$16.3 million project will create 35 jobs

By Leonard Poger
editor

Plasticpak, a Westland company which makes many of the milk, detergent, and soda pop containers shoppers find on supermarket shelves, is planning the city's largest industrial expansion.

The Plymouth-based company, which has its industrial plant at 1351 Hix, plans to more than double its current 65,000-square-foot building and expand its work-force 35 percent.

The planned 85,500 square foot expansion represents an investment of $16.3 million. When the addition is completed next year, the number of employees will increase to 133 from 98.

Purpose of the expansion is to add manufacturing capacity for the fast growing company.

Of the planned investment, $13 million will be in equipment and $3.3 million will be in property.

Until now, the largest industrial project was about $12 million, said Timothy Schroeder, the city's economic development director.

The expansion was confirmed Monday when the Westland City Council approved a 12-year property tax abatement, the maximum allowed on a state law written to encourage industrial expansion, create jobs, and generate new property tax revenues for local communities.

The council's unanimous approval was provided under its policy of considering tax breaks of periods from one to 12 years.

THE LENGTH of the abatement is based on numerous factors, including the amount of the investment, number of jobs retained and/or created, and the wage rates of the workers to be hired through the expansion.

The abatement program allows the company to cut its property taxes in half on the expansion for the number-years of allowed by the city council and Michigan Commerce Department, which gives final approval.

The property tax impact for governmental agencies means that the expansion will generate more than $300,000 a year for the city, schools, Schoolcraft College, and Wayne County, based on current millage rates.

When the abatement period ends, the increase in property tax revenues will double to more than $600,000 a year, also based on current tax rates.

Schroeder said the local tax break approval was important to Plasticpak since the company has facilities in other cities and could have expanded on those communities.

The director said in a recommendation to the city council that the company plans to work with the Wayne County Private Industry Corp. or the William Ford Vocational Technical Center in Westland for employee training and recruitment and will target Westland residents for filling the initial job openings.

Fire prevention added to city's safety arsenal

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

In an effort to fight the problems of fires, the Westland Fire Department is renewing community education by filling the position of public education officer that has been vacant for 3 1/2 years.

Fire Capt. George Riley has been temporarily appointed to the $40,000 a year position which targets educational programs for youth and senior citizens.

A permanent appointment will be made by early fall, said Fire Chief Larry Lane.

"I feel this is a very important job," Lane said.

"Education is the first line of offense in preventing fires. If children learn fire safety young, they become fire safety adults."

Funding for the position is through a state grant for juvenile arson education recently awarded the fire department.

First funded by federal monies in 1982, the position was later eliminated when the money was eliminated.

"It is understood the position will exist (now) as long as outside funding is available," Lane wrote in a letter of explanation to Mayor Charles Griffin and the city council.

RILEY, WHOSE appointment was made effective last Saturday, began his duties in preparation of July 4 festivities by staging a series of fire safety demonstrations over the weekend in the fire safety house directly behind the central fire station on Ford Road.

The job encompasses a "multitude" of responsibilities, according to Lane, including designing and implementing programs aimed at fire prevention, what to do in the event of fire, the destructive force of fire and fire as a useful tool.

Riley will work with the person named permanently to the position and the National Burn Institute and the National Fire Academy in designing new programs. Videos like "Learn Not To Burn" and "Stop, Drop and Roll," films illustrating how to prevent fires and what to do in the event clothing catches on fire, are now available and have previously been shown locally, Lane said.

Qualified applicants may apply for the job, ranked as a battalion chief, within the next 45 days.

Successful candidates must pass an information exam. Lane said he expects many qualified applicants to apply.

The post was previously held by Joseph Benyo who retired in early 1986 and is currently a consultant to the mayor and city council.

Decision gives states more abortion control

By Phillip A. Sherman
staff writer

The battle over a woman's right to an abortion has left the nation's capital for the lawmaking bodies of each of the 50 states.

With its announcement that Roe vs. Wade is intact, but that states can regulate the circumstances under which a woman may obtain an abortion, the Supreme Court has effectively absolved itself of the responsibility to regulate abortions on a local level.

Pro-choice and pro-life leaders in Michigan were still discussing the complex decision, Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services, hours after it was released by Chief Justice William Rehnquist. The high court ruled 5-4 for Webster.

"IT'S VERY COMPLICATED, but one thing is clear — the rights of women have been diluted," said Douglas Fraser, chairman of the Milliken Committee, a statewide pro-choice organization. The former president of the United Auto Workers said the ruling has great potential to limit abortions, depending on how states react to the decision.

"If this trend continues, you could conceivably see the reversal of Roe vs. Wade," Fraser said.

Barbara Listing, director of Michigan Right to Life, said, "we're very pleased and not at all surprised" by the decision.

"We're especially pleased that the court has upheld the preamble to Webster — that life begins at conception," Listing said.

PRELIMINARY READINGS of the decision indicate the court did not directly rule on viability — the time at which a fetus is viable outside the womb. However, the court abandoned Roe's trimester framework, which said a woman, without intervention, could have an abortion during the first three months of pregnancy.

Now, through Webster, the court has said a state can intervene any time after conception.

"It's a signal to the states that you can regulate in this area," Listing said. She sees no immediate effect of the ruling in Michigan, but said she will be "sitting down with pro-life legislators soon."

At the top of her agenda is a mandate to nullify a minor's right to an abortion without parental consent, Listing said.

Pam Dooley, executive director of the state branch of Planned Parenthood, based in Novi, said her "initial reaction (is that) it's a real step backward."

Two major roads will be improved

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

The expansion of Warren Road and Newburgh, two major roads which carry traffic into and through Westland's business area, is assured now that the city has acquired funding.

Money for the improvements is to be generated from the sale of $5.9 million in limited tax development bonds, a relatively new source of funding, according to Westland's economic development director Timothy Schroeder, who said without the bond issue, other sources of immediate funding were unlikely.

"We are very excited" about the proposed expansion, said Marilyn Zelgler, Westland Center manager.

"We consider ourselves the downtown of Westland," she said.

"A widened Warren Road will indeed impact on us, providing easier accessibility in and out of (the center) and increased safety. We couldn't be more thrilled," Zelgler said.

In recent years, retail development along Warren "has been tremendous," Schroeder said. Since 1986, there has been some 1.2 million feet of new retail space constructed in the Wayne Road-Warren Road area.

CURRENTLY UNDER construction is a Meijers on 47 acres on the southeast corner of Warren Road and Newburgh. When completed next spring, the store will increase retail space by an additional 200,000 square feet.

"The widened roads are a very positive move for us, particularly along Newburgh where many of our deliveries are made," said Jennifer White of Meijers.

The widening is also expected to have significant impact on the thousands of residents of such apartment complexes as The Landings and Park Crest whose major access is onto Warren Road.

Westland Mayor Charles Griffin said the city's credit rating is "high quality," based on the rate at which the bonds were secured and the number of bids received.

First of America Southeast Michigan was low bidder with a nearly 6.5 interest cost, slightly less than projected, said Schroeder.

The savings to the city is about $200,000 in interest charges.

Norman Stockmeyer, Tax Increment Finance Authority board chairman, credits the mayor's sound administrative and fiscal policies with winning the favorable interest rate.

"They are evidence the financial community views Westland as a sound place to invest," he said.

Abortion debate Local reaction to ruling is mixed

Monday's U.S. Supreme Court ruling which gives states more leeway in setting regulations under which women may obtain abortions drew mixed reaction locally.

Shirley Ping, a member of the Garden City Christian Center, said she was pleased with the decision, although she thought the court was "sidestepping the issue" by refusing to overturn the 1973 ruling that legalized abortion.

"I can see why they did it that way, because it's difficult to take something away after it's been permitted," she said.

Ping is a former Garden City resident who was involved in Operation

Rescue during the past few months in which protesters demonstrated at entrances of area clinics at which abortions are performed.

She thinks the court will rightly continue to "chip away" at legalized abortion, which she called "the unmerciful murder of innocent people."

On the other side of the issue is the Rev. David Church, of the Newburg United Methodist Church in Livonia, who said the decision was "a major setback to the cause of religious freedom."

"On the eve of our nation's celebration of freedom the court has handed a setback to our most important freedom and that is religious freedom," he said.

Residents win Rotary Club scholarships

Two Wayne-Westland school district seniors won Westland Rotary Club cash scholarships of $1,000 each.

The winners, both Westland residents, are Joseph Endreszl of John Glenn High and Tracy Moers of Wayne Memorial High.

Endreszl, who has a 3.74 grade point average, plans to attend General Motors Institute in Flint and study electrical or mechanical engineering with an emphasis on robotics.

The senior plans to later obtain a master's degree and design industrial or commercial robots for automated systems.

At John Glenn, the graduate was on the school's computer team and the student newspaper. His interests are all aspects of auto repair, reading, weightlifting, karate classes and computer programming.

Endreszl earned an academic letter for two consecutive years.

After school, he holds two jobs, a doughnut shop cashier and a Target department store stock clerk.

Moers plans to attend Eastern Michigan University and major in elementary education.

She has a 3.66 grade point average and earned an academic letter for the past two years. The senior also won a citation for excellence award in child development and social science.

Hot car

While shopping for wedding decorations at Let's Have A Party store in Woodcrest Plaza, Linda Masters' 1976 Ford Elite burst into flames. Acting Capt. Dave Coleman (left) and Sgt. Dennis Wisocki of the Westland

Fire Department squelched the fire that probably started from a fuel leak, according to Battalion Chief Michael Reddy. There were no injuries but the car was a total loss, Reddy said.

Investigation continues

The investigation into the June 19 shooting death of a 67-year-old Livonia man continues, with Livonia police still waiting for results of ballistic tests by the Michigan State Police.

According to Livonia Police Lt. Michael Murray, there is no set timetable for when the state police will announce their findings. "Whenever they get to it," Murray said.

The victim, Exavor (John) Giller, was the founder and owner of the Greater Detroit Cab Co. He died apparently after surprising intruders at his home at 34785 Seven Mile.

Police theorize Giller was shot about 10 p.m. by someone standing in his back yard. Giller and wife, Catherine, 64, had just returned from a shopping trip.

Catherine went into the house first and was hit in the head and knocked unconscious. She said she saw two white males in the house.

Police found Giller's handgun on the ground next to his body. State police tests are expected to show if he fired the gun.

Giller was said by Miller to own a "house full of guns."

Police theorize he may have been shot by one of his own weapons.

A basement window on the east side of the house had been smashed in.

Contests, food among festival highlights

THE weather was near-perfect for the annual Westland Summer Festival, which concluded with a fireworks display Tuesday night.

Thousands of kids and adults enjoyed the variety of food booths, arts and crafts displays, antique car display, carnival rides and free entertainment.

The event, planned by a committee directed by Donna Raines, was held in the Civic Arena area behind City Hall and the Bailey Recreation Center.

There were also numerous children's games and contests, a cake decoration competition, and a cable television show taping featuring contestants for the Michigan segment of the Miss Renaissance USA pageant. Talk show host Jim Ross conducted the interviews Sunday morning.

Representing the pageant was Susan Franceschi, executive director.

Festival-goers enjoyed perfect weather for the weekend before a light drizzle reduced the crowds on Monday afternoon.

The event was initiated in the spring of 1971 by then-mayor Gene McKinney. It was later renamed the Summer Festival and held during the Fourth of July weekend.

The festival opened Friday night with a parade of decorated bikes, floats, cars and marching units.

Abortion decision

Will Lansing eye Missouri-style law?

"We'll probably see a scramble in the state Legislature to restrict" abortions, Dooley said. She said she expects the impact of the decision to be felt immediately, and added she'd already heard at least one state representative was drafting language to make Michigan's abortion laws parallel those of Missouri.

THIS LATEST challenge to Roe vs. Wade began April 26, when the court heard arguments in the case of Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services. Webster stands out among other challenges because the Bush administration and anti-abortion groups had joined forces and asked the court to use it to overturn Roe vs. Wade.

Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services focused on a challenge to a Missouri law that states life begins at conception and that unborn children have "protectable interests in life, health and well-being."

The Missouri law also makes it more difficult for a woman to get an abortion after 20 weeks of pregnancy and forbids the use of public hospitals or employees to assist in abortions not necessary to save the mother's life.

One key issue of the Missouri law is the notion of viability. In Roe, the Supreme Court held that at the point a fetus is viable outside the womb, the state has an interest in its life and can halt an abortion.

Webster, however, said viability is an arbitrary point and the state has a compelling interest to protect life at all stages of a pregnancy.

Ultimately, Missouri argued that the Constitution does not guarantee a fundamental right to an abortion.

THE 8TH CIRCUIT Court ruled against Missouri and through Webster, the state appealed to the Supreme Court. The high court reaffirmed a woman's right to abortion Monday, but let states decide how that abortion may be obtained.

Missouri's law differed from Roe vs. Wade in several ways. In the 1973 landmark decision (which has been challenged several times — see accompanying story), the Supreme Court based its view on the pivotal point of a woman's right to privacy and said that right extends to and protects her decision to end a pregnancy.

The court said a woman, without governmental interference, may terminate a pregnancy any time during the first trimester. After that, the court said the state has a compelling interest in a woman's health and could regulate an abortion.

An interesting point in Missouri's case is that with modern technology, a fetus may be viable outside the womb at a much younger age. Part of Missouri law requires physicians to perform tests on fetal gestational age, weight and lung maturity if the physician thinks the mother is 20 or more weeks pregnant.

However, the American Medical Association, which neither opposed nor supported Roe vs. Wade in its brief to the court, said those fetal-viability tests increase the risk to the mother and fetus without providing significant information about viability.

A pro-life supporter prays during a protest at an area abortion clinic earlier this year. Pro-life groups are taking Monday's Supreme Court ruling as a victory, since it will allow states to regulate how a woman can get an abortion.

Congress eyes path vs. abortion

Even before the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in this latest abortion case, both sides agreed the outcome would only embolden anti-abortion activists in Congress.

"THERE HAS already been an erosion of Roe (vs. Wade) in Congress and in the minds of the people," said Rep. Christopher H. Smith, R-N.J., co-chairman of the House Pro-life Caucus.

Smith has said that he and his allies would continue pressing a constitutional amendment banning abortion no matter how the high court ruled. In 1983, the only time either chamber of Congress has voted on such a measure, the Senate rejected the proposal 49-50, 18 votes short of the two-thirds majority needed.

The pro-choice side, outvoted on abortion-funding issues, has been less active in Congress, relying on the court to uphold abortion rights.

But in recent years it has become more organized in the face of strong anti-abortion sentiment from the Reagan and Bush administrations. Its members count as a victory the 1987 defeat of Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork, an abortion opponent and a critic of Roe.

AT LEAST 10 abortion-related measures have been introduced in the 101st Congress. Most seek an outright ban on abortion, further restrictions on federal funding for the procedure or limits on the use of fetal tissue obtained from abortions.

The lone exception is HR 857, introduced by Rep. Bill Green, R-N.Y., which would require abortions to be made as available as other pregnancy-related services under all programs that receive federal funds.

The pending anti-abortion measures include:

- S 73 — by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., would bar the use of federal funds for all abortions except those necessary to save the life of the mother and would prohibit federal funds from being used to encourage or counsel abortion.

- S 162 — by Helms, would disallow a personal tax exemption for a child born alive, or who subsequently dies, after an induced abortion.

- HR 162 — by Rep. Bill Emerson, R-Mo., would prohibit using federal funds for abortion except when the mother's life is endangered.

- HR 620 — by Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., would bar abortion in federal prisons except when the mother's life is endangered.

- HR 621 — by Dornan, would bar Medicare or Medicaid payments to anyone who provides or counsels the use of abortion drugs or devices.

- HR 623 — by Dornan, declares that fetuses are entitled to certain constitutional guarantees and would prohibit abortion in any case.

- HR 624 — by Dornan, would deny tax-exempt status to organizations that perform or finance abortions.

- HR 625 — by Dornan, would restrict the transportation and use of fetal tissue obtained in abortions and calls for licensing of facilities that would store such material.

- HR 1351 — by Rep. Clyde C. Holloway, R-La., would restrict the use in research fetal tissue obtained from abortions.

Court decisions on abortion rights

Following are the most significant previous U.S. Supreme Court rulings on a woman's right to an abortion:

- 1973 — Roe v. Wade, 7-2, legalized abortion nationwide. The court ruled that the constitutional right of privacy includes a woman's right to terminate a pregnancy. The court said that during the first trimester of pregnancy, the decision may be virtually free of state interference. After the first trimester, the state has a compelling interest in protecting the woman's health and may regulate abortion to promote that interest. The court also said that at the point the fetus is "viable" outside the womb, the state has an interest in its life and can restrict abortion.

Georgia law requiring physician concurrence in a woman's choice to have an abortion in her first trimester of pregnancy.

- 1976 — Planned Parenthood of Central Missouri v. Danforth, 5-4, held that states could not require a husband's or parent's consent as a condition for abortion.

Belotti v. Baird held unanimously that states could not allow parents to veto abortions sought by their unmarried daughters under 18. The case was remanded to the Massachusetts courts for interpretation of a statute that required consent of both parents but allowed consent to be waived by a judge for "good cause shown." The case returned to the high court in 1979.

Doe v. Bolton, 7-2, struck down a

Flooding perils Hazards often overlooked

FLOODING of residential neighborhoods typically creates a lot of problems, probably the most overlooked of which was the threat to human life.

When floods hit, the first reaction seems to be concern for property — namely, flooded basements. Residents seemingly don't think enough about the threat to human life and health that exist when the flood arrives and remains after the water recedes.

Unfortunately, human nature reacts to a flood (after the basement is secure) almost like a social affair. Children and young people hop onto inner tubes, flotation devices, crawl onto floating picnic tables, and otherwise head for the waters as if rushing the beaches on a hot July day.

This reaction, almost like looting after a riot or tornado, is impulsive. People and children just don't think about the dangers involved. The most obvious danger is the possibility of drowning; a more subtle danger is that flood water is contaminated and poses a real health risk. And for homeowners who rush downstairs to save property or began an immediate cleanup, there is a real danger of electrocution.

