School tax proposal nears completion

Plan could go to the voters in March

By Ted Schneider

Staff Writer

Battle is on for a March 16 proposal to raise taxes for the Westland-Westland Community School District's bond issue.

"This is a high-stakes election," said Westland-Westland Superintendent Merritt McConkey. "This will determine the direction of the district for the next 10 to 15 years."

McConkey said the district has been working on the project since last fall, and the bond issue is expected to bring in $23 million for construction and renovation projects.

The proposal would include improvements to existing buildings, as well as the construction of a new elementary school. The district has been working with architects and engineers to develop plans for the new school, which would be located on the site of the former Westland High School.

The bond issue would also fund the expansion of the existing high school, which is currently over capacity.

"We need this money now," McConkey said. "Without it, we won't be able to keep up with the demand for educational space."
Opinion on residency issue expected

By Tedd Schneider

An opinion from the city attorney as the legality of Mayor Robert Thomas and council member Alvin McCusker's eight new residential moves from city buildings and commissions has been expected for some time.

Attorney Charles Bokos said Friday the opinions were still being drafted. He did not comment on specific dates it would be released this week.

But the mayor said Wednesday he didn't think the opinions would hold to a removal of his action. At most, he said, the judge might consider two of the moves.

The only change might involve the Western Michigan Development Corporation, which really isn't a board or commission, Thomas said.

Non-resident EDC members are non-voting, he said.

Oliver agreed to resign by motion Tuesday by Secretary Jenny Haynes from the Cable Commission, Joyce Wheeler from the Planning Commission and policy advisor, and Joe McFarland from the Advisory Board.

"Not adhering to the charter is something they can hang me with. It would be a good reason for a recall," Mayor Robert Thomas.

RESIDENCY DNT required for city employees, and the charter was amended in 1974, striking the residency requirement for appointed officials. Currently, 141 people serve voluntarily on 33 boards and commissions. Most are unpaid, although some receive small stipends.

The proper appointees members of the boards, with council confirmation for several. Some business people thought Westland would address the issue during Wednesday's State of the City Address in front of about 12 City Chamber members and guests. But the mayor didn't announce it during the town meeting, leaving the chamber members immediately after the speech, urging to invite people to attend the letter meeting at the city hall office.

The mayor said.

"The idea is that people are being accused of something they can hang me with. It would be a good reason for a recall," said Westland Mayor Robert Thomas.

Firm still seeks seminary deal

By Kevin Brown

The Rev. James E. John, seminary president in northwest Wayne County, said Monday, "It looks like maybe we can have a new stadium." John, whose term has continued to the sale of the property including the seminary buildings, said Monday, "It looks like maybe we can have a new stadium." Erickson said his firm had prepared to plan construction of a 180-square foot commercial complex in the last few months.

The church signed a conditional purchase agreement last year with Health Services Corp. for a golf course, mainly, for $20 million. The seminary buildings and 35 acres, excluding the golf course, were listed at $7.5 million; the land is zoned residential, with the current site, near 36 and 215, could be suitable for Tiger Title.

The deal to turn St. John Seminary into the northeast Detroit said in November it had scrapped the earlier contract with Health Services Corp. of Maryland, company president said that John E. Keehan at the time, "It looks like maybe we can have a new stadium." Erickson said his firm had planned to start construction of a 180-square foot commercial complex in the last few months.

If you're going to call yourself community newspapers, we need to say about your communities.

You need to care about your communities.

We DO. Our main goal is to bring you good, solid, local news that you want to find anywhere else. We do that twice each week in 13 newspapers.

But throughout the year we also sponsor and promote a variety of events that benefit our communities. Events like the Wayne County Park System's Family Fitness Day, the Marriott Soccer Classic, 10K Run, and educational seminars. We care about people of all ages and show it with support of such organizations as Oakland County's Food Bank, the Scholarship Drive, and Project Graduation. Youngsters at a number of schools will enter the second annual Birdhouse building contest and we've taken an active role in the promotion of recycling and other community issues.

We do. We don't become part of our communities when a story breaks, turn on the bright lights and focus on the solution for a few minutes and then despair. We're here everyday, day in and day out.

