Anderson finishes 1st in city's council race

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Challenger Glenn Anderson soared to a strong first-place finish Tuesday night in a Westland City Council race that also handed victories to council incumbents Charles Pickering and Thomas Brown and former school board member Sharon Scott.

On the council for 15 years, Thomas Artley lost his seat and was joined in defeat by council hopefuls David Cox, Dorothy Smith and William

Anderson commanded a lead throughout the night, leading his nearest rival, Pickering, by 75 votes in unofficial vote totals at city hall. Brown finished third, and Scott finished fourth in the eight-way race for four seats,

Ousted Artley 'sure' foes' tactics cost him council bid

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Ousted City Councilman Thomas Artley came under bitter fire from his opponents in the last days of the campaign.

Many political observers said in recent days that Artley had been widely viewed as the most vulnerable among the three incumbents seeking re-election. That proved tactics - viewed as extremely negative by some observers — he responded Tuesday night by saying, "I'm sure that it was."

He didn't elaborate.

Artley came under fire from council hopefuls Sharon Scott, David Cox and William Ziemba - running mates who lashed out at him in their campaign literature. They indicated a conflict of interest because Artley served on the council - and voted on its budget - while his son worked was hurt by his opponents' campaign for the city rubbish contractor, the city attorney and the 18th District Court in Westland.

In a cartoon-like drawing, a man obviously meant to portray Artley's son says: "Thanks for the job, Dad!"

Though the campaign tactics may have helped Scott, Cox and Ziemba still didn't muster enough support to rank among the four winners. In addition to Scott, other winners included incumbents Charles Pickering

Two unrelated car jackings reported, man shot in face

By Bill Casper staff writer

A 20-year-old Westland man was shot in the face during a carjacking on Halloween night and a Detroit man was arraigned Sunday in connection with an unrelated gunpoint car theft Saturday morning in Redford Township.

The Westland man, a friend of the car owner, was struck in the face by several pellets fired from a sawedoff shotgun as he approached the carjackers at Wormer and Plymouth Street, west of Telegraph, Redford police said.

He was taken by ambulance to Botsford Hospital, Farmington Hills, but has been transferred to another hospital, Redford police detective Lt. Wilson Bailey said.

Bailey declined to name the hospital where the man is being treated, but said he is listed in stable condi-.

Bailey said that police investigators are working on information that could lead to the arrest of one or both suspects, but no one was in custody as of Tuesday.

THE CAR was stolen at about 9:30 p.m. by two men, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun, and the shooting occurred moments later when the auto owner, a 23-year-old Redford man, and two of his friends went after the thieves, police said.

The auto owner was sitting in his 1988 Ford Mustang with a friend, a 22-year-old Redford man, listening to the car radio while parked on Lenore at Plymouth, west of Telegraph, near a house where they were visiting friends, police said.

PTA, rising to president of the Schweitzer School chapter.

Since then, she has been active in the Westland Chamber of Commerce, became a charter member when the Westland Business and Professional Women's Club was formed last year and served as a cochairperson of the successful Wayne-Westland school district tax increase campaign last spring.

For that and other activities, Harlow was selected the First Citizen of Westland for 1991. She and three other nominees will be publicly bonored Tuesday at the Westland Chamber of Commerce membership luncheon.

The sixth annual community service award is co-sponsored by the Westland Observer and the chamber.

Harlow, a local resident for 29 years and a Westland businesswoman with her husband for 25 years, was picked by a panel of four judges for her extensive community service

THAT SERVICE includes serving as the BPW chapter president, being a member of the E-911 committee two years ago, and working on the school district's AIDS health study committe.

She is also a director of the Friends of the Nankin Mill; one of the first woman members of Westland Rotary Club; a deacon of the First Congregational Church; a member of the City of Westland 25th anniversary committee; member of the new Cooper School Advisory Committee, helped plan a visit by Russian hockey players this spring and served as a hostess for visiting Chinese business representatives.

"Margaret Harlow is one of these extremely rare persons who would just as well do many things behind the scenes that others are out in front accepting credit and yet this woman humbly allows herself to get involved in numerous projects that has her going in at least 10 different directions each and every day," said her nominator.

"She balances this juggling act very well and still finds time to run a business and, like the Energizer commercial, 'keeps right on going.'

"Margaret Harlow has been an exceptional role model for other women, and young women in particular, that have looked at her ability to have a marriage, family, career, public service and an abundance of patience to even take in foreign students (in her home) in an exchange

"HER OUTSTANDING leadership in volunteer community service has inspired many people who would otherwise not have the time, simply agree to work with Margaret because of her longtime devotion to one of their causes."

Her pominator said that Harlow is truly "her brothers and sisters keeper.'

The First Citizen "has given a piece of her heart and soul to the city and now the community needs to recognize her for unselfish attitude in working in a volunteer capacity to serve others."

Harlow and husband, Jim, are owners of Harlow Tire Co., on Wayne Road south of Ford, and the parents of Jeff, Michelle and Brian.

The other nominees were Marlene Dean-Doran, a John Glenn High School occupational therapist and active in many groups involving the disabled; Anthony Rosati, a leader for 25 years in the Wayne-Westland Young Woman of the Year (formerly Junior Miss) program; and Judith Alford, a volunteer probation officer for the Livonia district court and formerly in the same position with the Westland district court.

Man, 18, gets prison for shooting

By Darrell Clem staff writer

An 18-year-old Inkster man has been sentenced to four to 10 years in prison for shooting a Ypsilanti man in the face during a post-basketball game melee in December at John Glenn High School in West-

Mack Arthur Willis' sentence Tuesday before Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Helen Brown came three weeks after he pleaded guilty to assault with intent to cause great bodily harm - a charge that had been reduced from attempted: murder.

Willis also was sentenced Tuesday to two years in prison on a felony firearms charge. That term will run consecutively to the sentence stemming from the assault

Willis was charged after be fired a shoigun at 17-year-old Kenneth Daniel Mays of Ypsilanti and wounded him in the face during a clash between nearly 20 youths in the John Glenn parking lot last Dec. 7. Mays remains blind in his left eye, assistant Wayne County prosecutor Lisa Lindsey sald Tues-

WILLIS PLEADED guilty Oct. 21 under an agreement worked out between his attorney, Thaddeus K. Dean, and Lindsey.

"I'm very pleased with the results," Lindsey said Tuesday, "Nothing is going to make Kenneth Mays whole again. He's legally blind in one eye. But at least (Willis) got several years in prison. He definitely did wrong."

Dean also has said he favored the plea agreement, because it ensured that Willis won't have to spend his entire life in prison. Though it's possible that Willis could have received life in prison if he had been tried by a jury, Lindsey appeared pleased by the sentence handed down by Brown.

"You never know what to expect when you go before a jury," Lindsey said.

The two suspects then took the coats the Redford men were wearing and left in the Mustang, leaving the Cavalier behind, police said.

Friends of the Redford men in the house heard a disturbance outside and went out to investigate and learned of the carjacking, police said.

Three of them got into the car of a 21-year-old Redford man, and drove around the block, where they saw the Mustang traveling north on Wormer, approaching Plymouth, police said.

Waitress Kim Madley, 23, of Redford Township carries drinks through the subway car at "Graffiti," a high-tech Westland nightclub that owner Jim Maceroni hopes will draw a professional crowd.

"Guardian Angel" Doug Heereman, who helps protect the "streets" in the Westland club "Graffiti," talks to some patrons in the flashy nightclub, formerly "Rumorz."

Graffiti brings home visions of Big Apple

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Flashy neon lights shatter the dark. Graffiti covers every wall in sight. Fashion-conscious women mill through a subway car.

Steam rises lazily from a manhole cover. Guardian Angels walk by, keeping watch on a crowd of people gathered amid the crumbling brick archways and chain-link fences.

Around the corner, smoke curls from a game room where two men shoot pool. Then a steady thump, thump, thump becomes louder. You can feel the pulse of the city.

Ahhh. This is New York at night. The city that never sleeps. Far away from the suburbia of Westland. Right?

Wrong.

It's "Graffiti," a new 608-personcapacity nightclub that replaced "Rumorz" on Merriman, south of Cherry Hill.

This 12,000-square-foot escape-to-New York dance haven emerged after 35-year-old owner Jim Maceroni of Farmington Hills penned its name and sought help for its "industrial decor" from his longtime friend, 31year-old Jerzy Drean of East De-

They built an amazing replica of a subway car from wood and put a bar inside it. They made a mouth-shaped deejay booth, complete with bright red lips. They placed mannequins in strategic places.

THEY PUT in three large video screens and an impressive dancefloor light show to accentuate the beat-driven dance music. On three sides of the main dance floor, they decided on three elevated, long and narrow dance areas.

Near the entrance, they installed a manhole cover that breathes steam and a Model-T car replica that serves as a "beer express."

Toss in a game room, L-shaped and T-shaped stand-up bars, a sitting area partially enclosed by a chainlink fence, brick arches that appear to be crumbling, and barbed wire atop some of the brick walls.

But the touch that gives this club its atmosphere is, without question, the graffiti. Jerzy, a designer and artist illustrator, said he used at least four dozen fluorescent neon colors, - red, yellow, blue, green, purple and many more — to cover the walls with wild patterns, slogans and cartoon-like characters.

Among the slogans: "Bite the Big Apple." "Planet Detroit." "Life as we know it does not exist." "Your lives are graffiti on the walls of

And in the men's bathroom: "Cut that out or you'll go blind."

"IT TAKES someone a good month of coming here every day to see everything," Drean said.

When "Graffiti" opened the night of Oct. 24, Maceroni added yet another touch of New York, albeit a temporary one. To give it that city street feel, a blaze was started in a trash can outside the bar, near the entrance, and an a cappella group stood around it and sang as patrons arrived. Two body-painted "live" mannequins danced.

Maceroni said he's invested about $1 million in the club, and he's appealing to the more professional 23to-35-year-old crowd that wants a state-of-the-art club where they can have fun and alleviate job stress.

We want to get away from the 18-to-21 crowd," he said. "It just gets you into more trouble."

IF THERE is trouble, Maceroni has hired several "Guardian Angels" to handle matters. They're easily spotted because of the logos on their T-shirts.

A $3 cover charge gets you in on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Other nights there is no cover.

Early on, customer reviews of the club have been highly favorable. Just ask 23-year-old Mike Waite of Canton, who favors the change from "Rumorz" to "Graffiti."

"I've been coming here for a while, and I think it's changed for the better. It's a little more New Wave," he said.

ner of Canton, agreed. "Everything they did to it is pretty cool." Marianne Gabriel, 20, of Taylor,

"It's different than any other club in Michigan," she said. "It has atmosphere."

Officials eye local branches for closure after bank merger

By Darrell Clem staff writer

The merger of Michigan's secondand third-largest banking companies could close some Westland branches and eliminate jobs for some of the nearly 100 employees who work at them, officials said this week.

Just how deeply the cuts would affect Westland remained unknown in the wake of an announced merger of Comerica Inc. and Manufacturers National Corp. The plan is expected to trim 60 branches from the combined 348 branches in Michigan and cut 1,800 jobs among the companies' combined 13,500 workers.

Closings most likely would occur among banks "that are in close proximity" to others, Manufacturers spokeswoman Sharon McMurray said Monday. Westland has six branches of the two banks.

BOTH COMERICA and Manufacturers have a branch on Wayne Road, between Warren Road and Hunter. Manufacturers also has a branch on Wayne Road south of Cherry Hill and one on Joy east of Middlebelt. Comercia has a branch on Newburgh and Palmer and one on Ann Arbor Trail east of Merriman. Some of those are close to branches in other cities, such as Livonia.

The plan is expected to trim 60 branches from the combined 348 branches in Michigan.

"It's too early to determine which ones might be closed." McMurray said. Banking officials have indicated that such decisions are six to nine months away.

Manfacturers Chairman Gerald MacDonald has called the merger necessary to make both companies more competitive among an increasing number of large national and regional banks.

"IT'S CERTAINLY a sale that's near and dear to the hearts of personnel of both banks," said Don Hoffman, branch manager of the Wayne Road Comerica in Westland. "I am sure there are some people who do have concerns about it, and rightful-

However, Hoffman added that most workers have maintained a positive outlook about the merger and hope that they will be reassigned to other jobs if the Westland branches are consolidated.

From the customer's perspective, Holfman said, the merger isn't expected to result in dramatic changes. If anything, he said, "customers should receive more services."

LIKE HOFFMAN, branch manager assistant Tracle Brown of the Manufacturers bank on Joy said employees remain optimistic, though they don't know how the merger will affect them.

"Sure some employees are (concerned), and I am, too," she said. "But I think we're pretty optimistic about it."

Fred Mena, Westland Chamber of Commerce president, said local business officials don't know exactly what to expect from the merger aimed in part at cutting the companies' combined costs by 15 percent over the next three years for a savings of $145 million a year by 1994.

"This caught everybody by surprise," Mena sald.

"I THINK the whole city - the people - obviously had a lot of faith in me, and I'll do my best to live up to the faith and trust they've put in me," he sald.

Anderson, Pickering and Artley showed up among a crowd of about 200 supporters at the Wayne Ford Civic League on Wayne Road, just south of Ford.

As it became clear that he had lost his re-election bid, Artley, who had finished safely in third in the primary, looked wistfully at Pickering and said, "That's the way it goes."

In a subsequent interview, Artley said, "The people made their choice, and they will have to live with that." He appeared convinced that recent attacks on him by Scott, Cox and Ziemba, among others, hurt his cam- shows that he didn't need coattails to paign. (See related story.)

Pickering, who was the frontrunner in the Sept. 10 primary, didn't appear to mind that he finished behind Anderson in Tuesday's race. He had supported Anderson and campaigned with him.

In an interview, Pickering voiced "mixed feelings" about the election.

"I'M OBVIOUSLY happy that Glenn Anderson did so well, and I Ahink he's going to be a wonderful addition to the council. He's young and he has new ideas," Pickering said. "But with Tom Artley, I feel that we've lost a very valuable and dedicated person on the council."

Speaking about Anderson, Picker-ing said, "I don't mind coming in second to him. I supported him, and this get elected."

Anderson also had strong support from Mayor Robert Thomas, who also had backed Pickering and Art-

Next door to the Wayne Ford Civic League, Scott celebrated her victory at Paddy's Pub with a crowd of supporters that included Wayne-Westland school Superintendent Dennis O'Neill and Deputy Superintendent Thomas Svitkovich. Running mate Cox also was on hand.

Scott's victory came five months after she lost a re-election bid to the school board. She was criticized during the campaign for her positions as a board member and for seeking a seat on the council which includes son-in-law Kenneth Mehl.

"I FEEL very good," Scott said. "I think I won because of a lot of hard work and a lot of campaigning. I'm going to serve the city of Westland, and that's something I've wanted to do for a long time."

State Rep. Justine Barns, in an interview at Paddy's Pub, said she supported Scott and that she believes Scott "will do a good job" on the city

As the top three vote-getters, Anderson, Pickering and Brown each won a four-year council term. As the fourth-place winner, Scott received a two-year term.

