TREASURER'S Office will be mailing out tax certifications to all city residents. City Treasurer Michael Gorman said the certifications will contain taxes for 1991, both summer and winter, as well as the state equalized value of properties.

That will assist homeowners as they file their income taxes. It also will help them if they plan to refinance their mortgages or apply for home equity loans.

Many residents who pay through mortgage companies never see their detailed tax bills and have to wait until they receive their annual escrow statement before they know how much they paid in taxes, city officials said in a press release. Mayor Robert Thomas said the mailing of tax certifications should alleviate hundreds of telephone calls that the assessor's office and treasurer's office receive from residents needing information for their taxes.

The certifications should be mailed by mid-January, about the same time residents receive their W-2 forms and other tax information, city officials said.

THOMAS WILL present his third annual state-of-the-city address Tuesday afternoon during a Chamber of Commerce luncheon at Leright's restaurant on Wayne Road, south of Cherry Hill. The noon luncheon is open to the public. Pre-registration is required by telephoning the chamber at 326-7222.

THE PUBLIC is invited to attend the dedication of the Ralph Savini Central Fire Station at noon Saturday. Retired Fire Chief Savini requested Saturday because it's his birthday and family members will be in town for the occasion.

The tribute was approved July 15 by the Westland City Council. Savini served as fire chief for Nankin Township and Westland. The dedication will be followed by a short reception with refreshments. The central fire station is on Ford Road and Carlson.

MAYOR ROBERT THOMAS has decided "to take a step forward" in working with Westland's Historical Commission.

To make sure "Westland's past is not forgotten," he has assigned his executive assistant, Edward Gunther, to attend the commission meetings as the liaison between the commission and his administration.

To make historical buildings secure, Thomas has decided to have new locks made for them. Organizations using the buildings for meetings will be given new keys.

THE CITY'S surplus food program at the Dorsey Community Center will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Jan. 23 for residents of Norway and Oak Village. Others may pick up food from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Jan. 24. Senior citizens who live in Westgate Towers, Greenwood Villa and Taylor Towers may contact their building managers to learn when food can be picked up.

A FINANCIAL SEMINAR will be presented Wednesday from 1 to 3 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. at the Westland Community Center, 1110 N. Westland Ave. Topics to be discussed will be probate, wills, powers of attorney, and estate planning.

DNR ups Cooper site's toxic score

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

Livonia Public Schools now own two contaminated sites that are close to being in the top 100 toxic sites in Michigan.

Both sites — the Cooper school site and 10 acres of vacant land across from Nankin Mills Elementary, next to a child care center — are on Ann Arbor Trail in Westland.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources recently rescored both properties, raising their toxic ranking to one point of each other. The DNR ranks the state's toxic sites from 0-48, with 48 being the most contaminated.

The Cooper site went from its initial ranking of 2 to its present score of 35. High concentrations of lead were found in soil samples taken at Cooper by the DNR.

The vacant site went from its initial ranking of 5 to its present score of 34.

"There were three chemicals found on the (vacant) site that caused concern, fluoranthene, pyrene and chrysene," said Soheli Ghauami, the Lansing-based DNR environmental quality analyst who rescored the site.

Christine Flaga, a DNR toxicologist, said chrysene is believed to be a carcinogen in certain doses, while fluoranthene and pyrene have caused liver and kidney toxicity in experiments with animals.

Schools official rejects job offer

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

The Gibraltar school board's refusal to budge on contract talks with Wayne-Westland Deputy Superintendent Thomas Svitkovich has prompted him to reject the board's job offer as its new superintendent.

Gibraltar officials had offered Svitkovich an $80,000 salary, a potential $12,225 cut from his Wayne-Westland salary of $92,225.

"They really haven't moved from their original position, and that's not acceptable to me," he said last Monday.

Svitkovich refused the job despite rumors that he's on an anti-administration "hit list" in the Wayne-Westland district. Superintendent Dennis O'Neill has already announced plans to retire Aug. 31, amid pressure from a majority of board members.

The Gibraltar board offered Svitkovich the job last month after his first choice, Hudson-area school Superintendent John Meredith, decided he didn't want it. Svitkovich mulled over the proposal while vacationing

Teachers union denies seeking 6% pay hike

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

The Wayne-Westland teachers union has denied reports that it plans to seek a 6 percent pay increase as it prepares for contract talks with school administration officials.

"We haven't asked for 6 percent. We haven't made any formal proposal," said Robert Kowalczyk, executive director of the 1,100-member Wayne-Westland Education Association.