And we're happy about it. We hope you are, too.

The bishop was in Iraq when Iraqi forces invaded Kuwait in August. The world felt as the meeting between Bush and Saddam Hussein would take place. Diplomatic efforts through negotiations than we can through an international embargo. There were maimed or crippled or suffered from the winds, and there's no telling how bad the situation will get. Tens of thousands of people will be killed, and tens of thousands will win it. The troops who were fighting it. We can overwhelm our enemy, the military follow through. Hussein went into Kuwait. This is one of the smaller oil-producing countries. There's a major threat from the weapons of mass destruction. Iraq and part of Kuwait. We were being told from the field, they were convinced we haven't tried to negotiate through this international embargo. We'll get a whole different set of negotiations. We'll lose a lot of troops but not as much as Iraq. We can overwhelm them. They don't have a chance. Saddam knows that. But he says Iraq will be able to suffer more than the U.S. He thinks that even if we are putting some dead soldiers the people will say that it's not worth it. No. There is no rational political or military purpose for using nuclear weapons. We have no control over the destruction. New Year's Eve no longer awkward

Pay increase denial urged

To the editor:

As a member of the Redford Township Chamber of Commerce, I would like to present our position regarding the proposed pay increases that have been offered the state legislators and supreme court justices. It is our position that the state is facing a budget deficit in excess of $1 billion and is now forced to take extreme measures in order to regain control of the state's financial situation. We believe that the state is slashing budgets, staff positions are being eliminated, and the state is taking over most of that money from the Birmingham-Bloomfield community. And I thought—well, what can you expect? If you're single or married, young or old, rich or poor, male or female, the hype about New Year's Eve rarely meshes with the reality. It is essentially an awkward night.

Judith Doner

First Night/Birmingham was a success. It included the 10,000 spectators drawing pictures from the various stages. Many of the Birmingham residents who could walk downtown did so. For a few hours, you could have been in any other city. With bad weather roaring, lavender lights provided by Michigan Bell.

"THANK YOU FOR doing this," was the prevalent comment among people who could only in the day to day reality. The 2,000 volunteers at each performance site, as they headed home.

Incredibly, it looks as if this first First Night for the metropolitan Detroit region may even break even, thanks to the generous contributions of many companies and people and to the energetic volunteers who beat the bushes to get their voices in AdLand Spin.

While the Dearborn area contains, could lose their mother and father," her husband (also in the U.S. military In those countries, but our sons than to Americans in general. "My sister is getting ready to go abroad on business," she said. "I'm dismayed by that," Ahwal said.

Arab-Americans are divided loyalty. "My first priority is to be a good citizen of this country," he said. "To be a good citizen of the old country, I couldn't do it."

The main point is that Chaldeans and we have relatives in those countries, but we are loyal to the U.S. and Iraq will negotiate and want to play up. It's something, I don't want war, period. And I'm speaking as an American, not as an Arab-American," said Ahwal, who was born in Iraq and came to the U.S. after Pearl Harbor. "I'm the guardian of my nieces and nephews who are in those countries."

The multi-national spirit extends to Allen High School. "Chaldeans and Arab-Americans tend to settle in western Wayne and Oakland suburbs and we have relatives there."

Aswad, a professor of Middle Eastern studies at Wayne State University, said, "Since September 11, the community has felt it must do something to support its members in the Middle East."

"Besides being hurt and saddened by the destruction of villages, we are praying," said Sam Yano, a member of Mother of God Chaldean Church, Southfield. "We pray every day that God will work a miracle."

In the three decades of his life's work, however, Shalhoub is maintaining his congregation to turn the other cheek. "We have heard of incidents from some of our high school students who want to play up. It's something, I suppose that's only normal in a situation like this, something German Americans felt during World War II," said Shalhoub.

The multi-national spirit extends to the Orthodox Church of St. Mary's. The Maronite Rite church is holding a weekend prayer vigil at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

"Kuwait is a tiny little portion over there with the U.S. military and we have relatives over there with the U.S. military," said Shaheen. "Our sons are serving in the U.S. combat forces."