THE FLOODING in western Wayne County of two weeks ago was primarily the result of heavy rains that rushed downstream from Novi and Farmington Hills. The rainwater overran the stream's banks and settled in low-lying areas.

The Wayne County Health Department cautions residents to avoid contact with lingering floodwaters, and to avoid using floodwaters and streams for swimming, wading, skiing, or other recreational purposes.

During extended periods of rain or a heavy downpour, land surface contaminants can be washed into the receiving stream or area.

Among the contaminants could be human sewage from areas where sanitary sewers are combined with storm sewers. During these times of increased rainwater flows, not only is the danger of contact with physical objects increased but the potential for contact with biological and chemical contaminants also increases.

THE HEALTH problems of flooding are ex-

gerated in communities that have combined sewer systems, or are downstream from cities with combined systems.

Combined sewer systems use the same pipe to carry both storm-water and raw sewage to a local water treatment plant.

When the volume of water exceeds the line's capacity, the overflow (including the raw sewage) bypasses the treatment plant and is dumped directly into the nearest body of water.

This could lead to an increased risk of disease or death. Health officials caution that various diseases, especially hepatitis, are associated with contaminated water.

CLEANING UP after the recent floods also can be hazardous to health unless performed carefully, using strict safety and sanitation procedures.

Electrical and gas lines in the flooded area can also pose physical dangers. In case of basement flooding, walls, floors and surrounding areas should be disinfected by using Lysol or a chlorine solution of one-half cup laundry bleach to each gallon of water.

Throw out food that has been exposed to flooding, including fruits, vegetables, boxed foods and contents of bottled goods sealed in crimped caps.

Don't enter a basement that's still flooded if electricity and gas lines haven't been shut off. Don't light a match in an enclosed area where gas may be present. Don't attempt to disconnect or open a fuse box or circuit breaker box. If the current is still on, don't handle any connected electrical cords or appliances.

Hopefully, there will be no flash floods this summer. If we are, though, let's use common sense and remember the threats to life and health that accompany a flood. Here's to a safe summer for all.

Supreme Court Abortion: war within the states

THE UNITED STATES Supreme Court has made abortion the issue of the '90s. Abdicating its responsibility to interpret the Constitution, the court has triggered a war over abortion rights; a war destined to be fought in each state.

In Michigan, the question is bound to divert attention from the crucial educational equity issue, which will go before voters in November. It also threatens to turn the 1990 gubernatorial and legislative contests into one-issue races.

This newspaper has reported pro-choice/pro-life confrontations in front of clinics in Livonia, Farmington Hills, Southfield and Troy.

Some of these were to call attention to last November's statewide proposition in which voters said the state could no longer fund abortions for those who could not pay for them.

BUT THAT ISSUE actively involved only a fraction of our population; now it is destined to involve us all.

The Supreme Court has once again placed under public scrutiny the highly personal, agonizing decision a woman, and often her partner, must make.

Women of all ages and economic status have always had abortions. What Roe v. Wade did was allow them to end a pregnancy without breaking the law. As a result of Roe v. Wade women have been able to have safer, more affordable abortions.

This newspaper has consistently taken a pro-choice position.

But it will take more than lip service to head off and defeat the well-run, well-financed pro-life forces in Michigan which firmly believe they are the advocate of the unborn child.

Pro-choice residents of the our suburban communities are well suited to take a leadership role. Blessed with education, resources and political savvy, they can help convince state government that the constitutional right to have a child, or not, must be retained for today's young women and those to come.

Flag, execution laws conflict

NEVER were the divided attitudes of the American people so evident as in recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings on the flag and the death penalty.

With the court shifting allegiances in 5-4 rulings each time, shock reverberated throughout the country. On one hand the justices ruled that, despite the esteem in which we hold the red, white and blue, an avowed communist had the right to burn the flag at the Republican convention in 1984.

In the other conservative ruling, the justices ruled that teens aged 16 and 17 and mentally retarded adults can be executed.

Supporting the flag ruling were justices Anthony M. Kennedy, Harry Blackmun, Thurgood Marshall, Antonin Scalia and William Brennan in the majority.

The majority ruling on the death penalty decisions were Scalia, Chief Justice William Rehnquist, Byron White, Sandra Day O'Connor and Kennedy.

THE LIBERAL decision on the flag was based on the freedom to dissent for political reasons. It unleashed a backlash of dissent to the opinion itself from veterans groups to congressmen. The decision literally spanned both sides of the political spectrum.

Finally President Bush called for a constitutional amendment opposing flag burning, something that would take two-thirds approval in both houses of Congress and by 38 state legislatures.

Despite their sincerity, these protests are misguided. When we say we honor Old Glory as much as anyone else, we honor not a swatch of cloth but the meaning behind the flag. That meaning is the liberty inherent in our doctrine of freedom of speech to burn the very symbol for which it stands, even if the protester is a complete jerk for doing so.

We are, however, still reeling from the court's decision that teens ages 16 and 17 and mentally retarded adults can be executed.

Scalia, the only justice to vote in the majority on both decisions, wrote: "In determining what standards have evolved, we have looked not to our own conceptions of decency, but to those of modern American society as a whole."

The diverse American society bows its head in shame.

HICKENS

A healthy environment: That's the bottom line

LIKE MANY of you, I frequently get a little more than irritated at how the real war to save our civilization is moving along. And this hasn't exactly been a banner year for the good earth, the only home we have.

No, I'm not talking about the phony war against communism, I'm talking about the struggle to save the environment. The battle does get to be a personal matter after a while.

Recently I ate what I believed to be a healthy meal of fish. Last week I opened the paper to read the type of fish I had consumed, trout, will very well increase my chances of contracting some sort of death-threatening cancer.

Every time I go by the apples in the fruit market, I cringe to think about all those shiny red orbs that at one time contained Alar, which also heightens the risk of cancer.

And anyone who cares at all about the environment is shocked that four times in less than a year, major oil spills have polluted our waters, killed countless numbers of wildlife, poisoned the food chain and ruined, for decades to come, some pristine wildlife areas.

ON AN EVEN more personal note, I, along with tens of thousands of my comrade Vietnam veterans, wonder when the time bomb will explode and release the ravages that Agent Orange will visit upon our bodies and those of our offspring.

And closer to home for all of us in the metropolitan area, we watch as waste management becomes unmanageable.

Our garbage piles up, polluting the water we drink and the vegetables we grow in the family garden. In our attempts to get rid of the endless tons of garbage, we have resorted to building furnaces that spew the waste into the air and recycle through our lungs.

The list of the assault goes on and on—I'm sure you've got many examples.

BUT MAYBE hope does exist. Maybe the people of America really are getting sick of this mindless destruction.

Recently U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, whose district includes Canton Township, Garden City, Westland and part of Livonia, took a survey of his constituents. The results were hopeful.

For the first time in the 25 years he has been reading the pulse of the voters, Ford found that environmental concerns outweighed our paranoiac-based defense spending, the drug war, education and the federal deficit.

Steve Barnaby

"I was especially impressed with the strength of this response because the question assumed that tackling this problem might require an increase in the federal budget deficit," Ford said.

Ford's constituents threw heavy support toward recycling programs that would increase the proportion of garbage that is recycled to 25 percent, encourage development of markets for degradable plastics, and provide money to promote waste reduction techniques by industry.

His district very much reflects the attitudes of middle America. Perhaps the rest of the country will follow suit and force American business to turn its back on short-term profits so we all may benefit from a healthier environmental bottom line."

9-1-1 system works fast

To the editor:
On June 23, we attempted to place a long distance call to London, Ontario. Area code for this is 519. After dialing 1-519, we got a recording which said they could not complete the call and to re-dial.

We again dialed the number and this time the call went through. There was no answer and we hung up. By the time we hung up the phone, a Garden City police car had pulled up in front of our house and an officer came up to the door.

Apparently a malfunction in our telephone sent the first call attempt through to 9-1-1.

Even though we were not in need of police assistance, we were quite impressed.

Response time could not have been more than 2 to 2½ minutes from the time the first number was dialed until the police car arrived. As the officer finished establishing that we didn't need help, a second police car arrived.

It is very comforting to know that in Garden City, should we ever have an emergency, the 9-1-1 system is not only operational, but very efficient.

Our compliments!!
Warren and Wendy Richardson,
Garden City

Birth control is overlooked

To the editor:
The pro-life people seem to be overlooking an essential aspect of their campaign, birth control.

Narrow-minded, holler than thou, types of people (not necessarily pro-lifers) have turned birth control into some sort of deadly sin.

They remind me of this joke: A man is marooned on a desert island. He prays to God to save him, confident God will help him. Soon after a ship comes by and offers to give the man a lift. The man refuses saying, "No, God will save me." A few days later a helicopter comes by and the pilot offers to rescue this man. But he refuses saying, "No, God will save me." Not long afterward the man dies of exposure. He goes to heaven and asks God, "Lord, I prayed to you. Why didn't you save me?" And God replied, "Hey, I sent you a boat and a helicopter!"

In this case the question asked will be, "God, why did you make sex so enjoyable that the earth became over-populated to the point that we couldn't feed, clothe and care for everyone?" And God will say, "Look, when over-population started becoming a problem, I inspired scientists to invent effective birth-control. Why did you choose to suppress this knowledge?"

Obviously the Bible couldn't specifically cover every issue. God did, however, bless us with common sense. Let's use it!!

Appalled by police action

To the editor:
I am writing in response to the June 15 article regarding the Livonia trial of eight anti-abortionists. I am appalled at the actions of the Livonia Police officers involved.

The accused were demonstrating peacefully outside an abortion clinic when pro-choice activists physically attacked them. The officers were so concerned for their own safety that they did nothing to stop the assault. Instead, they waited until the pro-choice group backed off and then arrested the pro-lifers for being disorderly.

Isn't it ironic that those who were quietly and firmly standing up for their beliefs are now standing trial, while those who broke the law before the very eyes of the police were allowed to simply leave? All I can say is I hope I never have to depend on any of those Livonia officers for help — I'd obviously be better off on my own.

Senators scrambling during capital work

THIS SUMMER the Michigan Senate is meeting in an historic, ornate but cramped committee room while its chamber is being renovated.

So far the senators and their presiding officer are taking the bad with the good.

"I felt there was something funny about this, and there is," said Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths as senators strained to hear. "This is the first time I've been able to see everybody's ears at the same time."

There were groans at this Marthaism. The 78-year-old president of the Senate is known for chiding members the way Schoolmaster Dobbins used to chide the inattentive Tom Sawyer.

THE TEMPORARY Senate chamber is the third floor Senate Appropriations Committee room.

In an earlier generation, it was the Supreme Court chamber. Etched glass over the door still proclaims "Supreme Court."

The long wooden table where the committee met has been replaced by 38 tables — stalls, really — for the senators. The spectators' gallery has only a handful of chairs.

A single closed-circuit television camera carries the proceedings to a larger committee room on the fourth floor. There is only one microphone for senators, so that if someone talks from the floor he or she can't be heard over TV.

"They told me it was furnished like a K mart blue light special. It turned out rather well," admitted Sen. Mitch Irwin, D-Sault Ste. Marie, no fan of Senate Majority Leader John Engler.

THE DOCTOR — Sen. John Schwarz, M.D., R-Battle Creek — asked special consideration for Sens. Harmon Cropsey and Joe Mack, who have hearing losses.

Responded Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor: "We have some who are sight impaired, some who are hearing impaired, and some who are just impaired."

Groans from the gallery. Pollack suggested, seriously, a blackboard be used to chalk the bill number that is under discussion. Nods of agreement.

INSTEAD OF having two minutes to turn on a green (yes) or red (no) light, senators now must answer an oral roll call. A moment's lapse, and one misses a vote.

That happened to Sen. Gil DiNello, D-East Detroit, who stepped into the hall to talk to an aide.

"I ask to be recorded as voting yes," DiNello told Griffiths later.

"The rule says you have to call a second time."

"Sen. DiNello," replied the presiding officer, "if you will sit — down — and pay — attention — you will be able to vote."

A moment later Griffiths gave the Schoolmaster Dobbins treatment to shush Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills: "Sen. Faxon — you — haven't — been — recognized."

Much laughter.

FOR THE PRESS, the result is a mixed bag.

It's easier to record roll calls because each member's name is called out and his or her vote repeated for closed-circuit TV.

But with only one microphone and bad internal acoustics, senators are under pressure to make fewer and shorter speeches, providing the press with fewer quotes.

In the corridor, there is no P.A. system as there is in the Senate lobby, so newspaper can't interview senators during lulls for fear of missing something important.

In the fourth-floor viewing room, newspeople share seats with lobbyists and legislative staffers, whose conversations can drown out the TV.

Girl friends' paths cross numerous times

THIS IS A COLUMN about friends. Let's call them Jenny and Shelley.

They met in first grade when Jenny moved to West Bloomfield from out-of-state. They went through elementary, middle and high school together — at one point close enough to go away to camp together; at another, latching on to other best friends as they went through the stages of adolescence.

At 16, they celebrated their confirmation at a double ceremony; as seniors in high school, they co-captained the varsity tennis team.

When both decided to attend the University of Michigan, they made a conscious decision not to room together — opting to branch out to room with new people, make new friends.

BUT OF ALL the dormitories at that sprawling university, they somehow ended up in the same one — and on the same floor. So it turned out they made friends with one another's roommates and hallmates, growing closer, not farther apart.

At the end of that freshman year,

Judith Doner Berne

they gathered some of these new, mutual friends, together to take an apartment, later a house for their three remaining years in Ann Arbor. And, here they shared the ups, downs and routine of college life.

As graduation approached, both opted for graduate school.

Shelley applied only to Harvard's School of Education which had the program she wanted to pursue. And she was accepted at the prestigious Boston-area school.

For Jenny, it was applications to at least 10 schools, mostly in the Midwest, to get her master's degree in English. But her best offer turned out to be a teaching fellowship at Northeastern University — guess where.

They celebrated their graduation together at a dinner given by their families. And then, last fall, the two of them packed up their belongings and headed in their U-Haul truck to Boston — once, again to share an apartment.

THERE'S MORE.

They had a mutual friend from U-M, who had returned to his Boston roots, and he and Shelley began to date. Then his roommate — his friend since kindergarten — began to date Jenny.

In February, Jon and Jenny became engaged. They will marry next June. Two weeks ago, Shelley and her boyfriend, also named Jon, became engaged. They will marry next May.

Two childhood friends marrying two childhood friends. It's happened before and it will undoubtedly happen again.

Nice.

Are teachers overpaid?

Q: I think teachers are overpaid. Am I right?

A: Some teachers should receive double their salary, some teachers should receive what they presently are receiving, and there are a few who should have to buy a ticket to get in the front door.

The same can be said for a few doctors, lawyers, college professors, journalists, clergy and other professionals I have dealt with in my lifetime.

Indeed, there was one doctor more interested in his tennis game than marking down on my record that I was allergic to penicillin, which almost wiped me out at one time in my life.

HOWEVER, MOST of the doctors I have dealt with are truly professional people. The same is true of most teachers with whom I have been associated.

Doc Doyle

Parents need to realize the advanced training that teachers obtain beyond the four years of college, working toward master's and educational specialist's degrees. Many teachers work long evening hours sponsoring clubs, grading research or term papers and preparing lesson plans on a daily basis.

Furthermore, when one compares the salaries of other professionals, I do not believe that, in most cases, teaching salaries are out of line. It is unfortunate that some parents had or have a problem with one particular teacher and then generalize that situation to the total teacher population concluding that all teachers are "that way and don't deserve the pay they are receiving."

The dedication and commitment of most teachers that I have dealt with is outstanding.

Court rulings vary on abortion rights

• 1977 — Beal v. Doe, Maher v. Roe and Poelker v. Doe, all 6-3, upheld the right of states to refuse to spend public money for abortions that are of an elective or non-therapeutic nature.

• 1979 — Colautti v. Franklin, 6-3, struck down a Pennsylvania requirement that a physician try to save the life of a fetus whenever the doctor had reason to believe that the fetus might be able to survive outside the mother's body.

• Bellotti v. Baird, 8-1, held that requiring parental consent burdened an individual's right to an abortion. The court found the Massachusetts law unconstitutional and ruled that, without prior parental consultation, a minor must have access to a confidential proceeding before a judge to argue that an abortion is in her best interests.

• 1980 — Harris v. McRae, 5-4, held that it is constitutional for the federal government to permit Medicaid funding only for abortions necessary to save the woman's life. Since 1977, Congress has denied federal Medicaid funding for abortions under the Hyde amendment, named for original sponsor Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-Ill.

• 1983 — City of Akron v. Akron Center for Reproductive Health, 6-3, struck down a city ordinance requiring that all abortions after the first trimester be performed in full-service hospital and an "informed consent" provision requiring the physician to tell patients that the fetus is a human being from the moment of conception, to describe the fetus' physical development and to list all possible physical and emotional consequences of the abortion.

Until Monday's landmark ruling, the U.S. Supreme Court had generally struck down state laws restricting a woman's right to an abortion.

The court also ruled unconstitutional a city ordinance requiring a woman to wait 24 hours between consenting to and receiving an abortion.

Planned Parenthood of Kansas

City, Mo. v. Ashcroft, 6-3, struck down a requirement that all abortions after the first trimester be performed in a hospital. The court also upheld, 5-4, provisions of a Missouri law requiring "unemancipated" minors to obtain parental or judicial consent for an abortion. This requirement was permissible while a similar one in the Akron ordinance was not, because Missouri's requirement spelled out a judicial-consent alternative for a minor who could not or would not obtain parental consent.

Simopoulos v. Virginia, 8-1, upheld a state law requiring that second-trimester abortions be performed in a hospital. The court distinguished this hospitalization requirement from those struck down in the Akron and Kansas City cases because the Virginia law defined licensed outpatient surgical clinics as hospitals.

• 1986 — Thornburgh v. American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, 5-4, struck down a state requirement that the doctor use the same degree of care in aborting a fetus as he would if delivering it and that he use the abortion method providing the best opportunity for the fetus to be born alive. The court ruled Pennsylvania's informed-consent requirement unconstitutional, saying it was an attempt to dissuade women from an abortion, and struck down a reporting requirement on the ground that it would violate confidentiality of medical records.