IN AN apparent dig at Scott, a former school board member, Artley told his supporters gathered at the Wayne Ford Civic League Tuesday night to keep watch so that the city's finances don't deteriorate as the school district's did in recent years.

Ziemba also criticized Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, the city's senior resources director and the president of the Wayne-Westland school board. They noted that Kozorosky-Wiacek - an Artley supporter - has family members working for the school district and city.

Some campaign workers viewed the tactics as an attempt to discredit Kozorosky-Wiacek so that her support of Artley would be diminished.

Having my baby was a wonderful experience, and having my baby at Annapolis made it even better. They provided comprehensive, on-going prenatal care classes for my husband and me. And when the time came, I had my baby in their home-like birthing room, where both labor and delivery took place. And the doctors and the nurses, well, everyone was just wonderful. Having my baby at Annapolis made a special event even more special."

Rep. Bill Keith's vocational ed bill ran into a crossfire from rich and poor school districts Monday in his House Education Committee.

"I sense a threat, a fear of getting into this," said the veteran committee chair after Northville and Romulus school officials criticized the measure.

Keith, D-Garden City, and panel members heard nearly three hours of testimony Monday in Garden City High's auditorium.

"It's frustrating," agreed Rep. sor of Keith's House Bill 4165. "Business says high school graduates aren't prepared. Educators say business should be more involved. The school-to-work transition is not very smooth (for graduates). We need to integrate school and work."

NORTHVILLE school board vice president Glenna Davis said 85 to 91 percent of local graduates pursue higher education and are well-served without state-mandated vocational training for only 15 percent.

She criticized Keith's two-tiered school system as "restrictive." adding that federal courts have found systems forcing students to choose between vocational and academic tracks at age 15 are "arbitrary and unconstitutional."

Davis said the bill provides no state funding of state-mandated programs, as required by the state constitution - "financial oppression" for out-of-formula districts like Northville which get no state aid.

Replied Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton: "Some of those Northville students might be wasting their time in an area (college) where they don't benefit. Forty percent (of college students) don't graduate, and 27 percent of graduates don't work in the field they studied.'

But Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, came to Northville's defense. The state gives no aid to out-of-formula. districts, has taken away their categorical aid, is forcing them to share their local business property taxes, has frozen property taxes - and now is proposing to make them pay for vocational training.

"There should be pilot programs

> ROMULUS Supt. William Bedell. sees only 25 percent of his graduates go to college but opposed Keith's bill for another reason.

> "I don't think a local school district should train 16- and 17-yearolds for specific jobs," Bedell said. "No one can tell us what the shop of the 21st century is going to look like.

> "Traditionally, the purpose (of high schools) has not been to train skills for industry. Traditionally, it has been to educate functional human beings, not drill press operators."

> Bedell said his problem is to bring kids from poor and single-parent families up to academic grade levels, not to train them for jobs. "Forty percent of our ninth graders fall math," he said, and 30 percent drop out. Industrialists tell him, "Bill, just give us kids who can read, write, do math and come to work on time, and we'll do the rest."

> Bedell criticized the shortage of school teachers and administrators on Keith's proposed state Career-Technical Advisory Council.

> Dr. Youssel Yomfoob, superintendent of Willow Run schools, criticized Keith's plan to start the vocational track at age 15. "Age 15 is too early to pick a specific occupation," he said.

KEITH REPLIED, "Big business would say, 'you've got too many damn educators.'

"We have a lot of industry involvement (in vocational training) on a short-term basis, in pockets all over the state. But it's a non-system. It's a non-system of excellent local systems with no coordination."

An educator who agreed with Keith was David Otwell, a one-time Pinckney farm boy and now principal of a three-district career technical center in Ypsilanti.

In a blistering attack on the "general" curriculum as opposed to college prep and vocational, Otwell said, "I didn't want my son and daughter to generally prepared for generally nothing. They have to have a focus - not be wandering general-

Otwell said he learned about equipment by "muddling around" on the farm, but today's kids lack that opportunity. "We're serving 30-40 percent of (college-bound) kids very well, but 60-70 percent are not served very well."

ALSO SUPPORTING Keith's bill

Victor Fredriksen, a retired Ford manufacturing engineer from Waterford: "The bill is very, very important and well-founded because it calls for cooperation between schools and industry. It's no use saying we're going to equip schools. The best equipment is in the factory."

Wilson Mudge, National Federation of Independent Businesses, Lansing: "Michigan must begin treating vocational students equal to college-bound students."

Charles West, president of the Taylor Federation of Teachers: "Education is a state function. We're looking to a more state-oriented system. But we have all these people running around yelling local con-

The Garden City council Monday agreed to urge state legislators to change a state law which limits. NTC from receiving state and federal transportation funds without going through the regional transit authority.

The council action came after Richard Fernandez, one of the two Garden City NTC board members, outlined the financial problem.

A key to the problem, he said, is that state law funnels money through the Southeast Michigan Area Regional Transportation (SMART) agency. In other parts of the state, transit money goes directly to the communities.

He appealed to the council members to write state legislators to change the allotment and liberalize the distribution of transit funds.

The commission was formed in 1974 and service started the following year, Hunter said. SMART owns the agency's 15 small buses with NTC having 12 drivers on hand daily.

County puts health care ahead of budget battles

By Wayne Peal staff writer

The sound and fury that usually accompanies Wayne County's budget process has been absent this year.

That's because Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and commissioners agree there is a bigger issue before them:

"There are disagreements, but we're trying to settle them privately," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said. "With all the people we have being kicked off welfare, this is no time to be bickering with the county commission."

McNamara has less than 30 days to sign or veto a $305 million county. budget that includes heavy cuts for his staff as well as commissioners.

Last week, suburban and urban commissioners joined together in approving a 20 percent cut in their office budget for all services not required by state law or the county charter, as well as a matching 20 percent cut for the executive's off-

The expected savings, estimated at $5 million, would be earmarked for health care and emergency shelter programs for Wayne County's needy.

"IT'S NOWHERE near enough, but we feel it does send a message,' sald Kay Beard, D-Westland, who cosponsored the measure. Beard's district also includes Garden City.

The county recently lost an estihealth care services to indigent resi-

An estimated 54,000 people were to have received health care services under the county program.

"Those cuts are unconscionable," Beard said.

But state Department of Social Service Director Gerald Miller said the money is unlikely to return.

"The money just isn't there," Miller said. "But we will be financing. programs for the disabled and fami-

A prescription drug program may also be provided for other needy county residents, Miller said.

McNamara, seeking greater support for health care programs, is attempting an end run around DSS and the governor's office.

"We're pretty much through in dealing with them," Duggan said. "We are pressing our case with the Legislature."

While area commissioners all supported the 20 percent cuts, there is concern over how they would be implemented.

AN EARLIER proposal by Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, would have cut $1 million from the commission budget only. Amann's district includes Can-

"That proposal did spell things out more clearly," said Kevin Kelley, D-Redford.

It failed because other commissioners said it was unfair to cut their mated $42 million in state money for budget without also cutting from the executive branch.

'The feeling was it shouldn't fall on just one group, everybody should contribute," said Maurice Breen, R-Plymouth Township, who joined with Beard in sponsoring the 20-percent

Amann approved the second proposal, "because it was the only way. to have meaningful discussion on the budget:"

We still need to get a handle on commission expenses," Amann said.

The now-threatened county health care plan, drafted in 1987, was considered a major accomplishment of McNamara's first term as executive. . Mounting health care bills had pushed the county heavily into debt.

County health care bills were to have been capped under a previousagreement with the state, though costs kept rising.

The new program, called Countycare, had been credited with eliminating debt by allowing the county to screen patients in advance for eligibility and more closely monitor health care costs.

McNamara called indigent health care a top priority in last year's State of the County address. But as early as April, he said he was fearful the state could cut its support.

The county operating budget had increased from $273 million in fiscal 1988-89, with increases averaging under 4 percent each year for the past three years.

Airport parking rate going up

Some parking rates are increasing line with those at other major Amerat Detroit Metropolitan Wayne ican airports. Automobile parking County Airport beginning Nov. 8.

Rates for deck parking will rise 25-cents to $3 for the first hour. Short-term parking rates remain unchanged.

David Crisovan, a regional manager of the company that manages Metro's on-airport parking lots for Wayne County, said the changes would bring parking rates more in

In addition to parking revenue, Metro rents terminal and concession space, and recieves a percentage of sales from food and beverage sales, news and gift shops, ground transportation, car rentals and advertis-

According to the office of Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara, the new deck rates are as follows: $3 first hour (from $2.75); $4 second hour (from $3.25); $9 for the seventh-24th hour (from $6 for fifth to 24th

Parking at the international long term lot rose about $1 per hour. Weekly prices in other lots rose. Prices at the hotel, express, and short term lots remain the same, starting at $1.50 per half hour.

Teen author supports the arts, writes his own success story

Look out literary world, here comes Ben Hurvitz.

The 13-year-old Hurvitz is proof plenty that teens can work hard at school and still be popular.

And he's good, too, The eighth grader recently was selected as one of 10 winners in a statewide essay contest sponsored by the Michigan Opera Theatre, Ford Motor Co. and Little Caesars Enterprises. His etfort, entitled "The Arts," was among 250 entries.

"I just wanted to get across the point that I'm really for the arts and they should be continued," said the Oakland County youngster about his one-page entry. "It's really important for people in society, it helps them escape every day situations."

When asked what he thought separated his effort from those that fell short, Hurvitz answered with his usual straight-to-the-point honesty.

"I SPENT a lot of time on it," the now-accomplished essayist said. "I really put down what I thought and I wrote it as factual. Others might have tried to make it into a story."

Agreeing was teacher Natalle Minninger, whose "Mentored Writers" after-school class for gifted young scribes includes Hurvitz. She said Ben's essay won because it was "succinct" and stayed on course.

An excerpt of Hurvitz' essay might bear her evaluation out: "Art can be interpreted in many different ways. Therefore, no one is right or

Meanwhile, Minninger added that the pupil is a true leader, one who is looked up to by others in the school.

"He just has this spark," she said. "He always wants to say something, write it down, communicate. ... He's really talented and there's not just one channel or vein he writes in."

For example, Hurvitz is editor of a school newsletter. He and others in the Mentored Writers class work on future contributions. The publication includes everything from sports reviews to travel tips to science news:

HURVITZ IS a team player, undoubtedly.

"Cameron, this is really great," sald Hurvitz from across the classroom after reading eighth-grader Cameron Smith's Halloween poem.

Mentored Writers is for those youngsters who love to write, sald Minninger, adding that enrollment isbased both on talent and teacher assessments from the previous year.

Minninger said pupils in the average classroom are required to write five compositions in a year, plus a book report and research paper.

"But they really don't have a forum that displays their talent continually, month after month, year after year. Mentored Writers is for those students who are truly voracious

Hurvitz certainly qualifies as one. He said he'd love to have a book published someday but thinks working

State targets food stamp fraud

staff writer

Nearly three dozen people, including Wayne and Oakaind County residents, are expected to be charged this week in a crackdown on food stamp Traud.

State and federal agents worked together on the food stamp investigation, billed as one of the largest operations of its kind in U.S. history, Goy: John Engler and police officials, however, took pains to differentiate between those involved in the alleged fraud and other food stamp recipients.

"The people of Michigan can be assured their hard earned tax dollars will be used for people who legitimately need these services," Engler said, annoucing investigation results Tuesday at the Michigan State Police Criminal Investigation Center in

THOSE ARRAIGNED Tuesday included: Bahir Bahoura of West Bloomfield and Basil Kashat of Southfield. Others, including a Troy man and a Livonia man, were expected to be arraigned Wednesday. Bahoura was among those identifled as an owners or employee of the various Detroit-based food markets targeted in the investigation.

Additional suspects are expected to be arrested throughout this week, state Attorney General Frank Kelley Prosecutors from the attorney general's office are withholding names of others arrested, as well as the stores where they conducted business, pending arraignment.

Assistant attorney general Theodore Klimaszewski said the final list of those charged could include other suburbanites as well as Detroit resi-

Those charged are expected to ihclude "traffickers" - those who buy food stamps from needy people and then sell them to merchants - as well as merchants who buy the tainted food stamps.

Traffickers pay as little as 60 cents on the dollar for food stamps before selling them to merchants who pay as much as 80 cents on the dollar. Merchants then are reimbursed by state, government for the full dollar, police said.

Food stamp recipients who sold their stamps to traffickers might lose benefits, but MSP officials said they weren't primary investigation targets.

"The thrust of this is the traffickers and merchants, not food stamp recipients themselves," MSP, director Mike Robinson said.

The maximum penalty for, food stamp fraud is 20 years in prison for repeat offenders.

Perhaps smarting from public criticism over general assistance welfare cuts, Engler administration officials said the crackdown sting was designed to restore public confidence in the food stamp program.

TEN PERCENT of all Michigan families receive food stamps, according to state records.

The number of recipients involved with fraud is "very small, less than one percent," according to state Department of Social Services Director Gerald Miller.

'The people of Michigan can be assured their hard earned tax dollars will be used for people who legitimately need these services.

- Gov. John Engler

The food stamp investigation also involved the U.S. Secret Service and Department of Agriculture, as well as the state liquor control commission, bureau of lottery and department of public health, among other agencies.

At the same time, the DSS has established a welfare fraud hot line, 1-800-222-8558. DSS employees will man the special telephone line from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1-4:30 p.m. weekdays, Every report will be investigated, Miller said.

IN TODAY'S JOB MARKET EMPLOYERS WANT MORE THAN THE SAME OLD B.S.

Every year, over a million new college graduates put on their new blue suits and go job hunting.

All of them have degrees. Most of them have hearty handshakes. But very few have what employers want most practical work experience. That's why there's a nationwide program called Cooperative Education. It allows students to alternate studies at the college of their choice with paid, practical work.

experience in the career of their choice. So Co-op Education students graduate with more than a degree. They have practical knowledge. And a competitive advantage in today's crowded job market. And that sure beats trying to B.S. your way into a job.

You earn a future when you earn a degree.

Road opens

Angelo D'Orazio, head of a Westland paving company, removes a barrier Monday morning to formally open the newly paved Hix Road to traffic between Ford and Warren Road. The road was closed for most of the summer for the $1.1 million project, financed by Tax Increment Finance Authority bonds. City officials say the new road will improve traffic access to area industries, enhance the city's efforts to attract new industrial development and reduce the city's road maintenance costs. Mayor Robert Thomas also said that the city is seeking a state transportation grant to repave Hix between Ford and Cherry Hill next year.

Risky business

Don't subsidize mall's growth

ESTLAND CITY council candidates competing for four seats in Tuesday's élection were divided on whether the city government should subsidize a proposed expansion of Westland Center.

There is a certain amount of "local patriotism" involved with some saying the city should help expand its property tax base and create more jobs by helping a division of Sears & Roebuck finance the expansion.