A three-year contract that gave teachers an 11.9-percent raise over the first two years didn't include salary increases for the third year that begins in mid-August. Bargaining teams expect to begin seriously negotiating salaries this spring.

Echoing the denial of a request for a 6 percent pay increase was the school district's administration.

"There hasn't been any discussion on pay raises," said Bill Taylor, the administration's chief negotiator and the district's associate superintendent for employee services.

The contract talks have the poten-

Police investigate store owner's death

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Wayne police are continuing their investigation of a shooting of a Westland man, found shot to death last week at his Wayne business.

Police refused to release information on the death.

Charles W. Piper, 53, was found dead at Chuck's Cycle Service on Michigan Avenue shortly before 5:30 p.m. on Jan. 5, Wayne police Lt. Kerry Webb said. A cash box had been stolen from the shop, though police didn't immediately know how much money had been taken.

Wayne police had not made any arrests as of Friday afternoon, though they had suspects.

"We're looking at someone right now. There's a number of people we're looking at, and there's someone who sticks out a little more than the others," Webb said.

WEBB INDICATED that there may have been more than one motive to Piper's killing. "We're not ruling out anything," Webb said.

Piper's store was closed for business when he was found in the locked building, Webb said. Webb refused to confirm how many times Piper had been shot, what kind of gun was used or where the body was found in the shop.

"I can't pinpoint the exact location," Webb said. "We're in a stage right now where it's critical that we don't release any more than we have to."

It wasn't immediately known when police expected to make an arrest in the killing, Webb said.

Piper's funeral services were Friday at Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Westland. His body was cremated.

Survivors include his father, George Piper; his son, Russell Piper; two daughters, Lisa Haag and Lori Bjorkman; a sister, Maryanne; a brother, William; and four grandchildren.

Exiting council chief: Beware of finances

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

In leaving the Westland City Council presidency, Thomas Brown has issued a stern warning for spending controls amid concerns of a dwindling city budget surplus and lingering worries about the recession-plagued economy.

A $4.4-million surplus of just two years ago has plummeted to $2.4 million, and virtually all of that money is expected to be spent in the next two years.

"I think that all of city government is really going to have to tighten the belt," Brown told the Observer in reviewing his two-year term as council president. He was replaced Jan. 6 by Councilman Charles Pickering.

"Let's be cautious with every dime that's spent," he said. "Just because you have money in your budget — don't go out and spend it."

The city's surplus has dwindled as money has been spent to hire more police officers and firefighters and improve neighborhood streets, among other spending measures. Moreover, the council has set aside money for the financially troubled Nankin Transit bus system and to absorb Detroit Edison rate increases that otherwise would be passed on to residents who pay a special street light assessment.

The city will lose $1.8 million of its $2.4-million surplus within two years to pay for salaries of 23 police officers and firefighters hired to beef up public safety. Smaller spending measures will nibble away at the remaining $600,000.

To complicate matters, new tax revenues will be stifled this year by a property assessment freeze.

AMID THE financial worries, relations between the city council and Mayor Robert Thomas' administration have reached a new low, Brown said. The troubles have emerged as the two sides — perhaps more than ever — need to compromise.

"There has to be trust between council members and the administration, and the one who develops that trust is the mayor," Brown said.

Thomas came under fire last week after his administration boycotted a special weekend session called by the council to discuss a huge senior citizens complex planned on 50 acres north of Marquette, between Wayne and Carlson roads.

"This is not the way to run the

Pair charged in break-ins, are suspects in 10 others

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Two Westland teens have been charged with breaking into Westland homes and are being investigated for similar break-ins in Livonia and Canton Township homes. They have been accused of stealing televisions, stereo equipment, computers and other items. The teens are suspected in a series of 10 break-ins in the last four weeks, Westland police Sgt. Steve Ryskamp said. Roger Stewart Martz Jr., 18, and Robert Henry Kirchoff, 17, pleaded not guilty during an arraignment Tuesday in 18th District Court in

Westland. They are scheduled to appear in court again Thursday for a preliminary examination to determine if they should stand trial. Martz is charged with two counts — and Kirchoff with one count — of breaking and entering an occupied dwelling. The charge carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison upon conviction. EACH DEFENDANT remained in the Westland Jail Friday on a $10,000 cash surety bond. Martz and Kirchoff have been accused of stealing thousands of dollars worth of televisions, stereo equipment, computers, videocassette recorders, compact disc players and other electronic equipment during the series of break-ins, Ryskamp said. Some of the items have been recovered and returned to the owners. Police said the burglars kicked in the doors of some residences to break in. At some homes, however, the doors were unlocked, Ryskamp said. The burglars also "threw things around" and left some residences in disarray, he said. The break-ins occurred within the last month. Several incidents occurred on Christmas Eve, though it didn't appear that any Christmas presents were stolen, Ryskamp said.