Blanchard signs college aid bill

AP — Mike Goecke is neither rich nor poor — and that's his problem.

The 16-year-old senior at Stevenson High School in Livonia plans to attend Kalamazoo College, but until recently he was unsure where he was going to get the money.

When he watched Gov. James Blanchard sign a measure establishing a college loan program for middle-income families, Goecke decided his financial worries were over.

"It's going to help a lot of kids like me from Livonia who can't afford to go to college. I really think it's great," he said.

Goecke and more than 900 other participants in the American Legion Boys' State program watched June 21 as Blanchard signed the bill to help students from families with incomes of more than $30,000.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Thomas Hickner, D-Bay City, authorizes the Michigan Higher Education Student Loan Authority to sell tax-exempt bonds to make low-interest loans.

Blanchard said the bill fills a void created when the federal government reduced its student loan programs. Families with incomes of $30,000 or more found themselves cut out of federal loan programs but lacked the funds to finance college expenses on their own, he said.

Blanchard proposed the idea in his 1989 State of the State message.

"It's just one way we're trying to help everyone pursue the American dream, provide for their future and have opportunity in the great state of Michigan," he said.

State Superintendent Donald Bemis said as many as 30,000 students a year could apply for loans under the program.

Many details, including the maximum allowable income for participants, remain. But the Department of Education estimated Michigan families who are not eligible for federally subsidized students loans could seek as much as $25 million in loans each year under the program.

Department officials said they expect minimum loans will be $2,500 and that interest rates will be favorable because loans to families with proven ability to pay represent a low risk to lenders.

Default rates on state programs in other areas of the country average 2 percent or less because the loans are issued to families with higher incomes than those served through the federally subsidized program.

Stuntwoman appears at air show

A graduate of Southfield High School, and a liberal arts major at California State University, Northridge, Ross has appeared as a stunt woman in such films as "Karate Kid II" and "Phatasm II," and has doubled in stunts for such actors as Julianne McNamara and Kay Lenz.

Ross and Cross will be joined by performances of the Blue Angels, the Holiday Inn Aerobatic Team and others.

Finding a new life

Family is hit hard by injury

By Sue Mason
staff writer

Gertrude Schleick doesn't think about the future when it comes to her 26-year-old daughter Sheri. She takes each day as it comes and revels in the surprises each day brings.

You see, Sheri is a quadriplegic, although she isn't paralyzed. For four years, she has been making the slow climb back from a traumatic head injury.

"I don't ask what her prognosis is. Even back then I didn't," said Schleick, a Livonia resident. "I'm grateful for everything she does and I know in the back of my mind she will never be the way she was."

Sheri's life was changed forever in the early morning hours of May 19, 1985, when her car was broadsided by another car. Sheri was thrown from her car. She broke an arm, but the most severe damage was to the right and left frontal lobes of her brain, caused when her head slammed into the pavement.

Comatose, she was rushed to the hospital and later transferred to University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor. She stayed at U-M Hospital for 29 days.

"They did a CAT scan and found that pieces of her brain had broken off," said her mother. "They said it meant irreversible brain damage."

Because Sheri showed no signs of improvement, she was moved to a long-term care facility. She stayed there for five months, during which time her body contracted into a fetal position and she developed drop feet.

Because of the muscle contractions, she dislocated her shoulder. Doctors, unable to set the bones, told Schleick surgery would be necessary. But they didn't think that was a "good idea" because of Sheri's condition, her mother said.

IT WAS then that a representative of the automobile insurance company, who was checking on her care, suggested that a second opinion may be in order. A specialist was brought in from Chicago.

Still comatose, she was transferred to the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago just before Christmas 1985 and spent three months there. One of the first orders given to her mother was to buy her daughter a wardrobe of clothes. She wouldn't be spending her time at the institute in hospital gowns.

"Their philosophy is to treat them like there's nothing wrong," Schleick said. "The whole point is the kind of quality of life they get, whether they know it or not."

During her stay at the institute, surgery was performed on Sheri's shoulder and she was placed in a bed that slowly rotated from side to side to prevent her from developing pneumonia.

In March 1986, Schleick again faced the dilemma of find a new place to care for Sheri. Again, the insurance representative stepped in and directed her to Apple Tree

Please turn to Page 3

It has been a slow uphill climb for Sheri Schleick, whose life was changed forever in a May 19, 1985, automobile accident. Even though her speech is impaired and she is confined to a wheelchair, she and her 8-year-old son Derek still can find things to smile about.

Shattered lives discover meaning at Special Tree

By Sue Mason
staff writer

The 16-year-old boy lies motionless on the bed, his feet extended and hands curled into fists. Occasionally, his eye lids flicker, but there is no response to the young woman, who carries on a one-sided conversation as she adjusts his head on a pillow.

Down the hall, a young man touches his chin to a toggle switch. His motorized wheelchair comes to life as he heads outside to soak up some warm weather.

Another teen slowly touches letters on keyboard attached to his wheelchair. The board comes to "life" and in a scratchy voice, it conveys his message: "Can I have a drink?"

It's a typical day at Apple Tree Lane, a part of Special Tree, a rehabilitation facility that works with the victims of head and spinal cord injuries.

Based in Romulus, the services provided by Special Tree have been reaching out throughout Michigan and the country like branches on a tree for 14 years. In addition to Apple Tree Lane

'I've never cried in front of her, never felt sorry for her. It's something I've no control over so why should I make her feel miserable.'

— Gertrude Schleick

which provides medical care and physical therapy, it maintains four group homes, including one in Freeland, Mich., seven supported apartments in Taylor and a training center. It offers day care and outpatient therapy, vocational education and job placement.

Special Tree is able to take medically fragile patients, who are stable, but who have the potential of develop infections, and work with them, getting them ready for their return to the community.

"OUR GOALS are to discharge the clients when they are able," said Joy Raves, director of case management. "We want these people back where they were before their accidents."

But getting the client to that point calls for a team effort. Special Tree has a therapy team of 31 people. It also has a psychologist and neurologist on staff. The entire team works with the physician in making an accurate assessment of the client's progress, Raves said.

Comas are as individual as the clients themselves and the length of the comas determine the recovery the clients will make. As a result, the treatment is individualized and takes into account what the person did before, what their educational level was and what their goals were.

Therapy begins even while the client is comatose. Therapists work with the client providing physical and vocal stimulation.

Contrary to belief, a person doesn't just wake up from a coma. Progress is slow and measured by how the person responds to external stimuli, such as a verbal command.

And contrary to belief that the comatose patient is completely cognizant of his surroundings when he awakens, the patient usually is confused and frightened.

It takes a lot of work, since some patients can remain comatose for years. But the work is rewarding, according to Raves.

"What's exciting is to have a patient who is comatose with a feeding tube and with working with the therapists gets rid of the tubes and eats by himself," she said. "Even the smallest achievement is great. Even if a client puts on his shirt backwards, we let him wear it like that all day because it's an achievement. He put it on himself."

ONCE ALERT, the other phases of the rehabilitation kick in. A vocational evaluation is done to determine what the client can do, taking into account their ability to do the job and to relate to others. Vocational rehabilitation in the form of work adjustment is provided as well as job placement

Dressing up your clothes with scarves

By C.L. Rugenstein
staff writer

YOU SEE THEM everywhere these days — around heads, necks, waists, derrieres. Scarves have been recycled from the early 1970s as an important wardrobe-stretching accessory for women.

But even more important than the scarf itself are tying techniques to give them pizzazz.

"There's no right or wrong way to wear scarves," said Hilda Bokos, partner with Shirley Broccardo in selling unique accessories at their Plymouth boutique — named, aptly, Unique Accessories.

And there are as many ways to tie scarves as there are people to wear them.

"A scarf is very creative; it's an arty kind of thing," Bokos said. "You can let the scarf create its own lines. We encourage people to elaborate with them."

To demonstrate, she took a two-piece, rose-colored knit dress draped with a dark blue, floral-print scarf from a rack.

The scarf had a flat, overhand knot in the middle and tied behind the neck.

"It's a more-controlled, casual look," Bokos said of the knot. "You can tie one, two or three knots."

Tie techniques can help with figure problems as well as style.

"We're very aware of bad proportions," Bokos said.

The "bunny ears" is a decorative scarf tie technique — a simple overhand knot in the center of a square scarf. By turning the knot upside down and picking up the opposite corners, it drapes like bunny ears.

from the center. Let it hang, then tie a simple overhand knot in the center. Turn the knot upside down. Pick up opposite corners, and it drapes like bunny ears. Tie it behind the neck.

The style can also be worn as a dickey, or pulled sideways and secured to the shoulder with a clip.

"When we go on buying trips, we get an idea of trends," Bokos said of the scarf mania. "Scarves started last spring and became without a doubt the hottest accessory of all."

SHE AND Broccardo, who got into the business five years ago doing accessory parties in homes, also present scarf-tying seminars free of charge for church, civic or other groups.

Some of the most-asked questions are whether square or oblong scarves are better. ("It makes no difference," said Bokos) and how to choose a scarf.

"Scarves should be impulsive buying," Bokos said. "Just buy a scarf that's absolutely beautiful to you."

Then tie it to achieve the effect you want — to cover a long neck, draw attention to the face, hide a food stain or hole in the top of the dress, she noted.

Bokos predicts the trend for scarves will continue until at least next year, with bright gold, fuchsia, berry, purple and rust the colors to watch for.

Scarves were invented to create wardrobe options, so find a fetching style and tie it on.

Understanding: Key to coping

What is a traumatic head injury?
The easiest explanation is comparing the head to a bowl of Jell-O. The bowl is the skull, the Jell-O the brain. If you strike the bowl, it remains stationary. The Jell-O, however, sloshes around, twisting and turning, hitting the sides of the bowl.

A head injury is an insult to the brain caused by an external force that may impact cognitive, physical, behavioral and emotional functions. The impairment can be temporary or permanent.

Severe head injuries usually result in permanent loss of consciousness or coma. While a coma may be brief — lasting a few minutes — it may extend to days, weeks, even months.

If the period of unconsciousness is 24 or more hours, the patient is in a coma. The coma may last for days, weeks, months, or even years.

Recovery from a head injury is a long process. The patient will be cared for in a hospital. Physical and speech therapy and counseling are

IN THE CASE of severe head injuries, families learn to accept that their loved one will not be the same person they knew before the injury. And they soon realize that they will go through stages of recovery.

They deal with feelings of guilt, believing something could have been done to prevent the injury, denied by refusing to believe what is being said and reported by the doctors and nurses, and shock and a sense of disbelief.

Families face many decisions and one place they can turn to for support is the Michigan Head Injury Alliance, a nonprofit organization of head injured persons, family members, friends and professionals.

The group, which has 10 chapters throughout the state, works to educate the general public of the effects of head injury and to provide support and information to head injured persons and their families.

For more information, contact the Michigan Head Injury Alliance, 1000 E. Grand Ave., Suite 100, Ann Arbor, Mich. 48106. Phone: 764-1111.

Dominance depicted in writing

Dear Ms. Green,

I've always read your column with such interest, and yet, have never had my handwriting analyzed. My writing has changed severely over the course of my life. This is the current style, which I've had for the last seven years or so.

I can't wait to see what you have to say about me — and to see if you're right!

O.D.,
Livonia

Dear C.D.,

It is good to hear that you have a keen interest in graphology. I hope you find my analysis of your personality helpful as well as accurate.

A young woman with a dominant personality begins to emerge as I scan your handwriting. You find the role of leader more attractive than that of subordinate. It seems quite possible, however, that you experience difficulty relating to authority figures. This probably started early in your life. Do you often find yourself vying for the upper hand in relationships?

Your dependability cannot be missed. You are absorbed with perfection in all your undertakings. In both the small things as well as the more important ones you are meticulous. And a tendency to feel no one else can do things quite as efficiently as you is also noted.

You have been blessed with intelligence that is well above the average. Your mind is discriminating and inventive.

Some intuition is also suggested in this handwriting. You seem reluctant to utilize it, though.

Usually your emotional nature is controlled. You do not wear your heart on your sleeve. Neither are you given to impulsive behavior. Before becoming involved, you take time to consider how a situation is going to affect you personally.

WITH THOSE who are meaningful in your life, you are caring and willing to share yourself. Beyond that, you are quite practical, feeling charity begins at home.

With personal information you are discreet regarding what you share with others. I suspect there are some things to which no one is privy.

Currently, you are not terribly satisfied with some part of your life. You may be experiencing pressure from someone over you. In addition, there are some parental conflicts that have not been resolved.

I see a great deal of inner strength here. So it seems almost paradoxical

Dear Ms. Green,
I've always read your column with such interest, & yet, I had my handwriting analyzed and my writing has changed severely the course of my life. It to also see dependency and strong security needs.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at

Family tries to cope after injury

Lane in Romulus, a small medical facility that specializes in caring for people with head and spinal cord injuries.

Schleick was skeptical at the time, but now admits it was the best decision she ever made for Sheri.

"It's no different than putting an elderly person in a home," she said. "You really don't know. I was skeptical, but what bothered me the most was seeing another girl at the same level as Sheri and her parents were taking her home to care for her. I couldn't do that; I had a family to support. I had to work, and I felt bad that I had to put her in a home."

SHERI'S PROGRESS has been slow. When she first sat in a wheelchair, her head had to be tied up so it wouldn't droop to her chest. That's no longer necessary.

Neither is the use of feeding tube. That was removed last month, a milestone in her recovery.

Her left hand remains quite flexible and even though her food is pureed, Sheri is able to feed herself with a special spoon three times a day.

"I remember when she started feeding herself, even if it was three tablespoons I thought it was an achievement."

The brain injury has affected her speech. She can say simple words like mom, but doesn't have the ability to move her tongue to form more complex words. An speech machine has been ordered for Sheri to help her communicate. Her mother worries it may "create a monster." After four years of not being able to speak, she probably has a lot to say, Schleick said.

And when she passes her driving test, she will get a motorized wheelchair. She failed her first test — maneuvering a wheelchair down a straight course for 20 or so feet. She hit a wall because she was concentrating more on using her hand than watching where she was going, her mother said.

Sheri has retained her long-term memory. When she was a child, she would bite on her hand when she was angry. She has reverted back to that childhood practice or when she's upset or to express displeasure.

"SHE LAUGHS at the appropriate time, she has tears in her eyes when she's sad and you can tell when she's angry by the expression on her face," Schleick said. "She understands everything you say and is very expressive."

"Sheri is very much like she was before. She has a very pleasant personality and the staff at Apple Tree loves to tease her and fuss with her."

Almost 50, Schleick should be looking forward to a life of her own now that her six children are all grown. But because of the accident, she has had literally start over. Three sons still live at home, along with Sheri's 8-year-old son Derek.

Schleick isn't sure how the accident has affected Derek. He was a passenger in the car, along with Sheri's sister. Derek was found on the floor of the back seat of the car. He had a gash on the top of his head, possibly from hitting the metal frame of the front seat.

"He goes to see his mom and talks to her like he talks to me or anybody else," she said. "I don't encourage or discourage him to talk about it, but I worry that some day he may become angry about what happened."

The last four years have been an education for Schleick. She has learned not to make comparisons. Each head injury is different as is each recovery, she said. And such comparisons "can only make you feel bad."

She also learned not to feel sorry for her daughter.

"I've never cried in front of her, never felt sorry for her," she said. "It's something I've no control over, so why should I make her feel miserable? We have to work with what we have and go from there."

"Feeling sorry for her isn't going to change anything."

Rehab facility provides support

in a competitive setting, when the client is ready.

Special Tree has a goal of job placement for 31 clients this year. By the end of the second quarter it had achieved 37 percent of the goal, said Betty White Woodard, vocational services director. That may seem low, but a successful placement means staying on the job 60 days, she said.

If the client loses the job, he or she has an opportunity to come back for job consultations.

At the same time, the staff works with the clients to counteract behavior problems that are often present. Those problems can range from aggression, such as shouting insults and obscenities, and social disinhibition, such as poor control of impulses in social setting, to depression, denial and passive dependency.

Through day services, clients begin to relearn tasks like cooking, housekeeping and self-care.

The program is aimed to make the client as independent as he or she can be, said Dr. Ann VanDeMark, director of day services.

"We try to put in activities that would be a part of their daily routine; it's a very structured program," she said. "One of the difficulties they have is staying on the topic in conversation and staying on task. Head injured people function best in a structured environment and need a repetitive environment because they suffer memory problems."

THE DAY services are based on a facility a short distance from the medical center and the clients come there, whether based at the medical facility, at a group home or their family home or the supported apartments.

The clients can take anywhere from a few months to several years to "graduate" from day services. Some clients move into the residential setting where what they have learned is reinforced.

Each home can handle six clients. There is 24-hour supervision, but the clients plan their weekly menus, prepare the food, clean up the kitchen and do their own laundry. Once a week, they select a restaurant to eat at.

"We concentrate on integrating them into the community and normal activities because what we would like to happen down the road is to have them back in the community," said Mary Jo Stanley, director of the residential program.

In the apartments, the staff provides support, not supervision. The clients live in a regular apartment and care for themselves, "but there's someone there, if it gets to be too much," Stanley said.

Clients are thoroughly evaluated before being placed in the supported apartment setting, so the staff knows their weakness and strong points. If a client is good at taking medication two of three times a day, the staff is there to remind him to take it the third time.

While Special Tree focuses on the client, it makes sure the family is involved and receives support. Social workers counsel families and help them cope.

"FAMILIES are the mobile mourning," Raves said. "If a person dies, you can bury them, but when it's a brain injury, they see a person who looks OK, but isn't the same as before, so they're constantly mourning their loss."

Families are encouraged to be involved in the treatment and to visit as often as possible. Raves has found that families who come frequently tend to adopt other patients whose relatives live further away. And the staff brings in their pets and children to brighten the patients' day.

"There's just a lot of love from the staff," she said. "We've found that rehabilitation works if the family along with the physician are part of their lives."

"Head injuries are like dropping a pebble in a pool. It affects everyone."

Proposal won't affect infant mortality rate

The Bush administration's proposed expansion of eligibility for Medicaid benefits to pregnant women will have surprisingly little impact on infant mortality rates, according to a University of Michigan study.