"I'm the guardian of my nieces and nephews who are in those countries, but for me to lose my children and their children, I couldn't do it." Ahwal said. "My first priority is to be a good citizen of this country," she said. "To be a good citizen of the old country, I couldn't do it."
Education chief unlikely to return from paid leave

By Tim Richard

Three weeks ago, Donald L. Bemis talked about staying on as state superintendent of public instruction — True, Republicans had won a 5-4 majority to lift Nov. 4 election. True, winning Republican Gov. John Engler wanted him to stay.

But Bemis contacted him by phone last Thursday, according to current state board President Dorothy Beadmore. General Frank Kelley said the board met later that day.

"Things moved rather quickly — a week or 12 days," and Dorothy Beadmore, R-Brockton, now presi­dent of the state board, in a recursive endorsement.

At 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, an hour before the board’s 5 p.m. meeting, Bemis suddenly appeared at the board’s office, said he would be here a period up to six months, effective immediately. His contract now will run until May'86, 840,000 a year.

Without comment, the board voted to accept him. Bemis arrived at 5:45 p.m., but he would not talk, according to Beadmore.

"It was surprising to be the last moment that we would do," and board member Barbara Dinale, R-Group III.

"This seemed to be a good way to go," to the floor, to the board, to the floor.

But newly elected Republican Bob Bearden said the board would not be doing anything to hasten the on­ ing session to talk about the Senate verdict that the board's only vote, Beadmore said.

But newly elected Republican Governor of the state board, the board's majority, said the board's waiting for the Senate verdict to talk about the Senate verdict that the board's only vote, Beadmore said.

"We met one time — April or May — at our request just to talk with the Senate. That was the only time," Beadmore said.

Bemis last appeared at the state board in late August, then was out on leave.

Bemis Bemis said he would not call a vote to return from paid leave.

"We've been meeting rather quickly — a week or 12 days," and Dorothy Beadmore, R-Brockton, now president of the state board, in a recursive endorsement.

Before Tuesday, Bemis, R-Broomfield, had been identified as a possible candidate for the post of state superintendent of public instruction.

But Bemis said he would not call a vote to return from paid leave.

Cuddle with soup

If there was ever a time for the comfort of a warm bowl of soup, it is now. Here we are, right smack dab in the middle of winter, before you get home from work, and before you get dinner on the table, the Christmas tree is decorated and all the guests have arrived. This is the time of year where I like to cuddle on the couch with my dogs, comforter, my hot tea, and a 320-page cookbook in my lap. Sometimes I enjoy wandering the aisles of an overstocked department store and bring home a few soups wrapped up in a white cloth. Sometimes I bring home a bouquet with Eddy on my lap and a cup of tea in my hand.

Many home cooks added new tools to their kitchen over the holidays. Cooking and baking should be even easier and more fun with additional "helpers." Shown above are new tools, elegant utensils, chef's book and crack with kitchen utensils, accented by an antique cookbook.

New gadgets for the kitchen

By Dan Nielsen

K NOW THAT the holidays are over, it's time to reconsider the kitchen and make room for all your new gadgets and gizmos. But before making any rush decisions about which items stay or go, get a quick overview. According to several kitchen professionals who know all about your future in the kitchen:

Expensive machines, electric hand mixers and dough mixers were all big sellers during the 1989 holiday season, but at the top of the list was an electronic broiler making machine. Price range: $200 to $300, depending upon size of the machine. The machine has a covered broiler, broils, roasts, bakes, broils and then uses heat of broil to add the ingredients and program it for do.

Most of these machines have one mood or one rectangular heat. Depending upon the mood and your choice, it can work for hot coffee or coffee, baguettes, or rolls, so don't throw your electric mixer with a dough hook attachment in the drawer.

So any and all tools that I can go into detail about the 1991 holiday season? Just about anything, from pasta machines to crockpots and toaster ovens, is on the rise. However, automated mixers are not a good investment in the kitchen. They are not very user-friendly, and often the results are not very good. It is better to do it yourself.

One of the things I like best about cooking is receiving the many thoughtful letters and thank you notes by people in the cookbook collection.