But the city council should keep its hands on public funds instead of risking those public dollars in the retail development market.

First, if the council has any extra dollars kicking around in its bank account, it should use them for needed public services. If the city wants to help the planned Westland Center expansion, the money should be used for widening roads or installing new water or sewer lines.

Providing needed public services and utilities should be the first priority of the city council and administration.

IF LOCAL officials want to take risks with public funds, then it should invest in stocks or mutual funds with a much better chance of preserving the original investment as well as earning a reasonable return.

The investment field, particularly in retail centers, is too volatile to risk public funds.

To anyone reading the business pages of newspapers or magazines, it is obvious that there are too many changes in the retail market to make a long-term investment.

If Westland Center's owners and Sears want investors, they should try the more traditional financial markets instead of local taxpayers.

Local residents are aware that when financial institutions stray away from their traditional markets, such as what happened in the savings and loan scandals in the Southwest, money disappears quickly.

If private investors feel that the proposed Westland Center expansion is a good deal, then they will invest their money.

The best thing for elected officials to do is to cooperate with the developers to improve nearby public utilities and keep an eye on public tax dollars and spend them only on public improvements — not potentially risky business ventures.

Shot in the arm

A package of 26 bills now in the state Legislature threatens to limit public scrutiny of the medical community. For an editorial on the subject, see the lower left hand column on this page.

Changes could reduce malpractice lawsuits party in Birmingham. Well-cut suit, if a little bold in the pattern. Hermes tie, that special shade of bright red. Silk shirt — the whole nine yards.

'You must be a lawyer," I sald. "Yup." He stood a little taller.

"What sort?" "I'm a member of the plaintiff's bar." Taller still. "Does your wife know what you do

Brutal tactics, but necessary. Plaintiff's bar lawyers - the ones who sue doctors for malpractice or small airplane manufacturers for product defects - are the most visible part of the legal system that Michiganians love to hate.

THE EXTENT of hatred was revealed recently when Bill Ballenger's newsletter, Inside Michigan Politics, ran results of a statewide poll of Michigan voters.

"With 5 percent of the world's population, America just doesn't need 70 percent of the world's lawyers." Total agreed: 73 percent. Total disagreed: 20 percent. "The high cost of lawsuits is making America less competitive in the world economy." Total agreed: 72 percent. Total disagreed: 20 percent.

"We should change the legal system so that the party that loses a lawsuit has to pay for the legal expenses of the winner of the lawsuit." Total agreed: 50 percent. Total disagreed: 39 percent.

It's this last proposal, made most notably by Vice President Dan Quayle, that makes lawyers like my Birmingham friend foam at the

IT'S EASY to see why.

Under present rules in Michigan, you can go to a lawyer and sue somebody for any purpose, no matter how frivolous, with no real cost to you. You hire the lawyer "on contingency," which in Michigan means you agree to pay him or her onethird of the net sum recovered if you

If you lose, you pay nothing. But the guy you sued — the doctor or the airplane manufacturer — has to hire a lawyer to defend himself, and that costs money. Last year nationwide, plaintiffs and defendants paid out $22 billion in attorneys' fees.

Making the loser pay erects a disincentive against silly or groundless or merely trouble-making lawsuits. Judging from the experience of other countries - most of the rest of the world - adopting the so-called "English rule" would sharply reduce the number of lawsuits.

Which makes members of the. plaintiff's bar very, very nervous. After all, they are making a very, very good living off the rest of us. Fewer lawsuits, reduced income, they argue with commendable selfinterest.

But what about the poor people whose access to justice would be

Philip

"chilled" by a loser-pay rule? Try the German system, where a special panel reviews lawsuits by poor people and waives the rule if the case has merit.

WHY IS ALL this relevant just now? A big package of legislation dealing with "tort reform" - incuding setting an inverse sliding scale for contingency fees - is under debate in the Legislature.

Some House members are thinking of amending the package by adding the English rule to tort reform. I think it's a great idea.

Will it pass? I doubt it. Here's

My Birmingham friend's lobbying group is called the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association. One state representative who is thinking of introducing the loser-pay rule informs me that the trial lawyers have so much money, "they even give contributions to people like me."

low, winner of the sixth annual Westland First Citizen community service award. Harlow, a local businesswoman and community activist, will be honored publicly at the Westland Chamber of Commerce luncheon Tuesday for her work in business and school activities as well as a host of other civic projects.

While Harlow won the 1991 First Citizen award, co-sponsored by the Westland Observer and Westland Chamber of Commerce, her record reflects positively on the other nominees and the hundreds of community volunteers who devote their time and energies, usually with no public

The other nominees for the award were Marlene Dean-Doran, a John Glenn High School occupational therapist; Anthony Rosati, a leader for 25 years in the Wayne-Westland Young Woman of the Year scholarship program, and Judith Alford, a former Westland district court volunteer probation worker.

Westland has always had an excellent record of having volunteers in a variety of areas, such as recreation, summer festival and schools.

While Harlow, Dean-Doren, Rosati and Alford were formally nominated for the First Citizen award, their work represents the good works done by hundreds of others to make the community a better place to live.

Defeat bills Hold doctors up to scrutiny

ECRECY IS THE handmaiden of suspicion and deceit and the last thing this state needs is another law which casts a doubtful eye on the established order.

But the passage of some misguided, albeit well-intentioned, legislation sponsored by State Sen. Joanne Emmons, R-Big Rapids, would do

At present, the medical establishment is waging one of the largest lobbying campaigns ever to defeat a series of bills which, if passed, would do everything from cap "pain and suffering" jury awards, to scale down attorney's fees in highaward cases to "streamline" discipline procedures for health care professionals.

While capping jury awards gets the most publicity, health care consumers should be just as concerned with the debate over keeping hidden the disciplinary hearings which revolve around health care officials.

IF PASSED into law, Emmons' bills would blur the publics' vision in observing how its health care community performs.

State Sen. John Kelly, D-Grosse Pointe, put it best when he charged that sessions conducted under the proposed law would be like "Star Chambers, meeting in secret, dominated by the professionals they're supposed to regulate."

Proponents of the legislation argue that secrecy is justified since lawyers already have like protection. But that thinking, to say the least, is faulty. In truth, instead of closing more doors on the public, our state legislators should be fighting to open more doors. Perhaps lawyers' privilege to this kind of hidden session should somehow be

After all, lawyers aren't exactly held in the highest of esteem in the nation. A little more openness on their part would instill more confidence in the general public.

THE LEGISLATION under consideration would close off settlement conferences in the Department of Licensing and Regulation and close records of investigations and review conferences. Only the fact of an allegation would be a public record.

While the final vote will be recorded, the public won't know the allegations, won't know what the investigators found, won't know what the hearing officer found. Another bill would allow boards to change the findings of fact and law of a hearing without new evidence.

Certainly, professional embarrassment is an onus under which no one cares to live. But the public's need to know all the facts behind a physician's performance certainly outweighs the medical community's desire to avoid a few red

Moranty no 'wizard'

To the editor:

From the Oct. 17 edition of the Observer, I quote from (David) Moranty's letter to the editor ". . . The superintendent and his financial wizards were trying to hide $6.7 million in the special revenue fund by denying its existence." How preposterous can this fool be! He never understood school finance when he was on the school board and obviously has learned nothing since.

The special revenue budget is a separate fund used to account for the proceeds of specific revenue sources that are restricted to expenditures for those specific purposes. Most of the funds are generated from federal and state grants. These funds can only be spent on items outlined in the grant award and are subject to constant review. The reason for placing the funds in the special Revenue Fund Budget is to provide greater accountability.

THE TYPES of programs funded through special revenues are: preschool programs such as Head Start and Kids Plus, Chapter I and Article III monles for disadvantaged students, special education programs funded through Chapter I and VI B grants, job training grants, professional development grants, etc.

The April 1991 special revenue funds document identified a grand total amount of $6,719,865, which is the dollar figure Moranty misrepresented. The board of education adopts this budget at a public meeting each year.

It is foolish to even think that this budget can be hidden when every cent must be accounted for when the source of that revenue conducts its audit (federal, state and other specific grantors). In addition, the special revenue funds are also audited by the outside auditor for the school dis-

Why wait for 'taxi'?

To the editor:

Have you ever watched someone dle of cancer? Do you know what extreme pain feels like? Being a Home Health Alde with Hospice experience, I see the agony my patients and their families go through. I lost my mother to that monster, cancer.

Hospice used morphine, which eliminates about 50 percent of the pain, for two out of four hours. (These estimates are based on personal experience). Doses of morphine have to be increased rapidly to keep up with the body's immune system. Soon the doses are so high that my patients sleep constantly. They wake up only for more medicine. They don't want to be cleaned up or fed, because it hurts too much to be moved or touched. They just want to know if Death has come yet. This goes on for weeks.

Then the end begins. In addition to the pain, there is labored breathing, swelling, choking and other "wonderful" symptoms. Loved ones can only sit around helplessly, waiting for the Lord to end this nightmare.

Dr. Kevorkian is my hero. Doctors have been helping patients die for. centuries. I want a law passed so that these excellent doctors can do it

Anyone that is agianst physician assisted suicide does not truly understand pain or compassion. I know that many people believe that suffering takes "points" away from sin, so that they can live in heaven, happily ever after. FINE, we won't take that right away from you. Amendments soothe fears of strong federal government

THE NINTH AND Tenth Amendments were adopted in part to satisfy the Anti-Federalist fears of a strong national government. More than any other constitution provision, they raise the question of the nature of the Federal Union, the centerplece of constitutional debate preceding the Civil War. As the young republic wrestled for decades with conflicting sectional interests, the debate produced very different views articulated by two senatorial glants of the era.

Resigning the vice presidency in 1832 to champion the cause of states' rights in the Senate John C. Calhoun of South Carolina argued has a mate retained with its original sovereignty the authority to overrule federal action it considered unconstitutional.

Bill of Rights

Calhoun believed in the fundamental guarantee of liberty more than the Union itself, even if it meant secession.

He was answered by the dynamic Daniel Webster of New Hampshire who said the Constitution embodied the sovereignty of the American people as a whole in a transcendent and perpetual

Let alcohol messages be target

IF YOU'RE A parent of a son or daughter under 21, there's a newly raised opportunity to help you help them deal with drinking.

U.S. Surgeon General Antonia Novello will soon meet with the major beer and wine companies to ask them to voluntarily stop advertising campaigns targeted at young people. "In order to win this war, we have to stop giving mixed messages," Novello says.

This is happening at the same time that Rep. Joseph Kennedy II, D. Mass, is trying to get his bill to reguire health hazard warnings at the end of alcoholic beverage commercials and on printed advertisements through Congress.

He, very obviously, knows how substance abuse problems can devastate families.

People active against drugs and alcohol abuse in our communities are saying it's about time. The results of the lure of alcohol advertising is what they've been fighting dally (not just nightly) at the grassroots

A similar message will be delivered Nov. 21 at Oakland Community College's Highland Lakes campus by Jean Kilbourne who will examine the images associated with alcohol in advertising - how advertising falsely links alcohol with happiness, wealth and success, when in truth that's what the abuse of alcohol can diminish and destroy.

Norton wrote off the ability of Congress to pass legislation such as Joseph Kennedy II is proposing because of the powerful beer and wine Statistics show that adult drinking is down, while underage drinking hasn't budged.

Just ask Groves High School Student Congress co-presidents Mary Ranck and Mark Ellison as reported in the newsletter put out by Birmingham-Bloomfield Families in Action.

Ranck says matter of factly that there's always some drinking at high school football games, the article reports. But she noticed it was getting worse. "At our first game this season, people were pushing each other, some were falling over - they were being obnoxious and their behavior was very obvious. And you could smell it all over them.

"IT WAS EMBARASSING to the school and to me as a student leader. And I knew others felt as I did."

So, armed with a petition signed by other students, they went to Groves administrators. As a result, there is now a Breathalizer available for use at all school functions.

Beer and wine industry lobbyists But maybe she hadn't counted on say their statistics show ads move other but don't induce more people to drink. And they point out that some companies are urging moderation in their slogans.

The statistics go out the window if you attend a teen party, any teen party. Young people don't distinguish between which beer or wine cooler they're guzzling. If Strons isthe beer at hand, you don't see them refusing it because they prefer Budweiser. A haunting trend sweeps in holiday

THINKING BACK on a really spooky Halloween . . .

You know those "haunted houses" that crop up about the middle of October? Some are sponsored by local Jaycees, chambers of commerce or other civic groups. They're the ones that charge admission to scare the bejabbers out of you,

Well this year (actually, for the last (wo or three years) some other groups have added a new twist to this approach to freaky fun, I don't know of any cases in this immediate area, but consider this scenario from a "haunted house" in Tampa, Fla.:

A sign at the door says children under 13 must be accompanied by an adult, but an unaccompanied 8-yearold is admitted without question.

In one room she watches as a serial killer picks over body parts in a refrigerator. He then begins to eat the insides of a body lying on a bed.

In another room the head of a man lying on a bed spins as a demon jumps out into the crowd. The demon leads the crowd into the next room and proceeds to flog a bleeding man nailed to a cross.

In another room a woman screams while a doctor and nurse perform an abortion on her. They then thrust a dead fetus in her face and scream. "You said you wanted to get rid of the little nuisance, didn't you?"

SOUNDS LIKE a bit of overkill (no pun intended) and it was. The 8year-old went home, shaking and terrified.

The reason her parents sent her off alone to something billed as a "Real Haunted House" was simple. The exhibition was sponsored and staged by a church — a sect known as Potter's House — and her parents figured she would see ghosts and goblins but not the kind of macabre scenes that she encountered.

And, oh yes, when visitors entered the last room of the "Real Haunted House," they were greeted by the pastor, who told them that everything they had just seen happens in real life and then encouraged them to accept Jesus Christ as a way of combatting "demonic forces." They were also given information about the church and encouraged to sign up for the mailing list.

Such church-sponsored gore parlors have been cropping up from Massachusetts to California, from pers.

Florida to Oregon. They are billed as "haunted houses," but once inside a visitor is treated to graphic displays of mutilation and religious propaganda about the "evils" of drugs, alcohol, rock music, pornography and abortion. Abortion is the most com-; mon theme.

IN ONE SUCH house in Dennis, Mass, an actress in a bloody nightgown writhes on a table screaming, "I want my baby!" An actor, dressed. as a doctor, hands her a handful of; simulated blood and tissue, shouting, "Here's your baby!" The woman ends up in hell. Out in Newberg, Ore., in a haunted house operated by the New Life Fellowship church, visitors first saw a video in which shadowy figures told how sex, drugs and pop music sent them to hell. Another scene showed a.

drug dealer being stabbed. And in one room a young womanwas depicted lying on a gurney covered with a bloody sheet after having had an abortion. According to a couple of visitors:

"There were two nurses with bloody tools telling her, This is what happens to bad girls when they go out and have sex.' They were telling her she was a murderer and a sinner. Then, there was a doctor who was showing a handful of stuff that was supposed to be her baby. There was: a guy in a hood telling us that's what: happens when girls have sex before marriage."