for inflaming a longstanding controversy over teacher salaries. The 11.9-percent raise that teachers earlier received enraged board critics who have since launched recall efforts against board members Kathleen Chorbagan, Leonard Posey, Andrew Spisak and Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek. IN WHAT some viewed as a public backlash, the other three board members who approved the contract already have been ousted from office. Former members Sharon Scott, Matthew McCusker and Michael Reddy lost their re-election bids in June. Kowalczyk conceded that teachers will have to look at what the last contract did. The earlier teacher raises came amid the threat of massive cuts in school programs and services, such as the loss of busing and the elimination of sports. Those cuts, however, were averted in June when voters approved a 7.75-mill tax increase. Board members who approved the pay raises have defended their actions, saying the district negotiated one of the lowest salary increases in Wayne County. The contract also averted a threatened teacher strike. But some critics, including new board members who swept the school board race in June, have raised concerns about teacher salaries. "I believe that we have to start in school districts throughout the state, leveling off these salaries. The tax burden is too hard to bear for taxpayers," board member Laurel Rasmussen said. "We have to be responsible and compromise." THE CONTRACT talks will emerge amid lingering concerns about the economy. Moreover, board members aren't likely to forget the public outrage that followed the 11.9-percent raises. Teacher salaries currently range from $24,560 — for a newly hired teacher with a bachelor's degree — to $59,630 for longtime teachers who've earned their doctorates, ac-ording to the district's employee services office. Though Kowalczyk said the teachers union hasn't decided on a proposed pay raise, he added, "We wouldn't reveal that. We keep our negotiations secret." Salary issues won't be the only area of discussion as contract talks resume. Bargaining teams also plan to discuss a legal insurance plan in which the district pays about $100 a year for individual teachers. At issue is whether the district should continue to pick up the tab. NEGOTIATIONS ALSO are expected to focus on a potential early retirement plan for teachers. Under the plan, longtime teachers earning the higher salaries would receive a bonus to retire, and they would be replaced by teachers hired in at lower salaries. Some believe the plan would save the district money, but some board members have indicated skepticism until they learn more about it.

portunity for Mr. Svitkovich. I believe this would have given him an opportunity to become a superintendent and have his own school system." Noting the size of the Gibraltar district, which has 3,116 students compared to Wayne-Westland's 16,000, Kozorosky-Wiacek said, "I believe it would have been a breeze for him." The board president appeared troubled that Svitkovich didn't notify her of his decision before talking to the press. "It disappoints me that every time we hear something about the Gibraltar job, we have to hear it from the newspaper and not from our own administrator," she said. Meanwhile, Svitkovich said he's not in the running for jobs in other school districts. For now, he will continue to assume the duties of O'Neill, who has been on a medical leave since Nov. 4 for hypertension that he said has worsened because of the district's political upheaval.

THOUGH O'NEILL had said his leave would be for three months, it remained unclear last week whether his health would allow him to return in February. He has not given the board any indication if he would return. The board has hired a Chicago-based firm to aid its nationwide search for a new superintendent.

Arbitrator upholds firefighter's firing

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Former Westland firefighter Mark Wilhide's firing, amid accusations he stole personal property from an apartment tenant he helped evict, has been upheld by a state arbitrator. In announcing the decision Friday, city attorney C. Charles Bokos said it sends a message that law-breakers won't be tolerated on the city's payroll. "The city continues to take the position that there's no room on the (fire) department for anybody who breaks the law," he said. "We don't need those kind of people working for the city." WILHIDE COULDN'T be reached Friday for comment. His attorney, Anthony Guerriero, didn't return a telephone call from the Observer. Wilhide and fire battalion chief Paul Bush were fired Oct. 3, 1990, after they were accused of taking personal property belonging to Elaine Bolt during an eviction four months earlier at Hawthorne Apartments on Merriman, between Ann Arbor Trail and Warren Road. Unlike Wilhide, Bush chose to appeal his firing to the Westland Civil Service Commission, which gave him a six-month unpaid suspension and a two-rank demotion that caused a 12-percent pay cut. Bush remains employed at the fire department. BUSH HAD been acting as a court bailiff for 18th District Court during the eviction, and Wilhide served as his assistant. Witnesses told police the two men stole some of Bolt's property. After Westland police began a probe into the allegations, Wilhide turned over such items as footlockers and lawn chairs. He has maintained that he didn't consider it stealing because he had been told by Bush that property placed on the curbside was considered abandoned. Initially, Wilhide had planned to have his case heard by the civil service commission. But he later decided to have his appeal decided by an arbitrator instead. THE ARBITRATOR'S decision found that Wilhide "exacerbated his circumstances by being deceitful" about taking Bolt's property, Bokos said. The decision, received Thursday by the city, denied a grievance from the firefighters union in which Wilhide sought to be reinstated with back pay. Early on, the city had given Wilhide an opportunity to come forward with the property and keep his job, but he initially hedged under advice from his attorney, Bokos said. "I think he was badly advised," Bokos said. Both Wilhide and Bush have been cleared of criminal charges in Wayne County Circuit Court — a move that Guerriero and the firefighters union have said should have prompted the city to drop its civil service charges. That didn't happen.

