, discussed the state police chaplain program.

STATE POLICE chaplains serve without pay, although they are reimbursed for their expenses. Even so, many pay expenses from their own pockets.

When Frederick started working as a chaplain, the district commander ignored his presence. A subsequent assignment in the Upper Peninsula was with a district commander more receptive to a chaplain's presence.

"He understood the power of faith and what it can mean in a person's life," Frederick said.

A subsequent assignment in the metro Detroit area was once again with a commander not interested in a chaplain's presence. About three years ago, Frederick started working with young men and women at the training academy for the state police, an assignment he finds rewarding.

"It's a very necessary part of their training." Going through that training is stressful, the future troopers need to learn how to handle stress.

Frederick provides counseling and gives lectures during each 18-week training session. His first lecture, on how to handle stress, is followed by a lecture on deadly force, "how do you handle a Christian wearing a revolver and using that piece on somebody's life?"

His final lecture at the academy is on morality.

POLICE CHAPLAINS have important work to do in reminding officers that most people aren't law-breakers or troublemakers.

"We have got to remind them that 95 percent of the people are fantastic," Frederick said. Chaplains provide a voice of sanity, and remind officers they're not alone.

Frederick was one of several speakers at the Michigan Police Chaplains Association seminar. A total of 32 people attended the semi-annual seminar, said Tom Kellman, one of Canton's police chaplains.

Participants were from Southfield, Detroit, Inkster, Warren, Farmington Hills and a number of outstate communities in Michigan. Two participants from Minneapolis, Minn., attended, he said.

"It's a clearinghouse for ideas and encouragement." Sharing ideas is the most important part of the meetings.

Participants filled out a survey form, indicating such concerns as lack of training. By working together, association members can address those concerns more effectively, Kellman said.

Kellman also works as a chaplain at the Washtenaw Police Academy. He and Phil Ludos, academy director, presented a session on their work at the academy.

A session on Canton's police chaplain program was included, with John Santomauro, Canton's director of public safety, and others speaking to the group.

CANTON'S TWO police chaplains assist officers in a variety of areas; both are employed elsewhere and are paid $1 a year each for their service as chaplains.

Wayne Byrum, one of Canton's police chaplains, was impressed with the meeting.

"I think it's fantastic," he said. "It's something we need more of."

Sharing ideas helps chaplains learn how to minister effectively to officers and to crime and accident victims. Chaplains need to be willing to spend time with officers, Byrum said. Both he and Kellman spend many hours riding with officers on patrol.

Canton's program has been well-received by the officers, Byrum said; that's demonstrated by the situations in which the chaplains are called.

"They have seen that we genuinely care about them as individuals, as officers."

Thomas Yack, Canton Township supervisor, had words of praise for the police chaplain program, which has been in place for more than two years in Canton.

"The average citizen wouldn't even know it exists and that's probably OK," Yack said. Crime victims and accident victims, however, appreciate the work done by the chaplains.

John Santomauro welcomes participants to the Michigan Police Chaplains Association seminar in Canton. Santomauro is director of the Canton Department of Public Safety.

How long can we afford to ignore sexism in life?

The traffic jams in Oakland County are miles removed from the dangerous jogging paths of New York City's Central Park. However, despite geographical distance, the two became joined for me the other day, if only for a moment.

You have no doubt read of the recent rape that was perpetrated on a female jogger in Central Park. A group of teens decided to "get us a girl." They didn't really care who the woman was. After all, they would only be using her for a short time. And they did. And she is comatose in a hospital with a bleak prognosis.

Back here in the Oakland County traffic jam, the incident was not nearly so violent or devastating. But there may well have been a common denominator.

On the face of it, this incident seemed fairly innocent: Young woman in vehicle A gets honked at by "red-blooded" young men in vehicle B.

However, to the chagrin of the young studs in their Bronco, the woman in question ignored them. Perhaps that is why one of them left vehicle B and proceeded to knock on the window of the now frightened and annoyed woman in vehicle A.

One could say that it caused no problem since the young man returned to his buddy and the two had a good laugh before the traffic jam loosened its grip.

BUT CAN we really say that no harm was done? Ask the question of the woman who also moved forward in traffic, shaken emotionally even if she was physically intact.

A number of commentators, both in New York and across the country, have expressed their rage over the Central Park assault. While not much will be said about the incident on 12 Mile, the two incidents do share a common root.

Those who are assessing the New York deed have pointed to rowdiness as well as racism in search of an explanation. Others have written of "this generation" being the root of the problem.

WHILE ANY or all of these may well contribute to the violent crimes perpetrated on women, another element may well have been as much at work in Central Park as here in Michigan. No one has spoken of sexism in the many columns in the wake of the gang rape in the park.

"Let's get us a girl" seems very much to have been as much on the minds of the guys in vehicle B as in the minds of the park marauders.

Translated, this amounts to seeing women as things. Only the level remains the same.

Perhaps, we need to ask whether we can have it both ways. We have grown accustomed to pretty girls being the props for selling everything from automobiles and tools to whiskey and wine. Pornography, most of which is exploitive, is referred to in sophisticated language as "adult."

Network television is gaining on the heels of cable in presenting the female of the species as something to be toyed with rather than someone to relate to.

RACISM MAY be frowned on in some circles (though by no means eradicated). Sexism, however, is too often something to be winked at. "Boys will be boys."

But can we continue to wink at the sexism in vehicle B, toying with the woman in vehicle A? Can we continue to ogle at sexism in the movies, and ignore the sexism in advertising without having to reel in horror from time to time when it spills over in the form of violence in the park?

A rose is a rose is a rose.

The Rev. Robert Schaden is with the Newman House campus ministry at Schoolcraft Community College in Livonia.

St. Andrew Church welcomes minister

Members of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church have rolled out the red carpet to welcome their new rector, The Rev. Robert Clapp, who will conduct his first official services at 5 p.m. Saturday, May 13, at the Livonia church.

Clapp joins St. Andrew's after a six-year ministry at St. Peter's By the Sea in Sitka, Alaska. He replaces the Rev. Kenneth G. Davis who accepted a call to minister at the Church of the Advent in Orchard Lake more than a year ago.

Married, he and his wife, Pat, have three daughters.

Clapp received his bachelor of arts degree in economics from California State University-Los Angeles in 1963 and a master of public administration from the University of Southern California in 1974. He graduated from the Episcopal Theological School in Claremont, Calif., in 1979.

While working on his various degrees, he served as a sheriff's deputy and as an instructor and lecturer at Pasadena College. He began his ministry as a non-stipendiary priest in 1979, becoming a rector in Sitka in 1983.

Clapp is active in the Episcopal Renewal Ministries, the Evangelical and Catholic Mission and the National Organization of Episcopalians for Life.

At St. Andrew's, he plans to conduct regular Sunday evening prayer and praise services in addition to the Holy Eucharist four times a week. He also plans to begin a special prayer group dedicated to lifting up the church during its transitional time.

Mate selection has roots in human evolution

Sex differences in human mate selection are virtually universal and probably rooted in human evolutionary history.

That's the conclusion of an extensive worldwide study of human mate preferences conducted by David Buss, an associate professor of psychology at the University of Michigan and director of the International Mate Selection Project, an international consortium of 50 scientists who carried out parallel studies.

Buss and his colleagues asked respondents from 37 cultures in 33 countries to rate how desirable each of 31 characteristics were in a potential mate. Buss found two major clusters of sex differences in nearly every culture.

"Men worldwide place greater value on mates who are young and physically attractive; women prefer men who are somewhat older, have good financial prospects and are ambitious and industrious," Buss said. "These basic differences were found in samples ranging from coast-dwelling Australians to urban Brazilians to rural Zulus in South Africa."

"Both men and women from all cultures value kindness and intelligence in mates more highly than they value income or physical appearance."

But why are the sex differences so pervasive across cultures?

According to Buss, men and women have encountered "very different constraints on reproduction" in their evolutionary past.

WOMEN HAVE been constrained by their ability to obtain resources — food, shelter, territory and protection — for their offspring. Men, on the other hand, have been limited in reproduction by their access to fertile females. Youth and physical appearance provide perhaps the strongest, or the most apparent, indicators of fertility, Buss said.

"When I first found these sex differences in samples within the United States, people were skeptical that they would be found across cultures," he said. "I was skeptical as well, but after the data from 37 cultures was analyzed statistically, I was surprised at how pervasive the sex differences were."

Although the sex differences were nearly universal in these samples, Buss emphasized that the size of the difference varied greatly from culture to culture.

For example, men in the western Europe and North American samples preferred mates who were one or two years younger, while male samples from Greece, Iran, Colombia and Bulgaria generally preferred mates who were three or four years younger. Men in the Nigerian and Zambian samples preferred mates six or seven years younger.

Cultures also varied on how much value women placed on earning potential. Using a rating scale of zero (unimportant) to three (indispensable), Buss found that women from Indonesia (2.5), Nigeria (2.3) and Zambia (2.3) placed greater value on earning potential, while samples of women from the South African Zulu (1.1), the Netherlands (0.69) and Britain (0.67) placed the lowest values on it. American women gave it a 1.96 value.

BUSS ALSO found a great cross-cultural variability in how much respondents valued chastity in a potential mate — a characteristic he had predicted men would value more than women.

"I expected this because, from an evolutionary perspective — men would benefit reproductively by acting to ensure their paternity in offspring," Buss said. "That is that they were contributing to the care of their own children. Maternity, of course, never is in doubt."

However, in only 28 of 27 cultures did men value chastity more than women, and in no sample did women value chastity in mates more than men.

Cultures also varied tremendously in the absolute value that both sexes placed on chastity. Samples from China, India, Indonesia, Iran, Taiwan and Israel (Palestinian Arabs only) attached a high value to chastity in a mate.

At the opposite extreme, samples from Sweden, Norway, Finland, the Netherlands, West Germany and France indicated that prior sexual experience is irrelevant or unimportant in a potential mate.

"Overall, men and women do pursue somewhat different reproductive strategies," Buss said. "As Darwin noted more than a century ago, 'no one disputes that the bull differs in disposition from the cow, the wild boar from the sow, the stallion from the mare.'"

"This study confirms that there are characteristic differences in the disposition of men and women in our species as well."

Changes in sleep patterns are part of aging

Dear Jo:

The older I get (I'm 67), the less I sleep. I lie in bed for what seems like hours — wide awake. Isn't poor sleep a sign of poor health in an older person?

Mr. T.R. Windsor Senior

Dear Mr. R.:

Changes in sleep patterns, to a great extent, are a natural part of the aging process and usually prove to be nothing to worry about.

Looking at the developmental life process, age is one of the most important factors affecting sleep. Infants usually sleep 18 or more hours a day and it isn't until the early teens that sleep patterns approximate those of adults.

The next major change appears after age 60. Sleep becomes increasingly fragmented and there is a tendency to wake up more often, not only for longer periods during the night but also earlier in the morning.

Sleep is less deep and almost any noise inside or outside the house is heard. The amount of time spent in bed is probably the same while the actual time spent asleep lessens to about 6.5 hours a night.

So, to answer your question Mr. R., no, generally, poor sleep is not a sign of poor health in an older person.

gerontology
A. Jolayne Farrell

Here are some practical steps that you can take to improve your chances of getting a good night's sleep:

Sleep in a bedroom that is dark with the temperature somewhere between 60 and 65. The mattress should be firm and the bed well made.

Gear yourself down before going to bed; read a book; listen to soothing music; take a warm relaxing bath. Avoid strenuous exercise within a couple of hours of bedtime.

Avoid drinking coffee or tea after the dinner hour, beverages containing caffeine can keep you awake.

Avoid drinking alcohol. It will help you fall asleep, but the sleep will be unsettled. Generally you will awaken in a few hours and may not be able to go back to sleep.

Avoid cigarettes in the evening. Nicotine is a stimulant.

Establish a regular sleep schedule including a consistent time for going to bed and getting up in the morning.

If you can't fall asleep within 20 to 30 minutes, get out of bed and return when you are sleepy.

Mr. R., if you think that your sleep problems are more extensive than those associated with aging, you should consult your doctor.

Tenants of strip malls cater to shoppers short on time and often are able to survive on business generated at the strip center regardless of similar shops nearby.

Strip malls capitalize on convenience

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

Coming soon to a strip mall near you: A video rental store, dry cleaners, frozen yogurt shop and card store. It's coming, that is, if you don't already have a cluster of stores down the road where you can pick up a movie, drop off a soiled suit, eat frozen yogurt and buy a greeting card.

Then again, even if there is one close by, developers seem to think that when it comes to strip malls, more is better.

Why open a store on one corner when someone is selling the same sort of goods or services a mile down the street?

"It's reflective of the need for more convenience and people having less time today," said Phil Cody, vice president of Lakritz-Weber and Co., a Southfield real estate firm that specializes in shopping centers.

"If you can drive a half mile versus a mile from your house, you will do it," Cody said. "People just don't have the time."

Cody is responsible for leasing the 70,000-square-foot Woodland Square center that's set to open this month on Plymouth Road near Middlebelt in Livonia. Unlike smaller strip malls, Woodland Square will feature a large anchor store that is not of the video/frozen yogurt variety.

Sports Giant, a new division of the K mart Corp. that sells sporting goods, will occupy 50,000 square feet of the center. There will also be a Waldenbooks store and about 10 other retail outlets.

"We are not treating ourselves as a neighborhood shopping center or a convenience center, at all," Cody said.

Laurel Park, with its 200,000 square feet of retail space, is looking at a summer opening. With Jacobson's as its anchor, Schostak Brothers & Co. have been attempting to sign name merchants in an effort to draw customers from as far away as Ann Arbor.

IN CANTON, a larger center, and one that will also have bigger, "more upscale" stores, is partially opened at Ford and Lilley roads. A Great Scott and Richardson's drug store are doing business at Canton Corners, and they will be joined by Pier

One Imports, Drapery Boutique and Dearborn Music.

"We have got our share of uniqueness," said Henry Moses, the agent for Canton Corners. "I expect they will all do well."

That uniqueness wasn't by design, he said.

"We have no preconceived notion of what the center should be. We just more or less take what comes down the pike," Moses said.

Moses provided an explanation for the abundance of similar shops in every strip mall.

"It happens because certain types of businesses — like card shops and cleaners — they look at the size of the center and say, 'Can I live off the traffic coming to that center?' If the answer is yes, they don't care if there's one right across the street," he said.

Moses is handling another new center in Canton, which will more closely resemble the many strip malls that have proliferated in the township. But this one is along Michigan Avenue, which has yet to see the burst of development that has

Real estate auctions called wave of future

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

While only a few people are able to compete in the bidding for a genuine Vincent Van Gogh painting, many have spent a Saturday morning trying to get a good deal on an antique rocking chair or some Depression glass.

But to someone in the market for a house, the idea of purchasing living quarters at an auction might seem about as likely as having the original "Starry Night" hanging in the living room.

Real estate auctions may be foreign to the average house buyer or seller, but two area businessmen call it the wave of the future.

"I really feel it's the up and coming method of marketing real estate," said Dave Mitz, executive vice president of Bankers Real Estate Outlet in Livonia. The company auctioned off more than 1,200 houses nationwide last year.

But Michigan is lagging behind the rest of the country when it comes to real estate auctions, said auctioneer John Whalen.

"It's something new, and people are afraid of it," said Whalen. Whalen Auction Service, which consists of the auctioneer and his wife, has handled four residential auctions.

Both the big guy and the little guy are convinced real estate auctions work — whether one is trying to buy or sell a house.

BUT REALTORS say if the concept was everything it's cracked up to be they would have been out of business long ago.

"I don't feel it's a threat at all," said Eric J. Hunt, president of the Western Wayne/Oakland County Board of Realtors.

In some aspects, the auction process is similar to the traditional manner in which houses are sold. An advertising campaign is mounted through newspapers, trade publications and direct mailing. Open houses are scheduled and potential buyers are able to have the property inspected.

The major difference is that rather than the seller or agent establishing a price, it is the buyer — through competitive bidding — who determines the market value of the house. That's the same system used for setting the "blue book" prices of used cars, Whalen said.

Hunt disagrees with that definition of market value in the real estate industry.

"The market value of a home is the price that a property would bring if exposed to the open market for a reasonable length of time in which you are not a distressed buyer or seller," Hunt said. "At an auction, you certainly cannot obtain the optimum amount for the seller."

Mitz has his own opinion on how to arrive at the market value.

"(At an auction) the property will set its true value because basically the price of real estate is what we can get somebody to pay for it," Mitz said.

Mitz and Whalen say their buyers are informed shoppers who only bid as high as a house is worth.

"If we get 20 people at an auction, we have 20 good heads who have appraised the property," Whalen said.

Going once...

Rubbing your nose or scratching your head won't make you the unwilling purchaser of a radio for which they stopped making parts in the 1930s.

That sort of auction nightmare is the stuff of situation comedies, and no auctioneer worth his gavel would accept a scratch as a bid, said John Whalen.

Whalen, who in the 10 years he's been a part-time auctioneer has sold "everything from horses to commercial buildings," said it's easy to tell when a bidder means business.

"If people are bidding they are making eye contact, and their eyes are as big as golf balls," he said during a recent interview.

An auctioneer's job is to keep track of bids and bidders, but in the process he or she learns a bit about the human psyche.

"We are all competitive people. In an auction you bring that out," Whalen said. "There's you and somebody else that's challenging you in a competitive way, saying, 'I've got more money than you've got.'"

Kathy Whalen, the auctioneer's wife and business associate, added: "Sometimes the personal takes over. It's not that they want that chair, they don't want so-and-so to have it."

WHALEN AUCTION Service draws an average of 150 people to its auctions. Some of the patrons are regulars who take it upon themselves to help make sure no one steals merchandise.

"Sometimes when I send out my mailing list, I feel like I'm inviting friends," Kathy Whalen said.

Whalen learned to be an auctioneer at a three-week course in a school in Indiana. The class work included practicing tongue twisters such as "A big black bug bit a big black bear."

There's a lot more to auctioneering than being able to keep up that sing-song patter. The Whalens had to learn the ins and outs of printing and advertising. Their duties also include doing inventory, checking local ordinances to be sure they obtain required permits and perhaps doing research on antiques so they can be marketed properly.

Whalen was recently elected to the board of directors of the Michigan State Auctioneers Association. But, until a decade ago, he didn't even know the definition of the word "auctioneer."

That changed when the couple moved from Livonia, where Whalen was born and raised, to Salem Township in Washtenaw County. There were plenty of auctions in that rural area, which is just west of Plymouth Township, and Whalen's first exposure left him curious about the concept.

Though much of his spare time is devoted to the auction business, he has kept his full-time job, driving trucks for Foodland in Livonia. When he's not preparing for or holding an auction, he said he is likely to be off at a seminar sharpening his skills.

WHALEN, 51, plans on specializing in real estate auctions, but these days the company mostly handles household and estate auctions as well as business liquidations. Whalen also does the annual Red Wings auction, in which the proceeds go to the Easter Seals Society. And he has been hired by area police departments to auction surplus equipment and lost-and-found items.

Whalen's fee is a percentage of what is sold. The percentage varies, depending on the value of the merchandise.

Whalen cautions those attending an auction to inspect the merchandise before the bidding starts; decide what they believe an item is worth and don't go above that limit; and don't be afraid to ask questions of the auctioneer.

"People would leave happier if they did that," he said.

Strip malls emphasize shopping convenience taken place along Ford Road and other main thoroughfares. Called Sheldon Corners, it is 7,500 square feet and will house a hair salon and possibly a doughnut shop and karate school. Retailers who choose to locate in that area will have little competition — at least for the time being.

"I'm sure that Michigan Avenue from (Interstate) 275 west will develop fairly rapidly over the next two or three years," Moses said.

A mini mall, which includes a TCBY yogurt store, opened late last year at the intersection where Canton Center meets Sheldon Center, and another strip mall is ready for leasing further north on the east side of Sheldon Center.

UNLIKE CANTON, most cities and townships in the area have little commercial land that has not been developed. But the precious space that remains is more often than not being eyed by those responsible for creating strip malls.

Canton's neighbor to the east, Westland, has plenty of commercial space on Ford and Wayne roads, but it is "pretty much filled up," said Douglas Tredinnick, a city planner.

A small strip mall is being built on the south side of Warren, west of Wayne, and Independence Carpet opened a new building on Wayne south of Ford recently.

There is little room for any more commercial development in Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Township or Redford, officials said.

The 98,000-square-foot Garden City Town Center, which is going to be built at Ford and Middlebelt, is "the biggest development Garden City has ever seen at one time," said Terry Carroll, community development director. But he said the city's commercial land is 90 percent developed, so most changes in retail establishments will be the result of rehabilitating existing buildings.

Plymouth and Plymouth Township are also running out of commercial space, though there could be "some movement in the direction" of Five Mile and Sheldon and Beck and Five Mile, according to James Anulewicz, the township's planning director.

"The commercial market is there.

"The buyer has a much better idea of what the property is worth. He's using the aid of the other people at the auction."

BOTH MEN say one of the biggest benefits to the seller is that when the auction is scheduled for a particular date, he or she knows the house will be sold that day.

Hunt is skeptical that a seller could be guaranteed to get a satisfactory price on a specific day. He said the seller might have to compromise on price, go through another auction or hire a Realtor anyway to get the true value for the house.

Sellers have the option of setting a minimum price for the house they put on the auction block and can pull out if none of the bids is adequate. Mitz and Whalen say in the vast majority of cases, the house is sold on the appointed date.

Bankers Real Estate Outlet handles auctions for banks, mortgage companies and the federal government. Those organizations might take a low bid on one piece of property, knowing it can make up the difference with another house.

In Whalen's business, there isn't as much leeway because an individual seller has a higher stake in the property. He once had a man back out of the deal — because response to the auction was greater than he'd anticipated.

The homeowner told Whalen he wanted to get at least $60,000 for the house. But when he saw the crowd at the auction and the bids quickly got up to $68,000, he told Whalen he wanted $90,000.

"He apparently had the feeling that, 'Hey, I got something here that's worth a lot more money. I better hold on to it,'" Whalen said.

The Northville house is still on the market two years later, Whalen said.