"Although Medicaid eligibility requirements are so narrow that less than half of American women living below the poverty line are eligible for the program, our research indicates that simply expanding the program would have almost no significant impact on birth outcomes," said Lewis Margolis, assistant professor of public health policy and administration at the U-M School of Public Health.

"Why? Although women on Medicaid have financial access to prenatal medical care, they make their first prenatal visit to a physician later and have fewer visits than women with medical insurance," Margolis said. "More surprisingly, they also make their first visits to obstetricians later than women with no insurance at all."

Medicaid recipients are more likely to drink and smoke than insured and uninsured women, according to the study. They also have lower incomes. Their infants' birth-weights are 200 grams lighter on the average than the other infants.

Margolis and his colleagues analyzed data from nearly 2,000 postpartum interviews conducted by the Michigan State Department of Health in 1983. The women in the study were either privately insured by Blue Cross or an equivalent program (63.7 percent of the women), completely uninsured (11.7 percent) or on Medicaid (24.6 percent).

THE STUDY concluded that, of all the groups, the women on Medicaid were at greatest risk for poor pregnancy outcomes, Margolis notes.

Nearly 97 percent of the women on Medicaid had annual incomes below $20,300 (the income ceiling for a family of four which determines eligibility for the supplemental nutrition program for high risk mothers and children). Sixty-five percent of the uninsured and 26 percent of the insured had incomes below $23,300.

Nearly half of the Medicaid recipients had not finished high school compared with 15.2 percent of those without insurance and 9.4 percent of the insured.

Although the Medicaid women were as likely to have had complete physical exams and ultrasounds as the insured women during pregnancy, they were more likely to report insufficient food and a lack of nutritional counseling. They were also the least likely of the women to enroll in expectant parent classes.

"Women on Medicaid frequently were raised in low-income families where there was little access to health information," Margolis said.

"Our study results demonstrate that access to prenatal care is not enough. We need more nutritional programs, tobacco and alcohol programs, and improved housing and education for women living in poverty. Only then will we make a dent on the dismal infant mortality rate in the United States."

Drop-in centers offer alternative

A recent concept in child care is the drop-in child-care center. At such a center, parents can drop off a child, usually without an appointment, for short periods of time in the day or evening.

While some child-care centers offer this service as an option during the day, My Place (Just for Kids) in Birmingham, is devoted exclusively to this baby sitting alternative.

Parents might consider making use of this center in such cases as a sudden cancellation by their baby sitter in the evening or, perhaps, as a place for their children to play with others while they run errands or have business appointments during the day.

My Place has been in operation for almost five years; two years ago a second facility was opened in Farmington Hills (32875 Northwestern Highway).

The centers care for children between the ages of two months and 12 years. The two facilities are also involved with the Birmingham and Farmington Hills latch-key programs.

RESERVATIONS are normally required for children between the ages of two months — two-and-a-half years of age, especially for the weekends. This is to ensure the 4:1 caregiver-to-child ratio required by law.

My Place can care for a maximum of 72 children at a time.

The facility includes a separate room for children aged two months two-and-a-half years (although caregivers do bring the children into the main area when it's not so busy); a fantasy castle; a carpeted play area with ramps and slides; tables and chairs for arts and crafts; an amphitheater with a wide-screen t.v. that shows cartoons; and a Texas Instruments computer and Nintendo for older children.

A COMPUTERIZED listing of all children in their care is kept at My Place at any one time, along with special instructions from the parents, also offered a beeper if they might be otherwise difficult to reach.

Rates are $3.60/hour for those two-and-a-half and under; $3.25 for those over two-and-a-half; and $2.25/hour for siblings. There is a two-hour minimum charge.

Hours of operation are Monday-Thursday 8 a.m. - 10 p.m.; Friday 8 a.m. - 1 a.m.; and Sunday 12 p.m. - 8 p.m.

She's all business

Teacher is youngest BPW leader

By Susan Buck
staff writer

Nancy Zimmerman gives kudos to women in the workplace.

The Farmington Hills resident and former Plymouth Canton teacher took over as the youngest president of the Michigan Federation of Business and Professional Women (BPW) last month. She is a second vice president at Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit, in charge of the Renaissance Center branch.

A diversified group, BPW is the oldest and largest national organization established to promote the interests of working women. The Michigan BPW, formed in 1918 to promote the interests of women in business and the professions, has 5,000 members.

"Generally, I've found that if a woman is a president in the organization, she also is a leader in the workplace," said Zimmerman, 32. "Michigan has had four national presidents."

As president of the state BPW, it will be Zimmerman's responsibility to organize the 1990 state convention, entitled "Say Yes To Success," which will be held at the Clarion Inn in Lansing. Coinciding with the initials BPW, the theme will be "Building Personal Worth."

ZIMMERMAN JOINED the Canton BPW in 1981 and was named a Young Careerist, an honorary position, at both the chapter and district levels in 1982. The position recognizes the honors and achievements of women on their way up.

Zimmerman was born in Decker-ville and raised in Erie, south of Monroe, near Toledo. Her parents were potato farmers for a short time. She is the seventh of 11 children. The last four were adopted grandchildren.

"I'm the only one out of the 11 who went on to college," Zimmerman said. "I started getting involved in high school. I was a cheerleader. Where other kids would skip school, well, that wasn't even in my vocabulary. I just enjoyed school."

Zimmerman was also a cheerleader at Eastern Michigan University, where she earned a bachelor's degree in business education in 1978.

For six months until June 1979, she taught pregnant high school girls typing, shorthand and accounting for the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

"When I graduated from college, they were pink-slipping teachers with 10 to 15 years' experience," Zimmerman said.

AT THE SAME time, she taught adult education for the Melvindale-Allen Park school district.

She did her student teaching at Plymouth-Canton High School.

Zimmerman worked her way up from a clerical position as a Kelly Girl at Manufacturers Bank. In 1979, she started in the management training program.

"A lot of it has been on-the-job training," Zimmerman said. "As long as you have the people skills, that's very important in our business. People skills are not something you can learn overnight. You either have people skills or you don't."

Zimmerman said that her career has been aided by a supportive husband, Robert, a CPA for Ernst & Whinney in Detroit.

"I am very fortunate. I have a very supportive husband and a very supportive employer," Zimmerman said. "My husband encouraged me to get involved. He didn't hold me back. He wasn't intimidated by the honors and awards I received. He pushed me to do more."

When she goes away for the weekend, she returns to find her laundry done, she said.

Zimmerman's employers at Manufacturers Bank, both males, are equally supportive. The bank helps finance her travel activities and allows her time off.

Nancy Zimmerman leads state BPW

"I think they are gaining from it because I have grown personally and professionally with BPW. Because I'm dedicated to my job, they are willing to support my activities, which will help them out as well," she said.

ZIMMERMAN believes that the public speaking skills she has acquired improves her ability to confront employees in difficult situations and when she has to do customer calling.

The Farmington Hills City Council recognized Zimmerman's new BPW position at its May 15 meeting.

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women will hold its national convention July 23-27 in Detroit at Cobo Hall. It is expected to draw 3,000 members.

"Women have always been in the workplace," Zimmerman said. "That's what the organization is all about. It's women helping women."

Zimmerman is committed to cheering them on.

Study: kids shortchanged

IF THE QUALITY of life of children in the state of Michigan is to improve, the trend of less money for social services will have to be reversed.

That's the conclusion of a recent University of Michigan study, done by Joan Abbey and Professor Ira Schwartz of U-M's School of Social Work's Center for the Study of Youth Policy.

"Plotting the Course for Michigan's Children" is an analysis of budget and program information from state agencies and of statistics and reports compiled by academic researchers and advocacy organizations.

What it found is that reduced federal spending and a shift in state policy toward more spending on prison construction and operation during the 1980s will affect efforts to reduce infant mortality, treat drug dependence, monitor child care facilities and restaurants and care for the mentally ill in the state.

"Michigan's human services network has not withstood the buffeting of the last decade," they said. "These trends must be reversed if the quality of life for Michigan's children is to improve and, equally important, if the state is to compete in the increasingly competitive national and global economy of the decades ahead."

ACCORDING TO Abbey and Schwartz, human services agencies in Michigan, including the departments of public health, mental health and social services, are operating with a smaller share of the state budget than they did in 1979, resulting in "the deterioration in the quality, accessibility and equality of human services across the state."

They also found that there has been to shift the burden to local governments, leading to "a growing disparity between wealthy and disadvantaged areas of the state." Federal support for social services has been declining throughout the 1980s across the country, but Michigan suffered more than other states "because we had a depression when other states were experiencing a recession," they said.

Since 1980, federal aid to Michigan has been cut by $7.6 billion, with significant reductions in job training and general revenue sharing, which affect the state's ability to weather plant closings and compensate for lost state revenue, the researchers said.

Meanwhile, the state will have built 26 prisons by 1991. As a result, the state allocation for corrections has increased from 2.8 percent in 1979 to 6.9 percent in 1989.

Spending for human services, on the other hand, has declined from 53.2 percent of the state budget to 49.6 percent in the same period and K-12 education fell from 36.6 percent to 30 percent.

Abbey and Schwartz argue that "the reductions in human services expenditures went beyond fat, and waste in government to the bone."

COMMITTING more resources to corrections will "limit the availability of state funds for education and prevention services to eradicate causes of crime," they said. The state would do better to spend its money on cost-effective preventive services, they said.

"Strategic investments in programs for children, including schools, child care and health care, will pay valuable dividends in the future," they said. "High-quality preschool programs for at-risk children have resulted in higher literacy, employment and educational attainment and lower levels of school dropouts, public assistance dependence and arrests."

A priestly pursuit . . .

Rector doesn't see herself as trailblazer

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Earlier this year, the Rev. Margaret Silk-Young traveled to Sioux Falls, S.D., to see her grandson who had been born in April.

Silk-Young was proud to see her fourth grandchild. Her role during that visit wasn't just that of a proud grandmother, however. She baptized her grandson.

"This is the third time I've done it," said Silk-Young, associate rector at St. John's Episcopal Church in Plymouth Township. "It's a thrill."

Silk-Young, 51, has been at St. John's Episcopal Church for about a year and a half. Most people there know her by her nickname, Marnie.

The Northville resident has been ordained as a priest for about three years and served as a deacon before that.

SHE COMES to Plymouth Township by way of Petoskey, Mich., and Chicago. While in Petoskey, she worked as an assistant and then as the priest in charge at that parish.

Silk-Young, a lifelong Episcopalian, did a number of different things in the Chicago area, where she lived for about 20 years. She worked as a chaplain in a retirement community and as an associate in another parish. While in the seminary, Silk-Young worked at a small inner-city parish on the south side of Chicago.

She'd worked as a social worker for a couple of years before entering the seminary, and had earlier been a school library secretary when her children were younger. Silk-Young started college in the late 1960s, and in 1980 earned a bachelor of science degree from George Williams College in Illinois.

In 1985, she graduated from Seabury-Western Theological Seminary in Evanston, Ill., with a master of divinity degree.

As a college student, Silk-Young thought about a number of fields to enter, "none of which seemed to fit."

After a period of time, she decided to enter the ministry. Silk-Young doesn't consider herself a real trailblazer as a woman priest.

"To some extent, I'm not cut out to be one of those trailblazers in that sense."

Women have been ordained as Episcopal priests since the mid-1970s. Silk-Young considers herself more of a pioneer and part of the second or third wave.

HER GENDER hasn't been much of an issue at St. John's Episcopal Church. When she was in Petoskey and Chicago, it was more of an issue.

"It is very nice not to be out of the ordinary, which I was in the other two dioceses." When she goes to meetings of clergy now, Silk-Young sees other women priests.

Some people in her current parish were not convinced women should be priests; some of those parishioners have changed their thinking on that subject.

In working with the vestry, or parish board, at St. John's Episcopal Church, Silk-Young and parishioners tried to discern what makes the parish special. One of the many things mentioned was that the clergy is both male and female.

"It seems to be that it symbolizes a wholeness and through that symbol speaks to the people of the importance of all people."

She remembers the time when she first shared with her children her interest in becoming a priest.

"My son felt that was a natural since I'd been preaching to them all their lives," she said with a smile.

She has five children and four grandchildren. Her children range in age from 25 to 32. None have entered the ministry; three are teachers, one's a pilot and one works as a manager of customer services for a mailing firm.

Silk-Young, originally from Pontiac, moved to the Chicago area in the mid-1960s. She's glad she decided to become a priest and found her way back to the Detroit area.

THE MOST exciting part of her work is seeing people grow in their relationships with the Lord. She finds pastoral counseling rewarding.

"Liturgy, both the worship and the shaping of worship, are very high on my list of enjoyment." She enjoys preaching and helping people broaden their vision of God.

Paperwork isn't Silk-Young's favorite task.

"My desk sort of portrays that, I guess. It just always seems to be ahead of me."

She works with the Rev. Robert Shank, rector at St. John's Episcopal Church. Silk-Young usually spends one day a week on sermon preparation, typically early in the week.

Bible study with parishioners is part of her work week.

"Bible study is one of my joys." People are able to share how the Lord is working in their lives and to learn from one another through sharing.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Her work as associate rector at St. John's Episcopal Church is rewarding for the Rev. Margaret Silk-Young. "It's a good place to be," she said.

Silk-Young attends committee meetings and takes care of paperwork. Counseling, mostly with individuals, is part of her job as well.

Those seeking counseling need help with any number of issues, including handling problems with children, caring for aging parents, dealing with death and other losses, and coping with divorce or marital problems.

Silk-Young may move to another parish at some point.

"But I'm certainly not in a hurry to leave this place. It's a good place to be."

Community projects need commitment

President Bush has made his proposal for a new volunteer corps. He states that the problems of the nation can only be solved by private initiatives. The citizens of our nation will be asked to give time and talents to help renew our society. The funding that he is asking from Congress will only provide advertisement of the program.

America's churches and synagogues have been involved in such social programs for a long time. What are the elements which make these efforts successful?

The church I am associated with has sent two major mission teams out a year. These teams have worked with local people in building and renewing facilities. Behind these programs are not only a few people with commitment and vision, but a whole community of people who support them financially, and personally.

THE RENEWAL of society will only happen when it is born out of community. Individual persons cannot do the work nor can they sustain such a commitment.

The President's idea will remain only an idea until people are found and hired to build community among those who serve. It takes many skills and a great deal of commitment to create community.

The President could turn to the religious institutions to find leadership and experience for his program. The seriousness and difficulty of such a plan is beyond anything that we now see in his speeches. Wonderful things can be accomplished by committed volunteers. Wise leadership is required. How can this be obtained

moral perspectives

without funding?

I believe that the President is correct when he says that there are instances in our nation where problems have been solved. All we need to do, he believes, is find these examples and multiply them.

The idea is good. The translation of a program from one place to another is not simple.

CHURCHES HAVE tried to do this very thing. Some ideas can be moved to another site, but the program still needs to be built within a community.

I hope that President Bush is not just another Ronald Reagan, talking about an idea which will never come to be. We do need individuals who will volunteer to solve some of the serious problems of our nation. It will take much leadership and many experiments before such a goal becomes real.

The Rev. David Strong is pastor of St. Matthew United Methodist Church in Livonia.

Cases of Lyme disease on the increase

Until a few years ago, Lyme disease was little known. Now the Wayne County Health Department is advising residents that two cases of the disease have been reported in Wayne County this year.

Lyme disease is caused by an organism named Borrelia burgdorferi spread to humans from the bite of an infected tick. The disease got its name from the town where it was first identified, Lyme, Conn.

"The number of ticks increases during warmer months and are usually found in fields and wooded areas, especially where deer, wild rodents and other animals live," said Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, health department medical director. "People become exposed by walking or hiking in tick infested areas where they may be bitten by ticks."

Ticks latch on to exposed skin areas and obtain a blood meal from the person. It is during the tick feeding process that the organism is transferred to the human, Lawrenchuk said. Experts believe that the tick usually must be feeding on the individual for about 48 hours in order to transmit enough of the organism to cause the disease.

State records show that reports of Lyme disease have been slowly increasing since 1984, when the first case was reported. There were two cases in 1985, eight in 1986, six in 1987 and 30 in 1988.

ACCORDING to Keith Waite, director of the health department's disease Control Division, the two cases found in the county so far this year were probably the result of exposure to the organism in October or November of last year.

"Lyme disease in the past has been confined to areas of the Upper Peninsula and other states as Connecticut, Wisconsin, Minnesota, California and Oregon with a few isolated cases reported in several other states, but it now appears to be increasing in Michigan," he said.

The incubation period (time from exposure to the infected tick until symptoms begin) ranges from three to 32 days. The symptoms include achiness in the joints, nerve changes, cardiac involvement, rash, malaise (ill feeling) accompanied by fatigue, fever, headache, stiff neck and muscle achiness.

Serious chronic complications can occur in some people which may include arthritis and heart conditions, if the disease persists and is not treated.

Individuals can protect themselves from tick bites several ways, including:

- Avoid going into areas where deer are known to habitate.
- If you must go into those infested areas, wear longsleeved clothing and tuck pant legs into socks so that ticks don't climb up the pant leg.

- Use insect repellents, if you go into infested areas.

• CHECK yourself and your children for evidence of ticks on exposed body areas. If ticks are present, remove them with tweezers in a safe manner.

Hunters should follow the above precautions while hunting and even during the meat processing of animals which may harbor ticks.

If the symptoms occur, individuals should seek medical attention. Blood tests are able to determine the presence of the organism and medications are available to treat the disease, Lawrenchuk said.

For more information about Lyme disease, call the Wayne County Health Department Disease Control Division at 467-3325.

OU professor warns against government 'manipulation'

By R.J. King
special writer

As China scurries to lure back foreign businesses that fled after the military crackdown on the democracy movement last month, the coordinator of East Asian studies at Oakland University warns it won't be business as usual for some time.

"I think the hard-liners have won the battle but lost the war," said Richard Stamps, an associate professor of anthropology and a Rochester Hills resident. "American companies should recognize that China is still maintaining an open-door policy, but things are not what they seem."

Stamps noted that Chinese government agencies are now inviting American executives back to meetings in Beijing, suddenly armed with favorable new terms or promising meetings with officials who had been unavailable for months.