And so it went . . . in similar "haunted houses" across the country as religious extremists found a new way to force their particular views on unsuspecting visitors.

What does it all mean? I asked the Architecture Major that question, He's not much of a philosopher, but. this time he may have come up with: the obvious answer.

"They're trying to take us back to the Middle Ages," he said. "And it! looks like we're getting there."

Spartans 1 step away

Title match next after 1-0 victory

By Brad Emons staff writer.

Guess who's back in the state Class A boys soccer finals?

Livonia Stevenson will be making its seventh title game appearance thanks to a 1-0 win Wednesday over Portage Central in the semifinals at Okemos High.

The unbeaten Spartans (19-0-3), who have won the coveted title four times (1982, '85, '86, '88) and have been runner-up twice (1983, '84), will meet Saginaw Heritage (21-1) in Saturday's championship game, scheduled for 3 p.m. at Bloomfield Hills Andover. (Heritage advanced to the final with a 4-1 triumph Wednesday over Utica Eisenhower.)

Second-year coach Wally Barrett once led Southfield High to the final four, but never a championship game.

That all changed Wednesday when senior Adam Carriere scored the game-winner with 22:37 left in the second half.

Portage goalkeeper Mike Gruizenga blocked the initial shot from Stevenson defender Travis Roy, but could not hold on to the ball.

Carriere, who along with team-mate Bill Lanspeary, left the game late with an injury, was "Johnny-onthe Spot," booting home the rebound.

"IN ALL SPORTS you get breaks," Barrett said. "But our scouting reports said their goalie was a little shaky and that he might cough it up sometime.'

battled them evenly during the first 40 minutes of play.

Stevenson had a hard time penetrating the Portage defense in the opening half, led by 6-foot-6 Geoffrey Walker, who ironically leads his team in scoring with 11 goals and nine assists.

"During the first half we were pushing everything up the middle and their stopper (Walker) was eating us up," Barrett said. "In the second half we distributed the ball more from the wing. The team recognized that sitting out in front of their own goal was not the way to go, especially when the guy (Walker) could head the ball in from 20 yards out."

: Stevenson also prevented Portage from utilizing its most dangerous offensive tactic.

'We didn't get the shots we wanted and we didn't get a single restart (free kick), and that's is incredible in itself," said Portage Central coach Pat Norman, whose team bowed out with a 16-5-1 record. "I've never seen a game like that.

"We were looking for corner kicks and throw-ins all day, but Livonia played well. I thought we played as well as we could play. We didn't waste anything."

TESTED ONLY a couple of times in the opening half, Stevenson goalle—forced to substitute late (because of The Spartans dominated much of Matt Stabile recorded the shutout the injuries), their offensive attack the second half after the Mustangs with the help of Scott Wiggins, the did not wane.

defensive anchor.

Stevenson also carried the play in Portage's zone down the stretch.

"The team that plays with more emotion is usually in the other team's end," Barrett said. "I-expected a little more from Portage, but they didn't want to seem to pressure."

Even when the Spartans were

"We got a great effort from our subs, guys like Matt Jacobs and Nick Spand-coming in," said the Stevenson coach. "But everybody on this team contributed to the victory. There aren't a lot of what you call 'star players,'_on this team, just a lot of decent players in depth.'

Tickets for all three state championship games (A, B and C-D) are $4. The first matchup, Class C-D, is set for 11 a.m., followed by the B and A games at 1 and 3 p.m., respectively.

A few higher places and CC could have cracked the top five.

Ocelot men looking to defend their title

By C.J. Risak staff writer

When Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team takes to the field Saturday in Grayslake, Ill., to open the Inter-regional Tournament with a match against Bethany Lutheran College (Minn.), it will have one major advantage.

As coach Van Dimitriou pointed out, SC is the tournament's defending champion.

Maybe it won't mean much to the other teams, but it would be a mistake to underestimate it. As Dimitriou said when asked what he thought his team's chances were: "I'd say they're as good as anybodys and probably a step better."

Why? "For one, we've beaten Dupage the last two times we've played them - both times last year. Plus, our kids have shown they can play from behind and still

AS FOR College of Dupage (from Glen Ellyn, Ill.), at present it must rate as the favorite. Unbeaten in 20 games (18-0-2), Dupage will play Belleville (Ill.) CC at 1 p.m. (CST) Saturday; SC and Bethany meet at 11 a.m.

The winners will play for the Inter-regional title at 11 a.m. Sunday; the champion advances to the NJCAA Tournament in Trenton, N.J., Nov. 21-24.

"All I can say is, Dupage is the team to beat," said Dimitriou. "But our team is playing well right now. The tempo's good, our attitude's good, and we're looking forward to being there." The key for SC will be defense. It

If SC, which finished its regular season with a 12-2-2 record, can get past Bethany Lutheran, a showdown with Dupage is likely. Strong play from freshmen Jack Abate, Jim Meldrum, Nate Stovall, Sean Murphy and Brian Hauman could be decisive.

Not vacationing. Hardly. In 1988, the Lady Ocelots captured the NJCAA Tournament, collecting the school's second national title. They have finished in the top six nationally every year

SC will begin its quest anew today when it hosts the NJCAA Region 12 Tournament. Opening round play begins at 6 p.m., with the third-seeded Ocelots play unseeded Muskegon CC.

Other opening-round matches are Henry Ford CC vs. Sinclair (Ohio) CC; Lansing CC vs. Lake Michigan CC; Vincennes (Ind.) CC vs. Cuyahoga Metro (Cleveland); Kalamazoo Valley CC vs. Clark State (Ohlo); and Lakeland (Ohlo), CC vs. Southwestern CC.

The 14-team tournament's top two seeds, Kellogg CC (No. 1) and Mott CC, received first-round byes - something SC had always been recipient of the last three years.

BUT THE Ocelots tled Mott for the Eastern Conference title, and Mott won the tiebreaker, thus earning-the-top-seed. Should SC beat Muskegon, it will play the Kalamazoo Valley-Clark State winner at 11 a.m. Friday.

The tournament is double-elimination. The first two rounds, played Thursday and Friday, are best-of-three games; Saturday's semifinals and finals are best-of-five. The first round of Saturday's final will be at noon, with a second round at 2 p.m., if necessary.

There's no secret to SC's game plan -, work the ball inside to middle-hitters Kari Van Deusen and Renea Bonser, "If our two middle-hitters can hit in the .350 (kill percentage) range, we'll win," said SC coach Tom Teeters.

It isn't the only key, however. "We're going to have to be able to serve tough," he added meaning fewer than three service errors a game. "Also, if someone can step up and do something out of the ordinary, something more than expected, it will help." TEETERS MADE no secret his team was not exactly playing its best ball at present, but added

Guido Tognoni bubbled with enthusiasm, refusing to list anything he didn't like about the Pontiac Silverdome as a site for some of the 1994 World Cup soccer games.

People prodded, but the closest Guido - one of the site inspection delegates - would come to saying anything bad was admitting "technical reasons" could ruin the Silverdome's chances.

"I have difficulties finding something negative," said Guido. "We knew about the lack of size of the field and the artificial turf before, so I could not really call that a nega-

What Tognoni said that caught my attention, though, seemed to incorporate a world's-eye view of America. Said he: "Since Americans have gone to the moon, I'm sure they'll make grass grow indoors."

Tognoni was smiling when he said it, so maybe it was nothing more than a meaningless joke. Still, I have my doubts.

I GET the feeling most people share Tognoni's view of America a land where money is so abundant, anything is possible.

Think about this for a moment: It will cost an estimated $1.2 million to renovate the Silverdome — build a platform above the normal playing surface (the football field isn't wide enough), which means tearing out the first few rows of seats, and then plopping down some real grass on top of it.

You've got to keep the grass grow-ing, too. And the turf must withstand the pressure of full-grown men running to and fro, game after game. A study conducted by Cup organizers for the three possible indoor sites (Houston, which has already been eliminated, and New Orleans were the others) say it will work. Without

Although FIFA (Federation Internationale de Football Association, soccer's ruling force) hasn't officially said it wants to play any World

Cup games indoors, the general feeling is they do - if we can make the grass grow. "FIFA FROM early on was receptive to playing soccer indoors," said Tognoni. He added: "Our general impression (of the Silverdome) was very, very positive. I hope they can find a way to build a platform and. grow green, green grass.

"Such a wonderful stadium deserves to be a host. As I said, it is a five-star stadium."

These glowing reviews make me happy. Even if they do stick us with those crazy hooligans from England or Germany or the Netherlands, I'd love to see the World Cup come here.

THIS AREA has more to offer. It would be a stretch to call it a tradition; we're not that established yet. But compared to the rest of the United States, the metro-Detroit area particularly the cities covered by the Observer & Eccentric - ranks high in soccer understanding.

As proof, I need only point to the massive youth programs going year-round (indoor and outdoor); to the number of top collegiate players from the Detroit area (Indiana U. has three, for example); or to the 4,000 fans who showed up for an Oakland University-vs.-Michigan State game at Rochester HS two years ago.

The Detroit/Pontiac World Cup Committee, headed by Roger Faulkner of Bloomfield Hills and Jim Duggan of Farmington Hills, want something more out of this than a couple of weeks of foreigners romping through our streets. They want to establish soccer — professionally.

It could happen. Why not? We've already been to the moon.

Grenan not seeking repeat

staff writer

That's Jack Grenan's goal for the upcoming Schoolcraft College women's basketball season.

The Lady Ocelots were 10-14 overall in 1990-91, but were a miserable 2-12 in the Eastern Conference. It was their worst season in Grenan's five years as head coach.

"I learned a lot last year," he said. "No. 1, I found I could survive.'

He also found out his team needed help just about everywhere, especially after injuries hit. "Last year, I knew we were going to be weak," he admitted. "Plus, we had more injuries last year than we did in the previous four."

He forsees something different this season, which begins Friday when SC visits Kellogg CC, followed by a trip to Kalamazoo Valley CC Saturday.

"Talent-wise, we're deep," he said; "That's -a nice problem to

THE TALENT starts with sophomore Nicole Dapprich, a 6-foot-1 sophomore center from Dearborn Edsel Ford. Dapprich started blooming late last season, averaging 18 points and 12 rebounds over the last six games.

"She would hesitate around the basket," said Grenan. "By the time she hesitated, the opportunity was gone. Now the hesitation is gone."

Dapprich will have help inside. Sis Guth, a 6-1 freshman from Taylor Center, can score inside and out: Joanne Guastella, a 5-11 freshman from Madison Heights Lamphere, provides solid depth.

"The middle is going to be our strength again," predicted Grenan. Also returning is Donna Galli, a 5.8 sophomore who started last season at point guard but will play off-guard this year. Galli, from

Warren Woods Tower, averaged 12.5 points last season.

Other sophomore returnees are Katle Balogh, a 5-9 forward from Allen Park Cabrini who has a strong three-point shot, and Stacle Smith, a 5-5 lightning-quick guard from Waterford who Grenan called his "most improved player." They'll be pushed for playing time. "We've got 12 people who can play," sald Grenan.

THE POSITION most in contention is point guard. Presently, three freshmen — Jenny Audet, 5-4 from Livonia Stevenson; Michelle Ernst, 5-3 from Wayne Memorial; and Yvonne LaFleure, 5-3 from Roseville — are top contenders. Because of academic problems, LaFleure won't be eligible before Others to watch: Vickie Adkins, a 5.8 freshman guard from Warren Lincoln; Dana Hudson, a 5-9 freshman forward from Birmingham Marian; Lori Murphy, a 5-4 freshman guard from Waterford; and Kari Van Deusen, a 6-3 sophomore center from Waterford who is currently playing for SC's volleyball team.

Grenan believes this group is good enough to put SC back in the hunt for the Eastern Conference championship - a position it enjoyed throughout his first four years (his career record: 94-38). "If people can stay healthy and we can get a basket when we need it, we'll be back in the thick of things," he said. Other teams to watch for: Oakland CC, one of the two conference co-champs (Delta CC was the other), Highland Park CC and Mott CC. No single team has won the title over the last five years - at least two teams with 11-3 records have shared it each season. Grenan thinks 10-4 might be good enough this year. And he plans on SC being at least one of those champs.

Kummer makes pick: It's UNC-Charlotte

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Bob Kummer enjoyed last weekend's visit to the University of North Carolina-Charlotte and he liked the school even more after arriving home Sunday at Detroit's Metro Airport.

"I was wearing shorts and a Tshirt Saturday in North Carolina and when I came home it was 26 degrees," sald Kummer, a 6-foot-6 senior guard at Redford Catholic Central who Monday night made a verbal commitment to UNC-Charlotte. "I didn't want to leave."

Kummer, who averaged 21.5 points and 11 rebounds a game in making the All-Observer first team last year, will sign a binding letter of intent with the 49ers on Nov. 13, the first day of the early signing period. The southern climate wasn't all that impressed Kummer. The 49ers have a lot else going for them, including their coach, Jeff Mullins, a 1964 Olympic gold medalist and a member of the NBA world champion Golden State Warriors in

Kummer also likes the idea of UNC-Charlotte leaving the Sun Belt-Conference this year to play in the Metro Conference, which includes 1980 and '86 NCAA champion Louis-

UNC-Charlotte was 14-14 a year ago and returns 6-6 sophomore forward Jarvis Lang, who led the nation's freshmen last year in both scoring (19.6 points per game) and rebounding (10.6).

There is no football team at UNC-Charlotte, so basketball gets most of the attention.

"The whole town is basketball." Kummer said. "They treat you like a king and everyone can identify with

Kummer also made official visits to USC and the University of Toledo and turned down about 20 scholarship offers:

Kummer, who played point guard last year for CC, said Mullins told him he'd play either big guard or small forward and if needed, the point, at UNC-Charlotte. Kummer made a big impression when he made the Top-20 list of players at the Five-Star Basketball Camp this summer in Pennsylvania.

"Coach Mullins told me there's a chance I could play right away," said Kummer, who plans to major in business. "He reminded me a lot of my grandpa, his mannerisms, and I felt real comfortable with him. I was real comfortable with (Toledo coach) Larry Gipson, too. Everyone thinks

Catholic Central's duo of Bob Kummer (left) and Chad Varga will sign letters-of-intent Wednesday with UNC-Charlotte and Richmond, respectively.

Toledo is a dump of a school but it's nice down there.

"I LIKED USC but I wasn't sure about it and there's talk that coach (George) Raveling could be leaving after this year."

Kummer said he liked the recruiting process at first but it got monotonous. Several college coaches made visits to Kummer's home in Livonia and he remembers one coach who wasn't so excitable. "I was sitting in a 'lazy boy' and I almost put the leg rest up because I was ready to fall asleep listening,"

Kummer has come a long way since his freshman year when coach Bernie Holowicki kept him on the

"I wasn't sure if I could do it but coach was behind me 100 percent and we had a good senior class," recalled Kummer. "When you're a freshman on the varsity you always have to sweep the gym floor before practice. I remember one day there was another freshman who told me 'The only reason you made the team was to sweep the floor.'