"I've seen it happen so many times. Houses linger in the market"

Autos heading toward 'normal' downturn

The other day I was invited to discuss the recent spate of record quarters reported by the U.S. auto industry at one of those weekly news seminars on local television.

Explaining the significance of record auto profits normally is one of those subjects I avoid discussing in mixed company, just as I avoid predicting who the next chairman of General Motors will be. Regardless, like most print journalists with an ego problem, given an opportunity to be on television, I relented and offered my expertise.

Then I rushed to the library to look up the latest auto financial statements.

Ignorance alone never stopped me from offering my opinion. The main reason I never comment on record auto profits is because it is a subject complex enough to support nearly any half-as-... On further thought, maybe it is my kind of topic. But I digress.

The combined total of $3.54 billion in Big Three earnings did, in fact set an earnings record of sorts for a single quarter, if you ignore the current low state of the dollar, inflationary adjustment, and Chrysler's acquisition of AMC — some of the factors that make "records" inevitable as long as the economy doesn't slow down.

Dan McCosh

The next piece of information quickly offered by managements looking over their shoulders at United Auto Workers contract negotiations is that profits as a percentage of sales (also near-record levels) aren't so hot. Then they go on to warn, like Diana Ross, that good times won't last forever.

MOST OF THIS I tend to ignore as more or less standard balance sheet blather. I also ignore other quirks common to major U.S. corporations, such as discovering in the fine print that if all the current lawsuits go against them, the settlements exceed the corporate net worth. Or how the pension fund isn't really funded. It never is.

In fact, other than noting that these are pretty good times in the auto business, there isn't much to say about record profits.

Still, it seems kind of weird that a reasonable approximation of prosperity continues in an industry town that is more accustomed to heart-stopping business ups and downs.

This despite the fact that if you keep whistling away the gloom based on trade figures, national debt and the pending reformation of the European Economic Community, there is an argument that it should be a good time for the car business.

Baby boomers are just getting in their stride as consumers, keep having families and discovering why their fathers bought Oldsmobiles. Employment is high, as is consumer spending. In an odd kind of way, the strongest argument that a recession is just around the corner is that there hasn't been one recently. This is the kind of thinking that would have had us fighting World War VI by now if it was pursued by the defense department.

In fact, the auto industry hasn't had a "normal" downturn since the end of World War II. Instead, there have been a series of shocks precipitated by modern events: postwar worldwide industrialization, the oil crisis, environmental legislation, changes in world currency, etc.

Today, energy costs are rising, but slowly; the dollar is gaining strength, but not rapidly; interest rates are bouncing around, and most domestic car lines are as competitive as they have ever been against import competition.

That's pretty dull stuff for television. But all I could say was that with auto sales softening, along with production schedules, we seem to be heading into the rarest economic event of all — a "normal" business downturn, like they tell you about in business school.

Every product reaches maturity

By Mary DiPaolo
special writer

Market maturity represents the stage during an industry's product life cycle when sales level off and the competition is the toughest.

Many competitors have entered the market in the battle for profits and are very aggressive. Generally speaking, profits fall during this stage because promotion costs keep increasing as some competitors cut prices to attract business. Even during market maturity, new competitors can arrive on the scene in hopes of capturing valuable market share.

To compete effectively, persuasive promotion appeals are critical because the industry's products or services differ only slightly, if at all. Distribution methods also become more intense during this stage in order for the products or service to remain available to potential customers.

To boost sales during this stage, many companies improve their product or service for the same or a different customer market — and let it start off on a different cycle. They may also withdraw or phase out focus: small business

their product before the next life cycle stage (market decline) sets in. Examples of product industries now in the market maturity stage include most groceries, cosmetics and household appliances.

MARKET DECLINE is one stage that most companies try to avoid. During market decline, new products replace the old. Price competition from dying products may become more vigorous, but it's the strongest brands that usually generate some profit until the end. To minimize losses during this stage, many companies pursue a "phase out" strategy. This may involve selective ordering so that production can end with a minimum of unused inventory.

It may also mean shifting the sales force to other jobs or laying them off. Advertising and other promotional efforts may be canceled because there is no point in promoting for the long run any more. Such actions will influence company morale if little or nothing is done to prepare employees and suppliers for the phaseout.

As new products replace those that have been eliminated, the product life starts over again. But developing a new product demands much time and talent — and still the risks and costs of failure are high. As product life cycle analysis is a process used to describe and evaluate industry success over the long term, so are the activities associated with new product development. The five-step process through which any new product moves includes idea generation, screening, idea evaluation, development and commercialization.

Next week, we will discuss this process in more detail as it pertains to both industrial and consumer markets.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Chamber Perspectives."

Medicare surtax gets steeper

By Sid Mittra
special writer

Medicare tax is scaring all of us. There is a good reason for this. It hits those directly who are least able to bear the burden.

Take a look at the accompanying table, developed by Howard Sachs of IM&R. It shows that the maximum Medicare surtax can be as high as 32.2 percent.

Another reason for the scare: This year, those subject to the Medicare surtax are paying at a Medicare supplemental premium rate of $22.50 per $150 of federal income tax liability.

In 1990, this rate increases by a dramatic 67 percent to $37.50 per $150 of federal income tax liability. This means that, beginning in 1990, the Medicare surtax will kick in at much lower income levels.

For example, it will require just $38,000 of net taxable income for a married couple filing jointly where both are eligible for Medicare to reach maximum $1,700 surtax versus the current $52,500 to reach the maximum of $1,600 in 1989. For reservations, call 643-8888.

CDs nearly as safe as T-bills

In a recent column, you gave a very good explanation of T-bills, but it seems to be that the basic question of whether T-bills are safer than CDs was not answered. Can you address that point?

On the scale of risk, T-bills are considered to be the safest paper investment in our country since they have the backing of the U.S. government. If a bank is federally insured, their CDs are just a step behind T-bills. Both offer less risk than the other end of the spectrum, which might include such things as drilling for oil or backing the production of a movie.

With the purchase of T-bills, you can decide on the length of time you want to have your money invested — three, six or 12 months. A CD can be bought for a longer period of time.

Rather than T-bills with short maturities, I would like to invest in something safe for a much longer period of time, perhaps 30 years. Can this be done?

today's investor

Thomas E. O'Hara

of the National Association of Investors Corp.

Treasury bonds can be bought for a longer period of time, as they mature in 10 to 30 years. If you do not wish to make that long of a commitment because of the uncertainties of inflation, you may want to stay with T-bills.

You can get a pamphlet that explains the roll-over renewal from the local Federal Reserve branch. That way, you can invest for a shorter duration and automatically roll over the T-bills as long as the interest rates are satisfactory. No renewal fee is charged.

The pamphlet is entitled "Information About Marketable Treasury Securities, Bills, Notes and Bonds Sold at Original Issue" and is free for the asking. Write the Detroit

Federal Reserve office at Securities Department, 160 W. Fort St., Detroit, Mich. 48231. The telephone number is 981-6880.

Thomas O'Hara welcomes your questions and comments but will answer them only through this column. Readers who send in questions on a general investment subject or on a corporation with broad investor interest and whose questions are used will receive a free one-year subscription to the investment magazine "Better Investing." Madonna student to study overseas Cathleen Brooks, a Rochester Community Schools teacher and Madonna College student in Japanese language, has been selected as for the 1989 Fulbright-Hays Seminars Abroad program. Brooks is one of two teachers in the United States to be granted this award by the U.S. Department of Education.

As a recipient, Brooks will travel to Japan to attend a seminar "Japanese Language" which will be held July 16 through Aug. 31 in Tokyo.

"I teach English as a second language in the Rochester school district and have many students who are Japanese," said Brooks. "This seminar will help increase my level of comprehension of the Japanese language, as well as my ability to interact with the Japanese."

BROOKS ATTRIBUTES her interest in the Japanese to her father, who, as the Oakland County Director of Economic Development, has frequently traveled to Japan to help Japanese families locate in Oakland County.

She also was encouraged by Dr. Robert Rann, her instructor at Madonna College in Intermediate Japanese.

"Dr. Rann, a Fulbright scholar who went to Japan for his doctoral thesis, gave me a great deal of support," she said. "He is an outstanding instructor."

Madonna's unique program in Japanese combines the teaching of the Japanese language with history and culture. Among others pursuing the program is Mary Ann Reese, a foreign language teacher at Richmond High School who was recently named "Teacher of the Month" by

MEA selects president, vee

Larry Chunovich, a Southfield mathematics teacher, and Mary Christian, a Flint elementary teacher, will serve their fourth consecutive two-year terms as president and vice president of the Michigan Education Association.

The union is the state's largest organization of education employees. It has more than 114,000 members. Chunovich defeated Irene Brown, a Traverse City junior high school teacher, for the union's top elective position. Christian won over Dan Bennett, a Bellaire social studies teacher, during the union's spring representative assembly, which was attended by 640 delegates last week in Lansing.

Chunovich and Christian are full time union officers on leave of absence from their teaching positions and will serve until August 1991. The Michigan Education Association is a state affiliate of the National Education Association, which has more than 1.9 million members.

Drinking water study to begin

The League of Women Voters of the Detroit Metropolitan Area has received a $2,500 grant from the League of Women Voters Education Fund in Washington, D.C., for a drinking water education project.

The grant will be used to fund research of the Detroit drinking water system, its quality, treatment and distribution.

It will be used to learn how their treatment will meet the requirements of the 1986 amendments to the 1974 Safe Drinking Water Act. Early water treatment dealt only with bacterial and viral contamination. New provisions require measurements of potential cancer causing chemicals prevalent in our industrial society.

Presently requirements are to test

30 contaminants for maximum contaminant level. 1986 amendments require the Environmental Protection Agency to set primary standards for 53 additional contaminants such as Chlorobenzene, PCBs and cyanide, by June 1989.

The League will publish a status report on its review and distribute it to officials of municipalities which use Detroit drinking water. Educational material also will be available through the libraries to the almost four million users of the Detroit water system. A public forum will highlight findings.

The LWV of Detroit Metropolitan Area is one of twelve leagues nationwide awarded a total of $18,500 to conduct community education projects on local drinking water issues. The grants are part of a three year national project to promote community understanding of drinking water issues and to increase citizen participation in local decisions impacting drinking water.

These grants were made possible by the American Water Works Association of Denver, Colorado and by the George Gund Foundation of Cleveland, Ohio.

Founded in 1920, the LWV is a non-partisan political organization that encourages informed and active participation of citizens in government. The co-chairwomen of this project are Adele Pleatman of West Bloomfield and Verona Morse of Southfield.

House members nix call for budget unity

WASHINGTON — Here's how area House members were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending April 28. The Senate was not in session.

BUDGET BATTLE: By a vote of 172 for and 252 against, the House defeated an amendment sponsored by the Democratic leadership in hopes of getting Republicans, Democrats, conservatives, liberals and moderates to agree on budget priorities.

This occurred during debate on a bill (HR 2072) providing $4.7 billion in supplemental appropriations for domestic programs in the remaining five months of fiscal 1989. It caused Democratic leaders to abruptly pull the bill from the floor.

The bill's pricetag is $2.6 billion, more than sought by the Bush administration, as a result of the Democratic-led Appropriations Committee adding money for housing, homeless, veterans, anti-drug and other domestic programs. At issue was how to cut the overall federal budget to make room for the additional spending.

The plan rejected by this vote called for across-the-board cuts affecting most discretionary spending programs in the remainder of fiscal 1989 and totaling nearly $2.6 billion. Because defense as well as social programs were seen as being impaired, conservatives and liberals joined to provide the wide margin of defeat.

Sponsor Tom Foley, D-Wash., the House majority leader, said the amendment offers members "the first opportunity we will have this year to indicate whether we are going to live within the budget restraints."

Objecting to defense cuts, Joseph McDade, R-Pa., called the measure "management by meat cleaver."

Members voting yes supported the Democratic leadership's budget plan. Voting yes were William Ford, D-Taylor and Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

Members voting no were Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods and William Broomfield, R-Lake Orion.

TO WAIVE BUDGET ACT: The House agreed, 223 for and 198

Roll Call Report

against, to debate the supplemental appropriations bill (above) under a rule waiving the fiscal restraint of the Congressional Budget Act. This cleared the way for floor consideration for the measure (HR 2072).

The waiver was needed because the bill's $4.7 billion pricetag exceeded legal spending limits Congress imposed on itself for 1989 under the budget act. The House and Senate often grant such waivers so they can spend more than they previously allowed themselves.

Supporter Leon Panetta, D-Calif., said the waiver would not increase the deficit because the bill's pay-as-you-go approach (see previous vote) was designed to honor fiscal 1989 spending limits.

Opponent Bob Michel, R-Ill., the minority leader, said the regular granting of budget waivers "explains in part why the deficit is still where it is."

Members voting yes wanted to exempt the supplemental appropriations bill from statutory spending limits. Voting yes were Republicans Pursell and Broomfield and Democrats Ford, Levin and Hertel.

Tech council names 5 to honor roll

A Livonia man was among 29 educators, business people and private citizens recently given Honor Roll Awards for contributions to education, science and technology.

The awards were given by several state agencies and the private-sector Michigan Technology Council.

Local winner was:

• William K. Kumbier of Livonia, a retired science consultant with more than 30 years experience in science and teaching. He takes his knowledge on the road to elementary schools throughout southeast Michigan using 25 classroom kits which stimulate children's natural curiosity and interest in science, making them familiar and comfortable with science so that, as they grow older, they aren't afraid to pursue higher education in those fields.

Also honored were Michael Pierino, the chairman of Birmingham Public Schools' Industrial Arts/Technology program; Douglas Cooper, the science coordinator for the Farmington Public Schools; Robert Richardson, vice president of Jervis B. Webb Co. of Farmington Hills, who served as 1988-89 board president of the Science and Engineering Fair of Metropolitan Detroit; and Don Douy of Troy, an employee of U.S.S., a division of U.S.X. He initiated and currently directs a task force that is creating educational programs with automotive design schools.

Franklin actor is prince of a fellow

"Into the Woods" opens Tuesday and continues through Sunday, May 21, at the Fox Theatre in Detroit. Ticket prices range from $15 to $29.50, depending upon performance. Tickets are available at the Fox Theatre box office, Joe Louis Arena box office and all Ticketmaster outlets. To charge tickets by phone call 645-6666.

special writer

NOT TOO LONG ago, it was a dream that the Fox Theatre in Detroit would be revived and made into a great showplace again. Someone wished extra hard, as a character might in a fairy tale, and the dream became a reality.

Now dreams — actually, fairy tales — invade the reality of the Fox again, in the form of the Stephen Sondheim musical "Into the Woods."

"Be careful what you wish, you may get it!" said actor Douglas Sills about the main theme of the play in a telephone interview from Miami last week, where the play was being performed before going to Atlanta and Detroit. Sills, a native of Farmington, plays Rapunzel's prince in "Into the Woods."

He said, "Into the Woods" deals with the fairy tales we all grew up with, predominately relying on the Grimm's fairy tales... Little Red Riding Hood, Rapunzel and her prince, Cinderella. And then one other fairy tale that the writers created to tie them all together — the Baker and the Baker's wife. These several fairy tales are intertwined together, and presented in their original fashion in the first act.

"AND THEN in the second act, a big change, and the story becomes about what happens once these characters get their wishes."

For instance, the second act looks at what happens when the Baker and his wife get the child that they've always wished for.

"It's exciting and very fast-paced — the beginning, the first half particularly," Sills exclaimed.

Then he became more serious about the work. "The second half becomes... more introspective and somewhat darker, as Stephen Sondheim tends to be."

Despite the "somewhat darker" feel of the second act, Sills added, "But (it's) a lot of fun and can be enjoyed on many different levels. And many young children come to the show — 8, 9 and 10 years old. And a lot of adults!"

Douglas Sills now makes his home in Los Angeles, but the actor was raised in Franklin and went to school there and at Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills.

"Into the Woods" stars Cleo Laine, who plays the witch, and a good cast of performers, such as Mary Gordon Murray, who for much of the 1980s played Becky Buchanan on "One Life to Live."

"I think Cleo Laine is a great witch!" said Sills, with conviction.

And talking about Detroit-area audiences, he remarked, "I think they'll be fascinated by the richness... she brings to this character."

LAINA PORTRAYS the character that Bernadette Peters originated on Broadway several years ago. Performances Laine does at the Fox will be the last for her with this company, which is the first national touring company to perform "Into the Woods." Cast member Ray Gill also will leave the production when it departs from Detroit for New Haven, Conn.

Staying with the show is Chuck Wagner, who created the Sills role on Broadway and now plays Cinderella's prince, the older brother of Rapunzel's prince.

Sills and Wagner's characters have a strong sibling rivalry going. Sills sees his character as "trying to overcome a basic insecurity about being second, always second, and watching his brother, seeing what he does and trying to better him at that... And his fundamental goal is finding a maiden he can call his own and stay with the rest of his life."

His character is "enjoying the agony of pursuing something that's always just out of reach."

The musical "Into the Woods," opening Tuesday at Detroit's Fox Theatre, features Sills in the role of Rapunzel's Prince.

Sills won't be able to play the prince in the soon-to-be-taped production of "Into the Woods" for PBS. The original Broadway cast will gather together in New York for the taping. While that's happening, Sills will take over the role of Cinderella's prince in the touring company for a short while.

Sills is based in Los Angeles, where he auditioned late last year for his role of the prince. He moved to L.A. after doing a few years of graduate study at the American Conservatory Theatre in San Francisco.

GROWING UP in the Birmingham-Bloomfield area in the 1970s, Sills attended Franklin Village elementary school, performed for the Franklin Village Players and attended Cranbrook Schools for grades 7-12. He also spent many summers at a camp near Kalkaska, which was run by a local attorney, Bernie Friedman.

"My brother and sister went to camp there. And there was a lot of performing going on there... and I got a kick out of it, and I got a lot of praise for it. I think that's what pushed me along the way," Sills said.

Before getting a bachelor of arts degree at the University of Michigan, he took a term off and spent about five months looking for acting work in New York.

"I went to every audition I could get in, not being a union member. And I learned what I needed to learn and how I fit in and what I wanted to do," he said.

In December 1982, Sills received his degree from the U-M, set on doing serious drama, such as "The Three Sisters," which he performed in on campus. Other shows he appeared in professionally or as a student at U-M or ACT were "Sunday in the Park with George," "What the Butler Saw," "Dames at Sea" and "Isn't it Romantic."

LAST MAY he was seen as David Porter in the George Carlin-Molly Hagan pilot TV movie "Justin Case" for the "The Disney Sunday Movie" on ABC. Viewers may see him in the coming months in an episode of "The Cavanaugh's" with Barnard Hughes on CBS, made last year before starting out on the tour of "Into the Woods."

Sills hopes to be in California in January for what he called "the pilot season," when all the pilot TV shows are cast and produced. For a while longer, he is happy to be in "Into the Wood," which he described as "the cutting edge of what musical theater is evolving toward."

'Seascape' has merit

Performances of Edward Albee's "Seascape" continue through Saturday at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills. For ticket information call 471-7700.

Mark S. Carley

By Mark S. Carley
special writer

Oakland Community College's Smith Theatre presents an uneven but generally insightful version of Edward Albee's comic fable "Seascape."

The story of a retired couple who encounter a pair of anthropomorphic lizards, the play examines the conflicting human desires for stimulation (adventure, learning, life) and comfort (rest, reflection, death).

Action takes place on a deserted beach where Nancy (Emily J. McSweeney) and Charlie (Robert P. Shaw) have just finished a satisfying picnic lunch. Nancy is busy painting a seascape while Charlie naps. These activities perfectly express their respective characters. Charlie, recently retired, simply wishes to rest and relax after 30 years of marriage and career.

As Charlie, Shaw effectively portrays a tired man who has spent a lifetime struggling to succeed and who sees retirement as a chance to escape. Although he is convincing, Shaw's performance becomes irritating due to a whiney delivery which is used constantly, whether appropriate to the dialogue or not.

MCSWEENEY PLAYS Nancy as a robust older woman who sees retirement as a chance to start life anew. The character's gusto is evident in McSweeney's portrayal, but the quality of dialogue suffers because she rushes her lines and confines herself to a very narrow emotional range.

The first act consists entirely of discourse between Charlie and Nancy. This material, complex and subtle in nature, would present a challenge to seasoned professional actors. At the amateur level it is almost impossible to pull off, and sadly the action here becomes tedious.

The conversation and Act One come to an abrupt end with the appearance of two large humanoid sea creatures.

As Act Two opens, we discover that these creatures are no ordinary reptiles but rather talking lizards named Leslie and Sarah. They have crawled up onto the beach in an attempt to move up the evolutionary ladder.

As Leslie and Sarah, Terry Burns and Suzanne Rogers are terrific. They inject a new-found sense of excitement into the play, just as their characters bring a sense of awe and vitality into the lives of Nancy and Charlie.

THESE HUMAN lizards lithely slither around the stage, feeling out the human couple and gathering information on their new environment.

As the inquisitive reptiles boldly endeavor to evolve, Charlie experiences a sort of resurrection; his vigor for life is renewed by the play's end.

Albee called "Seascape" his salute to life, and its central theme is that life must be experienced to the fullest or it is no life at all.

Director Sandra Sutherland has taken on a difficult, metaphorical and thought-provoking piece in "Seascape." While the ride is somewhat rocky, she and her troupe manage to get the point across quite effectively, and they provide a reasonably entertaining evening.

Mark S. Carley is active in local community theater, both on stage and behind the scenes. He is a member of the Ridgedale Players in Troy. The Ferndale resident works as a loan officer for the Detroit Economic Growth Corp.

Cocktail without fizz

Performances of the Trinity House Theatre production of "The Cocktail Party" continue through Saturday, May 20, in Livonia. For ticket information call 464-6302.

By Victoria Diaz
special writer

For its final production of the 1988-89 season, Livonia's Trinity House Theatre has chosen to do T.S. Eliot's "The Cocktail Party." Though able cast members struggle gamely with Eliot's long and talky play, ultimately it never seems to come to life.