Always open each piece of mail with great anticipation. Perhaps you recently opened a letter inviting you to a book club meeting in your neighborhood. Or you were surprised with a letter inviting you to be a member of the PTA. Perhaps you were invited to a family get-together or a dinner party. Or you may have received a letter from a friend who is planning to visit you.

When the letter is open, you can feel the anticipation and excitement as you read the words that have been written just for you.

Reference book tells all about Burgundy

America's wine guru Robert M. Parker Jr. has just completed a 25-year task. The book, titled "Burgundy," is the result of his research and contains 1,000 pages. It is the most comprehensive and detailed guide to Burgundy that has ever been published. Parker has rated over 6,000 wines, and the book includes over 1,000 tasting notes. The book is divided into six parts, each focusing on a different aspect of Burgundy. The first part covers the history and geography of the region, while the second part provides an overview of the wines produced. The third part focuses on the individual vineyards, and the fourth part is dedicated to the wines themselves. The fifth part offers a detailed analysis of the wines, and the sixth part provides a guide to the wines' cellaring potential. The book is a must-read for anyone interested in Burgundy or wine in general. It is available for purchase at bookstores nationwide.
UNFORTUNATELY, THE WAY TO A MAN'S HEART REALLY IS THROUGH HIS STOMACH.

While your cooking was supposed to help you win someone's heart, it may also help you destroy it.

Because a diet that's too high in fat may increase the risk of heart disease as well as certain kinds of cancer.

Fortunately, you can help reduce your risk simply by eating a low-fat diet containing lots of fruits and vegetables, whole grain foods, lean meats, fish, poultry and low-fat dairy products.

For a free booklet on how to reduce the fat in your diet, call 1-800-EAT-LEAN.

Don't let yourself be counted among the thousands of people every year who literally eat their hearts out.

Short-handed goal sinks Spartans

By Brad Emerse

Salem junior Autumn Bunch and sophomore Kim Miller, the heptathlon "was a step up from last year," said Steve Luther, assistant coach for the Rocks. "Luther said he was pleased that we came out ready to play," he said. "We gave a good defensive effort tonight and Kevin is doing a good job of leading the team."
Clutch goal

Sata's tally gives Stevenson 5-4 victory

Senior defensive Nick Sata scored with 30 seconds left to give the Cougars a 5-4 victory over visiting Garden City in the Western Michigan Conference game Wednesday, Oct. 30. Sata's goal came on a follow-up of his own rebound of a deflection by Cliff Gugas.

Sata's goal was the second of the second period and was his fifth of the season.

The Cougars, who fell to 1-5 in league play, defeated the Skippers (4-2-1) for the third time this season and made up for a 7-4 loss at Garden City Oct. 11.

Sata's goal came on a follow-up of his own rebound of a deflection off the skate of senior Henry Lemerre. He was able to corral the puck and redirect it past the Skippers goalie to give Stevenson the 5-4 lead. Sata's tally was the second of the second period and was his fifth of the season.

The Cougars' sophomore goalie, Nick Kostakis, made 34 saves to shut down the Skippers' attack and help the Cougars secure the victory. Kostakis' performance came just one day after he was named the player of the week in the WMCC.

Sata's goal was the second of the second period and was his fifth of the season.

Franklin tandem stymies John Glenn

Lisa Franklin and Erin Redd have a lot in common. Thequire defenses dominate on the court, and so do their team mates, who frequently supply the spark for the State in the loss column.

Franklin and Redd have scored 1,098 points this season for Franklin, while senior guard Dave Benoit Jeck had 28 points.

Brandon Borlaugh, 17 points, and Benoit added 15.

Franklin defeated the Gladiators, 52-41.

Franklin led the 13-3 overall record by averaging 19.

The Region 2 West Point basketball tournament, which was held in Columbus, Ohio, saw Franklin defeat the Gladiators, 52-41.

Riley Carney isn't what you'd call a household name, but you've seen his work. He's a master of stitches whose clientele reads like "Who's Who" on the pageant and auto show circuits, not to mention dance and skating competitions. You can see some of his work at the Detroit International Auto Show this week.
ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

DFT continues with *Cyrano

By John Mosenthal

With more than 70 films to its credit, French director Claude Miller doesn't need to dazzle the viewer with the " hardest thing to do. " He needs to dazzle with the easy thing. And he does. At the Detroit Film Theatre, Miller's latest, "Kiss immortelle," is a beautiful and perfectly balanced piece of filmmaking. The film, which includes many of the director's earlier work, is a perfect example of how to make a film that is both entertaining and thought-provoking.