"And I remember Leo Hutchinson (a senior at the time) told the kid, 'Why don't you leave him alone? The reason he's on the team is because he's good enough to play."

Spartans cage RU; Warriors triumph

Executing a back-door play, Mo Dra-blcki found Gina Renko wide open under the basket for the only points in overtime, lifting Livonia Stevenson to a 53-51 girls basketball victory Tuesday over visiting Redford Union in non-league action.

The Panthers (13-4) scored the last seven points of regulation to send the game into OT. But in the extra session, RU missed two layups, an open jumper and two front ends of one-and-one opportunity at the free throw line.

"The kids played hard like they always do, but it's disappointing because I know we're better than 13-4," RU coach Gary Fulks said. "We shot poorly, making only 22-of-69 shots. We missed a lot of layups.'

The Spartans (14-4) led by as many as nine points, taking a 39-34 lead into the final quarter. The Panthers' comeback was capped by a Jamle Zalek layup that knotted the score at 51-51. RU had several chances to win the game in overtime, including a three-point attempt that fell short as the buzzer sounded to end the

"We did a good job pressuring in the fourth quarter and that led to some transition baskets," Fulks said.

"They made us rush some shots," Stevenson coach Chuck Heberstreit said. "It was a good spirited game. They're a wellcoached team. They're a good team this year, and they'll also be a good team next Dengel scored a career-high 24 points Friday as the Hanks defeated Taylor Light and Life 68-29. List added 20 points.

AVONDALE 54, CLARENCE-VILLE 36: Auburn Hills Avondale broke open a close game with a 21-4 third quarter en route to its road victory Tuesday. Despite a game-high 14 points from Leandra Hoffman, Livonia Clarenceville fell to 4-14 overall and 2-11 in the Metro Conference. Angle Wakefield added 10 points for the Trolans. Despite making only 10 of 30 free throws, the Yellow Jackets improved to 12-6 overall and 9in the conference. Avondale received 11 points each from Chris Sheldon and Megan Chad Varga will attend another school next fall, only this time the Redford Catholic Central senior plans on staying at least four years.

Varga, who at last count has attended 12 schools and lived in three states, thinks he's found a more permanent home: the University of Richmond. The 8foot-6 forward verbally committed to Richmond and will sign a basketball letter of intent with the Spiders Nov. 13, the first day of the early signing period.

Richmond has qualified for the NCAA Tournament five of the last eight years under coach Dick Tarrant, and naturally, Varga won't be afraid of his new surroundings.

Ace hurler to EMU

By Brad Emone staff writer

Eastern Michigan University's baseball program has a verbal commitment from one of the top pitchers in the state. -

Scott Kapla, a 6-foot-2, 178pound senior from Redford Catholic Central, will sign a national letter-of-intent with the Eagles on Wednesday.

"They offered the best total program and made it easy for me," said Kapla, a first-team All-Qb-'server' player who went; 9-3 last season with a 1.61 earned run aver-

EMU has produced several outstanding big leaguers over the years including pitcher Bob Welch (Oakland A's), and catcher Chris Hoiles (Baltimore Orioles).

Kapla, who struck out 80 batters in 78 % innings as a junior, was also contacted by such schools as Central Michigan, Kentucky, Miami of Florida, Michigan and the University of Detroit (where his father Chet was a scholarship player).

baseball

"Mr. (Roger) Coryell (EMU's coach) was real open and put everything on the table for me," Kapla said. "He was real nice and it will be good to work with him."

KAPLA, who has already passed his NCAA entrance requirements (ACT Test), plans to major in communications or public relations.

. The lanky right-hander follows a long line of CC players to EMU, including second baseman Kevin Rogers, last year's team'MVP; lefthanded hurler Leo Hutchinson; and right-hander Doug Martin, now a member of the Detroit Tigers farm system.

"That (the CC players) was not a big factor, but they're all good players and that means they (EMU) must have a pretty good program," Kapla said. "And being only 20 minutes from home is an added bonus. I can come home most any time and stay close to my parents."

Last season, Kapla helped the Shamrocks to a 21-14 overall record and berth in the regional final where CC was eliminated by state champion Plymouth Salem. Kapla, a Plymouth resident, was also a threat at the plate, hitting 340 with 23 RBI and 33 runs scored. He also can play first and

As a pitcher, Kapla threw nine complete games and walked only 27 in close to 80 innings of work. His fastball has been clocked consistently in the 84 to 85 MPH they wear," Mach said. "Today we had a regular practice with the idea we were playing Fordson. When we got off the field I got a call saying we might be playing Pontiac Central. It should be interesting, anyway. We'll have to pull out our manto-man pass patterns again (to face a quicker team)."

O'Meara reigns

The Observer football prediction contest ended with Dan O'Meara winning for the fourth time in five years.

O'Meara was 9-4 last week and fellow sports editor Brad Emons 8-5. The final tally for O'Meara was 100-31, for Emons 94-37.

Junior tailback Louis Adams leads Pontiac Central with 1,033 yards on 97 carries but the Chiefs biggest threat is senior Khan Powell, who won the Oakland County 100 meter championship with a time of 10.5 seconds. Khan, a former flanker who lines up in the Central backfield, has more than 1,600 all-purpose yards and scored 15 touchdowns.

Pontiac Central's offensive line averages about 237 pounds, which is comparable to CC's, but the Chiefs will boast the biggest player, Xavier

Bond (6-31/2, 275) on the field. Central doesn't pass often, but last Saturday quarterback Fauquwa completed eight-of-nine passes in a 40-20 win over Pontiac Northern. The Chiefs faced some hard luck last year, failing to make the AA playoffs despite an 8-1 record, so coach Irv

Speaks said he's not ashamed of

"backing in" this time.

Pontiac Central outscored opponents, 223-91, and its only two losses have come by a combined five points. Pontiac Central plays in the Saginaw Valley League, which qualified four teams for post-season play.

"WE PRETTY much hung up our stuff and thought we were out of it, but now we've got to get our uniforms out again," Speaks said Tuesday night. "You've got to figure God is on our side, to have luck and get in this way. If He's going to let us in the back door, you have to figure we've got Him riding on our shoulder, so we may as well take the whole

Of course, that's easier said than done with an opponent like CC.

CC's 16-game winning streak ended Sunday with a 16-15 loss to Detroit St. Martin DePorres in the Catholic League championship, but fullback/defensive lineman Dan Gusoff said the Shamrocks are more determined than ever.

"I think we're set for the playoffs," said Gusoff, who is second on the team with 338 yards on 97 carries and seven touchdowns. "We had practice today and everything is back to normal. I think we'll win the state championship again, there's no doubt in my mind. The coaches know it, the players know it, we've just got to do it."

CC's outscored opponents, 222-54, and its offense is led by tailback Jeff Tibaldi, who leads with eight TDs and gained 895 yards (5.2 average).

Linebackers Joe Herman and Gary Stegall have 83 and 78 tackles, respectively, and Joe Lopez leads the team with six sacks.

Dance to benefit education

Festival de Las Americas Dinner Dance, 6 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 16 at Laurel Manor, 39000 Schoolcraft, Livenia. Tickets $50 per person, call 964-3960, 477-6024, or 455-1572. Formal attire optional.

By M.B. Dillon staff writer.

Dancers will move to the live sounds of Latin rhythm Saturday, Nov. 16, as the Latinos de Livonia stages its annual Festival de Las Americas dinner dance to benefit ed-

Entertaining an expected crowd of 450 at Laurel Manor at the Latinos' biggest event of the year will be Chicago's Diego del Real Latin Orches-tra, El Grupo Azteca, and Mariachi Nuevo Zapopan.

"If you don't leave calling your travel agency, something's wrong with you," said event chairman Francisco Villarruel, a litigation attorney from Livonia.

Formed in 1977, the Latinos de Livonia is dedicated to the preservation of cultural traditions of Latin America and the Spanish language. The main goal of the organization is to advocate and enhance educational opportunities for Hispanics.

Members, who number in the hundreds, are of Mexican, Venezuelan, Columbian, Spanish, Argentinian, Salvadoran, Italian, Arable, Guatemalan, Cuban and Anglo-Saxon descent. They hail from Farmington Hills, West Bloomfield, Livonia, Plymouth, Westland, Canton, Northville, Novi, Detroit, Howell and

"Diego de Real is an eight-piece group that plays traditional tropical Latin music from the Caribbean,"

Group brings Latinos together

In 1977 a group of Hispanics from Livonia, Farmington Hills, Canton and Plymouth formed the Latinos de Livonia. "We started out as a social club to bring the Latinos of Livonia together, just to have a good time," said Yvonne Samelina Cady, a charter member.

"Our founder was a Ford pilot, a Honduran from Livonia named Tony Yerex. We had tremendous membership right off the bat around 75 people who were very closely knit and fun-loving," said Cady, who is Nicaraguan. "We had Mexicans, Columbians, Spaniards, Panamanians, Bolivians, Argentinians and Nicaraguans. It was really enjoyables Among Spanish people, everyone is family. There is some kind of a connection — a real relationship of the Spanish heritage, I guess."

Francisco Villarruel, chairman of the Nov. 16 Festival de Las Americas, said membership is open "to anyone who is interested, period. We're not limited to Spanishspeaking membership. We're open to anyone interested in sharing in Hispanic culture and advocating education," he said.

For more information, write P.O. Box 530292, Livonia, Mich., 48153, or call 964-3960. Dues are $25 per family.

After the dinner dance, the Latinos' next event is a holiday dinner set for Jan. 18 at Detroit's Las. Brisas Restaurant on Vernor home of the Mariachi Nuevo Zaposaid Villarruel. "Their leaders are Colombian, so they will play cumbias, salsas, and other Latin dance music. Grupo Azteca is an eight-piece Detoit-based band with keyboard, guitar, bass, drums and two singers.

"They have an extensive repertoire of salsas, cumbias, bossa novas, boleros and cha chas. They play merengue from the Dominican Republic, the mambo (real fast dance music made famous in Mexico), sambas from Brazil, and guajira (traditional Cuban music that's soft, but faster than the bolero and slower than the cha cha).

"They play a variety of modern songs from Mexico and Latin America," said Villarruel. "They play tropical dancing music - they're probably the best Detroit-based band around. They're sought out and go all over the place."

Also on the marquis will Mexican Town's popular Mariachi Nuevo Zapopan the only area mariachi band that plays at a fixed location - Detroit's Las Brisas Restuarant.

Outfitted in traditional mariachi dress, the eight-piece band features two horns, violin, guitars, bass guitar, and the biruela (a small guitar). Originated in Jalisco, Mexico, the mariachi sound has become a favorite throughout the world...

Festival-goers will be grateful for the chance to work off some calories after feasting on a dinner Pancho Villa would kill for.

Guests will whet their appetites with assorted cheeses, crackers, fresh vegetables and dip before dining on fresh green salad with dressing, mostaccioli, filet mignon, chick-

PROCEEDS WILL GO to the Latinos de Livonia Endowment Grant at Madonna University. The recipient of this year's annual scholarship will be named at the dinner dance by Sr. Mary Martinez, director of Madonna's multi-cultural outreach office.

Madonna isn't the only school benefiting from the Latinos.

THE LATINOS HAVE ADOPTED Webster Elementary, one block from the Ambassador Bridge in southwest and Orchestra.

Panchito Lozano, a Latinos past president and a former principal and student at Webster, said the Latinos' generosity has worked magic in the Mexican community.

Their good works pay far-reaching dividends, said the Livonia resident. "You just can't ignore Detroit, because they affect us."

Improvements the Latinos have helped bring about are playing a big part in enhancing student achievement and self esteem, added Lozano, who serves on Gov. John Engler's Hispanic commission and plays seniors and students. For more infortrumpet in his own band, Panchito mation, call 357-1111.

Willis Alan Ramsey back on the folk, country circuit lis Alan Ramsey performs 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 9, at the Birmingham Unitarian Church, 651 N. Woodward. For ticket information, call 540-

By Stewart Francke special writer

Listening to Willis Alan Ramsey's eponymously named only album, one would think of him as the natural link between country outlaw music and the confessional singer/ full of the ingredients — arpeggiated acoustic guitar strums, wry personal observations transcending the limiwould elevate the like of James Tay-

La Casa Folk Music Series - Wil- lor and Jimmy Buffet to stardom in the '70s.

> In fact, in a recent interview, Lyle Lovett (the contemporary link between country and pop) talked of the Texas songwriting heroes that inspired him. He neglected the many obvious choices - Bob Wills, Willie Nelson or Waylon Jennings - instead citing the little known Ramsey, an Austin singer/songriter who made just the one record in 1972. then vanished into obscurity.

"I LEARNED every song off his record," Lovett said. "I went to see songwriter. His whimsical songs are him every time he played, got tennis shoes like him. I wanted to be Willis Alan Ramsey."

Ramsey is now, after a 19 year tations of a single singer - that limbo, back on the folk/country circuit. He'll make his first ever Detroit p.m. Saturday, Nov. 9, at the Birmingham Unitarian Church. His narrative song style, while influenced greatly by Robert Johnson and Woody Guthrie, is primarily the result of the rich melange that exists in the Texas-Louisiana area.

"This type of music is played quite a bit in the South," Ramsey explains, "People integrate music into-the way they live; it's a part of what they do. Telling stories is just a part of the culture.

Yet Ramsey's story is the story of the thousands of artists that call an odd moment here and there a career. Ramsey made just the one LP, in 1972, on the Shelter label. He was only 21, yet in songs such as "Satin Sheets," he already sang with the regret of unfounded dreams: "Wish I area appearance at La Casa, 8:30 was a millionaire/Play rock music/ grow long hair/I tell ya boys, I'd drive a new Rolls Royce." Instead he lived it his way, sitting out important industry showcases, preferring to stay home in Texas, and waited until he was good and ready to record again.

The recording never happened, Ramsey slipped into obscure cult figure status, fueled by the beauty of his only record and some sporadic. unannounced club idates that confirmed what was once known then forgotten: Ramsey was the best of the Austin progressive country songwriters.

"I REGRET signing with that company at that time," Ramsey says. "Phoebe Snow also had a traumatic time at Shelter; JJ Cale (the writer of "Cocaine" and "Tulsa and his fiance, have recently in-Time," both hits for Eric Clapton) and Freddie King were the only ones unaffected." He survived on royalties; America and Captain and Tenille had taken his "Muskrat Candlelight" and turned it into the syrupy "Muskrat Love," a huge hit for both acts. "I was really too young for the whole thing," Ramsey says, "I was like a lot of Southern boys. About half of 'em take to Southern California and half of 'em don't. I didn't, and wound up sitting out the remaining eight years of my Shelter contract."

A new record, again at Lovett's urging, is being recorded around an increasingly busy schedule of live dates. "I think people are finally ready for my kind of narrative acoustic music," Ramsey says. He stalled a 16 track studio in their home; with that Ramsey hopes to explore his primary love - and what he feels to be the secret to a great song - arrangement.