It's hard to describe "The Cocktail Party." Written in 1949, and set in post-war London, it's based on Euripides' "Alcesteis," in which the wife of the mythological King Admetos offers herself to Death, when he comes to take away her husband. Eliot's play, though, is often rather like a drawing room comedy. Even farcical at times, it's also part drama, part social satire, part philosophical/religious statement — with plenty of symbolism and literary allusion built in.

long-planned cocktail party at his home, because he didn't have time to cancel all the invitations.

At the party are Alex (Jim Floyd), who loves to cook; Julia (Joy Dreffuss), who loves to snoop; Celia (Nancy K. Hawker), who is in love; Peter (Michael McCafferty), who is also in love; and a mysterious, unidentified guest (R. Edward Anderson), who has a tendency to slurp his tea. Soon, it's apparent that the business of unrequited love is at work here, and therein hangs the tale — sort of.

THIS "PARTY" is not buzzing with a lot of small talk. Much of what is said here is weighty and complicated — so complicated, in fact, that it's often baffling. There's a lot about making choice in life, and a lot about what is real vs. what is imagined or dreamed of or wished for.

The well-drilled cast is to be especially commended for the convincing English accents they maintain throughout the play. Apparently, they worked long and hard on this aspect of their performances, and it's paid off impressively. Another special commendation: the amount of dialogue handled by some of the actors is mind-boggling, but all of it is delivered with hardly a bobble, and most of it with generous amounts of on-stage presence and grace.

Set design by Brian Heersink and Barrera is appropriate and imaginative. Costuming, done by Terri Tower Thomson and Gary Brda, works well. Lighting by Dave Denis is effective.

Still, this production of Eliot's play never really reaches out and takes the audience up in it. In the end, it feels more like a lengthy, wordy statement on the human condition than like a play.

Tickets are $8, seniors and students $5 on Friday. For ticket information, call 852-5565. Black tie is optional.

DOWNTOWN HOEDOWN

For the seventh consecutive year, Detroit's Hart Plaza will be filled with the sounds of country music's stars as the annual Budweiser Downtown Hoedown returns from noon to 11 p.m. Friday-Sunday, May 12-14. The event begins Friday with Nashville stars Crystal Gayle and Ronnie Milsap as main attractions. On Saturday, George Jones, Kathy Mattea and the Charlie Daniels Band will perform. Final day of festivities, Sunday, May 14, will feature Vern Gosdin, Sweethearts of the Rodeo, Shenandoah and Charley Pride. Local country music groups also will entertain fans at the hoedown. Entertainment will include clogging and square dancing.

SONG, DANCE

Mitzi Gaynor, tagged by the Los Angeles Times as "the country's number one female song and dance star," will bring a homecoming show (she calls Detroit home) to the Fox Theatre, Thursday-Sunday, May 11-14. Each year Gaynor spends about four months in concert. Her two-hour show is custom-tailored annually and includes songs, dances, production numbers, comedy and audience contact. Tickets, priced at $32.50, $25, $20 and $10, may be purchased at the Fox Theatre box office, the Joe Louis Arena box office and all Ticketmaster outlets. To charge tickets by phone, call 645-6666. For general information, call 567-6000.

KING'S BIRTHDAY

The TGIF (Three Great Innovative Fridays) series will mark King Arthur's Birthday from 5:30-8:30 p.m. Friday, May 12, at the Detroit Institute of Arts. TGIF is sponsored by Founders Junior Council, a DIA Founders Society auxiliary. Guests will have the opportunity to usher in the lusty month of May in the style of the knights and damsels of Merrie

Olde England, amid the sights and sounds of Camelot. Tickets at $10 each are available at the DIA Ticket Office from 9:30 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. Tuesdays-Sundays. Tickets will be available at the door for $15. Phone the DIA ticket office at 832-2730 for information or to place charge-card orders.

BOBLO ISLAND

Three new, live action shows and the addition of a bicycle path, roller skating area and a maze will add to the family entertainment available at Boblo Island's 91st season: Boblo offers a special spring weekend, Saturday-Sunday, May 13-14. Passage to the island is available from the Gibraltar and Amherstburg (Ont.) docks. All docks, including Detroit, will be open for daily operations from Saturday, May 20, through Labor Day. The park will then remain open fall weekends until Sunday, Sept. 24, from Gibraltar and Amherstburg only.

Mother's Day

Traditional Mother's Day Champagne Brunch will be served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday at the Hotel Pontchartrain in Detroit. A carving station will offer baked glazed ham, roast turkey and corned brisket of beef. Brunch will be available at the Top of the Pontch, Ontario Room and the Versailles Ballroom. The buffet is $15.95 for adults, $7.95 for children under 10. Reservations are required.

Hillside buffets

Two buffets will be served on Mother's Day at the Hillside in Plymouth. A brunch buffet is offered from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and dinner buffet 2:30-6 p.m. The brunch is $14.95 for adults, $7.95 for children 6-12 and free to children 5 and under. The dinner is $15.95 for adults, $8.95 for children 6-12 and free to children 5 and under. Reservations are required.

Expanded dining

Addition of a new dining room has expanded seating capacity from 85 to 120 at the Clarkston Cafe. An 800-square-foot area was added when the owners purchased a two-story building adjacent to the downtown Clarkston restaurant. The new dining area is furnished to resemble an 18th century London library. This year, for the first time, the cafe will accept reservations for its traditional Mother's Day dinner served from noon to 6 p.m.

Tasting time

Taste of West Bloomfield makes its second annual Michigan week appearance Sunday, May 21. The chef's fest will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the lobby and adjoining courtyard of Henry Ford Medical Center — West Bloomfield. Twenty area restaurants, more than half of them within the township, will provide 500 tastes of one or more of their specialties. Tickets are $25 per couple, $15 per person, $7.50 per senior citizen and $5 per child under 12. For more information, call 626-3636 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays.

Food, wine

The Hyatt Regency Dearborn is hosting Pasta, Pesto, Primavera, the hotel chain's first nationwide food and wine festival. A variety of specialty pastas, fresh seafood and poultry, antipasto and Italian desserts, as well as imported wines, are being offered during lunch and dinner. Wines and specialty drinks also are available in the lounges. The event continues through Friday, June 30.

Newest Kyoto

Two months of festive Japanese culture and events are being featured at the new Kyoto Japanese

Steakhouse at 21150 Haggerty Road, just north of Eight Mile Road, in Farmington Hills. One afternoon each week beginning Tuesday, May 23, Kyoto will feature a different demonstration of Japanese artistry or tradition. The demonstrations, Japanese tea and dessert are free. A free lunch will be offered to children participating in a Japanese Kite Flying Day at noon Saturday, May 27, at the Kyoto. For more information on the Japanese events, call 557-9393, or for reservations call 348-7900.

Japanese Hi Tea

An authentic Japanese Hi Tea will be held 1-3 p.m. Thursday, May 25, at Southfield Parks and Recreation. Several Japanese wives, together with Nancy Schubeck, who spent three years in Hiroshima, will serve the tea. The program includes demonstrations on Kimono Dressing, Ikebana and Origami. Tickets are available for $8 (includes a light lunch) at the Mary Thompson Cultural Center in Southfield. For more information or reservations, call 354-4717.

'Souper Bowl'

Two area chefs are among finalists in the professional chef category for the "Souper Bowl" contest sponsored by AAA Michigan Living magazine, the Michigan Restaurant Association and the Greater Michigan Foundation. They are Steven M. Allen of Southfield's Golden Mushroom and Mark Kline of the Machus Sly Fox in Birmingham. Final judging will be Monday at Lansing's new Michigan Library and Historical Center.

Luceon hours

Home Sweet Home restaurant in Novi is now open for lunch, 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesdays-Fridays. Its home-style dishes and sandwiches have been especially priced for lunch. The restaurant also is introduced a Gourmet Salad Bar. Outdoor patio and veranda dining will be available at weather permits.

New manager

Richard Kirchner has been appointed to the new post of general manager at the Rhinoceros restaurant in Detroit. He most recently was multi-unit operations manager for the Appeteezer restaurants in Birmingham, Novi and Millford. Kirchner has served kitchen internships with Chez Raphael in Novi and the Squadron Trust Restaurant Firm in Australia.

Culinary award

L.A. Express

Mother's Day

Traditional Mother's Day Champagne Brunch will be served from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Hotel Pontchartrain in Detroit. A carving station will offer baked glazed ham, roast turkey and corned brisket of beef. Brunch will be available at the Top of the Pontch, Ontario Room and the Versailles Ballroom. The buffet is $15.95 for adults, $7.95 for children under 10. Reservations are required.

Hillside buffets

Two buffets will be served on Mother's Day at the Hillside in Plymouth. A brunch buffet is offered from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and dinner buffet 2:30-6 p.m. The brunch is $14.95 for adults, $7.95 for children 6-12 and free to children 5 and under. The dinner is $15.95 for adults, $8.95 for children 6-12 and free to children 5 and under. Reservations are required.

Expanded dining

Addition of a new dining room has expanded seating capacity from 85 to 120 at the Clarkston Cafe. An 800-square-foot area was added when the owners purchased a two-story building adjacent to the downtown Clarkston restaurant. The new dining area is furnished to resemble an 18th century London library. This year, for the first time, the cafe will accept reservations for its traditional Mother's Day dinner served from noon to 8 p.m.

Tasting time

Taste of West Bloomfield makes its second annual Michigan week appearance Sunday, May 21. The chef's fest will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the lobby and adjoining courtyard of Henry Ford Medical Center - West Bloomfield. Twenty area restaurants, more than half of them within the township, will provide 500 tastes of one or more of their specialties. Tickets are $25 per couple, $15 per person, $7.50 per senior citizen and $5 per child under 12. For more information, call 626-3636 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays.

Food, wine

The Hyatt Regency Dearborn is hosting Pasta, Pesto, Primavera, the hotel chain's first nationwide food and wine festival. A variety of specialty pastas, fresh seafood and poultry, antipasto and Italian desserts, as well as imported wines, are being offered during lunch and dinner. Wines and specialty drinks also are available in the lounges. The event continues through Friday, June 30.

Newest Kyoto

Two months of festive Japanese culture and events are being featured at the new Kyoto Japanese

Steakhouse at 21150 Haggerty Road, just north of Eight Mile Road, in Farmington Hills. One afternoon each week beginning Tuesday, May 23, Kyoto will feature a different demonstration of Japanese artistry or tradition. The demonstrations, Japanese tea and dessert are free. A free lunch will be offered to children participating in a Japanese Kite Flying Day at noon Saturday, May 27, at the Kyoto. For more information on the Japanese events, call 557-9393, or for reservations call 348-7900.

Japanese Hi Tea

An authentic Japanese Hi Tea will be held 1-3 p.m. Thursday, May 25, at Southfield Parks and Recreation. Several Japanese wives, together with Nancy Schubeck, who spent three years in Hiroshima, will serve the tea. The program includes demonstrations on Kimono Dressing, Ikebana and Origami. Tickets are available for $8 (includes a light lunch) at the Mary Thompson Cultural Center in Southfield. For more information or reservations, call 354-4717.

'Souper Bowl'

Two area chefs are among finalists in the professional chef category for the "Souper Bowl" contest sponsored by AAA Michigan Living magazine, the Michigan Restaurant Association and the Greater Michigan Foundation. They are Steven M. Allen of Southfield's Golden Mushroom and Mark Kliff of the Machus Sly Fox in Birmingham. Final judging will be Monday at Lansing's new Michigan Library and Historical Center.

Luccheon hours

Home Sweet Home restaurant in Novi is now open for lunch, 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesdays-Fridays. Its home-styled dishes and sandwiches have been especially priced for lunch. The restaurant also is introduced a Gourmet Salad Bar. Outdoor patio and veranda dining will be available at weather permits.

New manager

Richard Kirchner has been appointed to the new post of general manager at the Rhinoceros restaurant in Detroit. He most recently was multi-unit operations manager for the Appeteaser restaurants in Birmingham, Novi and Milford. Kirchner has served kitchen internships with Chez Raphael in Novi and the Squadron Trust Restaurant Firm in Australia.

Culinary award

L.A. Express

Probation limits CC's Rodriguez

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Redford Catholic Central High wrestling coach Mike Rodriguez has been barred from coaching in next year's state individual and team dual tournaments under sanctions levied recently by the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

In a prepared statement read Wednesday by Redford CC athletic director Robert Santello, the MHSAA has also decided to put the Shamrock wrestling program on probation for the 1989-90 season.

Rodriguez admitted he violated state rules during this year's individual Class A state tourney when Mike Gentile, a district champion, illegally wrestled at 119 pounds.

Gentile, a state contender, dropped down to 119 from 125 for the tournament. Despite being certified at the lower weight, it was later discovered that he had not wrestled the required one match at 119 during the regular season as state rules stipulate. (The CC wrestler was later pulled out of the tournament with Rodriguez citing injury.)

Ironically, the prepared statement made no mention of possible penalties in regards to stripping Gentile of his title.

BUT THE CC administration, consisting of Santello, outgoing principal Rev. Dennis Andrews and incoming principal Rev. Joseph Moffatt, have levied in-house penalties against Rodriguez, one of the state's most successful wrestling coaches. (He has won seven state crowns in his 22 years at CC.)

The school has put the mat program on probation for the next two seasons. The CC coach will also be required to send a letter of apology to each of the five wrestlers who competed against Gentile in the predistrict and district tourneys.

In other internal action, limits also will be placed on the CC program as far as travel, size of the squad and number of matches. Santello said that CC's participation in prestigious out-of-state meets, most notably Medina and Cleveland, Ohio, will be eliminated next season.

It was in a quadrangular meet on Dec. 23, 1988, at Cleveland (Ohio) St. Edward in which Rodriguez admitted he altered results, indicating that Gentile had wrestled at 119 against Doug Shaffer of Waverly Central (N.Y.).

But results of the CC-Waverly Central match obtained by the Observer from Ed Decker, the Waverly athletic director, showed that the two had competed at 125. (Wrestlers had until Jan. 30 to meet the one-match requirement.)

Bill Bupp, a member of the MHSAA's executive staff in East Lansing, would not comment on the penalties as of Wednesday.

Rodriguez made no statement in the prepared release read by Santello.

Thank you, volunteers

THERE'S A LOT that goes on behind the scenes at a big track meet such as Observerland Relays.

During the 19-year run of our boys meet, numerous volunteers have given up their time on a Saturday to work the all-day meet.

These volunteers are the unsung heroes.

Many are track enthusiasts, coaches or referees, but many are ex-students and friends of Livonia Churchill High School.

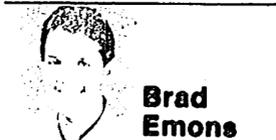

Coach Fred Price, who helps coordinate the meet along with athletic director Larry Joiner, have put together a crack staff over the years.

These volunteers often go unnoticed during all the excitement of a meet. But this writer, along with entire western Wayne County Observer sports department, jointly appreciate the efforts of everybody who has been involved all over the years.

Meet director John MacKenzie, who started the meet back in 1971 with former Redford Union Athletic Director Howard Kraft, has done a masterful job of keeping things running smoothly.

THESE VOLUNTEERS come from all walks of life.

Here is the list of volunteers who worked last Saturday's snow-shortened meet as submitted by the Churchill coach.

Brad Emons

We say thanks to: John MacKenzie, head field judge and referee; Tom Morawa, Don Painter, Jim Roberts and Henry Porter, discus; Lynn Knudsen, Doug Richardson and Ralph Chrysler, shot put; Larry Jackson, pole vault; Ed Gabrys, high jump; Daryl Ewles, Chris and Jerry Phiefer, long jump; Steve Strauch, Ken Bourgon, Kelly Graham, Gene Grewe, Al Martens, Jerry Phiefer, Gretchen Loyd and Roberts, timing and judging; Mike Lyskawa, announcer; Art Bakewell, recorder; Pete Hanish and Gabrys, clerks; Ewles, finish line judge; Scott Porter, Ed Roth and Jeff Zawislak, table recorders; Gabrys and Pete Hanish, clerks; Art Opalach, Paul Holmberg, Tim DeBeliso, Dana Wold, Chrysler, Hanish, Jackson, Richardson, Porter and Painter.

Also, many thanks again to the student helpers at Churchill from all of us at the Observer sports staff.

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Maybe Plymouth Salem coach Ken Johnson didn't want to unleash his secret weapon — Mandy Drummond — until he had to.

With leading scorer Michelle Minton sidelined because of a thigh bruise, Johnson inserted Drummond, a 14-year-old freshman into the lineup Wednesday against Livonia Stevenson.

The result: Drummond scored two goals from the striker position, and Salem rolled to an easier-than-expected 4-0 win over the host Spartans.

Hey, what else does Johnson have up his sleeve?

"EARLIER THIS season I thought she (Drummond) would be a starter, but we had a couple tough league games and she was nervous," Johnson said. "She wasn't quite ready yet. We have so much senior talent that we didn't want to rush her. She's tough, though — a big girl."

The win keeps No. 1-ranked Salem tied for first with Farmington at 2-0-1 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association. Each team has two WLAA games (including one division game) remaining before the Lakes and Western Division champions meet to decide the league title Friday, May 19.

If Salem and Farmington both win the rest of their games, Salem earns the right to play for the championship because of its better overall WLAA record.

THE ROCKS are 10-0-2 overall, while Stevenson slipped to 5-2-3 and 1-1-1.

Johnson hopes to have Minton back in time for the title game, but he isn't counting on it. Minton injured her leg Monday in a win over Walled Lake Western.

"Even though we're doing well, Michelle adds a dimension that no other team has," Johnson said. "She's so quick, has long legs and gets a step on the defender. It scares them (defenders). I hope she'll be back."

The Rocks didn't miss a beat without Minton. Jill Estey and Melissa Uhl scored the other goals for Salem, and goalkeeper Jennifer Emmett, who has allowed only three goals the entire year, collected her ninth shutout. Stevenson trailed 1-0 midway through the second half before the Rocks scored three times — all within 15 minutes.

Estey began the flurry with a goal on a corner kick that curved by Stevenson keeper Alicia Smith without touching anyone.

DRUMMOND SCORED the next goal with 11:32 left off a pass by Sara Hayes, and she added the insurance with 8:55 left, converting a pass off a throw-in by Amy Krajewski.

Uhl's goal on a penalty kick in the first half opened the game's scoring.

Andrea Wittrock played exceptional defense for Stevenson, but coach Mary Kay Hussey, who found out Tuesday about Minton's injury, knows her team might be a year away.

"They got things started with goals on a penalty shot and a corner kick — goals that don't normally happen," Hussey said. "Our team let down after that and they just kept coming at us. We're just young and I can't expect a lot from them. But they're doing good, I think."

"Sara Hayes played an excellent game for them. She's just as good as Minton. They know how to win, that's for sure."

Churchill, Athens deadlock in clash of state-rated teams

State-ranked Troy Athens and visiting Livonia Churchill battled to a 1-1 draw in a girls soccer match played Saturday at Athens.

Nikki Johnson's goal with 10 minutes left in the first half tied the score at 1-1 for the Chargers. Kristy Thurston drew the assist on the goal.

Johnson had two other excellent scoring chances later in the game, including one shot that went off the crossbar.

On Monday, Churchill found the net early and often, punishing host Walled Lake Central 12-0.

Lori Place and Johnson led the onslaught with two goals apiece.

Goalies Dana Keller and Monia Cervi combined on the shutout for Churchill.

The win upped the Chargers' record to 6-3-1.

STEVENSON 3, FRANKLIN 1: Livonia Stevenson (6-2-2) defeated crosstown rival Livonia Franklin (2-5-2) in a Western Lakes Activities Association encounter Monday.

Lori Godlewski scored two goals for the visiting Spartans, while Karen Carney added the other Stevenson tally. The lone Franklin score belonged to Angee Siglmairer. Franklin defenders Kathy Kulick, Jodi Horner and Karl Zabel were singled out for their performance by coach Judy Brda.

GARDEN CITY 4, SOUTH LYON 1: Kathy Dusek scored three goals Friday to lead the Cougars to a non-league victory over visiting South Lyon.

Lila Trombley tallied the other Cougar goal, while Kendall Janik and Sandy Green each added an assist. The win improved Garden City's record to 6-3-1 overall.

Pinch hitter puts Glenn past Vikings

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Sherrle Kowtko, one of Westland John Glenn's reserve pitchers, played the leading role at the plate Wednesday against host Walled Lake Central.

Kowtko's two-out, pinch-hit RBI single in the top of the seventh gave the Rockets a 6-5 win and a share of first place with Central in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Kowtko's line drive got under the right fielder's glove and scored Tracey Witmer, who had singled.

The win avenged Glenn's 4-2 extra-inning loss last month to the Vikings.

"SHERRIE'S LIKE our back-up, back-up pitcher, and she doesn't run the bases too well, so this should help her confidence," Glenn coach Linda Jimenez said. "I'd like to give her more experience."

The win raised Glenn's Lakes record to 7-1, 14-2 overall, with five regular-season games remaining.

Glenn, the defending WLAA champion, is hoping to regain the coveted crown without several of last year's standouts, who graduated. Together, the Rockets seem to be gaining confidence as the season progresses.

"This is unbelievable," Jimenez said. "At the beginning of the season we set a goal to win 12 games and we've already passed that."

"We lost a lot of people and wanted to establish our own identity."

Winning pitcher Jenny Massey is beginning to make a name for herself on the mound for Glenn. Senior Sara Morey was expected to be Glenn's best weapon on the mound this spring, but off-season knee surgery has limited her action and given more responsibility to Massey.

MASSEY'S ONLY trouble came in the fourth inning, when the Vikings erased a 4-0 deficit and scored five runs on four hits and a comedy of Glenn errors. Nikki Converse's solo home run that deflected off the glove of third baseman Christina Hoffman and deep into the woods beyond left field gave Central its only lead, 5-4.

Central got a runner to third base in the bottom of the seventh, but Massey, who gave up seven hits, got the last batter to fly out to Michele Myers to end the game.

"The thing with her is she's mentally tough," Jimenez said. "She's stronger out there. She's been down, but her goal has been to not make faces and be competitive. I didn't know who to start before the game, but I thought I'd go with what's working and Sara (Morey) understood."