But the invitations turn out to be Communist propaganda campaigns, he said, where participants are filmed by Chinese television crews for use on the state-controlled news programs to promote the appearance of business as usual after the army's killing of students and workers in and around Beijing's Tiananmen Square.

"American companies should look out for the possibility of being manipulated by the Chinese government," Stamps said from his first-floor office in Wilson Hall. "However, there are targets of opportunity in the future, and businesses should try to maneuver for the right opportunity at the right time."

BECAUSE OF THE unpredictable political climate, Stamps said an annual China study tour he has led for the last six years was canceled. The three-week summer trip attracts area school teachers, students and retirees.

"Obviously there is a need to be very cautious in dealing with the Chinese right now," he said. "Companies should maintain their contacts and connections but should not make any rash decisions or jump to any conclusions."

Because of China's heavy reliance on foreign trade, which now accounts for nearly a third of its national income, Stamps said it is crucial for China to bring foreign businesses back, not only to legitimize the administration of Deng Xiaoping, the country's senior leader, but also to shore up a suddenly unstable economy.

For the first four months of this year, inflation has been running at an annual rate of just under 30 percent, according to the Washington D.C.-based U.S.-China Business Council. The council said a severe credit shortage has caused the Chinese government to abort some projects.

"The problems of China's economy stem from underemployment where perhaps three clerks handle what one clerk could handle very easily," Stamps said. "Another problem is that it is very hard to fire anyone because, under the old system ev-

Vickers' Chinese dealings on hold

A Troy company with offices in Beijing is adopting a wait-and-see approach before sending employees back to China.

"Our staff was removed to Hong Kong at the beginning of June just before the shooting started," said Jack Walrad, director of licensing for Vickers Inc. in Troy, which sells machine tools and plastics through nine licensing agreements with several Chinese factories. "Those people are still in Hong Kong and they won't return until after stability is restored."

Walrad suspected the company's representative office was "raped with gunfire from the street," but no one has been able to confirm the news. He was basing his assessment on reports from the U.S.-China Business Council, which has offices on the 22nd floor of the CITIC building near Tiananmen Square. Vickers has offices on the 11th floor.

While Vickers has maintained contact with Chinese officials, travel arrangements have been sharply curtailed, with only one-day trips available, he said. With $5 million in Chinese revenues last year, a small percentage of Vickers' total revenues of $800 million, Walrad said the company was proceeding slowly.

"China promises great potential, but we want to wait until operations are restored to normal before returning," he said. "But we do not want to cut off relations at this time."

erybody had a job."

Addressing those companies that hold out future prospects of doing business in China, Stamps advised thorough market research and a complete understanding of the marketplace before driving stakes in Chinese soil.

Despite accounting for one-fifth of the world's population, "China has a very narrow market. You can't expect to sell a Chevrolet in every garage, and many American products are not appropriate to their economy. They don't really need luxury cars, but rather light trucks."

Stamps, who teaches in the cross-cultural training program that helps Americans more effectively conduct business with the Chinese and Japanese, said likely success in the Chinese market would come from investments in computers, telecommunications, energy production, machine tools, manufacturing technology and automation.

BUT FOR A Communist state that started experimenting with a free-market system 10 years ago, leading foreigners to believe in a more democratic China, Stamps said the recent killings by the Chinese army prove the country is still a tightly controlled Communist state.

"The Chinese are very proud people, and the one thing they can't stand is outsiders telling them what to do. They don't care what the world arena thinks about the killings — to them that is an internal affair."

"It's their game, with their rules, and people have to recognize that you can't go over there and play their game with our rules."

As for the future business climate in China, Stamps believes American companies should approach the country with long-term development plans in mind.

"The Pacific Rim will be the biggest marketplace during the 21st century, and businesses should not write China off."

Businesses should also avoid quarterly-itis, he said.

"Companies need to back up from looking at quarterly profits and develop five- and 10-year plans. For any company that wants to establish world status, China has to be part of the picture."

Managers torn between party, Western techniques

Chinese middle managers who have been increasingly exposed to Western ways of doing business see those methods as a way to succeed in a global economy.

Even with the current turmoil in China, the government would have to close down all exposure to the rest of the world's business to reverse the trend toward adopting Western management methods. And that is unlikely, according to Herbert W. Hildebrandt, a University of Michigan business professor.

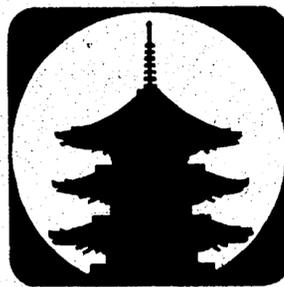

At the same time, managers will be thrown into greater conflict as they value both education and a role in the Communist party as the quickest ways to business leadership positions, he said.

"In the business arena, I think the current political disruptions in China are just that — temporary disruptions," Hildebrandt said. "The question will be to what extent the government wishes to harden its position in the economic scene."

"That will be increasingly difficult because the genie of education is out of the bottle. Enterprise managers know that being aware of modern management principles only will help them do a better job."

Hildebrandt surveyed 436 middle managers in 31 manufacturing industries from 1987 to 1988, focusing on their career paths, sociological patterns, lifestyles and education.

He said middle managers are a large class within the Chinese business community with many of them running the factories. In terms of the overall Chinese population, they are well educated. Two-thirds have high school or higher training. While their rate of college education is well below Western levels, half of the younger managers in Hildebrandt's sample, 51.4 percent, have college degrees compared with 20 percent of the managers who have spent more than 26 years with a company. The younger the manager, the more educated he or she is.

"THEIR EDUCATION gives them exposure to the rest of the world, and contact with countries where there is a lot of entrepreneurship and freedom," Hildebrandt said. "With Deng Xiaoping's earlier economic reforms and push toward modernization, there was a large student exchange program and seminars sponsored by universities from the United States, Japan, Germany, Canada and other countries."

When asked what they believed to be the best educational preparation for a management career, 60.4 percent recommended majoring in business administration at the undergraduate level, to improve overall managerial skills before turning to specialized areas.

At the graduate level, 87.3 percent recommended business administration with science and mathematics finishing a distant second at 6.6 percent.

"In the past, many people moved into managerial positions, not by studying business administration, but by virtue of seniority or because they were good at running the offices," Hildebrandt said.

"Now as Chinese managers receive more responsibility for profits and losses, they find that finance courses provide an essential foundation for decision making.

"SALES AND MARKETING skills were not of great importance when China's economy was tightly controlled at the center. In today's more competitive and export-oriented environment, the managers have learned to value skills in these areas."

But while 32.4 percent of the managers believed that majoring in general management/business administration is the quickest route toward job advancement, they chose politics as the second best way to get to the top. Chinese Communist Party secretaries are present in factories to oversee employees, communicate party instructions, and see that party principles are implemented and adhered to, Hildebrandt said. More than one-fourth, or 27.3 percent, of the managers surveyed picked the political/ideological path as the fastest route to a position of importance within a business.

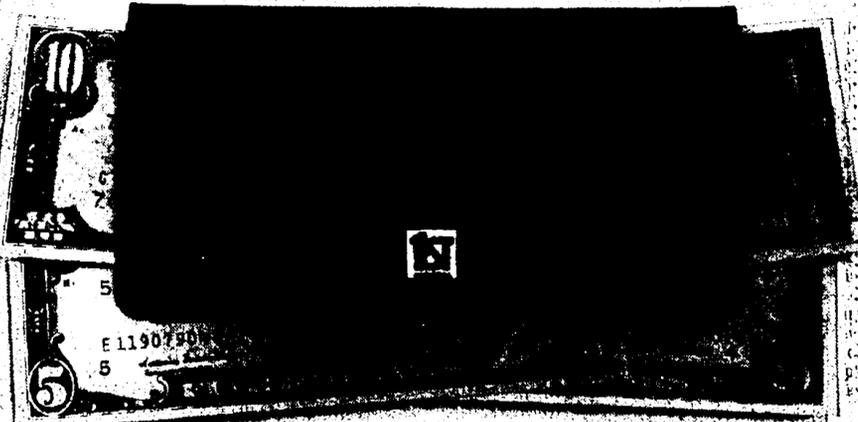

"This means that middle managers will be increasingly torn apart," Hildebrandt said. "They recognize the importance of the party route and party support, but they also see the great progress made under Western managerial practices."

Hildebrandt does not believe China will take a giant leap backward in terms of business practices.

"I doubt they will ever return to the strictly controlled policies of the past. They have seen success of Western business principles. The group of middle managers I surveyed, with their exposure to the world, would be very unhappy if tight central control returned."

The 436 middle managers in Hildebrandt's study averaged 39 years of age; two-thirds were male, and they had jobs in factories with more than 7,500 employees.

Several years ago, I published a column of trust and taxes. It is time to revisit the topic.

The accompanying chart presents our updated version of the old table, incorporating the latest tax law changes. Clearly, estate planning is a highly complex subject and should be handled by a professional.

The seminar, sponsored by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and Coordinated Financial Planning, will be 7-9 p.m. Tuesday, July 18, in the offices of Coordinated Financial Planning, Sheffield Office Park, 3250 W. Big Beaver, Suite 440, Troy.

Big 3 didn't deserve brickbat

There are just three domestic auto companies buying magazine ads compared to 20 import automakers, which is one reason why the auto enthusiast magazines traditionally favor foreign cars.

I, for one, think most foreign cars are more fun than domestic cars. I also like women with foreign accents, which is why I married someone from New Jersey. But I digress. I resist trying to justify my preference for foreign cars, but I freely acknowledge it as I struggle to maintain objectivity in automotive-type prose.

THE FOREIGN-CAR bias is a preference shared by most auto writers, many of whom remember their first love as a sadomasochistic affair with a British roadster.

Rarely, however, have I read such a one-sided barrage at the domestic industry as the three diatribes in the current issue of Car and Driver, all taking swings at the domestic industry's stand against raising the national corporate average fuel economy standard.

William Jeanes, Brock Yates and Tony Assenza gang up on Detroit as a reluctant dinosaur, building overweight gas-guzzlers, so technologically backward and callous about the environment that they refuse to see the benefits of a 40 mph car in the future.

THE COLLECTIVE wrath was mainly aimed at the likes of Don Runkle, head of advanced engineering at GM, who claimed that a higher corporate economy standard in the face of current low fuel prices would mean a bunch of dull, slow cars at best, and a market heavily favoring the Japanese at worst.

Adding injury to insult, the magazine includes 10 car reviews, including a brushoff of Chevrolet's new Lumina, glowing praise of the new Nissan 300ZX, Porsche and Jaguar, then a couple of snide remarks about the Ford Escort.

C'mon guys.

I DID a little figuring and discovered that the average fuel economy of the issue in question was 25.4 mpg highway — two mpg worse than the current CAFE standards, let alone any proposed in the future.

More interesting, two of the three highest-mileage cars in the issue were domestics, the derided Chevrolet Lumina sedan, and the Escort — with the third the Chrysler-marketed Eagle Summit, engineered in Japan.

The Chevy ranked with the top three in mileage despite an automatic transmission and five passenger seats, and weighs less than the two-place 300ZX, as well as getting 5 mpg better fuel economy. Maybe Msrs. Runkle et al have been doing their homework after all.

THE "CRUDE" Escort turned out to be the lightest car tested in the Issue, as well as the most economical. Heavyweights included two Japanese and one British sedan. Only Ford's Continental (which also had the worst fuel economy in the issue) made the list of the five heaviest cars tested, and two of the five were actually two-seat sports cars. Guess which domestic car impressed the editors the most.

Unnoticed to the performance-oriented enthusiast press, domestic cars have made the greatest gains in fuel economy and have surpassed imports in fuel economy per passenger carried for several years, while the imported sports cars and performance sedans favored by the magazines have been getting fatter, and less efficient.

Typical is the current issue of Car and Driver, where the most slavish praise is reserved for the least-efficient cars.

Based on its magazine average economy score, Car and Driver would be paying hefty gas-guzzler taxes right now. Any government legislation raising the MAFE would, of course, put them out of business far more quickly than raising the CAFE standard would hurt the domestic auto industry.

Call PIC if you are hiring employees

If you own a business, you probably know how expensive it can be to train new employees. But finding people who can begin working with little or no training can be almost impossible.

One of the most significant findings from a Crain's Detroit Business survey of state businesses was the concern over finding qualified employees. According to the survey, just 1 percent of high school graduates and 13 percent of college graduates were qualified to meet the skill requirements for entry-level jobs.

If you are having difficulty hiring employees, it might be worth your time to check out the Wayne County Private Industry Corporation. PIC is financed by the Federal Jobs Training Partnership Act. Money is allocated to organizations across the country to provide training tailored to the needs of a target population. PIC can save you both time and money by recruiting, pre-screening and training people you may be interested in hiring. As the employer, you retain control of all interviewing and hiring decisions.

Serving Wayne County, excluding Detroit and some downriver communities, PIC has helped hundreds of businesses recruit and train workers. They are able to tap an extensive recruitment and outreach network to identify those who may meet your company's skill requirements. PIC prescreens applicants before they are sent to your company for further interviews.

Attitude of some 3rd-class mail insults the reader

It used to be that Thursdays were junk mail days, but now it seems that almost every day is junk mail day for the small business owner.

Used as a means to promote a company's products or services, junk mail represented 30 percent of the total mail distributed in this country last year — up from 14 percent in 1945.

Junk mail are those pieces that are sent through the U.S. Postal Service third class. So these statistics do not reflect the distribution efforts of "fax-heads" and those who opt for first-class mail.

ALTHOUGH third-class mail represents a legitimate form of advertising for small businesses, it may have hit a new low with celebrity endorsements.

To add to the national disease of junk thinking, form letters from celebrities are included as another method to feed on your sense of flattery.

Louis Rukeyser, Investments analyst, said, "The idea that we're going to be so bowled over by seeing the name of somebody important on a letter machine-addressed to us and that we're going to fall into an awe-struck stupor and buy whatever is being sold is ludicrous."

HE ADDS that when such mail plays fair with us it can have its uses. "But too often, as in the case of the celebrity form letter, it treats us with contempt and inspires the same in return." For example, "valued Shuttle customers" of Eastern Airlines' frequent flier mileage program are due to receive a letter and bonus mileage certificate from Donald Trump if they fly a couple hundred miles on the new Trump shuttle.

mer Vogue magazine editor, who has started her own magazine, suggests: "I believe there's an important segment of the female population . . . and you and I are a part of it . . . that is not being served by the magazines that are currently being published."

SOUNDS PRETTY impressive except for the fact that Rukeyser received both letters and has neither flown the shuttle nor is he a woman.

I've always wondered why the opportunities you would like to take advantage of never seem to be included in the mail. For example, Canadian travelers under age 26 may stay free at one of 55 hotels throughout Denmark during Youth Travel '89, which runs until July 9.

It's curious that I know many young Canadians who would love to have received a notice about this program but haven't . . . not even from the prime minister.

NEA's new leader has ties to metro schools

The new president of the nation's largest teachers' union can boast strong ties to suburban Detroit schools.

Keith B. Geiger, 47, was elected president of the 1.9 million-member National Education Association during balloting Monday at the organization's national convention in Washington D.C.

A former Livonia resident, Geiger taught high school mathematics and science in the Livonia Public Schools during the 1960s and early 1970s.

"I always valued my teaching experience there," Geiger said. "The schools in Michigan in general, and Livonia in particular, are good schools because people in Michigan value education."

Though he won't directly deal with Michigan's controversy over per-student spending differences among rich and poor districts, Geiger said long-term NEA policy might help.

"Our priority is to return funding for federal education programs to pre-Reagan era levels," he said. "While that only affects special programs, it should still help."

Promoting collective bargaining among teachers in right-to-work states and continuing the NEA's "learning laboratory" program — in which one school district in each state could be given free rein to develop innovative educational programs — are among the organization's other goals.

While in Livonia, Geiger served as president of the district teacher's union, the Livonia Education Association, from 1970 to 1974. In that role, he led the union through the district's first, and, to date, only teacher's strike.

Geiger served as president of the Michigan Education Association in 1974 and 1975 and from 1977 to 1983.

He has been the NEA's sole vice president since 1983.

Geiger will begin his two-year term as the organization's president Sept. 1. He is eligible for re-election to successive terms in 1991 and 1993.

His election came during the annual NEA convention in Washington D.C., where 8,500 delegates represented rank-and-file union members. The NEA calls itself the largest professional association and labor union in the nation.

ELECTION AS NEA president highlighted Geiger's 25-year education and union career. In addition to his responsibilities as vice president, Geiger has worked in numerous professional, political and negotiating capacities. He recently served as one of 50 outside observers who monitored a recent plebiscite election in Chile.

Friends and former colleagues, interviewed at the time of Geiger's October 1988 visit to Livonia, remembered him as a good teacher with strong organizational skills, as well as an effective, charismatic union leader.

"I honestly don't feel he's changed; he's still the dynamic person I remember," said Tom Lang, a Livonia teacher whose friendship with Geiger began in 1964.

GEIGER WAS a member of the NEA's 1976 Presidential Screening and Endorsement Committee and has been a delegate to two Democratic National Conventions.

In addition to his union duties, Geiger is an executive committee member of the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education, a labor committee member of the Martin Luther King Jr. Federal Holiday Commission and a director of KIDSNET, a computerized clearinghouse for children's television and radio.

In 1988, he served as a judge for the USA Today's All-Academic Team, as well as the National League of Cities Innovations Awards Competition.

Born in Pigeon, in Michigan's thumb area, Geiger attended high school there and earned a bachelor's from Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., and a master's from Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn. He has extended his post-graduate studies at the University of Michigan.

Geiger, wife Janet, and two sons live in Fairfax, Va., a Washington, D.C. suburb.

Woodpeckers — there's more than one kind

WHEN ONE thinks of a woodpecker what comes to mind is a black and white bird traveling up the trunk of a tree looking for food. In southeastern Michigan the downy woodpecker is the most common species of woodpecker seen. The black and white coloration is commonly seen at suet feeders placed in the yard.

nature
Timothy Nowicki

A woodpecker frequently seen and heard in our area is the common flicker. Though it too likes to excavate insects from tree trunks, flickers are often seen on the ground eating ants. Their long tongue is thrust down into ant hills found in lawns, where they probe for ants and their eggs.