"THERE ARE not a lot of great arrangements any longer," Ramsey laments. "It's more just grooves and sounds but a great arrangement and a great singer is what it's all about. The '50s-and '60s rock and roll was full of unique concepts of rhythm and a cross with melodies; all of Elvis' stuff, for example, was brilliantly arranged."

It's a strange position for an artist to be in. Ramsey's second LP may be just on the heels of the 20th anniversary of his first.

'The Matchmaker' a mixed success

Performances of the Smith Theatre production-of "The Matchmaker" continue through Nov. 16 on the Oakland Community College Orchard Ridge Campus, 27055 Orchard Lake Road in Farmington Hills. For ticket information call 471-7700 or 471-

In the age old battle of the sexes, men only think they're smarter than women, says the Thornton Wilder. comedy "The Matchmaker." As currently presented by the Smith Theatre Guild at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus, the play achieves only mixed success.

The farcial mix-ups of the second act work reasonable well, but many of Wilder's rich witticisms are given throw-away deliveries. While a few of the principals are fine, numerous inexperienced actors in supporting roles are as flat as the show's barely existent sets.

Michals Dolly!," and the plots are nearly identical. The title character is Dolly Levi (Michelle Howle), an eminently practical widow who sets her cap for wealthy businessman Horace Vandergelder (Earl C. Brown) and succeeds in making him think the way, she also patches up severalother affairs of the heart...

Howle is brimming over with Dolly's irrepressible spunk, but her vocal intonations never seem to vary one bit.

crusty, tight-fisted, chauvinistic "THE MATCHMAKER" is better Vandergelder who mistreats his competition, but instead becomes roknown in its musical form, "Hello, clerks, bullies his niece, and generally growls at everyone. Addressing the audience with the self-assurance of the very rich, Vandergelder proclaims that "99 percent of the world are fools, and the rest of us are in great danger of contagion."

One nice touch from director Bill match is entirely his idea. Along the Sharpe is having each one of the several characters who directly address. the audience step down from the stage and walk among the viewers, and the spotlight that keeps up well with the actors.

June Wygant, is poised, winsome, Brown is fairly convincing as the and bubbly as Mrs. Molly, the young widow who starts out as Dolly's mantically involved with Vandergelder's chief clerk, Cornelius (Derek Cronk).

CRONK IS satisfactorily amusing as the befuddled young clerk, who along with his assistant Barnaby (Nathan P. Smith), sets out for a day of adventure, and gets far more than he bargained for, Smith has a real comic flair, with his delivery, facial expressions, and body English all used to maximum effect.

Despite Gall Bohacek's very attractive costumes, this production of "The Matchmaker" is badly lacking in polish and style. Awkwardly casting two women into minor male roles only adds further to the show's difficulties.

Strong leads in 'Annie Get Your Gun'

Performances of the First Theater Guild of Birmingham production of "Annie Get Your Gun" continue through Nov. 9 at Knox Auditorium of the First Presbyterian Church, 1669 W. Maple (between Southfield and Cranbrook) in Birmingham. Tickets $5 available at the door, for advance tickets call 573-6762. The senior citizen matinee, 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 2 is at no charge to seniors.

About this time of year in 1926, Frank Butler died in Royal Oak, just 18 days after his wife Phoebe Anne Mosses (Annie Oakley) passed away, and 51 years after they met at a sharpshooting match in Cincinnati.

That competition in 1875 is the one dramatized by Herbert and Dorothy Fields in the musical "Annie Get Your Gun," mounted this week by the First Theater Guild in one of the best productions this group has done in recent years.

IT WAS love at first sight in Cincinnati as the show tells but the real Annie Oakley wore satins and laces and she could read.

Pamela Vachon, who is Annie Oakley in this production at Birmingham's First Presbyterian Church, is more like the real Oakley, softer and not a harsh Ethel Merman type. A high school junior, Vachon is closer to Oakley's age of 15 when the story took place.

Vachon has a future on the stage. The teenager's voice resonates in the Mary Jane Doerr middle range with ease and beauty. She swings with the Irving Berlin hits "I got the Sun in the Morning" and spits out the words in "Anything You Can Do" without resorting to belting to be understood.

Her Frank Butler, Mark C. Walters, has a gorgeous voice. His remarkable sweet sound deepens throughout the show, into a beautiful final reprise of "The Girl that I Mar., ready retired to North Dakota's

LIKE ALL our musicals, "Annie Get Your Gun" is stylized with tradition in how it is performed, each character already created through 50 years of continuous productions nationwide.

Director John F. Spears used that traditional staging but gave his production freshness that was naturally enhanced with Alice Fay Hall's choreography (especially in the "banner" dance), the simple costumes and scenery, and Barbara Anne Gowans perky keyboard accompaniment.

Not only were Spears' leads strong but his secondary parts were well chosen. Roger Nowland played the wheeling dealing Charlie Davenport, Ranae Burak a hussy Dolly Tate, and Ronald Vachon was the show business magnate Buffalo Bill.

Chief Sitting Bull has probably al-Standing Rock Indian Reservation by the time Annie and Frank joined Buffalo Bill. But, the character adds humor and fun to the musical, especially the way John Roberts played it for the First Theater Guild, with a sense of understanding and kindliness that probably the leader of the Little Bighorn Massacre of General George Custer did not possess.

While the story of the musical is based more on the misinformation published by Buffalo Bill's publicists about Annie Oakley and Frank Butler, the love story between the two sharpshooters is true and something this First Theater Guild Production captured with their two leads.

Together Pamela Vachon and Mark C. Walters recreated the true love story of the most fascinating couple in American folklore, a love story that did not end where the musical does.

Computer bugs, glitches always threaten their jobs

To make these advances salable, computer managers began to turn to simple applications - an easier-touse word processing program, selfhelp screens within programs and a more versatile spreadsheet - as well as customizing software to specific companies. Such changes have led to results.

The Ford Motor Co, was able to cut its 500-member accounts payable department by 75 percent after recent innovations by in-house computer managers. Rather than having rows of clerks manually match suppliers' involces with Ford's purchase orders and receipt records, then authorize payment, a constantly updated computer data base matches purchase orders and receipts automatically - with no invoices required and the computer authorizes payment.

Yet while Ford was successful with these applications, some new computer managers have found they had to clean up messes left behind by predecessors or consultants. A CIO hired last year by a large area bank found the institution using 11 different brands of large computers.

"They had listened to a consultant in the mid-1980s who told them to decentralize everything, and they didn't realize they would have to put everything back together eventual-

The CIO has since cut back to seven computer makers, and plans to end up with four. To keep away from these problems, Silvani said the accounting firm has been careful to keep its computer management teams small. Computer bugs, problems keep experts hopping

By R.J. King special writer

The rise of chief information officers, the executives assigned to manage corporate computer systems, into the upper ranks of their companies over the last decade has not come without a price.

When something goes wrong, the CIO often gets the blame and the dismissal notice. The same pressure to succeed is also felt by consulting and accounting firms that offer their clients computer services, as both stand to lose sizable contracts if the hardware or software programs they recommend crash, or fail.

According to a study by Deloitte & Touche, one of the Big Six accounting firms with offices in Detroit, more than a third of 600 chief information officers said in a recent survey that their predecessors had been dismissed or demoted. To offset the potential for turnover, CIOs, computer managers and accounting firms, originally trained to provide technical assistance, must think more like everyday people to sur-

When Bruce Burns launched his computer support company last year in Plymouth, one of his first tasks was to pick up the pieces for a client taken to the kilobyte cleaners.

"Basically, they were given an anvil to kill an ant," Burns said of Gatco Inc., a builder of machine tool components in Plymouth, which in early 1990 spent thousands of dollars on a new computer system only to have it sit and collect dust.

"We were sold a bill of goods," Please turn to previous page agreed Mark Sulkowski, president of Gatco, a third-generation supplier to. Sulkowski. "We received the comthe auto industry. While neither Burns not Sulkowski would reveal the name of the computer company that installed the original system, due to a pending lawsuit, both shared their experiences in dealing with the often-complex task of ordering and implementing a new computer system.

WHILE SULKOWSKI declined to discuss specifics, Burns said he was called in last January and found Gatco had received software that was of little use in running such tasks as accounting, invoices and design order processing.

They wanted to automate, but there was no software that would times for four hours a day. It took a process their results," said Burns, long time, but I finally got over my president of the Lighthouse Group.

"So I custom wrote the software, walked them through it and brought them to where they should have been in the first place."

Burns said it took eight months, from the creation of the software to entering the necessary data, to get Gatco, which employs 25 people, on line and crunching numbers.

Survey places foreign firms under scrutiny

When it comes to establishing U.S. headquarters in Michigan, foreign-owned companies select the Grand Rapids area almost as frequently as they choose Wayne

And tax abatements are way down on a list of factors that determines where companies decide to locate.

Those were two surprising revelations from companies responding to a survey taken in the spring and summer by the accounting/consulting firm of KPMG Peat Marwick.

Patrick N. Karpen, a tax partner, coordinated the

"Since we're in a global economy, there's going to be more cross-border investors," he said. "We're going to have to take into account the goals and feelings of companies thinking about investing in the community."

KPMG Peat Marwick identified 365 foreign-owned companies with U.S. headquarters or divisional offices with autonomous decision-making power in Michigan. The report was based on in-depth interviews with 144 of those companies.

The highlights of the report:

• Fifty-eight companies were Japanese, 27 German and 14 British.

• Sixty-one set up headquarters in Oakland County, 18 in Wayne County and 16 in Kent County.

• Forty-five companies were established in Michigan prior to 1981. Half, 72, arrived during the six-year period 1984-89. Just four companies were established last year and two during the first part of this year.

• Thirty-four of 119 respondents said they received

 Proximity to key industries, markets or suppliers was the primary reason by a wide margin for choosing a specific location. Opportunities for acquisitions and joint ventures was second. Lower taxes were mentioned less often than quality and cost of labor.

"BRINGING A headquarters into a locality doesn't always result in a lot of economic development, but typically . . . it will result in a significant economic impact," Karpen said. "It means jobs and a bigger tax

Some 15,500 Michigan residents have jobs provided by foreign-owned companies, the survey indicated.

While the KPMG Peat Marwick survey didn't address the pay issue, a report published by the U.S. Department of Commerce in August indicated that compensation per worker for foreign-owned firms in 1988 was $30,500 compared to $25,500 for all U.S. workers, Karpen point-

Why a business as big as ours runs a Yellow Page ad as small as this:

When people start reading Yellow Page ads after dinner, we'll start placing ads in it. Until then, the Yellow Pages are no more than a directory of names, phone numbers and addresses that the average person uses infrequently, at best. Which is the reason why our ad is in the newspaper. We suggest you do the same.

Your Yellow Page salesperson can't tell you how many people are likely to see your ad every week in his directory. But we can tell you that over a quarter million readers can see it twice each week in The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. And that kind of coverage can lead to some kind of sales. Especially when you use our newspapers to tell people about your competitive pricing, announce a new location or service, or illustrate your clear advantage over the competition. All the things you aren't allowed to do in the Yellow Pages.

Of course, there's one more thing you can't do in the Yellow Pages. You can't be flexible, you're stuck for a year. So what do you do when you need to respond to the market? Or promote a special sale? Or build your image? You advertise in the newspaper.

So call one of our representatives for more information. Our number is in the Yellow Pages where it's always been. But remember, what just sold you on us, was the newspaper.

promoting the entire community." Several foreign-owned firms, not necessarily headquarters, have located in technology and industrial parks in Plymouth developed by the R.A. DeMattia Co.

They include Freudenberg-NOK, Aisin U.S.A, and

"We market in Japan and Korea," said Gary Roberts, a DeMattia vice president. "By the time this story comes out, Bob DeMattia will be on a trade mission (with the Greater Detroit Chamber) to bring firms to southeastern Michigan.

"We have some of our literature printed in Japanese," Roberts added. "In general, I think they buy on quality."

NEARNESS TO a major airport and the availability of property tax breaks - along with quality buildings and housing - bring foreign companies to Plymouth, Roberts said.

Jody Sorenon, executive director of the Farmington/ Farmington Hills Chamber of Commerce, estimated that about 20 foreign firms, not necessarily headquarters, belong to that chamber.

"Farmington Hills has been in the fairly enviable position of being a growing community. Most firms here came of their own volition. They didn't need to be recruited."

Seasons greetings

Holiday charity cards multiply good wishes

As with other holiday greeting cards, charity greeting cards depict snow scenes and sleds, Christmas trees and children, as they send on the best wishes of the season.

But the wishes they send are multiplied because of the worthwhile causes that benefit when they are bought.

fits both categories very nicely. I suspect our writer was born with one foot on the accelerator pedal! Both her thinking and her modus operandi are speedy.

Some irritability weaves through her handwriting. And may surface most often with people who are not as fast-geared as she appears to be. Our writer-is goal-oriented-and-

The old chestnut, "time is money," is meaningful for her. Money and the security it represents hold a high place in her value system.

This handwriting suggests good intuitive powers. She probably does well solving problems, puzzles and unraveling mysteries. She enjoys anything that is a challenge to her

High intelligence punctuates this handwriting. A very dependent nature has prepared her to stand alone, if necessary.

Mood swings are not unknown to this writer. She tends to run hot and cold with people. This often proves confusing to others as they do not know where they stand with her.

At times she is her own severest critic. When she gets down on herself. a hasty temper comes to the fore. A little humor, which surfaces in the handwriting occasionally, should be helpful in putting things in perspec-

The cultural formations I see in this handwriting tell us of her love of the arts. The beauty of nature's handiwork at this season should also furnish enjoyment for her.

For the clergy, funeral preparation is no easy task

By Julie Brown. staff writer.

HEN OFFICIATING at funerals, pastors can't just wing it. Considerable, time, thought and effort are required to prepare for a funeral or memorial service, even after many years in the ministry, pastors agree:

"They are times of sadness and stress and so forth," said the Rev. Dr. David Church, senior pastor of Newburg United Methodist Church of Livonia. At the same time, funerals provide an opportunity for ministry to be meaningful and of "significant help to people at a time of great crisis in their life."

When Church gets a call from someone who's had a loved one die, he responds immediately. "I just drop everything and respond to that call, because that's when the person is most vulnerable, most in need of support."

PASTORS MAKE an effort to include information in a funeral that relates to the person's life. They rely on family members to provide details and anecdotes.

The Rev. Philip Rodgers Magee doesn't have a problem with including such details as the fact that the deceased was an avid bowler or a terrific cook.

"That was very much a part of their life and should be mentioned," said Magee, senior minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth. "That reminds them of the real unique person they knew and loved.

"A funeral should not be just reading out of a book, or perfunctory," Magee added. "A funeral is many things and one of them is a public expression of honor and gratitude to the deceased."

He's noticed that funeral practices have changed in recent years. Services, much like newspaper obituaries, have become more personalized and less solemn. Funerals often take on a different form than do memorial services, where the oasket isn't present, he said.