Glenn got six hits off losing pitcher Carrie Cassinski, a freshman who lost her third game. The Vikings are 13-4 overall.

THE ROCKETS scored one run in the first and fourth and a pair of runs in the third to stake Massey the 4-0 lead.

Myers led Glenn's attack with two hits, and scored the game's first run from third base when the Central center fielder misplayed a fly ball by Christina Hoffman.

Senior shortstop Tracy Martin scored a run in the third on a wind-blown triple by Kristin Beeny and an error by Central's third baseman scored Beeny with Glenn's third run.

Eagles roll; Pats' Allen sizzles

It was called the Redford Union Softball Invitational, but after the final numbers were tallied up, Redford Thurston may want to extent the invitations for the future.

The Eagles had little competition Saturday at Claude Allison Field, winning their second straight title in a pair of lopsided victories — 17-0 over Redford St. Agatha in the championship 22-2 over Redford Bishop Borgess in the semifinals.

Because of the mercy rule, Thurston wound up playing only eight innings on the day.

In the final, Thurston scored eight times in the first inning and showed little mercy for Aggie pitcher Laura Rakowski, who was weakened by the flu.

The Eagles rapped out 12 hits as Michelle Birchmeyer led the way with a 3-for-3 showing, including three RBI. Teammate Anne Marie Moss went 3-for-4 with a pair of RBI, while pinch-hitter Melissa Cheslak added a three-run triple.

Winning pitcher Zenaida Perez held the Aggies hitless over four innings before being lifted for a reliever in the fifth.

Agatha's Paul Taranowski broke up the no-hit bid with a single in the fifth.

IN THE CLOSEST game of the day, Agatha edged host RU, 11-10, as shortstop Rachell Isbell scored the game-winning run on a wild pitch in the bottom of the seventh.

Isbell went 4-for-4 with four RBI, while teammate Kelly Gannon went 3-for-4 and knocked in two runs.

Rakowski went the distance, scattering seven hits over seven innings. She walked six and fanned five.

Losing pitcher Janet Hietala gave up nine hits, walked 14 and fanned seven. She ripped a two-run single, while Becky O'Leary added two hits and RBI for the Panthers, who fell to 6-6 overall.

THURSTON 8, MELVINDALE 1: In a Tri-River League encounter Monday, visiting Redford Thurston got a one-hit pitching performance from Perez (4-0) to silence the Cardinals.

Perez struck out 13 and did not walk a batter as Thurston improved to 10-3 overall and 8-3 in the Tri-River.

Moss collected two of the Eagles' five hits, including a bases-loaded double and RBI single. She finished with four RBI.

JOHN GLENN 11-12, CHURCHILL 5-1: It was a clean sweep Monday for the Rockets, who captured their 11th and 12th straight wins at the expense of host Livonia Churchill (1-15).

Westland Glenn pounded out 13 hits in the opener, handing Churchill starter Marilea Groh the loss.

Tracy Martin led the way with three hits, while Tracy Sylvester, Michelle Myers and Kara Beeny added two each.

Catcher Jackie Hebert paced the Chargers with a 3-for-4 outing at the plate. She was also outstanding defensively, throwing out a pair of Glenn base stealers.

Sophomore pitcher Jenny Massey scattered four hits and five walks to increase her personal record to 10-2.

In the nightcap, senior Sara Morey pitched a complete game, allowing only two hits and five walks in a 12-1 triumph.

Morey, who struck out six, improved her record to 3-0.

Vicky Lucas, the Churchill starter, suffered the loss. Kristin Beeny collected four of Glenn's nine hits, while Sherrle Kowtko contributed two.

FRANKLIN 4-1, STEVENSON 1-13: Senior Lisa Allen fired her second no-hitter of the season Monday as host Livonia Franklin won the opener in a Western Lakes Activities Association crossover game, 4-1.

Allen, now 4-5 overall, struck out 11, walked six and hit two batters.

Kelly Cotter, who worked six innings, suffered the loss.

Emily Skura and Leslie Szafarski each had two hits for the Patriots, while Diane Buszka knocked in the Spartans' lone run on a fielders choice.

In the nightcap, Stevenson took only five innings to mercy the Pats, 13-1, as Collette Rockwell was the offensive hero, going 3-for-4 with two RBI.

The Spartans collected 12 hits as Caroline Schultz and Beth Bisio contributed two hits and two RBI apiece. Bisio had a double and a triple.

Buszka was the winning pitcher, allowing three hits and five walks.

Jenny Mayle (5-2) took the loss. Franklin is 9-7 overall and 8-3 in the WLAA, while Stevenson is 4-14 and 2-9.

GARDEN CITY 7, WOODHAVEN 0: Sophomore Tracy Thompson improved her record to 7-2 Tuesday as the Northwest Suburban League leaders blanked the visiting Warriors.

GC is 14-5 overall and 4-1 in the NSL.

Thompson allowed just two hits and five walks, while fanning eight Woodhaven batters.

The Cougars collected 12 hits, led by Marsha Gilbert, who went 3-4, including a triple and two runs scored. Stacy Felts, Kim Falkowski, Kim Reith and Thompson each added two hits.

Felts also knocked in four runs and Thompson added two RBI.

LADYWOOD 18-12, BORGESS 0-1: In a Catholic League Central Division mismatch on Tuesday, visiting Livonia Ladywood (17-8, 13-5) ran roughshod over Redford Bishop Borgess.

The first game, an 18-0 rout, took just three innings as the Blazers pounded out nine hits, led by Jenny Kennedy, Shannon White and Krista Campeau with two hits apiece.

White, the winning pitcher, led the RBI parade with four.

In the nightcap, which lasted seven innings, Ladywood scored seven times in the seventh to win going away, 12-1, as Kim Supron and Campeau each collected two hits. Supron knocked in three runs.

White allowed only one hit and four walks, while fanning 10 Spartans.

Cathy Alcalá suffered the loss for Borgess. She allowed seven hits and eight walks in seven innings.

LUTHERAN NORTH 13, CLARENCEVILLE 3: The long ball and five errors led to the Trojans' undoing Monday in a Metro Conference encounter.

Host Mount Clemens Lutheran North cracked a pair of homers off Clarenceville starter and loser Kari Watson, who allowed 13 hits.

Lisa Landerscher belted a two-run shot in the first and April Brinker added a three-run blast in the third. Brinker also added a pair of singles in the rout.

Rhonda Sanders scored two runs, stole two bases and singled for the Livonia Clarenceville, which fell to 5-5 overall and 4-5 in the Metro.

Winning pitcher Wendy Palmeter worked five innings, allowing just two hits. She walked eight and struck out seven.

ST. AGATHA 9-6, ST. FLORIAN 3-2: The Aggies improved to 8-9 overall and 7-6 in the C-D Division with a doubleheader sweep Tuesday against Hamtramck St. Florian in a pair played at Detroit's Jayne Field.

Golfers up to par

Livonia Ladywood improved its record to a perfect 9-0 by cruising to a 230-292 girls golf triumph over Birmingham Marian in a match played Monday at Pine Lake Country Club.

The Blazers' Michelle Gossett took medalist honors with a 53, while teammate Sherri Adams chipped in with a 54.

Other top Ladywood scores were carded by Aimee Kroll (61) and Prentiss Laich (62).

Buffy Seymour paced Marian with a 61.

LIVONIA STEVENSON defeated Dearborn, 237-251, in a meet Monday at Whispering Willows Golf Course.

Summer Scaggs led the Spartans by shooting a 55. Carrie Eglington (59), Susan Randall (61) and Megan Johnson (62) also contributed heavily toward the Stevenson victory.

The win gives the Spartans a 7-1 overall dual meet record. Dearborn's Rhonda Jones took medalist honors with a 52.

Borgess girls gain 2nd in East Detroit Track Invitational

It was a big week for the Redford Bishop Borgess girls track team.

On Saturday, the Spartans finished second in the 11-team East Detroit Invitational.

Grosse Pointe North captured the team title with 92 points followed by Borgess (76) and Livonia Churchill (66).

Alena McBee starred for Borgess, winning the discus (101 feet, 10 inches) and finishing second in the shot put (30-1). Teammate Psi Hines took second in the discus (100-4).

Lysbay McGowan turned in an area best in the 800-meter run, finishing second for the Spartans in 2:26.6. She also anchored a second place finish in the 800 relay, teaming up with Philana Hooper, Florence Pugh and Angie Kendrick for a time of 1:53.7.

Meanwhile, Borgess's Michelle Gayney finished second in both the 1,600 and 3,200 runs with times of 5:35.4 and 12:05.4, respectively.

Churchill's top performer was Alyssa Belaire, who won the 400 dash in 1:01.3, also an area best this season.

On Tuesday, visiting Borgess downed Catholic League Central Division rival Harper Woods Regina, 70-58. The Spartans are 4-3 overall and finished 4-1 in the Central, second behind Farmington Hills Mercy.

Double winners for Borgess included McBee in the shot put (35-9) and discus (93-7); Pugh in the long jump (13-10 1/4) and 400 run (1:04.9); Hooper in the 100 (13.1) and 200 (28.97); and Gayney in the 1,600 (5:38.1) and 3,200 (12:53.0).

McGowan won the 800 in 2:38.1, and also anchored the victorious 800 and 1,600 relays with times of 1:52.8 and 4:28.5, respectively.

REDFORD ST. AGATHA ran its dual meet record to 5-1 with a 65-54 Catholic League victory over Oakland Catholic in a boys meet Tuesday at Birmingham Brother Rice.

Among the individual winners for the Aggies: Andy Shepley, shot put 40-2; Brian Rich, discus, 116-8; Chris Wudy, high jump, 5-2; Kevin Smith, long jump, 18-1 1/4; Jeff Robertson, 120-yard hurdles, 17.14; Matt Carlisle, 100 dash, 11.24; Ken Kroll, 800, 2:20.0; and Fred Schick, mile, 5:20.0.

The Aggies also captured the two mile relay as Kroll, Schick, Jason Polner and Brian Miller were clocked in 10:00.74.

LIVONIA CLARENCEVILLE lost a Metro Conference girls dual Tuesday to visiting Harper Woods Lutheran East, 67-60.

Clarenceville managed only three individual firsts: Kelly Anspach, 400-meter run, 1:03.5; Roberta Wiggle, 800, 2:30.1; and Michelle Kelvert, 1,600, 6:28.0.

The Trojans also captured the 1,600 relay as Anspach, Jenny Nunnerly, Trisha and Roberta Wiggle were clocked in 4:23.8.

Clarenceville is 5-3 overall and 2-2 in the Metro.

LIVONIA FRANKLIN fell to Farmington Harrison in a rescheduled boys dual on Tuesday, 76-61. The Western Lakes Activities Association-Western Division meet was held at Farmington High.

Bob Beauchamp figured in four firsts for the victors, capturing the 100 and 200-meter dashes in 11.2 and 22.9, respectively. He also anchored the winning 400 and 800 relay events in 46.8 and 3:42.4, respectively.

Teammate Chad Burgess swept the 400 and 800 runs in 52.2 and 2:01.1, respectively.

Franklin was led by Dave Piontek, who took the 110 and 300 hurdles in 15.7 and 42.8, respectively.

Other Franklin firsts were recorded by Dean Vandal, high jump, 5-8; Dennis DiLorenzo, pole vault, 11-6; and Rich Balsch, long jump 18-10 1/4.

The Patriots added a win in the 800 relay as Mark Little, Pete Ministrelli, Chris Johnson and Balsch were clocked in 1:40.7.

Franklin is 2-2 overall, while Harrison upped its mark to 5-2.

'Hutch' fans 17 Rice hitters; Shamrocks win RU Invite Leo Hutchinson is saving his best for last.

Hutchinson, a Redford Catholic Central senior left-hander, tossed a no-hitter Sunday as the Shamrocks won the first game of a doubleheader with visiting Birmingham Brother Rice, 8-0. He improved his record to 7-2 on the year.

Rice won the nightcap, 6-4, to gain a split in the twinbill.

CC is 16-7 overall, 9-7 in the Catholic League's Central Division.

"It was his best game in four years," CC coach John Salter said. "He's throwing strikes. He was overpowering and the wind might have helped a little — it was blowing behind him."

Paul Pirronello and Tom Hill collected two RBI each for CC in Game No. 1. Pirronello was 3-for-4 at the plate and Hill hit safely in two trips. Hutchinson knocked in a single run with a base hit.

RICE PITCHER John Rose outduelled the Shamrock hitters in the second game, picking up the complete game win with a six-hitter and six strikeouts.

Keith Bozyk's record slumped to 4-5 for CC, as he exited after two innings and getting pasted for four runs on two hits. Pirronello and Hutchinson collected two hits each for CC, but the big hit belonged to Mark Clary who picked up three RBI with a bases-loaded triple in the three-run third.

CC gained momentum Saturday by winning the four-team Redford Union Invitational at Capitol Park.

CC knocked off RU, 8-7, in the opener before taking Redford Thurston, 9-3 in the championship game.

Pirronello struck out 10 and walked none in going the distance and picking up the win over Thurston. A pair of three-run home runs by Hutchinson and Pirronello paced CC's offensive attack. Hutchinson's round-tripper in the fifth broke a 3-3 tie.

Steve Koss had a 2-run homer and solo homer for Thurston. The loss went to Mike Lucy, who scattered seven hits.

Ryan Bell, the second of three CC pitchers, got credit for the 8-7 win over RU. Mark Staniforth's had the game-winning RBI, driving in both Brett Welling and Pirronello with the eventual winning runs.

Thurston got to the championship game by defeating Redford Bishop Borgess, 5-1 in the first round. John Duty lasted 6½ innings in a winning role for Thurston and Lucy got the last out. Wayne Vester and Julius Maisano each delivered a two-run single.

CHURCHILL 7-2, JOHN GLENN 6-8: Scott Kenny was 3-for-3, drove in three runs and scored twice to spark Livonia Churchill to a 7-6 upset win Monday in the first game of a doubleheader against host Westland John Glenn. The Rockets salvaged a split by winning Game No. 2, 8-2.

Dan Ackerman raised his personal mark to 3-1 with his complete-game performance in the opener. He struck out three, walked four and allowed nine hits.

Mike Lamp, one of three Glenn hurlers, suffered the loss, allowing five runs over 3¾ innings of work.

Jim Maruszewski was 2-for-3 with two runs scored for Churchill.

Bryant Satterlee tossed a four-hitter against Churchill in Game No. 2, going the distance to pick up the win for Glenn. Mike Barnett, 0-2, took the loss for the Chargers.

The split leaves Churchill at 6-6 overall, 6-4 in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Glenn is 12-3 overall.

STEVENSON 2-5, FRANKLIN 1-12: A five-run fifth inning fueled Livonia Franklin's 12-5 second-game win over Livonia Stevenson Monday and gave the Patriots a split in the WLAAC crossover doubleheader.

The twinbill moves Stevenson's record to 5-9 overall, 4-7 in the WLAAC.

Craig Overaitis had two doubles and knocked in two runs and Franklin got a strong six-inning effort out of pitcher Tad Dennis. Joe Arella was the losing pitcher in the nightcap.

Mike Dalimonte outlasted Overaitis in a Game No. 1 pitcher's duel. Both pitchers went the distance, but a Franklin error on a ball hit by Stevenson's Mike Mulvihill in the fourth inning scored Dan Piereggen with the winning run.

Rob Chanko knocked in Stevenson's other run, scoring Jim Baumbick on a single. Dalimonte, who surrendered five hits, collected two hits at the plate. Joe Ranley led Franklin's hitting attack with two safeties.

Overaitis, who fanned six, allowed six Stevenson hits.

SHARON LEMIEUX/staff photographer

Thurston's Tim Wojcik can't come up with the wild throw as Melvindale runner Phil Howard (right) slides in safely at home plate. Coach Emil Majeski and his Eagles did not have a good day, losing to the Cards, 20-6.

CLARENCEVILLE 12, LUTHERAN NORTH 5: Rich Roy and John Foretti each hit a solo homer Tuesday, leading Livonia Clarenceville to a 12-5 win over Detroit Lutheran North.

The Trojans, who lost a doubleheader Saturday to Novi, 5-3 and 6-3, are 6-6 overall. They are 5-5 in the Metro Conference.

Dan Geierman picked up the win against Lutheran North, giving up five hits and fanning six over six innings. Roy pitched the final inning.

Chris Foss and Dave Petri had three RBI each and Petri collected two hits for Clarenceville. Foretti and Roy had two hits each and George Bingham had three hits in three trips.

WOODHAVEN 6, GARDEN CITY 1: Four errors led to Garden City's misfortune Tuesday at Woodhaven. The Cougars, 2-3 in the Northwest Suburban League and 4-10 overall, gave up four unearned runs in losing the NSL game 6-1.

Steve Goff went the distance, scattering seven GC hits, and allowing only a run-scoring double to Darrin Clark, who knocked in Paul Donaldson. Mick Newport and Donaldson had four of the Cougars' seven hits.

Dustin Adkins and Clark combined on a six-hitter for Garden City. Adkins started and lasted 3¼ innings and surrendering four hits and five walks.

MELVINDALE 20, THURSTON 6: A 14-hit attack and eight-hit pitching by Phil Howard led host Melvindale to a Tri-River League rout over Redford Thurston.

Melvindale, 9-1 in the Tri-River, scored nine runs in the fourth inning and six more in the sixth before the game was called because of a 10-run mercy.

John Duty, Jason Muller and Mike Lucy shared time on the mound for Thurston, 6-10 overall and 4-6 in the league. Mike Magler had a triple and three singles for the winning team.

Local angler hauls in big chinook in River Crab

ED MARIUZ of Rochester Hills was credited with catching the biggest fish in the recent River Crab Salmon Stakes fishing tournament in St. Clair — a 19.76-pound chinook (king) salmon.

Mariuz and his crew — sons Steve and Jeff and neighbor Mark Duvall — were fishing aboard Mariuz's boat, Canvasback, when the king hit a chartreuse Long-A Bomber at 6:30 a.m. Duvall reeled in the healthy chinook, which was caught on a down-rigger in 28 feet of water.

Duvall won a plaque for his effort and helped his fishing club, the Blue Water Sport Fishing Association, win the $5,000 club award with a total catch of 489.98 pounds of fish.

Overall, 300 boats registered for the tournament, which raised $60,000 to benefit child abuse agencies across the state. Over the past seven years the tournament has raised $360,000 for this worthy cause.

Chuck Rachwitz of Livonia, Ron Huey of Birmingham and Rick Pearsall of Troy, each took home $100 for catching DNR fin-clipped salmon.

SLOWLY, BUT SURELY the Michigan Department of Natural Resources is working on a solution to combat the increasing number of lamprey in the Great Lakes waters and their tributaries.

Lamprey, which migrated to the Great Lakes from the Atlantic Ocean following construction of the Welland Canal, kill salmon and trout by attaching itself to side of the fish

with its mouth and sucking out vital body fluids.

DNR director David Hales, in a letter to the Michigan congressional delegation, said the health and economy of the Great Lakes Basin states depends on immediate action to provide sufficient dollars to offset what will be essentially a reduction in dollars due to shortfalls in the Great Lakes Fisheries Commission ability to maintain prior expenditure. Hales is asking for an increase of $2.8 million in the Great Lakes Fisheries Commission's budget of $6.8 million and an additional $1.3 million for capital improvements at lamprey research facilities.

MICHIGAN COULD lose more than 50 percent of its sport fishery to lamprey in Lakes Michigan and Huron over the next 10 years if federal funding is not adequate to support lamprey control measures, according to Hales.

One of those control measures being studied is the placing of electrical lamprey control barriers near the mouth of rivers lamprey use for spawning.

The fourth in a series of experimental electrical barriers recently began operating on the Pere Marquette River in Mason County. It will be in use until the first week in July.

The barriers are being studied to see if they can be used to replace the costly chemical treatments currently used to control lamprey. One unanswered question of concern is what effect these barriers will have on salmon smolt, steelhead smolt and adult steelhead.

IF YOU THINK only a select few individuals participate in outdoor activities you'd better think again.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has conducted a comprehensive nationwide survey of wildlife-associated recreation every five years since 1955. Conclusions of the 1985 survey were recently released by the service, and the results were surprising.

Congratulations to the GTE Academic All-Americans.

They are the leaders of the team. But what makes them even more special is their outstanding academic records. They are the GTE Academic All-Americans, selected by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA) for being high achievers—in the game as well as the classroom. GTE is proud to be the official sponsor of this 37-year-old program and congratulates these student-athletes on their Academic All-American achievements.

Miller positions U-D for late-season move

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Just 3 1/2 weeks ago, the season seemed mired in mediocrity — again — for University of Detroit's baseball team.

The Titans have always seemed to be pretty good, but never quite good enough. They were 31-24 last year and reached the championship round of the Midwestern Collegiate Conference tournament before losing. After opening the tourney with wins over Evansville and Notre Dame, U-D lost to Evansville twice.

So Evansville went to the NCAA tournament and the Titans — for the 23rd season in a row — didn't.

Nothing seemed to change this year. On April 16, U-D was 12-15-1 overall and 3-3 in the MCC. All things considered — the team is young (only four seniors) and several key players (outfielder Steve Wujczyk and pitchers Pat Miller and Mark Thierry) were coming back from serious injury — the so-so record wasn't unexpected.

BUT, WHEN the Titans jolted Notre Dame in South Bend, winning three of four games, U-D coach Bob Miller said he could feel something good was about to happen.

"I sensed an air of confidence," said Miller, a Redford resident now in his 25th year of coaching at U-D. "I thought we might come on right then."

Miller is a noted optimist, but his feelings proved accurate. From that weekend in Notre Dame until Tuesday's double-header split with Michigan State at U-D, the Titans were 13-5 — including a 12-2 MCC record that all but wrapped up first place in the MCC's Eastern Division. One win in U-D's final four games at Xavier this weekend, or a Notre Dame loss, clinches the title.

The Titans must still survive the MCC tournament, which begins Wednesday in South Bend, to get into the NCAA tournament. But that confidence Miller could sense 3 1/2 weeks ago has U-D flying high, making them an odds-on favorite in the double-elimination MCC tournament.