The film is about a young man named Jean (played by the excellent young French actor Mathieu Amalric) who is struggling to find his place in the world. He is a passionate and idealistic young man who is determined to make a difference in the world. The film follows him as he navigates the challenges of a difficult and complex world, and the choices he must make to achieve his goals.

"Kiss immortelle" is a film that is both visually stunning and artistically innovative. The director uses a combination of beautiful cinematography and poetic dialogue to create a world that is both real and surreal. The film is a testament to the power of cinema to transport the viewer to a different time and place.

The film has been well-received by critics and audiences alike, and it is clear that it has been a long time coming for director Miller. His previous works have been critically acclaimed, but this film is truly a masterpiece. It is a film that is sure to be remembered for years to come.

SCREEN SCENE

Betty Mahmoody plays Betty Mahmoody, an American mother, who must make the tough decision to leave her home in Iran when her young daughter, played by Shosholoza, is held against her will by her husband in "Not Without My Daughter." The film, directed by James D. Wilson, is based on the true story of a young woman who was forced to leave her home in Iran in order to save her daughter from a tyrannical husband.

Despite daily threats and the many serious threats to their lives, the women continue to resist and fight for their freedom. With the help of the international community, they are able to eventually escape to safety. The film is a powerful testament to the strength and resilience of women in the face of oppression.

DEBUT OF "YOU LAW"

In a film directed by the renowned French director, Cyrano, the story of a young man named Jean (played by the excellent young French actor Mathieu Amalric) who is struggling to find his place in the world.

REVIEWS

HELLO' S DITCH — The Pogues

Shane MacGowan may or may not have been sober, but he continues to write terrific songs and the band continues to make great music. Shane's voice may not be in top form, but it's a hallmark of the band's appeal. The band's energy and spirit are as strong as ever.

HACK — Information Society

A sound for the 90s. This is a good way to describe Information Societys latest release called simply "Hacker" (Rhino Rydell). The band has been around for some time, but this album is a little different. The songs are catchy, melodic, and well-crafted. The band's sound is a mix of synth-pop and rock, and it's a great addition to any music fan's collection.

THE IMMULUCLCOLLECTION — Madonna

Oh, I'm sure you'll love the new album from Madonna. It's a collection of all the best hits from her career. From "Like a Virgin" to "Vogue" to "Ray of Light," this album has it all. It's a great way to celebrate her 90s hits and her rock and roll vibe. You'll love it.

Etch ‘A’ Sketch draws with ska

By Larry 'O' Connors staff writer

Stu Minter, who toured with the Pogues, was produced by Joe Ruttan. "Stu Minter is a master of the form," said Joe. "He's got the perfect touch for that style of music."

A local band called The Big Picture recently released their debut album, "Etch 'A' Sketch." The band is influenced by ska and punk and uses a mix of horns, guitars, and vocals. Mike Hurley, bass, Andy Combs, drums, Pontiac; Skip Pruitt, guitar, vocals. The Big Picture will perform at 7:30 p.m. to 2 a.m. Friday, Jan. 18, at 3-D Club, 1815 N. Main, north of 12 Mile Road, Madison Heights. For information, call 875-6555.

We received the following letter, written by a reader who is concerned about cross-dressing and its impact on society.

Dear Editor,

I believe that the issue of cross-dressing is a significant one, and I am concerned about the way it is often portrayed in the media.

I have been writing articles about cross-dressing for several years now, and I have noticed a trend towards sensationalism and exploitation.

I understand that cross-dressers are often misrepresented, and that this can be harmful to their self-esteem and their ability to function in society.

However, I also believe that it is important to have an informed discussion about this issue, and to provide a platform for those who are affected by it to speak out.

I hope that you will consider publishing this letter, and that you will continue to give thought to this important topic.

Sincerely,

[Name]

The search for identity and expression continues in the world of cross-dressing, as people navigate the complexities of their gender and sexual identity.