These 12-inch long birds are easily seen and identified. On their back they have black bars contrasting against a brown background. Many people see the small red patch on the back of the head which is found in both the male and female.

ONE OF the best ways to identify this bird is to watch it fly. As it takes flight, the wings feathers will expose a large white rump patch. While flying one can readily see the yellow colored feather shafts of both the wings and the tail — especially when seen from below.

At one time the common flicker was called the yellow-shafted flicker because of those yellow feathers. Recently, however, it was learned that the yellow-shafted flickers mated successfully with red-shafted flickers out west, producing "orange-shafted flickers" in the great plains. Those birds seen around our area are predominantly the yellow form.

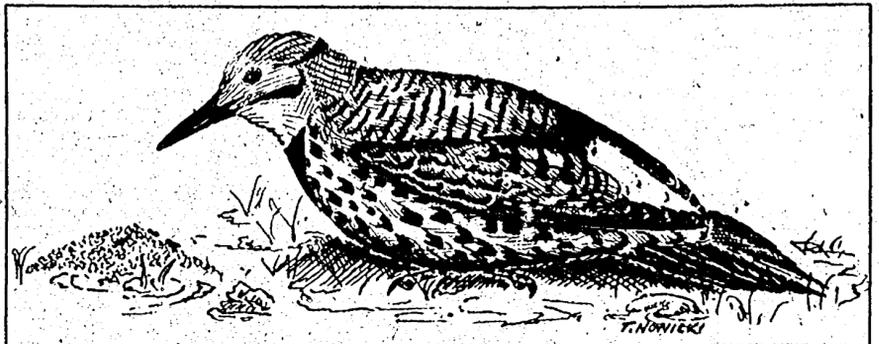

As you watch a flicker feeding on ants in your lawn, look to see if it has a "mustache." Males have a black line which extends from the base of the bill below the eye toward the middle of the head. Females of course lack the "mustache."

Years ago a researcher captured the female of a mated pair and painted a "mustache" on her. He then returned her to the nest. When her mate returned he did not recognize her and immediately began to chase her away.

Areas where sandy soils and ant hills are common is where you will likely see flickers hammering into the ground for food. This behavior spawned the common name of yellow hammer.

The writer is a naturalist at Independence-Oaks Park in Oakland County.

Champs crowned at Wolverine 10

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Twelve teams were crowned champions Monday at the 10th-annual Wolverine Soccer Invitational Tournament, but no one had more reason to smile than Birmingham-Bloomfield Soccer Club coach Harry Smith.

BBSC won the Under-19 boys division at Schoolcraft College, defeating the Rochester Maple Leafs, 4-1 in the championship game. The Wolverine Tournament title was the first for Smith, who has coached an Under-19 team at the prestigious tourney every year of its existence.

BBSC built a 57-6-1 all-time tournament record under Smith's guidance before last weekend's action, but the club was never able to grab the elusive Wolverine championship.

This time, BBSC took a 2-0 lead before the game was 20 minutes old and prevented the Maple Leafs from mounting a serious rally. BBSC outscored its five Wolverine Tournament opponents 30-2.

"THIS IS A very successful team," Smith said. "I knew it would be a great match, and I think it was. That first goal (by Jeff Forschey) really turned us on. Their goalkeeper made a mistake on it, but it was great hustle and a heck of a play, too by Forschey."

Bob Boyle, Chad Okulch and Rick Sanchez recorded the other goals for BBSC. Khaled Zeldan, a recent Livonia Churchill graduate, notched the only goal for Rochester, which had to overcome several ankle injuries to some of its top goal-scorers.

Striker Lamarr Peters of Birmingham Brother Rice, who was named Mr. Soccer last fall, left on a stretcher late in the first half after suffering a severe ankle sprain. Also playing on injured ankles were Redford Catholic Central product Steve McCaul, Zeldan and Derek Williford of Livonia Stevenson.

"We were beaten up the whole tournament," said McCaul, who will play next fall at Michigan State University. "They're a good team, but they got lucky on the first goal and the second goal (on a penalty kick) is what really hurt us. The referee took the game away from us. Even the players on the other team said he was calling bad stuff."

IN ONE OF the day's most entertaining finals, the LYSC Michigan Athletics defeated the Livonia Wolves, 2-1 in double overtime to win the Under-17 boys division. CC's Bill Tarnacki decided the game early in the first overtime, as his penalty kick beat Wolves' goalkeeper Jerry Smolenski (Stevenson) on the right side.

The Athletics' Dave Poniatowski, of Milford, sent the game into overtime when his goal tied the score at 1-1 with five minutes left in regulation.

Churchill's Brady Ericson had given the Wolves a 1-0 lead before half-time, but they were forced to play shorthanded nearly the rest of the way because of four red cards.

LYSC received strong play in the nets from Plymouth Canton's Andy Collins and the Athletics played over an injury to CC's Mickey Hynes, who left with the game only five minutes old.

John Labadie (Livonia) and Todd Menko (Farmington) gave the Athletics strong play in Hynes' absence, coach John Hynes said.

ON THE GIRLS side, the '77 LYSC United team won the Under-12 division, beating the Troy Chargers 2-1 in double overtime.

Brighton's Amber Berendowski, who scored both United goals, scored early in the first overtime to break the 1-1 tie. Berendowski now has a team-high 42 goals.

The final was played Sunday evening and that was fine with coach Pat McCaul, whose team competes in the U.S. regional finals this weekend in Omaha, Neb.

"I was glad because the girls needed a rest," McCaul said. "I have only 13 on my panel (team) and was very happy we got the games over with fast. We have a good team and put on a good show. I'm happy to represent the state. The team is very well balanced."

"They're young girls and very easy to coach. They come to play."

Does the U-M baseball coach deserve the fate awaiting him?

WAS BUD MIDDAGH a victim of a vendetta by his rivals, or did he violate NCAA rules?

An ongoing Big Ten investigation is trying to determine whether the University of Michigan baseball coach allegedly circumvented rules and exceeded scholarship limits.

Like Pete Rose's, Middaugh's fate is up in the air, but the outcome does not look good.

The word around amateur baseball circles is that Middaugh will resign by July 15, once his summer camps end, to take a job with the Cincinnati Reds.

Some of his former players have made it public that they have cooperated with Big Ten investigators.

The charges revolve around players selling U-M football programs in which so-called "supervisors" made as much as $300 for only a few hours work on a Saturday afternoon.

The program money supposedly helped supplement players who were not on baseball scholarships. Other charges levied against U-M baseball include bogus work-study jobs, borrowing scholarship money from other sports and scouting violations.

LIVONIAN GREG EVERSON, a former U-M player now pitching for the London Tigers of the AA Eastern League, told me that he was interviewed last November by representatives of the Big Ten.

"I told them I didn't want to be involved," Everson said. "I sold programs for two years and supervised for two years, but I know I didn't get that kind of money ($300 a day). That figure is a little high. I never got that kind of money." (Everson would not give a figure.)

Everson, a Bentley High graduate, started his collegiate career at UM-Dearborn where he was on a hockey scholarship.

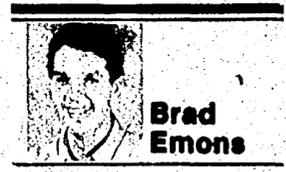

He later transferred to Ann Arbor and walked on the baseball team.

"I was on work-study; I did the team's laundry and that was legal," he said. "I got all my checks through the Athletic Department. I can verify that."

When he arrived from Miami of Ohio, Middaugh quickly put the Wolverines' baseball program on the map. He posted an impressive 465-146-1 record in 10 years as coach.

But apparently Middaugh made quite a few enemies along the way, including some of his own players.

"HE WAS TOUGH to play for," Everson admitted. "A lot of players didn't like him. My relationship with him wasn't that great. But now, since I've been gone, our relationship is a lot better. I won't get back at him. He gives me a place to work out during the off-season."

In my travels around the sandlot and high school circuits, major league scouts seem to be the most critical of Middaugh.

They say for every major leaguer he's produced, there's another he's ruined.

But many of Middaugh's players have been highly successful in the pro ranks. Catholic Central's Chris Sabo (of the Reds) is one familiar area name.

But one scout pointed out to me that another CC grad currently in the Michigan program, first baseman Greg Haeger, has leveled off.

"His swing is so screwed up that he may never get drafted when he becomes eligible again next season (his junior year)," the scout said. (Haeger reportedly turned down a substantial bonus offer in high school.)

During a high school game I attended a few years back, a rival coach from another state school approached me and asked, "Brad, how does Michigan get so many players and keep them there?" He was obviously accusing Middaugh of exceeding the NCAA limit of 13.

ANOTHER IN-STATE coach once volunteered information to me that Middaugh circumvented rules to get a highly regarded prep player from Texas.

Yet another out-state coach told me his disdain for Middaugh after losing a potential recruit to Michigan.

Is this sour grapes?

I think it is to a certain extent. There's no question that Mid-American Conference-type programs were losing out on potential recruits to Michigan, and wanted to blow the whistle on Middaugh.

But all indications point to Middaugh being the fall guy for a school whose athletic department is not committed totally to baseball.

Here's a coach who reportedly came in on a $23,000-a-year salary and was asked to compete on a national level.

Through his own fund-raising efforts, Middaugh brought the Wolverines' program to national prominence by working day-in and day-out, night-in and night-out.

I'VE SEEN HIM scouring the high school diamonds for recruits, spring and summer. He was constantly promoting the program, staging clinics and hosting camps.

He worked as hard as Bo Schembechler, but didn't have the same type of resources to compete against such schools as Arizona State, Miami, Fresno State, Florida State and Texas.

Middaugh was coaching in a northern climate, another strike against him, yet Michigan was the only school located above the Mason-Dixon Line to consistently rank in the top 20.

I've had only a few dealings with Middaugh, but it's always been cordial and congenial.

As unpopular as Middaugh may be, he didn't do anything different than Dick Vitale when he splashed upon the scene and put the University of Detroit basketball program back on the map.

I HAD TO LAUGH when staunch Michigan football fans accused Illinois of cheating. How does it feel, loyal Maize and Blue, to see your baseball program under scrutiny?

Let's face it, fans, no school, not even Northwestern, is immune from bending some kind of obscure NCAA rule.

The question that must be asked is where was Don Canham, the former Michigan A.D., when these alleged improprieties were going on?

He apparently left the dirty laundry to Schembechler, whose hand has been forced.

Middaugh's expected resignation may be viewed with glee by rival coaches, but in my eyes he was only trying to bring a baseball program to the standards of the school's football and basketball programs.

"I guess when you're caught doing something illegal, you have to suffer the consequences," Everson said.

The consequences may dictate that Schembechler may want a "Michigan Man" as he likes to say.

Bill Freehan is being mentioned the most.

But if the former Tiger ends up running U-M's baseball program, will he have a free hand?

Middaugh was apparently caught in his own web.

O&E womens tournament will have new look this year

By C.J. Rieck staff writer

Same golf course, same ground rules, but the results could be much more diverse than those provided by the Observer & Excelsior/Whispering Willows golf tournaments.

The women's tournament is a one-day, 18-hole event, one might think competition would remain close in such a short tournament, but three of the last four championship flights have been decided by five strokes or more.

The men's tournament, on the other hand, is a two-day, 36-hole affair, but the margin of victory in the championship flight in the last four has been one stroke — including two by sudden-death playoffs.

The two competitions have traveled different paths in popularity, too. Has golf become more attractive to women? If it has, it doesn't show in the O&E entries have slid over the last four years, from 36 in 1985 and 38 in 1986 to 35 in 1987 and an all-time low of 22 last year.

WHICH PROMPTED some changes in the womens tourney. Instead of a Saturday playing date, the '89 tournament will be Wednesday, Aug. 23. Should rain interfere, it will be rescheduled for Friday, Aug. 25.

Lunch (a sandwich and a beverage) will also be included in this year's women's tournament.

The men's tournament has had no such problem. There has been a waiting list to play since '85; a shotgun start allowed 169 to play last year.

This year, the men will tee off Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 16-17, with a shotgun start. Since the response has been overwhelming, an early response is urged. Rain dates are a week later, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 23-24.

The 1988 men's tourney ended in dramatic fashion. As a thunderstorm swept toward the course, Jim Hedges of Birmingham outduelled John Smith of Plymouth and John Van Vleck of Farmington Hills on the third playoff hole to

A SHOWDOWN of similar dimensions was expected in the women's event last August, but it never materialized, even though the previous two champions, Erica Zonder of Farmington Hills and Ann Lauer of Birmingham, were both present.

In 1986, Zonder — then about to begin her junior year at North Farmington and playing her first O&E — folded down the stretch and allowed Lauer to edge her by a single stroke. Zonder averaged her loss in 1987, winning by five shots over runner-up Lauer. Last year it was Lauer's turn for revenge. She pulled away from Zonder (who has just finished her freshman year at University of Michigan) to win by five strokes. Other women's winners in 1987 were Betty Smith of Plymouth in first flight and Pamela Hirst of Farmington Hills in second. For the men, 1988 flight winners were Jeff Truax of Livonia in first; Dennis Drobicki of Livonia in second; and Jim Rozek in third. Entry deadline for the women is 6 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 16. Entries for the men close at 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 9, with a cutoff at 200.

LIVONIA PORTAC DETROIT ELIO

OT goal lifts Cosmos to title

They're probably the best Under-12 team in Livonia in a long time."

IN A FINAL matching local teams, the Livonia Cosmos edged the Plymouth Lightning, 2-1, to win the Under-16 girls title. Jenny O'Meara's goal in the first of two overtime sessions broke a 1-1 tie. Jennifer Holowka, of Rochester, scored the Cosmos' first goal.

Ten of the 16 Cosmos players were from Livonia and one, Amy Kfajewski, hails from Plymouth. The Cosmos and Lightning played to a scoreless tie Saturday in the tournament's first round, and both teams won their next two games, setting up the final.

"We had a lot of hard work from the girls," said coach Chris Morano, who won a boys Under-14 title earlier this decade when coaching the Livonia Cardinals. "The teams we played to get there (including Carmel, Ind. and the Evansville, Ind. Spirits) were very good. The Under-16 division was very well matched this year. The Plymouth Lightning is a very good team."

The Livonia Wolves captured the boys Under-11 title, outlasting the Bluewater Sting, 1-0, on a goal by Jeff Domlinson. Peter Varga picked up the assist.

The Wolves' Under-12 squad also earned tournament bragging rights, beating the '77 Travelers, 2-1 in the final.

Darkowski's gem pushes Hines Park into tie for 1st

Derek Darkowski threw plenty of "dark ones" Friday, tossing a four-hitter as Hines Park Lincoln/Mercury moved into a first-place tie with Little Caesars in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League with a 4-3 victory at Ford Field.

Both teams are 14-4-1 going into the all-star break with nine games left to play. Hines Park leads the season series, 3-2.

Darkowski, a Plymouth, Canton High product and starter at Michigan State University, struck out four and walked only one in raising his record to 6-1. All three runs were unearned as left-hander lowered his league-leading earned run average to 1.15.

"Dark" was on top of his game," said Hines Park coach Dave Racer. "He threw a great game for us. He was mixing his pitches very well."

Jim Miller, the Waterford Kettering All-Stater headed for MSU as a quarterback this fall, took the loss for Caesars. He allowed all four runs in 5 1/2 innings of work.

Hines Park tallied the winning run in the sixth when Dennis Szczechowski walked, advanced to second on a walk, took third on a wild pitch and scored on a John Bonham's fielders choice.

Szczechowski, Bill Bannon and Mike Culver each had RBI singles for the winners.

Steve Malgaj had two hits in a losing cause, while Tim Napier added an RBI.

WALTER'S APPLIANCE (12-7) stayed in the LCBL hunt with a pair of victories over Wendy's.

In a game played Thursday at Ann Arbor Huron, Walter's scored seven times in the top of the seventh to pull out an 11-6 victory.

Rick Rutledge, formerly of Redford Union High and Henry Ford Community College, knocked in the go-ahead run with a ground-rule double.

Rutledge, John Gotts (Redford Catholic Central and Eastern Michigan) and Damien Hall (Henry Ford CC) each collected two hits.

Walter's starter Joe Mackiewicz (Redford CC and Kalamazoo College) entered the game with a 3-0 record, but was rocked for two homers and five runs in two innings.

Reliever Steve Owens came in to slam the door, allowing just one run over the final five innings to even his record at 2-2.

Friday at Ford Field, Randy Buchler (Hillsdale College) worked five innings to pick up the win as Walter's gained a 10-3 triumph.

Buchler (3-2) gave up one run and only two hits, while fanning six.

David Houghtby (Stevenson High and Henry Ford CC) collected two hits to raise his average to .379, while Chris Day (Churchill High) added a pair of doubles.

DUFFY'S PLUMBING fell to 8-8-2 Friday as last place Tom Holzer Ford snapped a 17-game losing streak, earning its first win of the season with a 5-3 triumph at Novi High.

Pitcher Craig Bowman, a Ferris State student, scattered eight hits to pick up the win.

Jim Isso (Adrian College) and Rob Baumgartel (Western Michigan University) combined for all four Tom Holzer hits.

Baumgartel also cut out a runner trying to go from first to third base to end the game.

John Storm, who struck out four in four innings, was the losing pitcher. He was relieved by Joe Jentzere (Clarenceville High and Henry Ford CC).

Joe Lezotte (Redford Union), Mike Siwajek and Steve Michelz each contributed two hits in a losing cause. Mike Kaczmarek (Franklin and Henry Ford CC), Todd Fracassi (Stevenson and Henry Ford CC) and Michelz each knocked in a run.

In a makeup game Thursday at Canton High, Duffy's and Hines Park battled to an 8-8 draw. Play was halted after seven innings because of darkness.

Joe Delfgaw (RU) belted a three-run homer in the first for Duffy's. Fracassi went 3-for-4, while Siwajek added two hits.

SC's AAU squad rallies to take title

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

It took just a few mid-tournament adjustments to take Schoolcraft College's AAU 19-and-under team from comic relief to championship status at last weekend's AAU-USA National Junior Volleyball Tournament at Illinois Benedictine in Lisle, Ill.