THE REASONS for the Titan success are numerous. "We've got great athletes on this team, no doubt about it," said Miller. "I told them their hard work and perseverance would pay off."

That "keep your chin up" attitude helped, but so has a lot of off-season work — particularly from the injured. Wujczyk, a Southfield-Lathrup graduate with a year of eligibility remaining, tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his knee in the fall of 1987 playing intramural football.

The knee was rebuilt and Wujczyk went 17 months without playing, working instead on rehabilitation. It paid off, Wujczyk returned from the long layoff better than ever.

He batted just .242 as a sophomore and .219 as a freshman, with a two-year total of two home runs and 25 runs batted in. This year, Wujczyk is hitting .352 with five doubles, four triples, two homers and 26 RBI.

"It was a lot of hard work," Wujczyk said of his comeback. "There was 12 months of strictly rehabilitation. A lot of people doubted I would be back."

Miller was one of the doubters. "I really didn't expect anything from Steve," the U-D coach admitted. "I certainly didn't expect this."

Even Wujczyk can't explain how, after a 17-month layoff, he can come back hitting better than ever. "I guess I just remembered how to hit. It doesn't surprise me. I always had that confidence."

PAT MILLER is another surprise, although the junior righthander from Redford Union (he's one of five RU grads on U-D's team) had other motivational sources. For one, he happens to be the coach's son.

Pat was bothered by a sore elbow his entire sophomore season. His best pitch is a sinking fastball, but the soreness had reduced it to 79-81 mph. And as his fastball slowed, his record swooned. He was 3-2 last year with a 7.13 earned run average, after going 3-1 with a 4.81 ERA as a freshman.

His mound failures combined with his status as the coach's son to make the season miserable. He had surgery on his elbow after last season, and bone chips and spurs were removed. He didn't play at all last summer, and his status for this season was questionable.

Except to his father/coach. "He told me, 'For us to have a good year, you have to help us,'" Pat said. "There was a lot of pressure. I had to prove myself that I wasn't on the team just because of my dad. I didn't think (my teammates) accepted me."

"That was the hardest thing, proving myself and getting accepted."

Pat has nothing left to prove. He's moved up in the rotation from the No. 6 man to No. 3, and he is second on the team in wins. He has a 5-1 record with a 3.40 ERA, and his fastball is back up in the 85-86 mph range.

BUT EVEN the contributions from unexpected sources like Wujczyk and Pat Miller isn't the whole story. Of the team's top seven hitters, four are sophomores and one is a freshman.

Among that group are starting shortstop Rick Tavormina, from Westland John Glenn (.365, six doubles, two triples, 12 RBI); starting catcher Mike Stefanski, from RU (.360, six doubles, one triple, 17 RBI); and starting first baseman Lance Sullivan, from Livonia Churchill (.288, five doubles, one triple, two homers, 24 RBI). All three are sophomores.

There's more. Senior lefthanded pitcher Mark Coburn, from Plymouth Canton, is 4-1 with a 4.40 ERA; sophomore lefthanded pitcher Doug Fitzer, from Farmington Hills (and Birmingham Brother Rice), is 2-5 with a 4.11 ERA; and junior second baseman Dennis Bushhart, from RU, was hitting .287 with six doubles, a triple, a homer and 25 RBI before going down with a severe knee injury suffered against Notre Dame last weekend.

"THE KEY (to our season) is good chemistry," explained team co-captain Mike Cloutier, a senior from Birmingham Groves. A year ago, Cloutier batted .373, clubbed 12 homers and drove in 64 runs. This season he's struggling, although he showed signs of a big finish by slugging three homers against the Irish last weekend.

For the season, Cloutier — who was drafted in the 33rd round by the Seattle Mariners last year — is hitting .243 with three doubles, three triples, six home runs and 21 RBI.

"If we play like we've been playing, I've got to think we'll get to the (NCAA) regional," Cloutier said. "And if we get to the regional, we can beat some teams. We should have a lot of confidence. Let's hope it isn't overconfidence."

Cloutier remains confident in his own abilities, too. "I've got it in me," he said. "They just haven't got it out of me yet. I know it will come. The law of averages is in my favor. I feel it, I'm getting my swing back."

And, as his coach can attest, having a feel for the game is half the battle.

Glenn product Barber now clipping JC hitters

By Brad Emons
staff writer

For coach Stu Rose, the transition from high school to junior college baseball has been an adjustment.

The former Redford Union coach, now the manager at Henry Ford Community College, has faced a few thorns along the way.

Rose is the team's biggest critic. He would like to see the Hawks play a little more to their potential, even though they recently completed their regular season at 17-11-1 and tied Macomb CC for the Eastern Conference title (at 12-4) in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association.

"I'd like to see us play better," said Rose. "We made 12 errors versus Macomb in a doubleheader. I'm critical because I know what they're capable of. We've had some people who have had off years."

After Sunday's sweep of Grand Rapids JC in the regular season finale (6-4 and 4-3), the Hawks, made up primarily of Observerland players, can now focus their attention on the NJCAA Region 12 Tournament this weekend in Battle Creek.

THE EIGHT-TEAM, double-elimination tourney will consist of junior college teams from Michigan, Ohio and Indiana.

Henry Ford will take on Western Conference champion Southwestern CC at noon on Friday.

A pair of former Observer-area standouts will lead the Hawks in their tournament quest.

Pitcher Bill Barber, a lefty from Westland John Glenn, has been the biggest surprise.

Barber, a sophomore, came to Henry Ford after dropping out of Michigan State as a scholarship player where he acquired a reputation for being undependable and moody.

But under Rose at Henry Ford, Barber's career has blossomed.

"He's been a real plus and has drawn all our tough assignments," said the Henry Ford coach of his ace. "He's been terrific in what we've asked him to do. He's just been a model citizen."

ON ONE OCCASION, one scout clocked Barber's fastball at 87 MPH, according to Rose. That kind of speed will draw the attention of any major league scout.

On the season, Barber has fanned 72 batters and walked only 16 in 54

baseball

innings of work. His record is 5-3 with a 1.10 earned run average.

Rose predicts Barber could go anywhere from the 15th to 20th round in the June draft.

The other Hawk with pro potential is North Farmington product Rick Karcher, a transfer from Indiana where he red-shirted as a freshman.

The 6-foot-5 outfielder is the team leader in RBI, homers and runs scored.

Although his average (.233) is not up to par, Rose said the left-hand hitting slugger "has been terrific in the clutch."

"He's just a hard-working kid and the other day he hit one of the longest homers I've ever seen," said the Henry Ford coach. "It was just a colossal shot. They (the scouts) like his power."

Henry Ford's outfield has been steady all season.

Mike Kaczmarek, a product of RU and Franklin, has filled in at right field after transferring from Eastern Michigan. He hit .290 during the regular season.

"Our outfielders can go get 'em," Rose said. "I was in a situation where I went with the best defensive players and it turned out they could also hit."

Pitching has also carried the Hawks this season.

Behind Barber is No. 2 starter Travis Loughby of Livonia.

Dave Houghtby (Riverview Stevenson) has become the No. 3 man. His record is 2-4 with an ERA of 2.43.

"Dave has done a good job, even though his won-loss record doesn't reflect it," Rose said.

DAVE WILKIE of Dearborn Edsel Ford has been tough out of the bullpen, while Kevin Walker (RU), sporting a 3-1 record, has been a good spot starter.

Livonia Clarenceville grads Joe Jentzer (1-0) and Joe Whitefoot (0-0) give the Hawks depth on the mound.

Jentzer is currently bothered by a bad back, while Whitefoot is just coming around after an early-season illness.

"Overall the pitching has been good, better than I envisioned," said the Henry Ford coach.

But as good as the pitching and the outfield have been, Henry Ford has had its share of infield problems.

Going into this weekend, the team's most consistent infielder has been first baseman Rick Rutledge (RU), whose 3-run homer gave the Hawks a share of the Eastern Conference title.

Rutledge leads the team with a .373 average and was voted All-Eastern Conference.

SOPHOMORE Ken Droupewski (Wayne Memorial) has moved to shortstop, while Dave Urban (RU), who hit 253 in league play, has moved from short to second base.

Third base slot has been taken over by freshman Todd Fracassi (Livonia Stevenson), who has started the last 12 games after sharing time with freshman Joe Lezotte (RU).

Fracassi has upped his batting average to .273 since starting.

"He's been a pleasant surprise," said Rose of the Stevenson product. "We've given him an opportunity and he's proven he's a heady player. And defensively he's been steady."

The catching ranks were depleted when two of Rose's recruits dropped out, leaving the chores exclusively to Doug Florn of Wayne Memorial.

The team's top academic student sporting a 3.5 grade-point average, Florn has proven to be an adequate receiver.

ROSE IS HOPEFUL, but knows his team faces an uphill battle Friday in its opener against Southwestern, a team with several potential pro draft picks.

"Defensively, as bad as we are, we're a longshot," Rose said. "Our infield has been suspect and we've hit with less than authority. But the team that gets the hottest will win."

Rose has had to make several adjustments in his coaching style.

"It's different on this level because here it's much tougher to pitch to kids here than in high school," he said. "But overall I've enjoyed it. I'll be back next year."

What an opener! Titans' Thierry no-hits MSU

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Mark Thierry's collegiate pitching career was about what could be expected, all things considered — until Tuesday.

The 1987 Redford Union graduate missed all of last year after tearing ligaments in his right knee. Coming into this season, Thierry hadn't pitched in nearly two years.

On Tuesday, University of Detroit coach Bob Miller gave Thierry his first collegiate pitching start in the second game of a double-header with Michigan State. Thierry responded with the unexpected — he hurled six innings of no-hit ball in claiming his first collegiate win, 2-0.

THE RIGHTHANDER tired in the seventh, walking the first two batters on 10 pitches. When his first pitch to the third was a ball, Miller — a pitcher himself with the Philadelphia Phillies from 1949-58 — walked slowly to the mound and replaced the tiring Thierry.

"He did such a good job, I didn't want to see him lose (the game)," explained Miller. "He's going to be a bright one for us in the future."

Ryan Raymond replaced Thierry and, after walking another batter to load the bases, struck out the next two and induced Ken Dalson to fly out to left field. It was the first no-hitter by U-D since 1975 (Harry Tarant vs. Cumberland College, 5-0) and the first time two U-D pitchers combined on a no-hitter.

"I RAN out of gas. That's the longest I've gone since my senior year of high school," said Thierry. "I was really tired. At least my arm was really tired."

Going into the game, Thierry had an 0-1 record with a 6.92 earned run average. He had pitched just 13 innings and allowed 10 earned runs on 16 hits and seven walks, with four strikeouts. Against MSU, he walked seven and struck out three.

Needless to say, it was the highlight of his collegiate career. "Of my life," said Thierry, taking it a bit further.

"I started off this season well," he said of his record. "I didn't give up a hit or a run until my fourth game.

RICHARDS TO GVSC

Redford Catholic Central High center Ray Richards has signed a basketball letter-of-intent with Grand Valley State College.

The 6-foot-5 senior averaged 16 points and eight rebounds per game for the Catholic League and Class District-champion Shamrocks, who finished with a 15-9 overall record.

Richards earned several honors this season including honorable mention all-state, honorable mention All-Metro (Detroit News), first-team All-Catholic and second-team All-Area (Observer).

Richards joins two other Laker recruits, Anthony Davis, a 6-4 guard from Willow Run, and 6-6 forward Terrence Williams of Cassopolis, signed recently by coach Tom Villeneuve.

Grand Valley finished 22-6 overall and second in the Great Lakes Conference.

BYRDSONG CAMP

Registration is on for the Ricky Byrdsong University of Detroit Basketball day camps.

A June 23 deadline has been set up for the varsity boys camp (grades 11-12), from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., June 26-30.

An Aug. 4 deadline has been set for the JV boys camp (grades 9-10), from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Aug. 7-11.

Camp tuition is $100. For more information, call 927-1752.

HEIN RESIGNS

Livonia Churchill High School is seeking a head boys and head girls swimming coach in wake of the resignation of Lawrence Hein, who is leaving to devote more time toward work on his master's degree in business at Walsh College.

"We hate to lose Lawrence because he's done such a great job," said Churchill athletic director Larry Joiner.

Churchill is also seeking two football assistants.

Those interested should call the Churchill athletic office at 523-9217.

BASEBALL TRYOUTS

Westland Federation Connie Mack League (17-18 years) baseball team will hold tryouts at 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, May 13-14, 20-21 and 27-28 at John Glenn High School.

For more information, call Dr. Gerald Ebmeyer at 729-1370 (days) or 485-4208 (evenings); or Doug Weyant at 421-2899.

SOCCER TRYOUTS

Tryouts for the Plymouth Kicks '78 boys premier league soccer team will be from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Monday, June 5, and Tuesday, June 6, at the Ynysis Soccer Field, located on Haggerty and Plymouth roads. For more information, call Armando Santos at 453-5929.

The Livonia Youth Soccer Club 1978-79 girls soccer team, members of the Little Caesars Premier League, will conduct tryouts for the fall '89 and spring '90 seasons from 6 to 8 p.m., Thursday through Saturday (May 18-20) at Dickinson Center, located on Newburgh between Six and Seven Mile roads. For more information, call Pat McCaul (464-8271) or Jim Kearney (421-5233).

AAU VOLLEYBALL

The Schoolcraft Ocelot Volleyball Association, coached by Wayne Memorial's Ann Kolnitys and assisted by former Schoolcraft player Chris Paicero, captured last weekend's 24-team Jackson YMCA (16 and under) AAU tournament, defeating Battle Creek in the finals, 16-14, 18-16 and 16-14.

After going 8-2 in pool play, SOVA downed Lapeer in the quarterfinals

sports roundup

(15-3, 15-5) and Jackson Area Volleyball Club in the semifinals (15-13, 15-6).

Members of the SOVA team include Gerri Ruffing and Rochelle Tillman, both of Wayne; Keri Hawkins and Jill Hutton, Livonia Churchill; Keli Haeger, Rebecca Willey and Jannel Hemme, all of Livonia Ladywood. They were joined by Trina Gowan and Kerl Hawkins, both of Birmingham Marlan.

The Schoolcraft Juniors Volleyball Club finished third last weekend in an AAU Tournament (18 and under) at Spring Arbor College, losing to USA-Kalamazoo Red in the semifinals, 15-5, 15-4.

The SC Juniors, coached by Pat Cyrus of Garden City and Allecia

Love, finished 11-1 in pool play. They defeated the Victors 'A' (15-7, 15-10), Northville (15-5, 15-4), Lava Blaze (15-8, 15-6) and Jackson (15-6, 15-8). The SC Juniors split with Genesee No. 1 (15-6, 11-5) and downed Victors Elite in the quarterfinals (15-9, 15-8).

CHARITY GOLF CLASSIC

PGA tour players Fred Couples, Bill Glasson, Jay Haas, Keith Clearwater, Clarence Rose and Jerry Pate are slated to be among the field for the second annual Metro Buick Dealers Charity Golf Classic, Monday, June 5 at Meadowbrook Country Club in Northville.

Representatives from the Detroit Pistons and Red Wings will also be in attendance.

By attending the Golf Classic with a $10 ticket donation, you can help the American Lung Association to support more than 35 free community health services in our area.

Advance discount tickets are available by calling the American Lung Association at 559-5100, or at any Ticketmaster outlet. Tickets will be available at the gate, the day of the Tournament, for a $15 donation. Discount group (20 or more) packages are also available by calling 540-1610.

CC state champion headed for MSU

Matt Helm, the 130-pound Class A wrestling champion last winter from Redford Catholic Central, has signed a national letter of intent to attend Michigan State University.

Two of Helm's teammates, Brian Tulley and Mike Gentile, meanwhile, will try to walk-on at Central Michigan University. Earlier this year, heavyweight champion Lee Krueger signed with the University of Wisconsin.

Chris Rodriguez, who placed third at the Class A meet at 152 pounds, will wrestle-and play lacrosse next year at Cushing Academy, a college prep school in Ashburnham, Mass.

wrestling

Helm, who is a three-time-district champion and two-time regional winner, was 51-3 last year. He was 193-22-1 in his career at CC.

"Matt will probably make an immediate impact at Michigan State," MSU wrestling coach Phil Parker said. "He is a very advanced wrestler. I am very pleased he decided to attend MSU."

Color: It makes spring grand

Walking through the woods on a sunny spring day is a grand experience. There are no insects to bother you, the temperature is just right for a light jacket, and the dashes of emerging color amidst the neutral tones of winter paint a smile on your face.

Among those dashes of color may be the delicate spring azure butterfly. Contrasting against the earthy browns of the forest floor, the fluttering flashes of sapphire sparkle to reflect the sky.

The flashes of blue are only seen when the upper surface of the wings are exposed during flight. Underwing coloration is silvery with a few black spots along the rear border of the wing. When on the ground, they hold their wings folded over their head, which makes them very difficult to locate.

This small, three-quarter inch to one and a quarter inch wide butterfly is one of the first to be seen in spring. Pupae overwinter as a chrysalis awaiting the warm temperatures and the longer day lengths to stimulate them to emerge.

Adults in spring show a more intense blue color than those that will emerge from pupa later in summer. They will feed on the nectar of early spring plants and on sap dripping from scars of a tree. Butterflies enjoy the sweet taste of sap just as we do, only we boil away most of the water to make it sweeter.

nature
Timothy Nowicki

Eggs from adults are laid on the buds and opening flowers of several plants, such as dogwoods and blueberries. Caterpillars are light cream color, with greenish sides and a dark chestnut colored head.

Spring azure larva have an interesting association with some species of ants. Larva exude a sweet tasting liquid which the ants eat as food. In return for this sweet liquid, the ants afford protection for the larva.

Some of the larva produced by those early emerging adults will remain in the pupa until next spring. Others will develop into lighter colored adults seen during the summer months.

Though there are many species of small blue butterflies in your field guide, the only one seen around southeastern Michigan is the delicate spring azure.

The writer is a naturalist at Independence Oaks in Oakland County.

Older adults host senior power day

"Senior Power — Building a Community of Generations" is the theme of the 15th annual Senior Power day May 16, which is expected to draw 4,000 senior citizens from southeastern Michigan to Lansing.

Supreme Court Chief Justice Dorothy Comstock Riley is serving as honorary chairwoman.

Tickets to Senior Power day are available to older adults living in southern and western Wayne County on a first-come, first-served basis at $2, which includes lunch and transportation to Lansing.

Participants will also attend a public hearing in the morning and a consumers fair, with nearly 100 exhibits.

For more information, call Georgia Bradford or Amy Punke at the Senior Alliance, 722-2830.

Octagon becomes warm, friendly space

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

BEFORE HE WAS he was a hairdresser, Arnold Edmunds, owner of Arnold's Salon of Rochester, was a draftsman for eight years.

That earlier skill obviously helped him develop a keen sense of line, space and volume. In any case, his eye for construction is well-honed. He is currently living in a 2,800 square foot octagon-shaped home he designed and had built several years ago. It is fourth home he has designed, but the first octagon.

"I just thought it would be a unique idea," he said. He credits his friend and roommate, Jerry Langdon, with a considerable amount of input into this unusual house. Edmunds subcontracts the construction.

The house is just east of Crooks and north of Hamlin, Rochester. It sits at the crest of a gently rolling hill that slopes down to flood plane and the Clinton River. The almost two-acre lot has 155 feet frontage on the river, but the house is positioned on the high ground, far back from the flood plane.

THE EXTERIOR is stained, random vertical cedar and fieldstone with a handsplit cedar shake roof. "It keeps the natural look," Edmunds said of the roof. And while he has pruned and trimmed every tree on the large lot, he has kept the natural look in the landscaping, all of which he did himself.

Inside there are two levels. The upper, which has the master suite, kitchen, dining area and pit style living room, opens to front deck, drive and 3 1/4-car garage. The lower level with two more bedrooms and bath, now occupied by Edmunds's toddler granddaughter and Langdon's young adult daughter, opens to the long stretch of yard running down to the river.

The two levels are connected by an attractively designed circular, wooden stairway.

ENERGY EFFICIENT or E-glass windows stretching from the ground level to the roof far above on the south side of the house provide continuity, drama and make the area adjacent to the stairway like a two-story atrium — a wonderful area for tall growing plants.

"The furnace is in the middle and it's excellent for heating value," said Edmunds.

The wood ceiling, the kitchen cabinets and all wood trim in the house are stained to match. There is a carry-through in the beige ceramic floor and counter tile as well.

"I didn't end up losing space as I thought I would," said Edmunds. "It's a great entertainment house, but it's also a real cozy house with a real pleasant atmosphere at night."

Arnold Edmunds's octagon house, a contemporary version of those built long ago, is located on high ground in Rochester overlooking the Clinton River. At right is the eclectic style dining room. The table was designed by Lumen-Essence of Troy.

An open floor plan for the kitchen, living room (down three steps) and dining room at far right, makes for easy entertaining and good traffic flow.

Federal Mogul opens doors for art auction

A tour of the art collection at Federal Mogul corporate headquarters in Southfield will be a bonus for those attending International Institute's fourth annual international auction beginning at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 21.

The docent tours of the art collection, a champagne brunch and silent auction will begin at 2 p.m. and the live auction will start at 4 p.m. The donated items range from dinners for two at restaurants such as Sweet Lorraine's, Adriano & Rina Tonon, any Chuck Muer restaurant, The Gnome, a week at the Homestead on Lake Michigan, a weekend for two at The Westin Hotel with dinner and brunch to jewelry, handbags, makeup, art, special professional services, an autographed Piston's basketball and a golf outing for three at Wabek Country Club.

Other items to be auctioned will be Michigan Opera Theatre tickets, appliances, Grand Prix passes, oriental rugs and objets d'art.

Joyce Hague, one of the chairmen of the event, said, "This is the third year of having the silent auction here."

The Federal Mogul art collection, which isn't open to the public, consists of about 50 works of art. "The main focus," said art collection curator, Bonnie Salisbury, "is on textiles and American Indian art." She said there are also some fine Andy Warhol silk screen prints. "We have been collecting since 1982. The collection started with the building of the new addition. It was done with the intention of enhancing the environment for the employees." She said the Indian art is very high quality and museum people come to look at it.