Magee and Church always talk with family members prior to a funeral. Sometimes; family members request that certain Scripture readings or poetry be included.

Talking with the family gives members an opportunity to express their feelings, Church said. Family members talk about what they remember and will miss.

"IN THE PROCESS of that, I then get a feel to the person's background and life," Church said. That's a learning experience for him, even if he already knew the person for many years.

"I get asked to do a lot of funerals for people I do not know," said the Rev. William Myers Jr., pastor of Faith Community Moravian Church in Canton. "Oftentimes, I'm learning about somebody I never met."

There's a tradition within the Moravian church of including a "memoir" in a funeral, focusing on elements in a person's life "that made some sort of statement about their faith."

When Myers interviews family members, preferably in person, he asks about memories of the loved one, as well as personality qualities, hobbies and work history.

His basic orientation "is one of gratitude for a life that was given by God. It is a reason for us to be thankful as we lay this person to rest."

Gathering information on a person's life is more challenging when that person hasn't been recently active in church, Myers said, He did a service for a woman who hadn't been to church but had continued with an active faith life. Myers borrowed her Bible.

"It was just a treasure-trove of information." She had marked her favorite passages and made margin notes, and Myers incorporated that information.

IN COUNSELING families and in conducting funerals, pastors emphasize Christianity's teachings about life and death.

"Death is a part of life," said the Rev. George Charnley, pastor of St. John Neumann Catholic Church in Canton. "We are born to die, which then leads us to the Lord."

Charnley understands the human emotions that accompany the loss of a loved one. At the same time, he reminds mourners about the celebration of the journey to a new life with the Lord.

"We always meet with the family, sit down and try to assist them in the grieving process."

In funerals, Charnley uses the Scriptures and talks about how the deceased lived life and followed the Lord. A new rite in the Catholic church ealls for an immediate family member to speak during the "Many are apprehensive about that." Some do choose to speak, Charnley said, and in some cases. more than one family member speaks.

Pastors occasionally get a request that's a bit out of the ordinary when it comes to officiating at funerals. Magee has had family members ask to have a popular Song, such as Frank Sinatra's "My Way," played:

"As long as it's tasteful, I think personally that's fine."

PASTORS AGREE the sadness associated with a funeral varies. "I've never done a funeral for a child that wasn't depressing," Myers said. On the other hand, it's often "entirely appropriate to have a good laugh" at the funeral of an older person who led a good, long

In some cases, there can be relief when a rather difficult family member dies. Everyone in the world isn't necessarily nice, Myers said.

"I need to know that." In some cases, he's able to focus on the better side of a difficult person's personality.

"If that's there. If it's not there, then I will try to subtly say that well could be the legacy of not living a life of faith," Myers said.

Pastors are, of course, human and that means funerals can be difficult to handle.

"It can be a sad time, but not a depressing time;" Church said. He makes it clear that this is a celebration, "that we're coming together to celebrate the faith that has sustained us throughout our lifetime."

"We call it a bittersweet time for ministers," Magee said. Pastors must remain objective in a sorrowful situation, including in cases where a dear friend has died.

Officiating at a funeral during the holidays, such as on the morning of Dec. 24, is difficult, Magee said. About half of the funerals he does are for non-members of the church, and he doesn't have a problem with that.

"It's not our place to judge at all. It's our place to try to be of help to the family." He tries to reassure and comfort mourners.

"Funerals are the only places where some people get some glimpses of the Christian faith, Magee said.

Gray squirrels go through black phase

If you live in the Observer & Eccentric readership area, you probably have not seen a gray squirrel. Yet, if you go to Belle Isle, Grosse Pointe or East Detroit, they are quite common. ---

Gray squirrels come in two different colors. Black is the most conspicyous of the colors, while the gray is a soft pencil gray. Most people call a black colored animal a black squirrel. for obvious reasons, but technically it is the black phase of the gray squirrel. Both colors can be seen in the same litter of young.

Some people have reported seeing gray squirrels in the Farmington Hills area, but throughout southeastern Michigan their populations are scattered. Years ago, before lumbering of hardwoods and clearing of forests for farmland, gray squirrels were the most abundant species of squirrel in southeastern Michigan. Now the fox squirrel is more abundant because it does not require large expanses of mature forests.

Gray squirrel populations were so. abundant in the 1800s that people reported killing 160 of them in just one day, A party of 12 hunters reported killing 20,000 in just seven days. In 1807, people felt they were such a pest that the state of Ohio declared war on the gray squirrel by declaring that a landowner could pay his taxes (up to a limit of 100) in squirrel were also reported during periods of mass migrations, Similar to lemming migrations, gray squirrels were reported by the hundreds moving across the countryside. In 1907, one observer reported 1,400 squirrels within a two-mile section of road. Masses would cross large rivers resulting in many drowning.

It is thought that abundant mast, or nut crops, may have caused increased populations, and then subsequent poor nut crops caused animals to search for new sources of food.

Black-colored gray squirrels may not appear entirely black. Often they will have a reddish appearance to the dark pelage. In southern Michigan recently there were some unusual patterns of black-colored gray souirrels. Some had black bodies and buff tails, others had patches of buff on black, one even had a buff and black-ringed tall like that of a raccoon. No explanation has been given for these unusual patterns.

Many gray squirrel populations in our area are the result of human introductions. As these populations expand, we may see more gray squirrels in southeastern Michigan

Artwork stirs humor, whimsy

☐ Exhibitions: 2D

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer.

F YOU CAN walk through Chameleon Gallery without laughing, snickering or giggling, it's time to see if you're still breathing. Artworks by "Two Funny" fellows, George Landino and John Long, will fire up the most dismal of spirits through Nov. 15 at Chameleon Gallery, 370 S. Main, Plymouth. "They both are just fun guys. They have a following of their own," said Denni Englehart, co-owner of Chameleon with husband Jim. "They've created new work especially for this exhibition." Although the two men work in different mediums, humor is key. Landino of Orchard Lake creates three-dimensional wood sculpture, wallhangings and boxes. Seventy-five of his humorous statements add to the show a whimsy with a wry, dry sense of humor.

Long of "Long Overdue" fame, a syndicated cartoonist published in 80 daily newspapers until he resigned in April of this year, displays a wide range of works.

CLOSE TO 200 of Long's works decorate the gallery, including drawings, prints, watermelon tables and sculpture. Also indoor lawn ornaments of dandylooking dogs and hyperactive cats.

"I used to take things seriously. But with all the suffering and downright nonsense going on in the world today, it's very difficult to take things seriously," Long said.

Tongue in cheek, he said, many of his drawings and prints are priced between $40-$50 because "people don't want to invest in humor. They don't want to take it seriously."

Engler pledges dialogue on arts

By Mary Klemic staff writer

Observers could have thought the reception awaiting Gov. John Engler at the seventh annual Governors' Arts Awards on Monday wouldn't be much different from the bitterly cold weather outside.

Engler's budget cuts, which included slashing financing for the arts, had drawn strong criticism.

The governor, who attended the event in ClubLand in Detroit with his wife, Michelle, may have felt a bit of a chill in the air in the course of the evening, but overall the atmosphere was warm and cordial.

Arts commission: an integral part of Livonia's fabric

AS MUCH as any group, the arts commission has helped boost the quality of life in Livonia.

Its mission is simple: to promote the cultural arts. But its reach is expansive: residents of all ages.

"We do whatever we can do to promote the arts — painting, music, sculpture, dance — as best we can for as many people as we can," says Dan Kachnowski, a Livonia arts commissioner for 10 years and a man who calls the arts "some of the finer things in life."

Working with an $18,000 annual budget, the 15 commissioners, appointed by the mayor, provide such diverse programming as chamber concerts, art lectures and puppet shows. Programs include Music under the Stars at the civic center, the Arts citizen homes.

and Crafts Festival at Greenmead, art shows in the city hall lobby and chamber concerts in the civic center library atrium. 'We try to be sensitive to what people want out of life," Kachnowski said. "There are lots of things more Important than just getting up and going to work each day."

THE COMMISSION has lent a financial hand to selected cultural

It matched the $3,000 the Livonia Symphony raised this summer and also gave the orchestra another $5,000 to co-sponsor a concert.

They work with Livonia Public Schools theater students to stage extra school and public performances of plays.

Two summers ago, commissioners provided seed money to start the Livonia Civic Center Library's junfor clown troupe, which not only teaches the art of clowning but also stages public skits.

Trinity House in Livonia and the Livonia-Redford Theatre Guild have landed commission grants, too.

The commission has built an eclectic collection of 20th century art to adorn the walls in city buildings. For the past two years, city librarian Michael Deller has been working with commissioners as well as the Friends of the Library to find suitable display panels so the library's glass-enclosed gallery can be used for art exhibits.

"We want something not only practical but versatile so we can display three-dimensional objects like jewelry and sculpture as well as paintings and two-dimensional pieces," Deller sald.

"Details haven't been worked out storm," Ward sald. yet," said Betty Ward, arts commission chairwoman. "But we're looking at an art or music event, possibly a brunch with chamber music."

Even unsuccessful ventures have worked to advantage.

"Five years ago, after we cancelled our winter Performing Arts Showcase because of poor attendance, we got quite a few calls asking what happened," Ward said.

"Heartened, we took a different avenue, our Library Show Series, to present a similar type of programming."

The library shows run monthly from March to November in the civic center library. They range from art lectures to magic shows. "It scemed every time we put on a show in the winter, there was a snow-

"We believe that if government cutbacks are necessary because of severe budget restraints, they should be equitable, fair and gradual," Robinson said in his speech.

"While all of us certainly understand the impact of a recessionary climate on government spending, we also believe that the impact on the arts has not been fully evaluated.

"I am confident that Governor Engler's presence here indicates he is prepared to listen to our discussions and be responsive within more limited financial constraints. I know I speak for the entire arts community when I indicate we are all prepared to work with you to resolve some very difficult issues."

"There's been a lot of talk about the arts cuts but I try to focus more on the talented people getting the awards. That's what we would like to emphasize."

"We're here for a number of reasons, particularly to show the governor how important the arts are to the state," said Nancy Nelson of Birmingham, a board member and one of the founders of the Cultural Council of Birmingham-Bloomfield. "These artists are very deserving."

As he accepted the award, gultarist and composer A. Spencer Barefield, founder of the Creative Arts Collective, said it was "quite an irony" to be at the event.

Usually at this time the group would be preparing for a performance, supported by the performing arts department of the Detroit Institute of Arts, he said.

"But the DIA doesn't have a performing arts department any more." Kenneth Fisher of the University Musical Society recognized Barbara Goldman of Birmingham "for her great work" as executive director of Michigan's restructured arts council. Goldman announced her resignation last month, saying the atmosphere in the administration wasn't as supportive to the arts as it was before.

Strictly personal:

• Elmore "Dutch" Leonard just finished his 1992 release, "Rum Punch." Says he's thinking of setting his next-after-that on foreign shores - in sunny Italy.

• S.K. Wolf ("MacKinnon's Machine"), on a recent trip to Moscow to research her next thriller, crossed paths with none other than Mikhail-Gorbachev and entourage just outside the Kremlin walls one afternoon. To record the unexpected event, Wolf madly snapped photos of. the smiling Soviet leader as he greeted passers by on the sidewalks of the Russian capital.

Fans of Robert Wilson "Crooked Tree," "Icelire") will be happy to hear they can look for the Redford author's third novel, "The Second Fire," in 1992. •

• Horror writer Kathe Koja's second tale of terror, "Bad Brains," is due out in April '92 from Dell Abyss. Right now, the young Oak Park author is deep into her third novel, tentatively titled "Skin."

• Ethan Canin, med-studentturned-acclaimed-author ("Emperor of the Air," "Blue River") is yet another writer with Michigan connections. He was born in Ann Arbor.

• Loren Estleman ("Motowń") keeps a pistol atop his writing desk in Whitmore Lake. Actually, it's just a cigarette lighter, pretending to be a pistol.

Long received a bachelor of arts degree from Eastern Michigan University. He later continued studying art at the Center for Creative Studies.

LONG'S CONCEPT for the cartoon drawing, "Mickey Mouse Without His Makeup," is a cleverly rendered piece of humor. Mickey's ears lay on the dressing table in front of him,

"Concepts are always something I've enjoyed," Long said. "If you have a good concept and if you have a good image and can carry it through, there's nothing more rewarding than having a lot of people laughing."

Long carries out his concepts right down to the framing of a piece. He frames all his work. He has

Mickey surrounded by 40 mousetraps. "They're real mousetraps, and you'll be happy to know they've never been used," Long winks and "I think about them. I don't just do the frame and mat. I tie them in with the clothes on the dog or with the squares of color behind the chameleons. Even my sculptures tie in with the drawings."

WOOD SCULPTURE in the shape of watermelon slices are new for Long, who usually works in colored pencil and cray pas. But it comes as no surprise the bright green and red pieces are hand-colored with the

In 1987, Long resigned from the Lincoln Park Fire Department after serving 151/2 years as a firefighter.

'After I resigned from the department, I still didn't. have time for my work. So in April, I resigned from King Features Syndicate. The watermelons I've been trying to do for five years."

Philosophy lurks behind each of Long's works. "Color is so important. People are used to seeing color television, and images flashing and changing every few seconds.'

"I'll always draw. I love drawing. Cut me in half and I'm an artist through and through.

LANDINO LOOKS at life as sort of tongue in cheek. "I can never get away from poking fun at things," Landino said. "I'll pick a theme and do it."

Some of the things he pokes fun at are airplanes, ladders, cowboys and Indians, and pistols. Landino is anti-guit as you can quickly tell by an innocent, blindfolded bird about to be blown away at point-blank range by two men and a gun.

Landino has a master's degree in drawing and painting and a master's in crafts from Wayne State University. He has taught art for 33 years at Groves High School in Birmingham. He has spent the last 20 years

EVERYDAY AT 4 p.m. Landino and wife, Pinky, sit down for a cup of tea and brainstorm. "I'm a good listener and a good laugher." Pinky said.

"We are a team," Landino said. "She's my chief sander, a giggler and a great painter."

The Landinos and Longs have become friends over the years of sitting through the art fairs together.

"I think you look at John's work and laugh hardy," Pinky said. "You look at George's work and giggle or chuckle. It's sort of an inner laugh."

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Friday and till 9 p.m. Thursday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

George Landino creates three-dimensional sculptures, wallhangings and boxes in wood. Favorite themes turn into series of works-onairplanes, land-based vehicles, ladders, cowboys and Indians, and city skylines

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

The Livonia Symphony Orchestra, under conductor Francesco DiBlasi, will present the second concert of its 1991-92 season at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 9, in the Churchill High School Auditorium, 8900 Newburgh, Livonia.

Highly acclaimed organist William Whitehead is guest artist.

Overture to "The Creole Faust" by Alberto Ginastera is the first selection of the evening, followed by "Concerto for Organ, Strings and Tympani" by Francis Poulenc, and "Symphony No. 3 in C Minor, Op. 78 (for organ and orchestra)" by Camille Saint-Saens.