The comedy came early from SC. The team dropped its first four games before rallying to finish its Friday schedule with a 4-4 mark.

"In pool play, there were teams that were just laughing at us," said SC coach Tom Teeters. "When we came back through the tournament, they weren't laughing anymore."

After splitting with Miami-Dade in Saturday's pool-play opener, SC started to put it all together. A sweep of University of Michigan-Dearborn followed to give SC a 7-5 pool record and the No. 3 seed.

Six lopsided games later, SC had three match wins and a national championship in just its second year of AAU competition.

TEETER'S ADJUSTMENTS helped turn the tide for SC. "We went from one setter to a two-setter system," he explained. "And that let us go to a middle-man-up defense. It's a much simpler system that allowed us to be more consistent. It let us get Nikki (Stubbs) outside, where she could get more sets for her."

Stubbs, who spurred SC's college team to the National Junior College Athletic Association title last November, was another major factor in capturing the AAU crown. After moving outside, the 5-foot-8 hitter could not be stopped.

JoAnn Kolnitys, a Wayne Memorial grad who will be a sophomore at SC this fall, moved into the middle and provided solid blocking, and Karl Domanski, who will be a senior at Livonia Ladywood in September, went from setter to outside hitter and did both well.

Stubbs (headed for Eastern Michigan this fall on a volleyball scholarship) and Domanski were two of the four players selected to the all-tournament team.

SC's slow start began on Friday against teams from Hawaii and Southern Missouri. The 0-4 slate got turned around with sweeps against Peoria (Ill.) — thanks to 11 blocks by Sarah Adzima (from Ladywood, going to Western Michigan) — and Lansing.

After winning three-of-four pool games Saturday, SC went against

volleyball

sixth-seeded UM-D and won 15-1, 15-8, to advance to the semifinals on Sunday.

IN THE SEMIS, SC had a rematch with Southern Missouri, which had defeated SC 15-6, 15-4 in pool play and was the heavy favorite to win the title. Instead, SC clubbed Southern 15-4, 15-5.

That left a rematch with Miami-Dade for the championship. There was no splitting this time; SC won easily, 15-5, 15-7.

The rest of the nine-person SC championship squad was setter-rightside hitter Jennifer Sprout, from Livonia Churchill (going to SC this fall); outside hitter Angelle Love, from Detroit Henry Ford (also going to SC); outside hitter Anjanette Lankford, from Garden City (a sophomore at SC); outside hitter Kirstin Stelzer, from Woodhaven (another SC soph); and serve-and-defense specialist Cathy Coak, from Wayne (an SC soph).

Teeters was assisted by Alisha Love and Pat Cyrus.

A week earlier, SC entered teams in the 18-and-under and 16-and-under AAU tournaments, also at Illinois Benedictine. The 18-and-under team won seven of eight pool games, but was eliminated in the second round of tournament competition. It finished with an overall record of 9-3.

The 18-and-under SC squad was 5-3 in pool play, but also lost in the second round of tournament competition to finish 7-5. Both teams placed among the top 28 in their respective 60-team tourneys.

SC NOTES: Teeters announced the signing of another volleyball recruit: Tricia Lukas, a 6-0 middle blocker/outside hitter from Dearborn Heights Crestwood.

"She'll help us running our quick middle-set offensively," said Teeters. Lukas was actually recruited by SC basketball coach Jack Grenan. She plans to play both sports at SC. Lukas was a two-year starter for Crestwood's volleyball team.

There are still openings in SC's volleyball camps, both the July 10 and July 17 sessions. For more information, contact Teeters through SC's athletic department (462-4400).

Gatewood's wins propel C'ville swimming

Gordy Gatewood paced the Clarenceville Swim Club to a fourth place finish in the 1989 Flag City Invitational swim meet, held June 23-25 at Riverside Park in Findley, Ohio.

The meet attracted 424 age-group swimmers from 29 clubs.

Competing in the Boys 13-14 category, Gatewood finished first in seven events including the 400-meter freestyle (4:39.78), 100 butterfly (1:08.05), 200 individual medley (2:30.62), 100 freestyle (1:00.04), 200 freestyle (2:11.01), 100 backstroke (1:13.92) and 100 breaststroke (1:18.88). He also took second in the 50 freestyle (27.76), sixth in the 200 breaststroke (2:52.19) and seventh in the 400 IM (5:22.19).

Teammate Cherri Vincent was the top point-getter in the Girls 15-16 division, winning the 100 backstroke (1:14.63), 50 freestyle (30.0) and 100 freestyle (1:08.85). She added a second in the 100 breaststroke (1:32.75) and 200 IM (2:48.68); and a 10th in the 400 freestyle (5:22.99).

Davidson is dumped in Top Gun quarterfinals

A busy summer it's been for Kori Davidson, the 15-year-old Farmington Hills tennis star who just completed her sophomore year at Harrison. But the news hasn't been all good.

A week after winning her first tournament of the season, Davidson exited in the quarterfinals of the prestigious Top Gun Tournament at Bloomfield Open Hunt Club. Katie Nederveld of Grand Rapids knocked Davidson out with a 7-6, 6-3 win.

Nicole Transou, another Farmington Hills resident, also fell in the quarterfinals 6-0, 6-3 to Candy Kopski of Sterling Heights.

The results had been much better for Davidson a week earlier. For the third consecutive year, she reached the finals of the Western Closed Tennis Championship in Indianapolis, this time in the 16-and-under age division. And for the first time, Davidson emerged with a title, beating Sherri Bash of Columbus, Ohio, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 in the June 29 final.

IT WAS a sweet victory for Davidson, ranked third in the nation in her age group (Bash is seventh). Last year, Bash beat Davidson for the Western 14-and-under title. It took seven matches and a lot of vitamin C — Davidson was battling the flu early in the tournament — to claim the title. She whipped Marija Newbauer of Rochester 6-3, 7-6 (7-2 in the tiebreaker) in the quarterfinals, then ousted Suzie Starrett of Chicago 6-3, 0-6, 6-2 in the semis.

Davidson also reached the finals in doubles, but she and partner Alisha Kim of Evansville, Ind., were beaten by Bash and Holyn Lord of Indianapolis 6-1, 7-6 (7-4 tiebreaker).

The tournament title has made Davidson's schedule even more hectic.

Happiness is Actor's role intact with renewal of 'Midnight Caller'

By Victor Swanson
special writer

WHEN NBC-TV announced its fall prime-time schedule for the 1989-90 season, it was good news — great news, really — for former Livonia resident, actor James King.

The network renewed "Midnight Caller," for Tuesdays at 10 p.m., the series on which King is a semi-regular, playing a police officer named Sgt. Ontine.

"What I like about it ('Midnight Caller') is that it's a crime drama, but there's never any gunplay — rarely," King said during a recent interview at his sister Peggy's home in Dearborn. "I think they did one episode where there was some hostages in a bank, so they had a shoot-out. But there's no car chases or any of that other stuff."

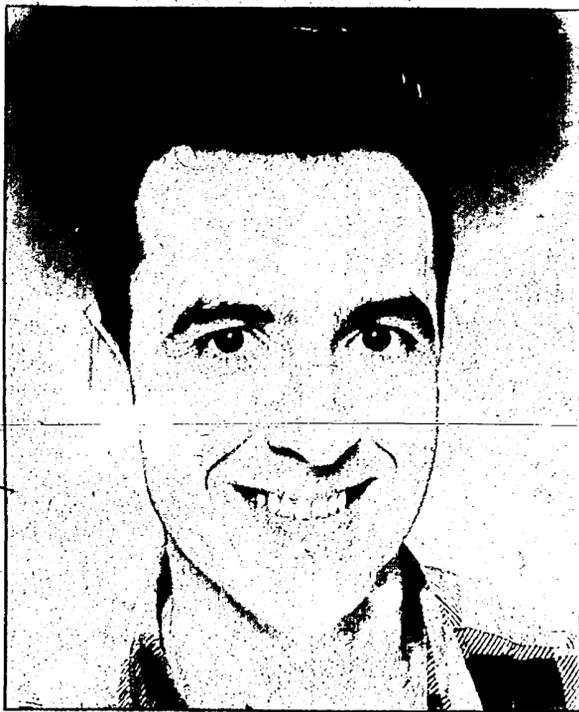

King had come back to Michigan for Peggy's wedding. He has 12 brothers and sisters, one of whom is Steve King of Steve King and the Dittles, a band doing well in the Detroit area.

"MIDNIGHT CALLER" is the first television series King has ever worked on. Shooting for the new season begins in July, which is customary for prime-time series. How did he get the job?

"The casting director called me and asked me if I would be available to play a character, Sgt. Ontine, who was an inept police officer, a rookie, the sidekick of one of the regulars (Arthur Taxler's character, Lt. Zymak). They said it would be a comic-relief-type thing, where I would be the goof-up."

King, whose "favorite TV cop of all time is Barney Fife," recalled, "I jumped at the opportunity." Not long after, King showed up at the studio.

"I got the script, and looked through the script, checking for my scenes, and there would be like three different scenes where I'd get something to say or do, so I was really happy. I called my family and told them and everything. And so I got a revision. I was down to one scene. And so I got to the set. We did the scene. And by the time they got the final edit, I had half a line left."

James King, who is originally from Livonia, returns to television this fall for a second season as Sgt. Ontine, sidekick to Lt. Zymak, on "Midnight Caller."

For King, having his first scenes cut wasn't too unfortunate, especially since he became a semi-regular and got to work on more episodes.

KING MENTIONED that his wife, Victoria Skerritt (whose uncle is actor Tom Skerritt), wasn't so fortunate. She worked on one episode in which Joe Spano appeared, and her scene was completely cut out before the episode was shown.

About the series, which is set mostly at night, King stated flatly, "I think it really needs a little lightness. They've all been very hard." He added, "And hopefully over this rerun period, they've looked at the shows again and they'll decide it needs a little more lightness and then I'll get more things to say and do."

On working with Taxler (who was a regular on "Hill Street Blues," as was Spano), King noted, "He's a veteran, so I stick close to him and really watch him. He's another actor who really wants to be the best that he can. He will consult with the director or any of the other technicians when he feels like he can make something better."

As with most series, "Midnight Caller" usually has a different director every week. Last season, though, a couple of directors worked on several shows.

One of the directors King worked with was Eric Laneville (who played Luther and directed a number of episodes of "St. Elsewhere," a show from the same production people as "Hill Street Blues").

"He's very good. He's very, very efficient. Great guy to work with. Never gets upset. Just always, everything's really mellow. Because he's an actor, he knows how to work with actors."

ANOTHER DIRECTOR King admires — though not one who worked on "Midnight Caller" last season — is William Dear, who directed the movie "Harry and the Hendersons." The film starring John Lithgow was King's first movie. On that set, King and Dear hit it off well, and today they are co-writing a comedy-adventure, a script that is already under development at Universal Studios.

"Rewrite is the name of the game (in Hollywood)," King said. He hopes to hear soon what is the latest status of what, for now, is titled "The Jimi King Project." "Every studio executive you talk to has a different idea of what they want it to be, so they say, 'Rewrite it!'"

Currently, King and his wife (who have been married about three years), live in the San Francisco Bay area, which they love. King said, "You can drive a few miles and be out in the country. Whereas, we went to L.A. It's like the traffic and air. You feel like you can drive for hours and you're still in the city."

King thinks it might be necessary to move to Los Angeles to complete the script. This would disappoint him and his wife not only because of having to leave the bay but also because of having to quit operating a summer, performing-arts day camp for children, which they have run for several years at a YMCA in Berkeley.

This summer, the Kings will have two four-week camp sessions, each with about 50 children. "My wife and I write the shows. And at the end of the four-week session, then the kids act it out, and all their parents and grandparents come. We don't give them anything really difficult, but we do like them to stretch and make it a challenge."

He also conducts a regular story hour at three different bookstores in the bay area.

THINKING ABOUT how such musclemen as Stallone and Schwarzenegger have become big box-office names, King had this advice for aspiring actors: "Forget acting," he said with a laugh. "Join a gymnasium." He fell back in his chair and laughed even more. "Work out."

He was serious when he said, "It's (acting) a long, slow process. But I figure I'm in it for the long run. And hopefully, 10 or 15 years from now, I'd like to be in a situation where I can actually have more creative control than I do now."

Venus, Mars/I set to 'meet'

The moon is at First Quarter Phase at 8:19 p.m. on the 10th. The moon is one-quarter of its way around the earth. The bright star above and to the left of the moon is Spica (SPY ca) in Virgo. Where do you think the moon will be located, with respect to Spica, on the next night.

Venus is in conjunction with Mars on the evening of the 11th. Mars is 0.6 degrees to the lower left of Venus. Binoculars will give the best view of the conjunction. The last "meeting" between Venus and Mars was in August 1987. The next conjunction will be June 23, 1991. Astrologers (those who believe the stars and planets govern human life) will probably try to find some kind of significance to the meeting between planets named for the goddess of love and the god of war. To astronomers (those who study the stars and planets), the grouping is attractive to observe but not especially significant.

The moon is in Scorpius on the 14th. The star to the left of the moon is Antares (an TAR ees), the "heart" of the scorpion. The moon continues to move through Scorpius on the 15th.

ON THE 16TH the moon is in Sagittarius. The star above and to the left of the moon is Saturn. The beautiful rings of Saturn can be seen in even a small telescope. Because Saturn has just passed opposition, it is fairly close (a mere 750,000,000 miles or so). That means it is also at its brightest. The light it reflects from the sun doesn't have to travel as far to reach us as it does when Saturn is at its greatest distance from us.

Mercury is at superior conjunction with the sun on July 18. It is located behind the sun, as seen from the earth, and is not visible.

Full moon is at 1:42 p.m. on the 18th. The moon is opposite the sun, as seen from the earth. It will rise and set just as Saturn did, with respect to the position of the sun, when it was at opposition. In fact, the Full Moon could probably be called a lunar opposition.

Venus is located nearly midway between Mars and Regulus on the evening of the 19th. In just four days

skywatch

Raymond E. Bullock

Venus will be passing twice as far from Regulus as it passed Mars.

On July 22 Venus is directly to the left of Regulus. On the next night, Venus is 1.1 degrees above Regulus.

The moon is at Last Quarter Phase at 9:31 a.m. on July 25. It is beginning the last quarter of its orbit around the earth.

ON THE MORNING of the 27th, the moon forms a very close grouping with the Pleiades (PLEE a dees) star cluster. Looking like a tiny "dipper," the Pleiades marks the "shoulder" of Taurus. The grouping between the moon and the Pleiades will be a beautiful sight in binoculars. People observing from the west coast will be able to watch as the moon occults (covers) some of the stars as it passes in front of the cluster.

There will be a weak meteor shower on the morning of July 28. This is called the Delta Aquarid (a QUAIR id) shower, so named because the "falling stars" appear to radiate from the constellation of Aquarius. Binoculars will not help you observe meteors. The best way is to relax in a chair, use your naked eye and be very patient. An average of only 20 meteors per hour can be expected to be seen. Aquarius will be due south at 5 a.m. (A more impressive shower will occur next month.)

The waning crescent moon is 5 degrees above Jupiter on the morning of the 29th. Notice how much higher in the sky Jupiter is, compared to where it was at the start of the month.

Fluxus

Breaking the barriers to artistic freedom

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

THREE THINGS TO do this year
Go to the Fluxus exhibit at Cranbrook
Take the catalog home to read
Finish the catalog and go back again.

These four lines would look more like Fluxus art if they were handwritten along the edges of typed sheets of paper. This kind of casual, informal approach to art was part of the movement which began in the 1960s and directly affected much of the art we see and hear today.

Only Fluxus art, cryptic edge-of-the-page instructions say things such as "try to grow mushrooms on this page," "read this page aloud to your family on Thanksgiving Day" or "think of five interesting things to do with the next five pages."

"Fluxus Selections from the Gilbert and Lila Silverman Collection," organized by The Museum of Modern Art and now at the Cranbrook Museum through Oct. 6, is at the very least bewildering; at the very most compelling and enlightening.

JON HENDRICKS, curator of the Silverman collection who organized it along with Clive Phillipot, director of the MOMA Library, was here to install the exhibit. He said, "The movement started in 1961. Few people realized something important was going on, but it was very ephemeral, very fragile."

The name was chosen by George MacLunas, a New York-based small publisher who intended to put out a quarterly by that name. That quarterly, Phillipot says in the catalog, "might have provided a very interesting overview of a culture in flux."

While MacLunas was plagued with money problems and poor health and couldn't carry out all of his plans, his leadership did foster events and happenings in many parts of the world that would effect change.

He explained in his "Manifesto" and letters to friends how Fluxus would "purge the world of dead art . . . abstract art, (and) illusionistic art . . ." In its place would come concrete art such as the ready-made objects of Marcel Duchamp, the ready-made sounds of John Cage and the ready-made actions of George Brecht and Ben Vautier.

Fluxus, he said, was against the art object and the artist who sold it and made a livelihood . . . "against the artificial separation of a performer from audience, or creator and spectator, or life and art . . ."

What then did these artists stand for, this group which, in addition to Brecht and Vautier included Yoko Ono, Nam June Paik, Henry Flynt, Daniel Spoerri and La Monte Young and a host of other free spirits?

They wanted to replace art with functionalism, to rid all forms of art of illusion, to reestablish totally natural sights and sounds and to get everyone involved. That might mean kicking the piano on its underside rather than manipulating the keys into waltz form or considering a rotten tomato at leisure rather a painting of a perfect one.

EVEN NOW, YEARS AFTER, some of minimalist happenings seem outrageous — concerts where the same chord was held for hours; the Fluxfest advertising "121 Big Names!" which treated the audience to 12 names flashed on a large screen; and four performers putting on masks in front of an audience and remaining perfectly still until the audience laughed.

Yet many of the Fluxus publications — books, posters, music, instructional sheets with graphics — strange and minimalist as most of them are, remain aesthetically pleasing. They stand impressively as functional art within the context of the philosophy of the movement.

Jon Hendricks, curator of the Silverman Fluxus collection, is one of the main reasons why it is extant and is becoming a significant part of contemporary art history.