The Indian art is displayed in cases that are clear on all sides, usually by a window or glass wall, so it can be enjoyed from many perspectives. The textile collection includes Asian costumes. A three-story fiber sculpture by Robert L. Kidd of Birmingham dominates the lobby area of the new building. It is done in three related, roughly horizontal parts that can be enjoyed from more than three levels.

Proceeds from the auction support the International Institute's programs for the metropolitan area's foreign born.

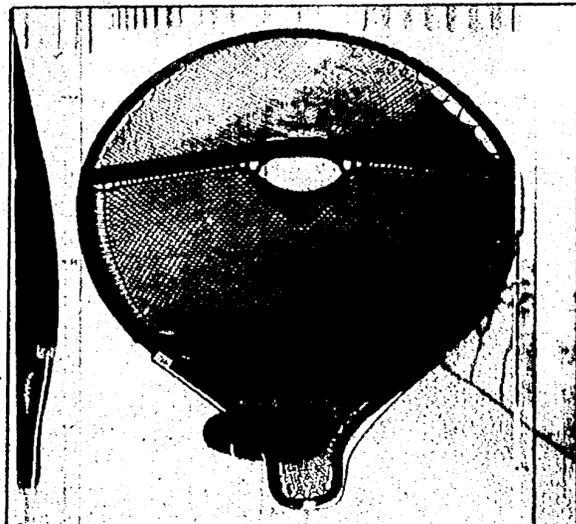

Dennis and Marge Gormley are the honorary chairmen. Serving as chairmen with Joyce Hague are her husband, Robert, of Birmingham, James and Rosemary Bannon of Detroit and Armen and Teryl Asher of Bloomfield Hills. Tickets to the event are $20. For information, call the International Institute, 871-8600.

chairman of the auction for the benefit of International Institute and Emma Minasian of the auction committee.

A prime example of one of a pair of beaver tail snow shoes made by the Ojibwa Indians of Michigan is on display at Federal Mogul.

Katchina doll was made by the Hopi or Zuni Indians and dates from 1940.

Piano OK in condo library

Q. We are moving from our large home to a new condominium. In our present home our grand piano has a special place in our living room. There's not enough space in the living room of our new condo for the piano. We have an open floor plan. The living room has a dining "L" and a small library that is just off the foyer, visible when you are in the living room. Would it look strange if I put the piano in the library?

A. No. On the contrary, I think it is a wonderful idea. I think your library will look quite grand with your book shelves and piano. Now, your library is also your music room.

I find it interesting that I received this letter from a reader when I have just bought a grand piano. My husband and I love music. For years we talked about buying a piano and taking lessons.

We soon found that buying a piano is a major investment, so we decided to look for a previously owned baby grand. We looked through the yellow pages and contacted every music store that refurbished pianos. We left our name along with the size our room would allow. For weeks we looked at pianos. If the tone was good, the finish was not. We were getting to the point of scrapping the idea when we received a phone call from Don David Piano Company in Ferndale.

Our baby grand has a beautiful ebony finish, new soundboard, new strings, new hardware and a wonderful tone. This piano company delivers the piano to you and tones it three or four weeks later — just enough time to let the instrument adjust to its new environment. We have taken four lessons and love every minute.

Q. What is the right height to hang pictures on the wall?

A. The height of pictures depends upon the room you wish to hang them in. If the room is a foyer or hallway, your eye level would be higher as you are normally standing or just passing through these areas rather than sitting.

In a room where you would be sitting, your eye level would be lower.

If you are hanging accessories over a sofa, be certain the items are high enough so those seated on the sofa don't hit their heads against those objects when leaning back.

Find opportunities for abstracts

The word "abstract" means apart from the recognizable object. This opens up a realm of photographic opportunities.

Shooting abstracts is a terrific exercise in enhancing your photographic vision, which in turn will greatly improve your picture-taking abilities.

A good place to begin is with architectural subjects. All the construction going on in the area provides a wealth of abstract, subject material. An isolated section of steel beams, reflections in glass panels or a geometric curve in a building corner all lend themselves well to abstract photography.

A GOOD way to make abstract pictures is to exclude part of the subject. We all tend to identify objects by their whole. We recognize their outlines and the context in which we find them.

A hot air balloon, for example, is easily recognized when we photograph it in its entirety coasting through the skies. But close cropping and unconventional framing of just a section of the balloon as it sits on the ground can produce a photograph of bold color and tight pattern that will make viewers guess what they're looking at.

Try using slow shutter speeds to form abstracts. Colorful clothes hung out to dry in a breeze will produce a formless blur when a long shutter speed is used. Or try intentionally moving the camera up and down as you shoot a field of flowers. You'll be pleased with the abstract results.

PHOTOGRAPH STILL lives through heavily textured glass for another kind of abstract feeling. A scrap of shower door glass obtained from your local glass dealer works fine.

Consider photographing your subject completely out of focus to where it may barely be recognized. There's no end to the possibilities for abstracts.

Nature abounds with abstract subjects, from the close pattern of veins in a single leaf to the vast array of geometric designs seen from an airplane.

I was recently photographing in one of the "slot" canyons near Page, Ariz., when I saw the scene in the accompanying photograph. It struck me right away as an immense landscape complete with waves, a luminescent mountain and a dramatic, black sky.

In actuality, I was wedged in a 3-foot section of the canyon, barely passible and with barely enough room to set up my tripod, looking straight up one of the sheer walls. This abstract is one of my favorite photographs from the trip.

So begin to think in abstract terms. Look through your camera that way, too.

Antelope Canyon near Page, Ariz., provided Monte Nagler with a truly abstract photograph which he has titled "Canyon Landscape."

Short shots

Photographer/teacher/writer Monte Nagler will conduct a three-session photography workshop and seminar for Cranbrook P.M. participants beginning at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 18.

A student of the late Ansel Adams, Nagler will explore during the May 18 session the depth-of-field and exposure so important to improving photographic abilities.

Piano OK in condo library

Q. We are moving from our large home to a new condominium. In our present home our grand piano has a special place in our living room. There's not enough space in the living room of our new condo for the piano. We have an open floor plan. The living room has a dining "L" and a small library that is just off the foyer, visible when you are in the living room. Would it look strange if I put the piano in the library?

A. No. On the contrary, I think it is a wonderful idea. I think your library will look quite grand with your book shelves and piano. Now, your library is also your music room.

I find it interesting that I received this letter from a reader when I have just bought a grand piano. My husband and I love music. For years we talked about buying a piano and taking lessons.

We soon found that buying a piano is a major investment, so we decided to look for a previously owned baby grand. We looked through the yellow pages and contacted every music store that refurbished pianos. We left our name along with the size our room would allow. For weeks we looked at pianos. If the tone was good, the finish was not. We were getting to the point of scrapping the idea when we received a phone call from Don David Piano Company in Ferndale.

Our baby grand has a beautiful ebony finish, new soundboard, new strings, new hardware and a wonderful tone. This piano company delivers the piano to you and tones it three or four weeks later — just enough time to let the instrument adjust to its new environment. We have taken four lessons and love every minute.

Q. What is the right height to hang pictures on the wall?

A. The height of pictures depends upon the room you wish to hang them in. If the room is a foyer or hallway, your eye level would be higher as you are normally standing or just passing through these areas rather than sitting.

In a room where you would be sitting, your eye level would be lower.

If you are hanging accessories over a sofa, be certain the items are high enough so those seated on the sofa don't hit their heads against those objects when leaning back.

Find opportunities for abstracts

The word "abstract" means apart from the recognizable object. This opens up a realm of photographic opportunities.

Shooting abstracts is a terrific exercise in enhancing your photographic vision, which in turn will greatly improve your picture-taking abilities.

A good place to begin is with architectural subjects. All the construction going on in the area provides a wealth of abstract, subject material. An isolated section of steel beams, reflections in glass panels or a geometric curve in a building corner all lend themselves well to abstract photography.

A GOOD way to make abstract pictures is to exclude part of the subject. We all tend to identify objects by their whole. We recognize their outlines and the context in which we find them.

A hot air balloon, for example, is easily recognized when we photograph it in its entirety coasting through the skies. But close cropping and unconventional framing of just a section of the balloon as it sits on the ground can produce a photograph of bold color and tight pattern that will make viewers guess what they're looking at.

Try using slow shutter speeds to form abstracts. Colorful clothes hung out to dry in a breeze will produce a formless blur when a long shutter speed is used. Or try intentionally moving the camera up and down as you shoot a field of flowers. You'll be pleased with the abstract results.

PHOTOGRAPH STILL lives through heavily textured glass for another kind of abstract feeling. A scrap of shower door glass obtained from your local glass dealer works fine.

Consider photographing your subject completely out of focus to where it may barely be recognized. There's no end to the possibilities for abstracts.

Nature abounds with abstract subjects, from the close pattern of veins in a single leaf to the vast array of geometric designs seen from an airplane.

I was recently photographing in one of the "slot" canyons near Page, Ariz., when I saw the scene in the accompanying photograph. It struck me right away as an immense landscape complete with waves, a luminescent mountain and a dramatic, black sky.

In actuality, I was wedged in a 3-foot section of the canyon, barely passible and with barely enough room to set up my tripod, looking straight up one of the sheer walls. This abstract is one of my favorite photographs from the trip.

So begin to think in abstract terms. Look through your camera that way, too.

New spray gives marbled effect

THIS IS great stuff," I claimed, as my aunt heaped a second helping of meat onto my rye bread. We were at my aunt's summer cottage. I, a mere teen, had just come in from swimming. I was so hungry, I was ready to eat anything. "This is great stuff," I again proclaimed, hoping a compliment would offset the quantity of meat I was stuffing down. With my mouth full, I muffled out the question, "What is this stuff? Is it roast beef?" "Well, sort of," my aunt replied.

After some hesitation, she said, "It's really tongue." "Tongue!" I blurted out. Lifting the bread, I then noticed the outside of each slice of meat had little taste buds, bumps — and somehow, all of a sudden, I felt full. Really full. Well, here are few relatively new products that could honestly be called great stuff — with no surprises. I HAPPEN TO love the look of marbled paper. It is a little difficult to marble fabric, though. There is a new product called spray webbing, which was primarily developed for spraying on material. I think spray webbing looks great on anything. It sprays out kind of stringy and seems to float towards whatever you aim it at. If you use several colors, you can create a beautiful marbled effect. Spray webbing is available in about 10 different colors. My favorites are gold, sprayed on black. It looks really neat. White and pink on gray look really neat too. Now, if you get paint slopped on your favorite shirt, you can just web it and it will look great.

It can be used on lamp shades, pottery, tennis shoes, shirts, workout clothes, mat boards, etc. Spray webbing is very uncontrollable, so if you want to spray a triangle shape on your shirt, here is what to do: Get some oak tag paper, drawing paper or just any heavy paper. Then cut out the triangle shape with an xacto knife. Take the paper from which you cut the triangle and spray the back with spray glue. Let it set a minute or two until the sprayed glue gets tacky. Then place the shape where you want it on the shirt. Run artifacts

your finger around the shape so that the paper sticks tightly to the shirt. Then mask off the rest of the shirt. Simply spray whatever colors you desire, then lift off all your masking paper. You will have a job that looks very professional. Try it, it's very easy. SEVERAL MONTHS AGO I wrote about how Super Sculpey was great stuff. Some people stopped in the store to tell me that it was too crumbly and they couldn't work with it. After talking to them a minute or two, I realized that they were talking about Sculpey, which is something different. Super Sculpey is nothing like Sculpey. Now, there is also a Sculpey III (sounds like a sequel movie). Sculpey III is the colored version of Super Sculpey. It comes in a wide spectrum of colors. Brilliant, metallics and regular colors. Customers brought in various pieces of jewelry, which to my amazement, were made of Super Sculpey III. In case you have never of Super Sculpey, it is a plastic type of modeling clay that does not shrink and does not dry out.

briefly speaking

- ROTHAMEL EXHIBIT
 Livonia artist Susan Pickering Rothamel has two things on tap at Jacobson's Livonia store. One will be a seminar from 7-8:30 p.m. Thursday, May 18, on "Art Education," in which she will discuss how to select artwork.
 The second event will be the opening of a monthlong exhibit of her artwork. A reception honoring the artist will take place from 6-9 p.m. Friday in the store's second floor art gallery. The public may attend; however, reservations are suggested by calling 591-7696, Ext. 294.
- FINE ARTS SALE/EXHIBIT
 The Garden City Fine Arts Association's 13th annual art exhibit and sale will be held during regular hours in the community's public library, 2021 Middlebelt Road from May 15-20, with the exception of Friday, May 19, when the library is closed.
- MELODY OF HOMES
 Nine distinctive homes plus the newly renovated Mayflower Hotel suites will be featured in "A Melody of Homes" tour sponsored by the Plymouth Symphony League from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, May 19. Tickets are $12. For more information, call 459-1358.
- ART SHOW
 In commemoration of National

- Nursing Home Week, Westland Convalescent Center, 36137 Warren, will host a week-long art show in the courtyard sitting room with the cooperation of the Dearborn Council of the Arts. The public is invited to drop by during the day to view the artwork.
- SCRAPS OF LIFE
 Arpilleras — small appliqued and embroidered wall hangings that show scenes of daily life in Chile — are on exhibit at the Swords into Plowshares Peace Center and Gallery now through July 8.
 This folk craft has become a tool of the women in Chile, many of whose husbands or sons have "disappeared," to expose and protest the repressiveness of the Pinochet dictatorship.
 The gallery is at 45 E. Adams on Grand Circus Park, opposite the People Mover station in the Whitney Building. Hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. For more information, call 965-5422.
- PIPPIN PUPPETS
 The Livonia Arts Commission will offer the Pippin Puppets in a show at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, May 13, in Civic Center Library, Livonia. Admission is $1. Tickets are available at the library during regular library hours. Seating is limited.
- VILLAGE ANTIQUE SHOW
 Dealers from across the nation display a variety of high quality antiques for sale at the annual Village Antiques Show May 12-14 in Lovett Hall at Greenfield Village. Proceeds will support museum and village educational programs that benefit children. Admission is $5.

ART ON AVENUE
 Over 100 artists and craftspeople, featuring watercolors, oils, photography, jewelry, pottery, woodcraft, glass and more, will take part in Art on the Avenue Friday-Saturday, May 13-14 on Garrison Avenue at Military in west Dearborn. Hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

LIVE AMONG THE RARE AND BEAUTIFUL.
 Aldingbrooke - West Bloomfield's premier rental community - has always attracted its own special flock. Our magnificent estate-like grounds are home to a collection of geese and swans. And to many of metropolitan Detroit's most discerning individuals and families. Set in a gated community, residents appreciate Aldingbrooke's world of privacy and custom options, with all the services they've come to expect from a luxury apartment community. Residences up to 2800 square feet include such desirable features as private entryways, split-level or ranch-style designs, dens, breakfast rooms, cathedral ceilings, fireplaces and attached garages. All for much less than you'd expect to pay for such luxury. From $650 to $1650 per month. Whatever your mind can imagine in luxurious living, you can discover on your first visit to Aldingbrooke. It is indeed rare and beautiful.

The Green Hill difference:

Do you come home to an apartment or a 75-acre estate?

Most apartment living measures 600+ sq. ft. Ours measures over 3,000,000 sq. ft. Green Hill residents enjoy a gorgeous 75-acre estate setting of park and woodland, peace and tranquility. You're right next door to the I-275 corridor, Michigan's multi-billion dollar explosive growth area and just minutes away from I-96, a direct route to downtown Detroit. See our 1- and 2-bedroom luxury apartments, terrace residences and country townhouses on 9 Mile, 1 1/2 miles west of Farmington Road in Farmington Hills.

Huge New Townhomes with Old English Charm.
 Foxpointe's 2 and 3-bedroom townhomes are huge. 1400 sq. ft. huge. And private. Private entrances. Private covered parking. Your own washer and dryer in your townhome. And it's all new. Brand new. But with Old English character. Now that's worth looking into.

"I finally found a townhome as large as a home."
 "I looked long and hard to find a 2000 sq. ft., cathedral ceiling elegant three-bedroom townhome. (Of course, I could have chosen a two or three-bedroom ranch.) With my own two-car attached garage, my own private basement and patio. And luxury touches like deluxe kitchens and whirlpool tubs plus landscaping that I love. Nothing could get me to move from Covington. Nothing."

Tips for a healthy vegetable garden

Good gardening is largely a matter of common sense. But it helps to know a couple of tricks. Here are some tips to help reduce your work load and keep your garden free of weeds and pests for a beautiful, bountiful harvest.

seed or started seedlings in tight blocks a foot or so square, with boards or straw-mulched paths in between. This checkerboard method leaves little bare ground for weeds to invade and gives easy access to plants.

DIG YOU MUST: Soil preparation is half the weed battle. Cultivate to a depth of eight to 10 inches with a tiller or by hand. You'll not only loosen and aerate the soil, you'll bury a lot of weed seeds and insect eggs deep enough to kill them.

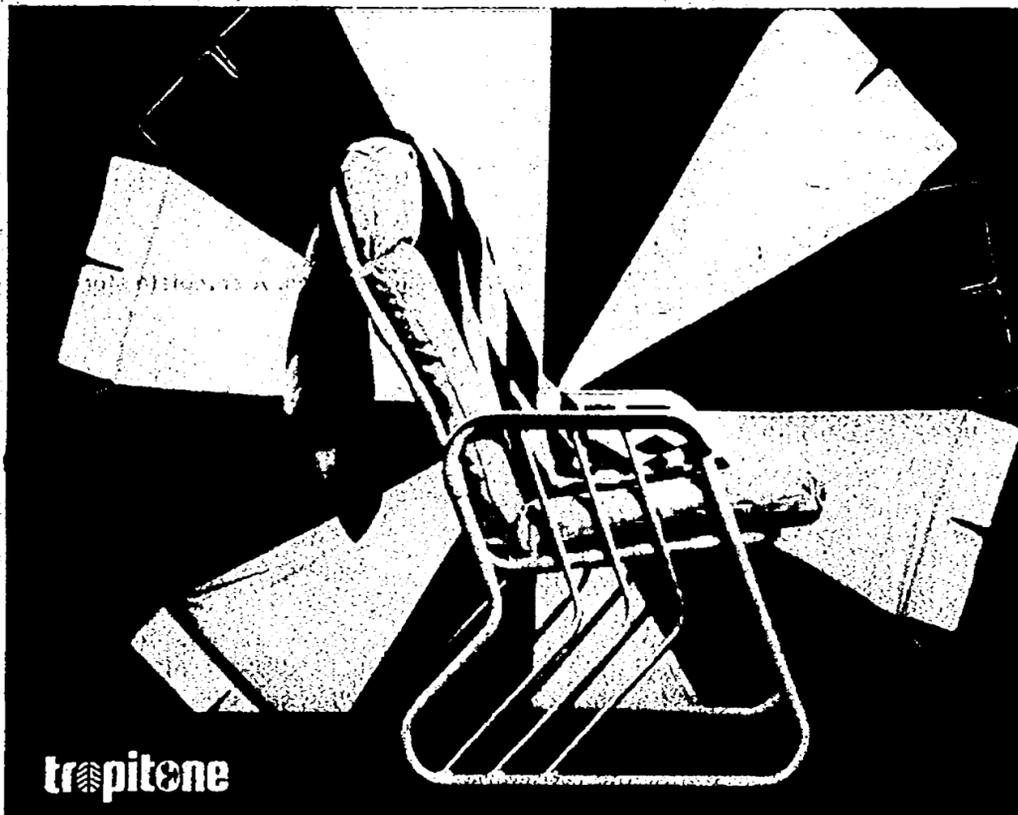

MIX THINGS UP A LITTLE: Mix blocks of vegetables with herbs, flowers, and other ornamental plants for a more interesting garden, and to discourage attack by large numbers of the same kind of pest.

CHOOSE SEEDS AND PLANTS CAREFULLY: Check seed packets or seedling labels for disease-resistance. A tomato labelled "VFN" means it's resistant to Verticillium wilt, Fusarium and nematodes. Ask the nurseryman what kinds are best. Pick varieties suited to your climate — early maturing types if you have a short growing season.

BEAT THE BUGS, SAFELY: You needn't panic and start spraying chemicals around if you see a bug. Plants can tolerate a few pests without serious damage. If you must take action, keep it simple:

- To control slugs, sink a shallow dish to its rim in the garden and fill it with beer. Crowds of these voracious pests will be attracted, fall in and drown overnight.
- To foil cutworms, put paper cup collars around your tomato plants, and sink them an inch or two into the soil.

PLANT IN BLOCKS: Plant your

AP — What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — An all-purpose anti-slip tape. Manufacturer's claim — That this tape is an expansion of the kind often seen in bathtubs to prevent slipping on the wet surface . . . that one of the types of this tape, the light-duty, is for use in bathtubs, showers and around pools and other barefoot areas . . . that another kind, the heavy-duty, comes in clear or black and is for steps, ramps, construction equipment, machinery and trucks . . . that its durable mineral surface provides protection even when exposed to water, grease or oil . . . that the medium-duty variety comes in gray or black, and is intended for stairs, ladders, boats, decks, docks, recreational vehicles and other possible slippage places . . . that the tape has an adhesive backing allowing it to be applied quickly and easily . . . and that it is available in 1-inch, 2-inch and 4 inch-wide rolls.

THE PRODUCT — A deck-design project planner. Manufacturer's claim — That this planner permits the development of a multitude of detailed pre-construction plans for an outside deck or patio up to 2,500 square feet in size . . . that it comes in hundreds of reusable peel-and-stick symbols of building materials, lighting fixtures and furniture . . . that the symbols cling firmly to the planner's rigid gridboard layout surface to develop furniture placement ideas and alternative deck designs . . . and that a scale ruler and comprehensive deck-design manual with design tips and advice are included in the kit.