The importance of understanding and respecting the diversity of human experience cannot be overstated.

The Detroit Free Press, the St. James and the Comedy Castle are getting ready to say goodbye to Karl Anthony. Anthony, a Detroit comedian who's been a regular fixture on the local stand-up circuit for the past several years, is leaving Detroit to pursue a career in Los Angeles.

"I wrote a three-minute act," Anthony said recently, "and I want to take it to Hollywood." The act, which has been well-received by audiences, is about a man who is always late for appointments.

"I've been doing it for the past year," Anthony said, "and I think it's time to move on. I've got a lot of other things I want to do." Anthony, who is now in his mid-20s, has been performing stand-up comedy since he was in high school.

"I always wanted to do a benefit show," Anthony said. "I think it's the right thing to do." The show, which is being held at the Comedy Castle, will feature a number of local comedians and will benefit the Detroit Free Press Foundation.

Anthony, who is originally from Michigan, said he plans to return to Detroit in the future.

"I'll miss the people," Anthony said. "I've met some great people here." Anthony, who is currently living in Los Angeles, said he plans to return to Detroit in the future to perform stand-up comedy.

"I want to come back," Anthony said. "I love Detroit. I love the people." Anthony, who is looking forward to the future, said he plans to pursue a career in television and film.

"I want to be a part of the entertainment industry," Anthony said. "I want to do something that I can be proud of." Anthony, who is currently in the process of writing a new act, said he plans to return to Detroit in the future to perform stand-up comedy.

Riley Carney is the kind of guy that everyone loves to know. He's friendly, fun, and has a great sense of humor. He's also a man off his work, having been a designer and costumer for the Detroit Jazz Festival. The Capayn's style of comedy, known as 'nonsense comedy', is unique and entertaining. His work has been recognized by the Detroit Entertainment Group, and he has been featured in several television shows.

In this article, Carney takes us behind the scenes of his latest project: creating a costume for a bevy of dancers. He describes the process of designing and creating costumes, from selecting fabrics to sewing and tailoring. He also shares some of his favorite memories of working on past projects.

Carney's talent comes from two sources. He got his start in the Detroit area by designing competition costumes for Sheryl's School of Dance in Livonia. After watching figure skating on television, he decided to make up a costume for a skater. He then went on to provide costumes for the Detroit Skating Club in Bloomfield Hills.

He also works without patterns. "I use the fabric to create the design," he says. "I start with a sketch and then develop the costume from there."

Carney's costumes have been worn by clients such as Kelly Kalamazoo to have Carney create selection of bikinis. "She's designed costumes for the Miss Michigan pageant. She competed last year and was sent down to the coach for the talent portion of the pageant."

"I definitely think you dance your best when you're wearing something you feel good in," Carney says. "I want my customers to feel confident and comfortable in their costumes."

Carney's business, Riley Carney Designs, has grown steadily since its inception. "I started this business for myself," he says. "I wanted to have control over the design and creation of my costumes."

Carney's costumes are custom-made, and he takes great care in ensuring that each one is unique and tailored to the individual dancer. "I want each dancer to feel like they're the star of the show," he says. "My goal is to create costumes that are both flattering and comfortable."
Now’s the time to gain control over finances. Something few of us do. The rule seems to apply to all seventh and eighth graders within the Observer & Eccentric circulation area.

For starters, here’s a short checklist of simple things to do right away:

- Separate your ‘91 financial papers from your ‘90 financial papers.
- Record your Jan. 1 spending as your first entry in the year’s tax payment.
- Put your paycheck register and your year’s worth of pay stubs into a file box.
- Write in “1991” on your next check.
- Omit tax forms you’re not likely to need.
- NOW FOR THE HARDER CRIME of organizing your finances to stay out of debt. Start a monthly list of what coming due in the next month. This way you’ll be aware of your finances each month and how not to make the same mistakes next year.

Auto fest follows long, winding road

By Dan McChesney

Visitors to the North American International Auto Show from the metropolitan area can now be forgiven for being overly zealous when they stop into a Cobo Hall admissions booth with small kids in tow and ask how long it will be before they can walk through the show floor. "Aren't you going to the show?"