A late addition to the program is Dukas' Fanfare for Brass from "La Peri" Ballet.

"I had someone say to me the other night they wouldn't be coming to our November concert because they didn't want to hear church music. This isn't church organ; it's orchestral organ. There's a lot more variance in color from the organ," Di-

Whitehead is director of music and organist at Kirk in the Hills Presbyterian Church in Bloomfield Hills. "Whitehead is phenomenal. He's one of this country's leading concert artists and he doesn't even use a score."

WHITEHEAD BEGAN studying music at age 7 in Texas. He attended Baylor University, the University of Oklahoma, Curtis Institute of Music and Union Theological Seminary. He earned a master of arts degree from Columbia University. He has

He has toured Europe, made many recordings and given annual concerts with jazz pianist/composer Dave Brubeck.

"The Poulenc is modern, very listenable," Di-Blasi said. "So many unexpected surprises -Poulenc is known for that."

In the 1920s and 1930s, Poulenc's modernism was not taken seriously. His music was considered dissonant. Written in 1938, "Concerto for Organ, Tympani and Strings" is the most popular of his Poulenc was associated with the new school of Parisian composers known as Les Six. The French Six believed that the traditional music of the old masters was dead. They worked at developing a new music, a combination of serious and popular music, jazz and commercial.

Saint-Saens was one of the most important organists and pianists of his day. Symphony No. 3 in C Minor was commissioned by the London Philharmonic Orchestra, which performed it for the first time on May 19, 1886 under the baton of Saint-Saens.

General admission is $10; senior citizens and students, $6. Tickets are available at Madonna University, Levan and Schoolcraft; Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile; and Hammell Music, 15630 Middlebelt. Or call the Livonia Symphony Orchestra hot line: 458-6575.

Home, sweet home: a wealth of tax deductions

A great source of tax deductions is as close as home. In fact, your home can provide you with a lifetime of tax advantages, according to the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

The first tax sayings available to you as a homeowner is the deduction you can take for points, you pay to the mortgage lender.

Points are considered prepaid interest and are fully deductible the year you buy, providing that the house is your principal residence and the points are in line with what is normally paid on similar loans in your area.

Points on refinancings must be prorated over the life of the new mortgage, the Internal Revenue Service has ruled.

Alcoholism creeps into condo board operation

Sale

I am an officer of our homeowner association. The president, while generally effective when he is sober, often comes to the meetings intoxicated. Alcohol permeates his breath, and he is sometimes belligerent with other members of the board. We like. the fact that he has donated his time and has good business sense when he is sober, but how do we confront him and his alcoholism? As you know, alcoholism is a sickness and must be treated as such. Because the president is perhaps undermining the best interests of the association and not discharging his responsibilities, you may wish to approach him to request that he resign the presidency and perhaps his seat on the board because of his obvious problem. You might wish him to consider, pending his resignation, attending Alcoholics Anonymous or attending counseling in an effort to bring the matter under control. Perhaps then that will be an incentive to him to get things under control and he can still be a worthwhile contributor as far as the board is concerned. It is obviously a delicate task, but you as directors have a responsibility to do something about it.

The delinquency problem at our condominium is getting out of band. But the board has taken a hands-off attitude in terms of seeking to start foreclosure or other court proceedings because it doesn't want to spend the money and is hoping that the coowners will come around. Meanwhile the rest of us are paying our assessments in a timely mannerwhile others are getting away with not paying. What can be done to impress upon the board that it has a responsibility here?

There are booklets that are available that discuss the responsibilities of the board of directors in regard to condominium operation. One of the basic tenets in the operation of a condominium is that the rules, regulations and restrictions include the obligations of co-owners to pay assessments must be enforced strictly and uniformly by the board of direc-

Failing to pursue co-owners because of the purported excuses including the fact that it may cost money is no excuse, particularly in light of the fact that the condominium act and most condominium bylaws provide that the reasonable attorney fees incurred by the association in pursuing the collection of assessments is recoupable by the assocition from the co-owner in question. There is no excuse for the board not pursuing co-owners uniformly and consistently.

It is personally liable for its malfeasance in not insuring that the rules and regulations are enforced. You might be advised to remind them of their responsibilities and perhaps provide them with a copy of this column.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney:

THERE'S NO BETTER TIME TO BUY

If you've been thinking about moving from your current residence to the house of your dreams or from an apartment to a starter home, this is the time to do it.

- The selection is excellent.
- · Low interest rates are available.
- There are many financing options available.

Go ahead, make the move. Now is the right time to buy a home.

Purchasing a home has always been a wise decision, but current market conditions are making it even more attractive to buy now.

EXCELLENT FINANCING IS AVAILABLE NOW

Interest rates are lower, and mortgage lenders are offering a wide variety of financing options. Low interest rates mean you can get more for your money.

- · 30-year fixed mortgages are still available as well as many other financing alternatives.
- First time buyers are encouraged to purchase now through financing packages offering small down payments.

YOUR HOME IS YOUR BEST INVESTMENT

Purchasing a home is the best way to build a solid financial foundation. A home not only provides you with warmth and comfort, it also serves as a secure investment.

- Today, homes in the area continue to be a wise investment.
- · Equity in your home can be used as collateral, thus providing you with additional financial security.
- Home ownership provides you with a sizable tax advantage because interest paid on mortgages is fully deductible. Property taxes can also be deducted.

Bank branch image conveys permanence

special writer

Poet Ogden Nash once wrote, Bankers are just like anybody else, except richer.'

"Richer" is often measured in terms of dollars, but it can also have another connotation in banking image. In search of an image, Michigan National Bank embarked on a campaign of putting on a happy face with building a new headquarters in Farmington Hills.

It was a vote of confidence by Michigan National in itself, its customers and also a commitment to the saleability of the banking industry. Such an effort nurtured an image that "fosters a look of stability, solidity and conservatism, said Carl Luckenbach, principal architect of Luckenbach/Ziegelman and Partners, Birmingham, who designed the headquarters building.

During the 1960s and '70s, Michigan National underwent considerable growth, accompanied by similar-sized growing pains. It expanded its branch operations throughout the state within strict budget constraints that sometimes necessitated the reuse of vacant gas stations to expedite its growth. When new branches were built, they too were done within a limited budget that posed a design challenge to the architects who planned them.

The solution was a straightforward, simple, utilitarian structure that took on the formalist style of the 1960s within a format of aggregate, polished marble or granite panels often arranged on buildings that lent a prefabricated, transitory appearance. Nonetheless, this look satisfied the functional needs of branch operations as well as the developmental stages of the bank.

WHEN ROBERT MYLOD took over as chief executive officer in 1985, he became directly involved in the look of the bank's headquarters, saving. We're not in the business of building buildings, and we wanted to hire someone professional to ensure that everything was done correctly." Thus ensuring the visual stability of the home office, it now has had an ancillary effect on the look of the new branch buildings. A branch standards committee was formed involving employees familiar with operational procedures, facilities managers and an in-house design consultant. The end result was the design of two branches - one in Ann Arbor, the other at East Livernois in Clawson.

The design of these buildings was essentially a spinoff of the headquarters in Farmington Hills. Round windows inside the gable ends of the and director of facilities mana roofs and brickwork reminiscent of colonial Williamsburg further perpetuated the image of early American architecture that was originally sought. Taking design elements from both of these branches, a standard across southeastern Michigan.

prototype was arrived that would serve as a model for new branch buildings.

John Kidle, first vice president ment, said the silhouette of the branches serves as a "visual clue" for customers. Based on the prototype, they are supplanting their formalized, fabricated predecessors

Central Energy Plant at Chrysler Technology Center.

Hats off to Giffels

The Michigan Society of Professional Engineers honored Giffels Associates, Southfield, with a firstplace award for work on the Central inergy Plant at the Chrysler Technology Center in Auburn Hills.

The honor was in the private prace category of the society's pracice division awards program.

Giffels designed the plant and provided Chrysler with related engineering services and counsel in the areas of energy conservation, occupational health and safety and the environment.

The Central Energy Plant is the source of utility services of the 3.3 million-square-foot tech center, which was dedicated by Chrysler last month. The energy plant contains 35,000 square feet on the ground floor with a 6,000-square-foot mezzanine. Included in the facility are, hot water generators, chillers, air compressors, electrical switchgear and associated pumps, piping and cable. Outside the facility are cooling towers, chilled water storage tanks, a fire protection pump house and storage tanks for a stand-by fuel oil supply.

Giffels also designed the buildings housing the Scientific Test Facility, considered the heart of the tech center, and a 1.8-mile evaluation road for Chrysler's product development program.

The Central Energy Plant also earned a construction and design award from the Engineering Society of Detroit and the Chrysler Pentastar award for quality.

Giffels is the state's largest architectural/engineering firm with a professional staff of 491, including 50 registered architects and 108 registered engineers.

Technological advances give edge to today's builders

"They don't build 'em like they used to" is a common refrain heard about nearly every consumer product. But when it comes to houses, the prospective buyer needs to go on more than a time-worn phrase.

The advantages of buying a house in an established nelghborhood are obvious: housing stock that has stood the test of time, building materials that may no longer be available at a reasonable cost, location, landscaping already in place, existing infrastructure, reasonably steady taxes, existing neighborhood schools, churches, synagogues and shopping districts.

Still, for some buyers there's nothing that compares to being the original owner of a newly built house. And despite the old axiom, many new houses are better-built with the result that they are safer, more energy efficlent and require less maintenance than their earlier counterparts.

"Newer homes are much more fire-safe than home built prior to 1970," said James Bonadeo, president of the Builders Assocation of Southeastern Michigan.

Many new houses have smoke detectors wired in on every level. Usually, they are interconnected so that if one detector alarm sounds, they all sound. Many smoke detectors are required to have battery back-up.

Electical systems in new houses are sized for heavier electrical demands, and wiring systems are less likely to cause fires. More electrical outlets translates to fewer extension cords that can overload circuits, trip occupants and start fires.

CIRCUIT BREAKERS have replaced fuse boxes that can be overloaded by using the wrong-size fuse. Ground fault interrupters for bathrooms, kitchens and outside receptacles reduce the chance of fire and electrocution.

"Glass tub enclosures and patto doors in new home are no tempered so that they will crumble when breakriously injure people. Bonades said.

In the past 26 years builders and buyers have learned much about the health risks of certain building prod ucts. Asbestos has been eliminated from shingles, pipe respiratory diseases when fibers become airborne. Other culprits are lead and formaldehyde.

"Lead can cause a wide range of physical and mental ailments. It is not used as an ingredient in paint anymore, and it is no longer used as solder for plumbing," Bonadeo said. "Also, formaldehyde emisions from particle board and hardwood plywood have been greatly reduced in new homes." Where radon is a problem, control systems can be installed before the house is built. This usually includes a layer of gravel and polyethelene film beneath basement floors and concrete slabs. Older houses frequently have no gravel in which to collect the gas, no polyethylene film to retard movement of the gas through the slab and vent pipes. Reducing radon levels from an existing house is generally far more expensive than building radon prevention techniques into a new house.

DETERMINING GEOLOGIC features of the area on which a house will be built comes into play for today's builder. For example, in areas of expansive soil, tests are conducted and foundations engineered to resist or accommodate soil movement. Basement construction has been improved to resist cracking, and drains are installed to help prevent leaks.

New building products make roofs and floors stronger and quieter than those in houses where board sheathing was used. New types of trusses on roofs and floors not only increase strength but permit greater design flexibility by eliminating most load-bearing walls inside the

Median price of new houses falls as sales slacken

Sales of new homes plunged percent in September, the sharpest drop in 21/2 years, the government said in a report casting newdoubt on the ability of the housing industry to lead the economy out of

All regions of the country posted double digit declines. The report followed another last week showing sales of existing homes had fallen in September for the third straight

The departments of Commerce and Housing and Urban Development said sales of single-family homes nationally totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 446,000, down sharply from 512,000 in Aug-

But the revised 1.8 percent advance-in-August-was-much-weaker than the 6.7 percent gain originally estimated.

The September decline was just the second since sales dropped to bottom of the housing recession. Still, the sales pace for the first nine months of 1991 was 10.8 percent below that of the same period of last

The National Association of Realtors reported last week that sales of existing homes fell 4.3 percent in 414,000 last January, considered the Seplember to a seasonally adjusted! annual rate of 3.11 million.

THE DROP IN existing home sales occurred despite mortgage rates that fell to the lowest level in 14 years. The Realtors attributed the decline, the third straight, to sluggish job growth and consumer uncertainly over the economy.

According to surveys by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., 30year, fixed-rate morfgages fell from 9.15 percent at the beginning of September to 8.92 percent at the end of the month.

But the business-sponsored Conference Board in New York reported on Tuesday that consumer confidence-tumbled in October to recessionary levels. The survey showed little change in plans to buy homes.

The government report said a seasonally adjusted 295,000 new homes were on the market at the end of September, representing a supply of

8.3 months at the current sales rate. That was up from a 7.1-month supply at the end of August and the highest inventory ratio since a 9.3

reading in January. Rising inventories often mean a decline in housing starts until the backlog can be sold off. Indeed, housing starts tumbled 2.2 percent in September, the first drop in six

BEFORE BUYING, examine the: furniture thoroughly. Check for rough spots. Also check that the back panels are inset and screwed into the frame; some high-quality pieces may be tacked with T staples (standard staples indicate lower quality.) In any high-quality freestanding furniture, backs and undersides are sanded, color-stained, and sometimes even given the same finish as the rest of the piece.

Next, operate all moving parts to ensure they work properly. In drawers, look for center or side guides, as well as automatic stops that will prevent the drawer's spilling. The best drawers have wood side and back panels approximately one-half-inch thick joined by sturdy, tight-fitting joints. Drawer hardware should be bolted from the inside.

Check interiors for areas that may snag clothing, and look for signs of shortcuts in craftsmanship. It's also important that glass, decorative trim, and lights are inspected to ensure they are carefully installed.

Generally, there are five methods of putting furniture together:

securely and smoothly bonded to the struction where a piece will bear the most weight or receive the most stress (legs, shelf braces, drawers)... Joints are the places where one component in a piece of furniture fits into another. Where joints are impractical, screws are the best fasteners; they should be secure and screwed in all the way.

> WOODEN CASE GOODS come in all kinds of finishes, each with its own advantages. A painted or lacquered finish, for example, is easy to clean but is hard to touch up if scratched or dented. Oil is a good natural protector of wood when applied every six months or so.

make sure that the laminate is method Look for the strongest con- cnt, and attractive surfaces. An excellent way to learn about finishes is to look at both low- and high-priced furniture. Compare the hardness of finishes as well as their smoothness, color and patina.

Poorly finished pieces may have uneven streaks or some finishing material visible in the crevices. Beware of finishes that seem to coat rather than enhance the wood. A fine finish will be clear and deep.

Check the color and grain of the wood. The piece should be uniform, with top, sides, front, and legs all finished in the same tones. The grain should seem to flow from drawer to drawer or from one door to the next