THE PRODUCT — A new satin-finish coating in a spray container. Manufacturer's claim — That this new formulation delivers a permanent no-gloss satin finish in seconds . . . that it eliminates glossy sheen and light reflection . . . that it is moisture- and smudge-proof . . . that it dries fast to a smooth, professional finish . . . that it has a "no runs, no drips, no errors" formula . . . that it has an "initial dry" time of five to 15

Outdoor home

Patios, decks and high-tech furnishings

IT'S TIME to move outside. The whole world (more specifically, your yard) is waiting, full of fresh air, sunshine and soft breezes.

But is it ready?

To fully enjoy your home-outside-your-home, you need a lovely patio or deck, the right outdoor furniture and a few extras — such as an efficient barbecue.

Use the following tips to help you create your perfect warm-weather outdoor living (and entertaining) environment.

There are more options for a patio than a slab of concrete under an overhang outside your home's sliding glass door.

THE TREND TODAY is toward enclosed patios. These are bright, airy sun rooms that capture heat and light with all arched windows and skylights.

A contractor who specializes in patios can explain options such as garden windows, wood beam ceilings, brick or block walls, lattice covers, window awnings, sliding doors and more.

If all you really want is to cover that ugly concrete slab, consider one of the new aggregate-and-epoxy surfaces. These create smooth glistening coating of tiny pebbles that resemble a stream bed. The surface is durable enough to park on — and it completely covers cracks and other imperfections.

Other patio "paving" options you'll want to consider include tile, brick, slabs of stone and out-door carpeting.

ACCORDING TO lumber and hardware retailers, decks have become one of the top do-it-yourself home improvement projects.

Home owners are building decks on new homes and old ones, to fit around pools, play areas, trees, water gardens and hot tubs.

"It is something that normally just about any of the home owners can handle," says Joe Carter, owner of a lumber company.

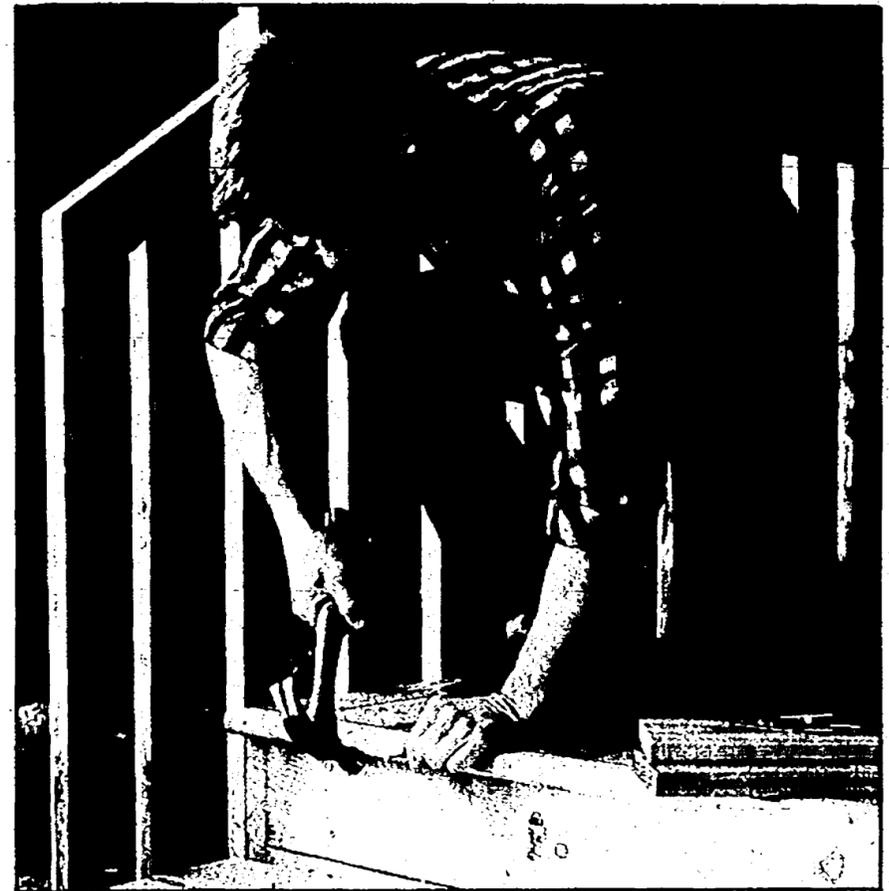

Decks are a relatively inexpensive way to add living space. Carter says even the most elaborate deck wouldn't cost much more than $4.25 per square foot in materials.

Experts suggest making a deck an extension of a high-traffic room. A deck set off a kitchen or a family room is far more likely to be useful than one extending from a back hallway or a little-used dining room.

In addition to consulting the experts at your local hardware and lumber stores, check your local bookstores and video dealers for helpful how-to information on deck building.

THE LIVIN' HAS never been easier or more comfortable, thanks to new materials, finishes and designs for outdoor furniture.

The technology is impressive. Drench a chair or chaise with rain, pool or salt water: It won't rust. Scorching sun won't cause it to yellow, fade, split or crack. And it's cool, too, as well as comfortable and well-designed.

Colorful floral-print and striped umbrellas seem almost transparent, but don't let that fool you. They're made of a durable new vinyl-coated polyester mesh designed to screen out light and heat.

New polyester cushions are designed so that water simply runs through them; they're never soggy. When the sun comes out, the cushions dry as good as new, their colors as bright as ever. They also resist mildew and are tough enough for kids.

Outdoor chairs and tables made of tubular steel look elegant but require no upkeep — they're treated with a permanent finish.

THANKS TO 20th century technology, the lacy designs of Victorian wrought-iron benches, tables and chairs are available today. They're virtually indestructible — outdoor furnishings experts describe them as "three generation furniture."

Wrought iron once came only in black or white, but now it's blooming in vivid brights and soft pastels.

Molded plastic lends itself to handsome and versatile pieces for porches, patios and gardens. A dining table converts to a coffee table; another becomes several small tables and a folding cart. Lacquered resins protect the surface from rain, salt-water and ultraviolet radiation.

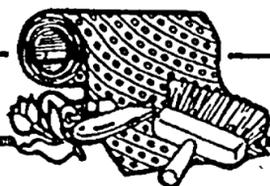

Aluminum has the advantage of being lightweight and inexpensive, but it should be protected from the corrosive effects of seawater. Manufacturers suggest applying a coat of auto wax once a year.

Director's chairs now come in three heights — counter, bar and standard. Canvas seats are available in a rainbow of colors, with finishes that resist mildew; vinyl seats also are bright and practical. If you entertain frequently, keep a stash of these folded in your garage, ready to go.

M-M-M SMELL THAT steak, sizzling on the barbecue. Wrap those ears of corn in foil and pop'em on, too.

No patio or deck is complete without a barbecue or grill. New ones are sleeker and more efficient than ever.

Consider having a masonry contractor add a built-in barbecue to your patio or deck.

Copley News Service

Well, pool design has come a long way since then. Yesteryear's basic swimming pools have given way to pool-scapes that rival the lushest tropical lagoons and cost as much as a small house to design and install.

Today, few pools are unaccompanied by a Jacuzzi. Many have detailed landscaping, waterfalls, built-in platforms for sunbathing and handpainted accent tiles.

A nearby cabana is convenient for guests and completes the resort-at-home feeling. And even the smallest backyards can accommodate a handsome lap pool.

Pools and spas are not only aesthetic, they offer significant physical fitness and health benefits. And, of course, a pool or spa adds value to a home.

A POOL OWNER, whether he has a large pool or a lap pool, finds that his pool is not only functional, but has also turned his backyard into a social and recreational center.

Pools can bring families closer together. They get people out of the house away from television. They even bring parents and their kids closer together. And, for many, the pool is a status symbol.

Residential pools used to be boring blue rectangles ringed by concrete and lawn chairs. Jungle gyms of exposed plumbing supplied heat and chemicals for the water.

Today's backyard pools and spas are stylish, lavish and interesting. Pool contractors report a boom in demand for pools with such fancy extras as waterfalls, landscaping, gazebos, whirlpools, computerized control systems and colored underwater lights.

Many home owners tailor pools to their home and backyards, using extensive landscaping, the goal is to make the pool look like a natural part of the topography.

SOUNDS GREAT!— but how does anyone afford it? The solution for many is a home equity loan. Families remortgage their homes to finance pools that cost between $50,000 and $100,000.

Prices of pools vary according to size and construction material. Concrete is most expensive, fiberglass less so. Pools with vinyl liners are least costly.

The big bonus in putting a pool in their backyard is the control you gain over your leisure time. Many people find that designing their own backyard resort is less expensive — and more convenient — than having a condo on the beach or a mountain cabin.

Pool contractors report that the most requested extra feature is a spa or Jacuzzi with jets for heated water (approximate price: $4,700).

Spas are very popular and many customers favor poolpa combinations. They offer a favorite method of relaxing at the end of the day. And spas are therapeutic, massaging the body and settling the nerves.

LIKE POOLS. SPAS have evolved in style. They're more elaborate than ever before. Optional appointments include Roman steps and love seats, decorative tile and potted plants.

Spas may be portable or permanently fixed. The most popular spa is 6 to 7 feet in diameter and 3 feet deep, but they come in other sizes, too, depending on space available.

Some are so elaborate that molded rock forms give them the appearance of being near a mountainside.

Sometimes spas are part of pool systems that can be operated electronically. A touch of the finger on a remote-control device at poolside can start the spa, the fountain, the waterfall. And turn them off, too.

But not all spas are built in the open. They can be installed in the home too, in the master bath area or in a room with a sauna and exercise room. A spa can fit in almost anywhere so long as the floor will support the weight.

IF YOU WANT A pool so you can swim your way to good health and physical fitness — but you're limited on space — consider a lap pool.

Lap pools can be just the right size for town houses, as well as for the small backyard of single family homes.

Just right for condominium dwellers too.

These minipools are long, narrow and not too deep and usually have racing stripes painted on the bottom. They're perfectly suited for swimming laps and competitive water sports,

Since lap pools are usually about 40 feet long and 5 feet deep in the center, they can be incorporated into or built next to regular pools if space is sufficient.

"Swim spas" smaller pools equipped with underwater jets, can also function as exercise pools. The current created by the jets allows you to swim in place.

Keep in mind that lap pools don't have to look like gym pools, they may be functional, but they also can be as decorative as any larger pool.

Floors and walls

From tile to paper, creative surface magic

AFTER spending an afternoon traipsing through elegant model homes and beautiful designer showrooms, your home suddenly looks blah in comparison. Your first temptation may be to gut the entire house and start from scratch.

Before calling in a demolition team, take a good look at the interior of your home. Chances are it's not as dull or lackluster as you first imagined. A few minor decorating changes may be all that's required.

Wallpaper is one of the best ways to brighten up a room. There are thousands of wall coverings on the market today, ranging from elegant grass cloths to velvety fabrics to glittering metallics. Most wall coverings come prepaste and pretrimmed for easier installation.

Before setting out to buy wallpaper, determine how much light a room gets during the daytime. A sunny room can cause a light-colored wall covering to appear washed out. A darker wall covering, on the other hand, can sometimes take on a rich, warm glow when hit by sunlight.

ALSO, KEEP IN mind the colors and patterns of adjacent rooms. By selecting a harmonious color palette, the transition from one room to another will be smoother and your home will take on a more pulled-together look.

In general, dark colors make a room appear smaller while light papers do the reverse.

Don't necessarily opt for a small subtle pattern for a small room. Often a large-scale motif can create the illusion that your room is larger than it really is.

To give your walls some pizzazz, designers recommend that you combine two patterns, one for the top half and one for the bottom half, using a coordinating border to separate them.

If you can't afford to wallpaper an entire room, you can still spruce up a room with a border. Used creatively, borders can give a room dimension and create interesting architectural details where none exist.

Borders aren't restricted to just walls these days. They can add color and style to a room when used to trim windows, fireplaces, mantels or door panels.

An ideal solution for bumpy or heavily damaged walls is the use of fabric. Sometimes the fabric can be applied directly to the wall's surface, but usually a layer of batting or thin foam rubber is applied to make the wall smooth.

COMMERCIAL FABRIC wall coverings usually come with paper backing and can be applied directly to the wall with a wall covering adhesive.

Unbacked fabric also can be attached to the wall with an adhesive or can be secured using a staple gun. Slightly woven fabrics tend to work the best.

One of the newest trends for adorning walls is a technique called "wall printing," which is akin to stenciling. Using a machine that resembles a hand-held printing press, a professional wall printer applies a design of your choice directly on the wall in up to three colors of paint. The final result looks like wallpaper but costs about half as much.

If you've toured model homes recently, you already know how popular

Feathered friends like a variety

A huge yard or a biology degree is not needed to create a haven for feathered creatures. Follow these tips and birds will be flocking in the backyard in no time.

- To attract a variety of birds, plant an assortment of trees, shrubs and flowers that produce fruit, berries, seeds and nectar.
- Include some trees and shrubs, such as evergreen and thorny bushes, that protect birds from natural enemies and provide safe nesting sites.
- Choose plants that change with the seasons. For instance, crimson buds that open into white blossoms in spring cover Tom's Zumi crab apple.
- Mix annuals and perennials for continuous bloom April into October. Old varieties often provide more nec-

- tar than new hybrids.
- Remember the hardy native plants and shrubs, such as gray dogwood, goldenrod and little bluestem, that can supply shelter and food.
- Vary the heights of plant masses. Keep shorter plants in the front so that plants and the birds that feed on them can be seen.
- Leave open areas, both to attract wildlife and to give a better view.
- At least once a month, scrub birdbaths and bird feeders with a cloth or scouring pad to prevent the spread of disease (don't use detergents or chemical cleaners).
- Avoid chemical pest controls to protect birds. Besides, birds help control pests and destroy weed seeds.

'Garden mulch' — sounds ugly, looks great

TAKE A look at the landscaping in any industrial park and you'll see mulch. It's that layer of pine bark nuggets, wood chips or stone spread around the plants and flowers that gives the whole job a clean, finished appearance.

Popular in commercial installations, mulch is mostly overlooked by homeowners and that's too bad. The right mulch in the right place will not only give your garden and landscaped areas a nice, manicured look, it will save you literally tons of water by holding moisture in the soil.

Mulch also keeps weeds in the dark so they don't come up. And, if you use organic mulches, they'll improve your soil as they decompose. Mulches can be bought at the garden center, or you can make your own using a garden shredder. Here are some mulches to consider:

1. Pine Bark or Needles: Pine bark comes in shreds, chips and nuggets of various sizes. It has a soft brown color and pleasant texture. Pine needles are also a lovely, good-smelling mulch. All will last several years, gradually breaking down and improving the soil. Pine mulches acidify the soil so they're best around evergreens, rhododendrons, azaleas and other plants which like this condition. Elsewhere, apply limestone to offset acidity.

2. Wood chips: You can buy wood chips, but it's easy to make your own using a garden shredder. Machines like the Vornado Chipp'r/Shredd'r/Mulch'r handles heavy wood up to 1 1/2 inches in diameter, as well as grass clippings, fallen leaves and garden waste. These machines are available in gas or electric models and can be purchased at hardware stores, garden centers, and wherever outdoor power equipment is sold.

3. Leaves and grass clippings: Shredded, both of these natural byproducts of your yard make excellent mulches. Neither grass nor leaves should be used unprocessed as they will compact and form an impenetrable mat.

4. Salt hay and straw: Not as attractive as bark or chips, but great for the vegetable garden, salt hay and straw decompose in one season and improve the soil. While in place, these and other mulches keep vegetables clean and minimize weeding and watering.

5. Stones and other inorganic mulches: Gravel, river stones, sheet plastic and various synthetic fabrics all have some value as mulch — black plastic is great for tomatoes — but won't improve soil quality as organics will.

Mulch saves water, keeps weeds down and gives landscaped areas a professional, finished look.

minutes and a "thorough dry" time of one to two hours before the painted surface is fully hardened . . . that it resists sagging and will not create an orange peel effect . . . and that subsequent coats can be applied without a lifting or breaking down of the film bond.

THE PRODUCT — A fire extinguisher whose contents expand up to 180 times when its volume is released.

Manufacturer's claim — That this extinguisher has a clean, clear odorless vapor . . . that it removes oxygen, the means of combustion that keeps a fire going . . . that it is simple and effective . . . that a small unit can be kept in a kitchen for grease fires, in the car or near gasoline mowers, home computers and electrical equipment . . . that the vapor evaporates completely with no residue so that no cleanup is necessary after a fire . . . and that the key factor in its effectiveness is the tremendous expansion of its vapor when released.

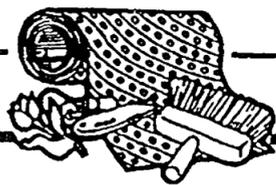

(The anti-slip tape is manufactured by 3M, the 3M Center, St. Paul, Minn. 55114; the deck planner by Stanley Tools, New Britain, Conn. 06050; the spray satin finish by Borden Inc., 180 East Broad St., Columbus, Ohio 43215; and the fire extinguisher by International Safety Marketing Inc., P.O. Box 4629, Martinsville, Va. 24112.)

DesignCenter is innovative step in home projects

THE WEYERHAEUSER DesignCenter, a highly innovative home improvement tool for the building products industry, which brings a new standard of consumer design flexibility, building confidence and budget control to home improvement projects, is beginning to show up in area home centers.

Installed in participating home centers and lumber yards, the Weyerhaeuser DesignCenter is an interactive computer-based design system.

It allows store personnel to help consumers quickly, easily and enjoyably create three-dimensional designs for home improvement projects.

THE FIRST DesignCenter module, or software capability, to be introduced allows do-it-yourselfers to explore easily various deck configurations that detail shapes, railings and stairs on the DesignCenter video screen.

Designs can be rotated and looked at from any angle, including the top, the side, underneath or a three-quarter view.

"We've found that as consumers attempt to translate their ideas into shape, confusion and frustration can often result," said Bill Blankenship, Weyerhaeuser vice president of sales and distribution.

"The DesignCenter technology simplifies this process and lets consumers visually bring their design ideas to life."

WHEN THE deck design is selected by the consumer, the design center will provide a three-dimensional, color rendering; construction details; materials list and materials cost. The entire process takes just minutes.

Consumers can then buy all of the materials on their list, plus receive a Weyerhaeuser DesignCenter "How to Build a Deck" brochure, which provides the step-by-step construction details.

Weyerhaeuser consumer research shows the families of the '90s will be more home oriented, increasingly involved in do-it-yourself projects, and eager to exhibit greater control of the project design function.

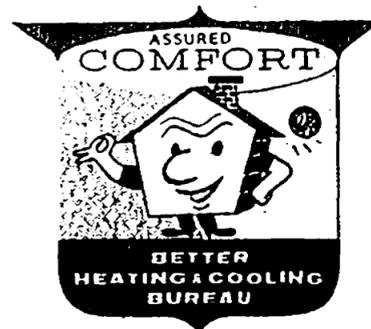

Consumers or professional contractors do not need any prior computer knowledge as they work side-by-side with a trained store salesperson, who helps them find the right design for their custom project.

Area stores that have the service so far include Birmingham Lumber, 777 S. Eton Road; Haggerty Lumber, 2055 Haggerty Road, Walled Lake; and Handy Andy/Forest City, 13507 Middlebelt Road, Livonia.

The Weyerhaeuser DesignCenter features computer hardware and software, a video screen, operating controls and a four-color printer. With the aid of a track ball and a Weyerhaeuser-trained sales representative, consumers input information and watch their home improvement ideas take shape.

A MESSAGE FROM THE BETTER HEATING & COOLING BUREAU

Dear Southeastern Michigan Consumer,
DON'T TAKE A CHANCE ON ANYONE BUT A MEMBER OF THE BETTER HEATING AND COOLING BUREAU.

Have you ever considered how vitally important the heating/cooling system of your home is? It should give steady year 'round comfort. It can keep all of your rooms at a uniform, healthy temperature, or it can leave some areas drafty and chilly, causing your youngsters to catch cold easily. Your heating/cooling system can be highly efficient and economical, or it can be faulty with high repair bills.

Yes, your heating/cooling system is vitally important and it should be properly sized, equipped and installed to fit your home's exact needs. It should give you care-free relaxed comfort all year through. But how can you be sure a heating/cooling system is exactly right before you buy a home or before you have a replacement system installed? How can you know it will actually give you and your family the year 'round comfort so necessary to your health and well-being? How can you be sure your system will operate efficiently and economically?

THE ANSWER...
INSTALL A HEATING/COOLING SYSTEM IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE BETTER HEATING AND COOLING BUREAU'S RIGID RESIDENTIAL STANDARDS WHICH INCLUDE THE FOLLOWING IMPORTANT BENEFITS:

1. Heating/Cooling System will give uniform comfort in every room.
2. Highest quality materials will be used and properly installed for economical operation.
3. Materials and workmanship will be honestly priced.
4. Materials and workmanship must be the highest standards.

Top scholars win academic honors

They tackle it all — a tough academic schedule, jobs, volunteer work — and do it with flying colors.

The Observer Academic All-Stars, Class of 1989, offer hope for the future. They are the best and brightest of local public and private schools in the Observer area. It is students like these, eyeing careers in the medical and science professions, who will lead us into the 21st Century.

The 16 members of the fifth annual All-Star team were selected based on high school grade point average combined with national test scores.

Meet our 16 academic honorees, profiled here.

ANINDYA K. ROY Plymouth Salem High School

Anindya K. Roy has a worldly background. Born in West Germany, he immigrated with his parents to the United States when he was a toddler. He attended elementary and junior high in Michigan and Ohio. He keeps close ties with relatives in West Germany, England, India and Bangladesh, spending an elementary school year in India. He is fluent in German and Bengali.

He recently spent four weeks in Calcutta becoming familiar with Indian culture. To carry over that experience to this country, he is part of a local organization, Bichitra, whose objective is integrating cultures of different origins.

"Through this group, one learns the importance of good human relations," wrote Roy.

A straight "A" student (double promoted after seventh grade and winner of the Plymouth/Canton Schools spelling bee in the ninth grade), Roy spends his spare time in German club activities. He also reads books ranging from "Economics" by J.K. Mitra to "Rules for Radicals" by Saul Alinsky. He enjoys reading newspaper editorials, playing guitar, and following the progress of the Detroit Tigers and Detroit Pistons.