"Yes, sir, I am," answers a slightly exasperated security guard. Or at least that's the impression he's given to the listless automobile public through the years.

"Detroit auto show," one might say, is an oxymoron, illustrating what the personal use is to a design. Unique exterior styling modifications come in the form of captains chairs, rear seat bed, running boards, unique designer paint, mag wheels and more.

This fest is unique because it shows the futuristic engineering, showing of futuristic engineering, showing of futuristic engineering... above the show floor, everything that's being shown is real cars. They drive them.

The world-class event will host more than 50 exhibiters and manufacturers, which were quickly embraced by the American middle class with their cars and the atmosphere that combines corporate大气派与plaything for the masses. As a consequence, the automobile, which was quickly embraced by the American middle class with their cars and the atmosphere that combines corporate atmosphere and identify target markets.

Ford will introduce the Ranger compact truck design (above) at the North American International Auto Show. The design is executed on a Ranger extended cab sport variant built at the Louisville, Ky., plant. The unique exterior styling modifications complete the aggressive theme of the vehicle. Theasis Ford, has tapped the new Explorer utility vehicle design to a harmonious "office on wheels." This vehicle will contain the latest audio-visual equipment, including standard entertainment and the-art communications hardware surrounding the work of a dedicated executive office environment.

On the range, such insecurity of the auto show was visible in the way the world, said Ford, co-chairman of this event. The Royal St. James immediately took support for the concept of the show from Old GM President Robert Stempel and GM Vice President Lloyd Braun. "The concept of the show was born of a simple idea that the show floor is the butterflies that are drawn to our cars, cars and show, which was quickly embraced by the American middle class with their cars and the atmosphere that combines corporate atmosphere and identify target markets.

Ford, Chrysler Corp.-sponsored exhibitor, and Volkswagen were already in talks with the Chrysler Corp. as a plaything for the masses. They supply the cars and the atmosphere that combines corporate atmosphere and identify target markets. TheIENTIMA TIONAL AUTO SHOW exhibiters will be their introduction to some of the brightest of the young stars in the world."

Early U.S. auto shows, such as the one in the eyes of the world, the Los Angeles Times, and the Detroit Auto Dealers Association, have been laboriously renamed the North American International Auto Show. Bob ThiBodeau and Gordon Stewart, area dealers and industry leaders, have become something of a social atmosphere that combines corporate atmosphere and identify target markets.

"We supply the cars and the atmosphere that combines corporate atmosphere and identify target markets. The world-class event will host more than 50 exhibiters and manufacturers, which were quickly embraced by the American middle class with their cars and the atmosphere that combines corporate atmosphere and identify target markets.

Corvette has also made some locking disc brakes that can stop the nearly 3,500-pound automobile from 60 mph hour to a standstill in 125 now standard.

The technology that eventually found its way to the 3000GT was first introduced in the mid-1980s as the Mitsubishi HSR-II concept car. Mitsubishi engineers and the team that would produce the 3000GT spent a great deal of time testing prototypes on the streets of Japan to perfect the 3000GT's distinctive appearance and performance. The 3000GT sports car and an all-wheel-drive, four-door sedan scheduled to be introduced in mid-1991 as an '92 model.

The four-wheel, anti-lock brakes and computerized Active Aero system.

One very important difference, gas mileage.

The three-cylinder, 1.0-liter, two-stroke engine is capable of producing a modest 55 hp.

The Geo Metro also boasts an option in addition to substantially better fuel mileage (in addition to substantially better fuel mileage) the Corvette does not: front-wheel drive.

Mitsubishi has selected the North American International Auto Show as the venue for the North American introduction of the all-new HSR-II sport concept car.

The HSR-II (High Speed Research) experimental car has served as a rolling test bed for new Mitsubishi products like the 3000GT sports car and an all-wheel-drive, four-door sedan. Mitsubishi engineers used the HSR-II concept car to image performance, speed and the Geo Metro, the most expensive American sample car, allows one very important distinction between them. Actually, three power options are available through the Geo Metro and Geo Metro XFI, that is as the least expensive American sample car is on the American International Auto Show. Both Geo Metro models include a manufacturer's suggested retail price of $9,799, but there is a distinct difference between them. The Geo Metro EPA mileage is 31 miles per gallon city, 50 miles per gallon highway. The Geo Metro XFI EPA mileage is 55 miles per gallon city, 63 miles per gallon highway.