Some of the plans for festivals such as the one for Wiesbaden, Germany, included in the catalog, show how comprehensive MacLunas and company intended it to be.

His plans for publications and happenings, whether or not they ever materialized, are in themselves works of art of historical significance. Many of the concerts and happenings are documented on tape and film, and in Europe they often drew huge crowds — testimony to a hunger for change and new thinking.

The movement is generally dated at 1961-1978, a few feel it is still going on.

Hendricks said, "Fluxus ended 10 years ago. It had a need for being. Maybe it has a need for being now, but it would carry with it all the baggage from before."

Fluxus didn't rid the world of object-art or artists who make their living creating same and that's probably just as well. What they did do was open the way for acceptance and enjoyment for many, more forms and shapes of artistic expression and experience.

Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, 500 Lone Pine, Bloomfield Hills, is open 1-5 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday.

Collector remembered blue

Gilbert and Lila Silverman's Fluxus collection came into being through a strange series of coincidences and a fine collector's eye.

Silverman, a Southfield resident and well-known builder/developer, said, "As you know, I have an interest in way-out or avant garde art. In 1970, I bought a painting in Tokyo by Geoffrey Hendricks, 'Sky and Two Pair of Pants' with a very unusual blue."

Then, eight years later when he was walking the streets of the Sobo district of New York City, he spotted a street vendor selling plastic and painted bags of the same blue. "I went up to him and said 'Those bags have got to be by Geoffrey Hendricks' and he said yes."

Silverman said he bought out the whole show. The vendor was Brian Buczyk, "a very good artist," who grew up in Detroit and died last year.

The traveling exhibition is a way of broadening knowledge about this elusive but important art movement.

— Gilbert Silverman

From Buczyk, he found out that Geoffrey's brother, Jon, ran a small gallery next door. He met the artist who told Silverman the bags were being sold ($2 each) to raise money for a medical fund for a George MacLunas.

Silverman said the bags "were very interesting — like Dada — but I couldn't afford Dada." He found Jon Hendricks was selling Fluxus art "and I started buying. I told myself, 'I'm in on the ground floor. I could end up with the biggest collection in the world.' And he did.

The traveling exhibition is a way of broadening knowledge about this elusive, but important art movement. Silverman said people will say they are aware of Fluxus, but admit they really don't know what it is.

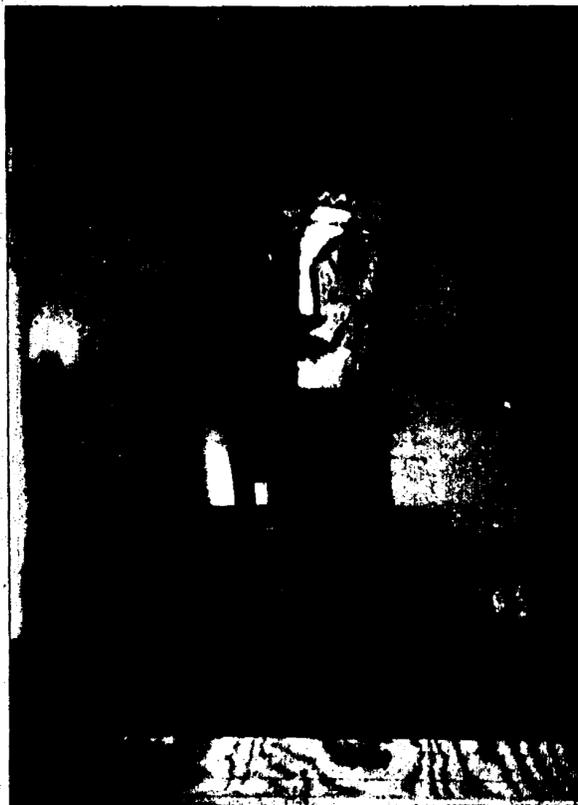

He said he and his wife have enjoyed collecting it, they particularly like the idea of the traveling exhibition which helps people understand what it's all about.

"Violin in Bird Cage" by Joe Jones, 1965 was made by the artist for a special Fluxus event. The metal bird cage contains a plastic violin, battery, motor and equipment to create a sound from the strings, albeit not as sweet as Isaac Stern.

Scanga comes with color

Strong color and design are very much a part of the works by Italo Scanga through July at Susanne Hilberry Gallery, 555 S. Woodward, Birmingham. The multi-talented artist, who once lived and worked in the family business in Garden City, recently received two awards from his alma mater, Michigan State University. One was the 1989 Distinguished Alumni Award. A book on the artist, published in Italy, will soon be available at the gallery. Shown at immediate left is a painted wood head done about two years ago. The other is earlier. Also in the gallery are a large group of small monoprints and large paintings. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday.

Making copies of old photographs

The original negative is long gone, but Monte Nagler was able to borrow a print from his sister, Barbara, (pictured here with Monte more than 45 years ago), so he could make his own copy of a treasured moment of sibling harmony.

Have you ever visited that special family relative, sat down with the photo album, looked at forgotten pictures of yourself as a toddler and wished you could have copies for your very own? But, alas, the negatives have long since vanished and you ask how you ever going to get copies?

Well, don't give up hope. It's easier than you think to obtain copies of those treasured family shots. And best of all, you can do it yourself.

For starters, you'll need a tripod or copy stand to keep your camera rock-steady. A copy stand is a simple device consisting of a flat base-board, a vertical shaft and an adjustable horizontal support on which to mount your camera. The camera aims straight down on the base-board where you place the photograph to be copied.

If using a tripod, carefully tape the picture you're going to copy to a wall and move in close with your camera.

You'll need close-up filters, a macro lens or any other means you have to move in close and fill the frame with the image you are copying. This is very important to maintain a quality reproduction.

I PREFER using inexpensive tungsten lights bounced into reflecting umbrellas for a soft, even light source. But it will have a noticeable effect with color film. If shooting by window-light, use a daylight balanced film. If shooting in a tungsten-lit room, use an indoor balanced film.

And speaking about films, I recommend T-Max 100 for black and white and either Kodachrome 100 (for prints under daylight) or Kodachrome 64 (for slides under daylight). For color copies with tungsten light, Ektachrome 50 can't be beat.

Pay particular attention to any glare reflected off the photo you are copying. Most often, a slight adjustment in the lights or a repositioning of the picture to be copied will do the trick.

When using black and white or color negative film for copy work, one exposure is all you should need. When using slide film, it is wise to bracket exposures. That is, take three shots in total; one at your camera's meter reading, a second at one stop over and a third at one stop under.

There you have it. You'll find it fun, easy, and satisfying to make copies of those memorable and valuable family photographs. It's a real snap.

Park 'Stars' series opens

Leonard B. Smith in Sunday concert

After a rousing start featuring the Max Davey Singers and Orchestra last week, Livonia's Music Under the Stars summer program is in full swing.

Site of the weekly programs is Civic Center Park in the Livonia City Hall complex area.

And Sunday's event promises to be every bit as lively as the opener when the famed Detroit Concert Band holds court on the City Hall steps. That concert will take place at 3 p.m. and is an "extra" on the summer lineup presented by the Livonia Arts Commission.

Co-sponsored by the Ford Motor Co., the concert, of course, will feature Leonard Smith as band director. In the event of inclement weather, the concert will be switched to Churchill High School.

After the Detroit Concert Band appearance, the concerts will switch back to the Thursday night schedule with the big band sound of the Bob DuRant group taking over the bandstand on Thursday, July 13.

THE THURSDAY, JULY 20 concert promises to be an outstanding night as the Livonia Symphony takes over, followed the following Wednesday, July 26 by the special appearance of the Belgian Youth Brass band, "Kempish Jeugd fanfa Orkest." In the case of rain, the concert will be held in the Madonna College activities building.

The next two musical events, Thursdays, Aug. 3 and 10 will be performed in the pastoral setting of historic Wilson Barn, Middlebelt and West Chicago roads. Featured will be the New McKinney Cotton Pickers and Tom Saunders' Surf Side Six dixielanders.

Final two concerts of the season will take concert-goers back to the city hall site to hear the Hamtramck Concert Band and a program of ethnic music on Thursday, Aug. 17 and again Thursday, Aug. 24 for the Renaissance Chorus barbershop chorus.

All the concerts start at 7:30 p.m. and run to 9 p.m. They are open to the public.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE BLACK ON YOUR APPOINTMENT TO AMBASSADOR OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Mike Cortis of Farmington Hills is the first person to sign the giant card the Sokol Czechoslovakian Cultural group hopes to cover with a record number of names and mail to the new U.S. ambassador Shirley Temple Black. Adding authentically in native garb are Cortis' parents, Walter and Marilyn of Livonia. The card will be at the Czech ethnic festival this weekend in Wyandotte where all the Cortises will be helping out.

Giant welcome

Czech community welcomes ambassador

It has all the earmarks of a Hollywood production, but it's really an attempt to break into the Guinness Book of World Records.

That's what members of Sokol, Detroit, the Czechoslovakian Cultural Center, have in mind in publicly acclaiming former child movie star Shirley Temple Black as the newly appointed U.S. ambassador to Czechoslovakia.

Led by former Livonian Mike Cortis, who now lives in Farmington Hills, the center has come up with the idea of a giant 8-by-8-foot congratulatory card they will have on display at the group's annual ethnic festival in Wyandotte's Yack Arena this weekend, July 7-9.

Everyone stopping by will be asked to sign the card, which bears a computer likeness of the star.

"At the end of the festival, we'll put the world's largest card with the most signatures on a card (we hope) in the world's largest envelope and mail it to Shirley in Washington," said Cortis, with fingers crossed behind his back.

Meet Mr. Seth and Mrs. Lindsey. Two friends sharing a moment that just might be remembered for the rest of their lives.

It's a scene that happens at a family community like Stonebridge, every day. On sidewalks where children play. At get-togethers where neighbors meet and talk. And in West Bloomfield schools where education is still a priority.

Stonebridge is much more than just quality homes. It's large bedrooms and family rooms, luxurious bathrooms, seven different floorplans, vaulted ceilings and European kitchens. But most of all living at Stonebridge is the start of something beautiful.

Pen and ink: interesting sidelights

What makes a good pen and ink drawing? I'm sure there are as many answers as there are artists. But to me a good pen and ink drawing should have a full range of grays, black blacks and white whites. It should also have a variety of line lengths, line widths and line direction. Perhaps pointalism here and there, all adding variety and interest.

And interest of viewers is what most artists crave. There is no one out there who can tell me he resents an "oooh" or "aaah" when his works are being viewed. It is twice as nice when you create your piece to express yourself, not caring if anyone approves, and still find approval. What a blessing it is to be an artist.

You look and study everything around you, where others only see their surroundings. You as an artist can express a feeling, and that expression will outlive yourself. Others ventilate their feelings in conversation which perhaps is soon forgotten. You as an artist have an ability, and though you have refined it and nurtured it, still it is a gift of God.

YOU AS AN ARTIST have the choice to use the gift, or not to use it. For example: you as an artist may choose to be an electrician, but an artifacts

electrician cannot choose to be an artist. If you feel you have even the slightest amount of ability, it is your choice to pick it up or lay it aside. Even if you pick it up later in life, it's nice to know it's there.

We have a waiting list for most of my art classes but the classes which rarely have openings are all the adult classes. Many of those students have said, "I haven't drawn for 20 years," and they are thrilled with what they can produce.

To begin with, it is best to draw from pen and ink drawings. It is especially difficult to do pen and ink from photos. Pick subjects with lines on them like wood barns and shacks, trees, furry animals and etc.

Action figures in comics and magazines have given many young artists a head start in pen and ink drawings, because interest develops ability at a more rapid rate than instruction. Aside from the problems that the human figures pose, I notice in my classes the teenagers do very well in the media. A teenager with some good pen and ink drawings in his or her portfolio can land a good full or part time job.

PEN AND INK plays a major role in commercial art. Many young artists have an idealistic dream of doing art shows and selling paintings to make a living. I have never desired to be a "starving artist." There is certainly no need to.

Of course, I love to sell my paintings and drawings, but in between those sales I make a regular income by designing symbols and logos for businesses, cartooning, signs, illustrating, camera-ready artwork etc. All are in some way related to pen and ink.

Materials are not important to begin with. Any smooth white paper will do, a fine felt-tip pen, a pencil and an eraser. As you improve you should try other materials. A quill pen tip is my favorite for cartooning; it tends to flood the paper anytime you momentarily stop. This causes tears of frustration to new artists, but if you stick with them you can enjoy the varied line widths and fluid lines they produce.

Their drawback is that you constantly have to keep dipping the pen into an open bottle of ink. Also an open bottle of ink has a way of getting knocked off the table. I'm still apologizing to Mom about her white curtains and the carpet in the dining room.

Now about the ink. Pelican has been my favorite for years, but the Higgins Company has come out with Black Magic, and it has my vote. Black Magic is very, very black. It is terrific in a brush and fantastic in a quill pen. Also very free flowing in a technical pen. The only problem you face with good pen, ink and paper is that you have no excuses. But then again maybe you don't need excuses.

Festival winners announced

A "buying crowd" is the best reward, but cash awards for an outstanding display/craftsmanship isn't hard to take either.

That's what the various winners of the recent Arts and Crafts Festival sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission at Greenmead in Livonia found out.

Winners were: pottery: first, Larry and Becky Rotter of Sodus; second, Beverly Pew of Drayton Plains; glass: first, Tom McEwen, Muskegon; second, Scott and Judy Cunningham, Plymouth; metal/jewelry: first, Nancy Dorfman, Farmington Hills; second, Brad Benson, Grant; fine arts: first, Theresa Pollitowicz, Northville; P. Hatala and R. Bolitos, Farmington.

Wood: first, Jack Stiles, Manchester; second, Wayne Otto, Livonia; textiles: first, Janet Pray, West Bloomfield; second, Sandra Rooney, Mount Clemens; folk/country/floral: first, Jeanne Fitzgerald, Battle Creek; second, Keith Rife, Paw Paw.

First-place winners received a ribbon and $300. Second-place winners received a ribbon and $100.

Despite a chilly start Saturday, weather conditions for the annual festival were ideal and drew record crowds, an arts commission spokesman said.

briefly speaking

To me, plants and cut flowers are as essential in the home as doors and windows.

For just a few dollars fresh cut flowers are available at your neighborhood supermarket. A bunch of daffodils in a vase, when there is still snow on the ground, is a wonderful thing to see. It sends the message that spring is just ahead.

Whenever a large bowl of flowers or a large plant is placed, a focal point is created. Whatever the cost of the scale, flowers in a home should be primarily welcoming and secondly, a clear statement of personal style.

Odd angles and curious recesses that are too small for any human purpose can be filled with plants or flowers.

Large plants can serve as building blocks — separating one activity area from another. Placing plants around and in front of a window brings the greenery of outdoors into the interior and intimates a pleasant landscape outdoors where none exists.

The cost of a plant or flower is irrelevant to its inherent beauty. A great deal of money can be spent on an ugly plant or flower arrangement or very little on a lovely one.

A centerpiece for parties or everyday pleasure can be a wicker basket or brass bowl filled with a variety of African violets.

scheduled to open at the Kelsey Museum of Archeology, Ann Arbor. Presented in two parts, the exhibit will open with "Egypt and the Classical World, from July 14 to Sept. 10, followed by Pompeii and Rome, Sept. 15-Nov. 12.

Admission is free. The museum is at 434 S. State St.

SCRAPS OF LIFE

Arpilleras — small applique and embroidered wall hangings that show scenes of daily life in Chile — are on exhibit at the Swords into Plowshares Peace Center and Gallery now through July 8.

This folk craft has become a tool of the women in Chile, many of whose husbands or sons have "disappeared," to expose and protest the repressiveness of the Pinochet dictatorship.

The gallery is at 45 E. Adams on Grand Circus Park, opposite the People Mover station in the Whitney Building. Hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. For more information, call 965-5422.

ARTFUL DECEPTIONS

"Artful Deception: the Craft of the Forger," will begin its national tour at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores through July 30. The exhibit will include the portrait of the Mona Lisa done by a late 16th Century admirer of Leonardo de Vinci and will include a number of works by well-known forgers.

The exhibit may be viewed from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Ford House Wednesday through Sunday. Guided tours are available 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults with no charge for children. Admission is $1 when also buying tickets for the regular Ford House tours, which are $4 for adults; $3 for senior citizens; and $2 for children under 12.

For more information, call the Ford House at 884-3400 or 884-4222.

OUR TOWN EXHIBITION

Michigan artists are invited to submit their interpretation of "Our Town," any hometown and its meaning to them as part of competition held in conjunction with the Our Town Exhibition and Sale benefiting the Birmingham Community House.

Works may pertain to, but are not limited to, the following: Michigan landmarks, architecture/city, nature/landscape, people/portraits and still life. Art work must be two-dimensional wall pieces, any medium, ready for presentation, wired for hanging and not previously shown in the 1988-89 or '88 "Our Town" exhibition.

Entries will be juried from 35mm mounted slides. A maximum of four works may be submitted from each artist. Slides are due Monday, July 31 with the completed entry forms. To receive a form, call the Community House, 645-5832.

LIVE AMONG THE RARE AND BEAUTIFUL.
Aldingbrooke - West Bloomfield's premier rental community - has always attracted its own special flock. Our magnificent estate-like grounds are home to a collection of geese and swans. And to many of metropolitan Detroit's most discerning individuals and families. Set in a gated community, residents appreciate Aldingbrooke's world of privacy and custom options, with all the services they've come to expect from a luxury apartment community. Residences up to 2800 square feet include such desirable features as private entryways, split-level or ranch-style designs, dens, breakfast rooms, cathedral ceilings, fireplaces and attached garages. All for much less than you'd expect to pay for such luxury. From $650 to $1650 per month. Whatever your mind can imagine in luxurious living, you can discover on your first visit to Aldingbrooke. It is indeed rare and beautiful.

Huge New Townhomes with Old English Charm.
Foxpointe's 2 and 3-bedroom townhomes are huge. 1400 sq. ft. huge. And private. Private entrances. Private covered parking. Your own washer and dryer in your townhome. And it's all new. Brand new. But with Old English character. Now that's worth looking into.

WRITE IT AND REAP!

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.