He has been admitted into the U-M College of Literature, Science and Arts and is being considered for admission into the school's Interflex program for medicine. He's also being considered for a National Merit Scholarship.

BRADD W. SZONYE Stevenson High School, Livonia

Bradd Szonye has earned summa cum laude honors four years. He is a National Merit Scholarship finalist, a National Honor Society inductee, and bronze winner of the Michigan Math Prize competition.

Szonye is Quiz Bowl club president and team captain; editor of "Spectrum," a literary arts magazine; computer programming team captain; chess club officer; and a member of the senior class council.

He will attend the U-M College of Engineering in September, majoring in computer engineering. He would like to pursue a career in computer programming or computer design.

His biggest academic influence: "My teachers have encouraged me, my friends have supported me, and my adversaries challenged me; I can't praise any single person without denying dozens more their just recognition."

Bradd W. Szonye

Sarah R. Andrews

SARAH R. ANDREWS Plymouth Salem High School

Sarah Andrews is a National Merit Scholarship semifinalist who will attend the U-M or the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Va. She will pursue a degree program in the math or science field.

Andrews has been on the Salem varsity swim team since sophomore year, the varsity golf team since junior year (she is captain this year), in the school choir since 11th grade, in the State Honors Choir and involved in the school play.

"Dallas Goss, my 10th grade biology blue teacher," is identified as her strongest academic influence for "taking a subject I didn't particularly enjoy and making it more interesting. His class taught me how to study and the enjoyment of learning something new."

JEREMY D. FINDLEY Churchill High School, Livonia

ber of the Choralation show choir, pep band, jazz band and school musical.

He is on the band boosters executive board, was a member of the track team freshman year, sings in the church choir, is a Safe Rides program participant, organized a bottle drive to benefit Children's Hospital, is a mentor for the Livonia Public Schools Arts Camp, Presbyterian Youth Fellowship, a volunteer in a nursing home, member of the Compton-Buckingham Summer Swim Team and the Clarenceville Swim Club.

Accolades include class scholar, summa cum laude, Michigan Math Test semifinalist, Advanced Placement Chemistry medalist, Advanced Placement Biology medalist, excellence in physics, chemistry, and math. And winner of the Sigma Merit Award.

Findley plans to study business economics in college, then work in a corporate structure while pursuing a master's degree in business.

"My lifetime goal is to be a successful, well-rounded involved member of my community, as I contribute as a business person in the 21st Century."

Findley credits his family as his greatest academic influence, encouraging him to excel, set high expectations and realize the value of a quality education.

Jeremy D. Findley

ALAN L. MacNEILL Clarenceville High School, Livonia

Alan MacNeil plans to attend college and law school, with the eventual goal of entering politics or public service.

He was auditorium crew chief for the school musical, state committee chairman for Youth in Government, school chapter vice president, Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD) treasurer, and news editor of the school paper.

He won honorable mention in the Michigan Math Prize competition, is a National Merit Scholarship semifinalist, and the school's top scorer — American High Mathematics Examination. He is a finalist in the Michigan State University Alumni Distinguished Scholarship, a semifinalist in the Ronald W. Reagan Scholarship at Eureka College.

His greatest academic influence is his counselors "Lynda Park and Denis Ringle kept pushing me forward to harder and harder challenges, but always warned me when they thought I was over challenging myself."

Alan L. MacNeill

Matthew D. Downer

MATTHEW D. DOWNER Stevenson High School, Livonia

Matthew Downer is a member of the tennis varsity team, class council, French club vice president, academic contest team and mock trial team defense attorney. He enjoys playing guitar and tutoring and working on political campaigns.

He was in the top 50 finalists for the Michigan Math Prize competition, is a National Merit finalist, was selected to the 1988 Boys State camp, won first place in a bridge building contest, is in the Top 20 of the Michigan Math League.

Downer plans to attend a "prestigious university followed by graduate work in law or business and a corresponding career."

He credits his parents as his biggest academic influence for assisting in every way possible.

VIET "TONY" N. LE John Glenn High School, Westland

Viet or "Tony" Le is a member of the Thespians, is yearbook co-editor in chief, has been involved in three school plays, a member of the computer team in 10th and 12th grades and a member of the National Honor Society.

He is a Michigan Math Prize finalist and bronze medalist, recipient of academic letters junior and senior year, and a National Merit finalist.

Le wants to attend the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, California Technological Institute or the U-M to major in some field of engineering, possibly electrical engineering. He plans to keep up his interest in drama.

Realistically he has chosen engineering as a career, but in his heart he'd like to be an actor on the stage or screen.

"I've chosen engineering, most likely the fast-paced career of electronic engineering. I like engineering because, since childhood, I have liked to build things and see how they work.

"Maybe, if I'm creative enough, I'll invent some machine that will benefit mankind."

His mother has been his greatest influence "for keeping my spirits up."

Viet "Tony" N. Le

Erik J. Sunday

ERIK J. SUNDAY
Catholic Central High School, Redford

Erik Sunday is Quiz Bowl captain, on the yearbook staff, cross country ski team, science club, church youth group and a volunteer in political work.

He is a member of the National Honor Society, a National Merit finalist, regional finalist in the National French contest, on the Detroit Archdiocese academic team, and a member of the Gabriel Richard Society.

He plans to study psychology at the U-M or MSU.

His greatest academic influence have been his teachers, who have "shown me my potential and had the patience to teach me the things useful in developing."

Marc W. Bockrath

MARC W. BOCKRATH
North Farmington High School,
Farmington Hills

Marc Bockrath is on the tennis team, in the German club, on the computer team, a member of Northern Cities singing group, a member of the Science Olympiad and a member of the National Honor Society.

He is a National Merit finalist, and won a certificate of merit in the Michigan Math competition.

He wants to pursue a doctoral degree in physics or astrophysics.

"I have been influenced not by a specific person, but by my goal of becoming a scientist. The pursuit of knowledge has been significant at all times to produce motivation," he said.

Lane T. Beatty

LANE T. BEATTY
Plymouth Canton High School

Lane Beatty is sports director of WSDP-FM radio and also involved in the music department. He is on the varsity track and field team and a member of the National Honor Society.

Beatty will attend the U-M pursuing a career in broadcasting or a related field.

Ranked number one in his class, he has been on the honor roll seven semesters, won academic recognition from Western Michigan University, the academic excellence award from MSU, and is a finalist for the medalion award at Western.

"My parents have influenced me the most with their constant pushing in academics while recognizing my past accomplishments," he said.

Anthony A. Mikulec

ANTHONY A. MIKULEC
Catholic Central High School, Redford

Anthony Mikulec has been involved in a variety of diverse activities. Playing tennis is a big part of his life. He was ranked number 48 in the United States and is currently striving for his third national ranking. He plays an average of 20 singles tournaments a year and has played international tournaments in Europe and America.

He is a member of the National Honor Society, Gabriel Richard club, was a member of the yearbook committee and the debate/forensics team. This year he is involved with the school paper, Citizen Bee competition, Science Olympiad, monogram club, tennis, the national Spanish contest and a chess tournament.

His science project received grand prize in both the school science fair and the Metro Detroit Science Fair, with 2,727 participants. He will compete now in an international competition in Puerto Rico.

Outside school, he has worked as a volunteer in the pathology department of a hospital and has worked on two political campaigns. He also enjoys bicycling, playing baseball and reading books and news magazines.

Both his parents were born and raised in Czechoslovakia. He has visited there many times.

"One of the major concepts it has allowed me to realize is how valuable many of the things we take for granted, but that do not exist there, really are, and it makes me proud and thankful to be an American citizen," wrote Mikulec.

He plans to pursue a career in medicine.

JOHN D. MUELLER
Bishop Borgess High School, Redford

John Mueller of Detroit has been in-

involved in a myriad of activities — National Honor Society, class co-president junior and senior year, school newspaper writer and editor this year, intramural floor hockey team captain, Great Lakes Invitational Model United Nations participant and on the computer competition team.

He has been his school's top scorer in the Michigan Math League, National Science Olympiad medalist in chemistry and physics, won the Rensselaer Medal for Math and Science senior year, Wayne State University Watertown contest junior year and has been a lector for school masses since freshman year.

He has been a Serendipity retreat leader for two years, a member of the St. Gerard's youth group and a youth minister there. He has played intramural basketball and is a National Merit Scholarship finalist.

He will attend MSU College of Engineering.

He credits his parents as his biggest academic influence for "telling me to live up to my responsibilities and by encouraging me to do my best."

John D. Mueller

Ajay K. Arora

AJAY K. ARORA
Farmington High School, Farmington

Ajay Arora will pursue a career in engineering. He plans to attend the U-M this fall.

Marc Bockrath is on the tennis team, in the German club, on the computer team, a member of Northern Cities singing group, a member of the Science Olympiad and a member of the National Honor Society.

He is a National Merit finalist, and won a certificate of merit in the Michigan Math competition.

He wants to pursue a doctoral degree in physics or astrophysics.

"I have been influenced not by a specific person, but by my goal of becoming a scientist. The pursuit of knowledge has been significant at all times to produce motivation," he said.

Lane T. Beatty

LANE T. BEATTY
Plymouth Canton High School

Lane Beatty is sports director of WSDP-FM radio and also involved in the music department. He is on the varsity track and field team and a member of the National Honor Society.

Beatty will attend the U-M pursuing a career in broadcasting or a related field.

Ranked number one in his class, he has been on the honor roll seven semesters, won academic recognition from Western Michigan University, the academic excellence award from MSU, and is a finalist for the medalion award at Western.

Anthony A. Mikulec

ANTHONY A. MIKULEC
Catholic Central High School, Redford

Anthony Mikulec has been involved in a variety of diverse activities. Playing tennis is a big part of his life. He was ranked number 48 in the United States and is currently striving for his third national ranking. He plays an average of 20 singles tournaments a year and has played international tournaments in Europe and America.

He is a member of the National Honor Society, Gabriel Richard club, was a member of the yearbook committee and the debate/forensics team. This year he is involved with the school paper, Citizen Bee competition, Science Olympiad, monogram club, tennis, the national Spanish contest and a chess tournament.

His science project received grand prize in both the school science fair and the Metro Detroit Science Fair, with 2,727 participants. He will compete now in an international competition in Puerto Rico.

Outside school, he has worked as a volunteer in the pathology department of a hospital and has worked on two political campaigns. He also enjoys bicycling, playing baseball and reading books and news magazines.

Both his parents were born and raised in Czechoslovakia. He has visited there many times.

"One of the major concepts it has allowed me to realize is how valuable many of the things we take for granted, but that do not exist there, really are, and it makes me proud and thankful to be an American citizen," wrote Mikulec.

He plans to pursue a career in medicine.

JOHN D. MUELLER
Bishop Borgess High School, Redford

John Mueller of Detroit has been in-

involved in a myriad of activities — National Honor Society, class co-president junior and senior year, school newspaper writer and editor this year, intramural floor hockey team captain, Great Lakes Invitational Model United Nations participant and on the computer competition team.

He has been his school's top scorer in the Michigan Math League, National Science Olympiad medalist in chemistry and physics, won the Rensselaer Medal for Math and Science senior year, Wayne State University Watertower contest junior year and has been a lector for school masses since freshman year.

He has been a Serendipity retreat leader for two years, a member of the St. Gerard's youth group and a youth minister there. He has played intramural basketball and is a National Merit Scholarship finalist.

He will attend MSU College of Engineering.

He credits his parents as his biggest academic influence for "telling me to live up to my responsibilities and by encouraging me to do my best."

John D. Mueller

AJAY K. ARORA
Farmington High School, Farmington

Ajay Arora will pursue a career in engineering. He plans to attend the U-M this fall.

Arora plays tennis, is in the marching band, and participates in the physics club, math club, Spanish club and ski club, as well as being a member of

1989 WSU Merit Scholar Selections

Congratulations!

Each year, Wayne State University selects over 400 scholars from among the high-achievers in the tri-county high schools to receive full tuition scholarships to Wayne State University. These student leaders represent the top five percent of their classes and have achieved a mean grade point average of 3.85 during their high school careers. Congratulations students, parents, teachers! The students were named as awardees for the 1989-90 academic year.

Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD). He has a part-time job as a computer operator.

He is a Michigan Math Prize finalist in the Academic Hall of Fame, on the honor roll, received Midwest Talent Search recognition and MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) recognition.

He credits his father as being his greatest academic influence for "motivating me to always excel."

James E. Hartnett

JAMES E. HARTNETT
Plymouth Canton High School

James Hartnett has applied to several universities with the intent of majoring in history or civil engineering.

He is a varsity swimming team tri-captain and a member of the Livonia Spartan Aquatic Club.

He is ranked number one in class with all As since freshman year. He is vice president of the National Honor Society and a Science Olympiad team member.

His father is his greatest academic influence "for setting continuous excellent work habits."

Yolanda Wu

YOLANDA WU

North Farmington High School,
Farmington Hills

Yolanda Wu is a member of the National Honor Society and has been involved with the organization in several positions of leadership. She also has been on the girls' tennis team and was boys tennis team manager. She was selected to participate in the Presidential Inauguration All American Festival as principal cellist.

Wu, who speaks four languages, is a mixed choir member and featured accompanist on several occasions. She is Class of 1989 board representative, a member of the Quiz Bowl team, drama club, Science Olympiad team, a peer group leader to incoming underclassmen and a member of Students Against Driving Drunk.

Wu is a chemistry lab assistant, was Miss Teen of America scholarship and recognition pageant 2nd runnerup (Miss Teen of Michigan) and first place winner (Miss Teen of Michigan talent competition).

She was awarded several superior ratings from the National Federation of Music Clubs, participated in the Sonata Sonatina Festival, Detroit Musicians League award winner, and National Piano Playing auditions national winner. She has attended Interlochen Arts Academy.

She plays violin, cello and percussion. She performs with two orchestras and three quartets.

Wu is a National Merit Scholarship finalist, winner of the Madame Curie award for excellence in science and math, named in Who's Who Among American High School Students, and named Daughters of the American Revolution good citizen.

She won a gold medal in the Science Olympiad.

Wu will attend either Harvard University or the University of Michigan Interflex program to study medicine or business.

Her father has influenced her most in her pursuit of knowledge.

"He taught me that learning could actually be enjoyable and thus introduced me to the "joy of learning," wrote Wu.

Robert M. Hutchman

ROBERT M. HUTCHMAN

Franklin High School, Livonia

Robert Hutchman is a member of the student congress, a National Honor Society member, on the varsity tennis and soccer teams, career intern program participant, physics club member and Boys State participant.

He is a Michigan Math Prize finalist, honor roll since ninth grade, and recognized National Merit scholar. He is listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students.

He will attend either Harvard or U-M with eventual plans of attending medical school for graduate work.

His soccer coach Douglas Marks was his biggest academic influence "for teaching me to strive for excellence in life, school and the athletic field."

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers thanks those public and private schools who nominated students in this year's fifth annual Academic All-Star Team.

A note of special thanks goes to the committee of Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals, who volunteered time to select students.

Chairing the committee is Robert W. Schramke, principal of Redford Union High School. It was Schramke who five years ago approached the O&E with the idea of honoring students for academic achievement in the same way students are honored for sports.

Other principals serving on this year's committee were Dale Coller, Stevenson High School; Clayton Graham, Harrison High School; James Myers, John Glenn High School; Gary Faber, West Bloomfield High School; the Rev. Dennis Andrews, Catholic Central High School; Geraldine Kiessel, Garden City High School; Sister Joan Charnley, Bishop Borgess High School and Larry Boehms, Troy High School.

Runners-up boast top grades too

Twenty-seven students received an honorable mention in the Observer Academic All-Star competition. They are:

Elaine Belz of Brighton, Plymouth Christian Academy, Canton Township. She was vice president of the National Honor Society in her junior year and class salutatorian, lettered four years in volleyball, was captain of the team her senior year and was voted most valuable player. A senior, she plans to go to France this summer with Teen Missions before attending Evangel College in the fall on scholarship.

Dennis Berryman of Redford Township, Redford Union High School, Redford Township. He plays golf on the varsity team, participated in the Science Olympiad, bowls and works after school. A graduating senior, his future plans include majoring in physics at Michigan State University.

Mark Chames of Wayne, Wayne Memorial High School, Wayne. His activities include treasurer of the National Honor Society, marching and symphony band and symphony orchestra, and the Challenge Bowl, private piano and trumpet lessons and Boys State. He won awards for excellence in math, science and English in the 10th and 11th grades, and the 11th grade award for excellence in social science. His plans include attending college to earn a degree in a science related field.

Patricia Cherney of Ann Arbor, Ladywood High School, Livonia. Her activities include poetry competition, school service, the social studies olympiad. She is also a member of the Phi Beta Kappa honor society. She plans to attend the University of Michigan.

Lydia L. Cheuk of Farmington Hills, Harrison High School, Farmington Hills. Her activities include student director and stage manager for the dramatics group, National Honor Society, student council, French club, and pom pon squad. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, an academic honor society. She plans to attend law school after earning her undergraduate degree from the U.M.

Leah C. Cook of Redford Township, Redford Union High School, Redford Township. Her activities include Quiz Bowl, German club, thespian club, all-school plays, Rouge Rescue, French club, swimming, speech team, Video RUSH, and vocal music. She is valedictorian of her graduating class. Her plans include earning a degree in philosophy and physics from Oxford University.

Joseph W. Crow of Farmington Hills, Farmington High School, Farmington Hills. His activities include National Honor Society, the computer team, Quiz Bowl team, physics, math and Spanish. He is captain of the varsity soccer team, and on the varsity track team. He is a finalist in the Lawrence Technological Institute math competition. He plans to to earn an engineering degree from U.M.

Sharath M. Franklin of Detroit, Bishop Borgess High School, Redford Township. She is treasurer of the National Honor Society. Her activities include track, school newspaper, French club, intramural bowling, library aide, the national Science Olympiad and junior class officer. She was a finalist in the 1989 National Merit Scholarship program, a National Achievement finalist, and is listed in the Scholastic All-Catholic Who's Who Among American High School Students. She plans to earn a degree in chemical engineering.

Ed Haran of Novi, St. Agatha High School, Redford Township. He is vice president of the National Honor Society and a member of the varsity basketball team. His academic honors include: Prep Bowl All Academic 1987 and 1988 and Catholic League All Academic in 1989. A junior, he plans to study electrical engineering with a minor in audio engineering.

Matt Haran of Novi, St. Agatha High School, Redford Township. He is captain of the varsity golf and basketball teams. He is a member of the National Honor Society, varsity baseball team and co-president of student government. His academic honors include Prep Bowl Scholastic All Catholic in 1986 and 1987 and Catholic league basketball coaches award for outstanding academic and athletic achievement in 1987 and 1988. A graduating senior, he plans to pursue a career in secondary education.

Stacy Guiles of Westland, Huron Valley Lutheran High School, Westland. She is captain of the basketball and volleyball teams, secretary-treasurer of her class, and yearbook editor. She was awarded the Society of Women Engineers' certificate of merit for highest honors in science and math. She also plays softball, is in the drama and camera-video clubs, and on the activities board. She plans to attend MSU.

Eric Maddock of Redford Township, Thurston High School, Redford Township. He is a member of the National Honor Society, the Thurston jazz ensemble, varsity tennis team, and the orchestra for the play "Anything Goes." A junior, Maddock also won departmental awards for foreign language, science, and math. His plans include going to college to earn a degree.

Ashley Maton of Belleville, Lutheran High School Westland, Westland. She is vice president of the National Honor Society and the student council. Her activities also include varsity basketball and softball, pep and drama clubs. She was on the honor roll from ninth through 12th grades. She also won the Valparaiso University Award for Excellence and Leadership in June 1989. She won scholarships to Western Michigan University, MSU, Grand Valley State University, and Valparaiso University. She plans to study accounting at Western.

Lisa McEwen of Livonia, Churchill High School, Livonia. Her activities include editor of the school newspaper, president of the German club, and volunteer with the Northwest Red Cross Center. She won the International Foreign Language Award. She is also a member of the German national honor society Delta Epsilon Phi, and Outstanding High School Students of America. She is a junior and plans to major in English at a Michigan university.

Jennifer Monroe of Farmington, Ladywood High School, Livonia. She is active as a volunteer for the Special Olympics, and Jump Rope for Heart, a fund-raising project of the Michigan Heart Association. Her honors include membership in Phi Beta Kappa, an academic honor society. She plans to attend the U.M.

Sheila Murphy of Livonia, Mercy High School, Farmington Hills. Her activities include the National Honor Society, science club president, French honor society member, Amnesty International, and Carl Sandburg Library employee. She was also a National Merit Commended student, and a candidate for the U.M. Alumni-Regents Scholar. She plans to major in chemistry or biology at the U.M.

Benjamin N. Odom of Northville, Plymouth Christian Academy, Canton Township. He is president of the National Honor Society, and vice president of his senior class. His activities also include varsity soccer, basketball, baseball, and his church's youth group. He is valedictorian of his graduating class and twice recognized by the Elks' Club as student of the month. He plans to earn a degree from the U.M.

Wayne State University

Congratulates

Wayne State University student Aaron Milstone, one of 20
students in the nation to receive
Time Magazine's
College Achievement
Award for 1989.

Wayne State University salutes one of its own, Aaron Milstone, a junior in biological sciences, honored by Time Magazine as one of 20 students considered by the publication to be the top juniors from colleges and universities around the United States.

The contest, now in its third year, is co-sponsored by Volkswagen United States.

Mr. Milstone, from Lathrup Village, Michigan, developed a pictorial computer guide to teach young school children the basics of first aid. Called "Reddy's First-Aid for All," the program was inspired by a near tragedy from choking involving one of his friends.

Now in use in elementary schools, the program has been distributed to 2,000 schools in the Midwest and the creator hopes it will soon go nationwide.

Time awarded him a $3,000 scholarship and he will be among the winners announced in the May 22, 1989 issue.

In addition to the accolades from Time, which chose the 20 finalists from among 600 candidates, Mr. Milstone has received the Congressional Medal of Merit from the U.S. Congress, a commendation from IBM and recognition by the WSU Board of Governors.