With the exception of these differences, the two configurations are much the same.

The Geo Metro sports new seat and door fabrics and new exterior and interior colors for 1991. And while the Geo Metro XFI isn't equipped with the four-wheel independent suspension and the power steering of the Geo Metro, it does come with the Geo Metro XFI's digital clock, personal stereo, and power side rearview mirror.

The Geo Metro XFI's digital electronic fuel injection is capable of producing a modest 55 hp.

Save the procrastination for mid-terms. Because there's no time like the present to have fun. Especially if it means driving an exciting performance car like the Nissan 240SX.

It has a 16-valve, 155-hp fuel-injected engine. Multi-link independent rear suspension. The 240SX. It's a lot of sports car. But you can handle it.

Save the procrastination for mid-terms. Because there's no time like the present to have fun. Especially if it means driving an exciting performance car like the Nissan 240SX.

THE MIVAN quickly becomes a family favorite, a

American institution, the minivan. Proponents cite its ability to carry family and all their necessities in a roomy, comfortable environment, with disposable diapers, shoppers — even more than that, it's easy to get in and out of. But proponents might be missing out on some of the car's finest points.

Last spring, the options expanded

The Dodge Caravan, along with its wheels that can fit in the garage, speed automatic transmission and equipped with a V6 engine, a four-open one side only, if that's all that's convenient rear loading by virtue of four-wheel anti-lock brakes. The minivan is one of the vehicles available from each of the domestic manufacturers, and many are on the market.

Although the models all adhere to the basic formula of a high-sided, wide-doored, flat-floored box on a one-piece chassis, the differences are substantial. Most have rear hatches and sliding doors, and many have pop-open hinged; center-side doors. More usual are three-row seats, with a split second row and some four-seat models. Some have folding second and third rows, but you can also find minivans with hinged rear doors or hinged center side doors.

With appropriate seating configurations, there are enough seats for eight people or addition.

All minivans have at least one top airbag, and some have two. Some models have side airbags, and a handful of minivans carry the optional side airbags required by the federal government. This means that these vehicles meet or exceed the same safety criteria as passenger cars.

However, there are differences in how many of these safety systems are standard or optional, and how they are configured. In 1990, the Caravan and Voyager were among the few minivans to offer innovative technology, their bodies were made of high-impact plastic panels containing steel, but innovative engines, with larger engine castings that can withstand the stresses of brake applications or hard cornering.

The PONTIAC Trans Sport and its sibling, the Chevrolet Lumina APV and Oldsmobile Silhouette, have the hinged to removed in all the models

They're starting to look like high-back aero seats.

That's why there's only one Buick, LeSabre MPV at about $15,000, Lumina APV at about

$13,700. The Buick lineup includes other features such as a clever storage drawer under the rear seats, and brings back the "woody' look, '90s style. Prices start at about $12,500.

The New Symbol For Quality

The Mazda MPV is the only imported minivan designed for the American family.

Steel detailers, who automatically draft every steel-to-steel connection for commercial buildings designed by architects, will be in great demand in the years ahead.

A consortium of steel manufacturers and installers here has established a three-year cooperative education program — believed to be the only one of its kind now operating — to meet the industry's needs during the 1990s and beyond.

"The need for detailers is projected to rise up to 20 by the end of 1990," said Albert Forse, executive director of the Great Lakes Steel Fabricators and Erectors Association.

"The majority of the people in the business are in their late fifties and sixties. They're going to retire in the next few years, and we have no one to replace them. The industry has done a poor job of attracting the world's best detailers," Forse said.

A formal co-op program put together by industry professionals at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn was launched a year ago.

Upwards of 20 will be chosen for the third group to begin in September. About 18 are now involved.

"The only requirement to apply is a high school diploma or GED certificate," Forse said. "We are looking for every student to assume responsibility that they don't know anything about steel, don't know anything about construction and don't know anything about drafting." Forse said. "We'll teach them."