Rain and highs in the 40s were predicted for today and Tuesday, causing ice festival organizers to delay the traditional displays of sculptures. Still, Joe Files and Dick Melow readied pedestals along Ann Arbor Trail for the opening of the 10th ice festival Wednesday.

Ice festival to chill out weather it's cold or not

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

No matter what the weather, everything is ready to go for the 10th Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular, starting Wednesday.

The National Weather Service predicted rain and highs in the 40s for today and Tuesday, causing festival director Mike Watts to put off displaying ice sculptures until Wednesday.

But he said cooler temperatures are predicted for the start of the ice festival.

"Things look real good," Watts said. "I think it's going to be one of the most successful ice spectacles ever."

To deal with potentially warm weather — which has plagued recent festivals — Watts has planned several melt-proof events. Several sculptures will be displayed under the roof at The Gathering off of Kellogg Park in a "Fantasyland" display.

Watts has put on the Downtown Hoedown and the Plymouth Music Festival.

"I think our light show is going to be of great interest to everybody," he said. Plans this year call for changing colored lights on the sculptures, to enhance their beauty.

THE TEAM of Japanese sculptors scheduled to arrive today plan to create an ice pagoda.

Due to the recent upheaval in the former Soviet Union, the Russian sculptors who had planned to attend won't be able to make it this year.

"They apologized, they really wanted to come," Watt said, adding Plymouth sculptors are still invited to attend a Moscow Ice festival.

This year, the ice festival is getting more corporate sponsorship — from Budweiser, First of America Bank, MCI and WCXI-AM, the official radio station of the ice spectacular.

"If the weather doesn't cooperate, there will still be things for people to come to town and see," Watts said, as several melt-proof events have been scheduled.

Some carving is scheduled for the parking deck. A gingerbread house display and cooking demonstration have also been scheduled.

The 1992 event will again include two vacation drawings scheduled to take place after the ice festival, which ends Jan. 20. One involves a four-day trip to Orlando, Florida. The other is a weekend stay at the Mayflower Hotel. Passes to the Pine Knob ski resort will also be offered as prizes.

SCHEDULED FOR 2 p.m. Wednesday is a celebrity carving competition for charity, featuring members of the Detroit Rockers soccer team, WCXI DJs Buddy Blake and Dave Anthony and Ken Calvert of WLLZ-FM.

The festival attracts between 400,000 and 500,000 people annually and is considered a premier event by professional carvers.

Competitions include one for individual professional carvers, another for individual student carvers, and a third for a Carver's Classic national team title.

Also scheduled for this year's ice festival is a Michigan Art 1992 free exhibit at the Plymouth Arts Council, and a replica ice Chrysler Jeep Grand Cherokee.

DNR ups toxic scores of Cooper, vacant sites

"Lead is a hot public health issue now because we've found children are particularly sensitive to lead," Flaga said.

Flaga said she would be more concerned about the three chemicals found on the vacant site, all polynuclear aromatic hydrocarbons, if there is a lot of public access to the vacant site.

PNA's don't readily move from the soil into the air, she said, unless heavily disturbed.

One mile west of Cooper on Ann Arbor Trail, this second contaminated site owned by the Livonia Public Schools has gone almost unnoticed — except by dirt bikers who ride its trails, people who use it as a shortcut to Hines Park, and romanticists who build campfires in its tree-lined lowlands.

The dirt bikers have built up mounds of dirt to create dirt bumps to jump over. One of the jumps is the bed of a pick-up truck covered with dirt.

On this January day, fresh bike tracks ran through the mud.

The low-lying, concrete-strewn, free-and-brush dotted parcel, a former landfill, runs from Ann Arbor Trail to a grassy area along Edward Hines Drive.

THE SITE slopes away from a child care center and dentist's office, both of which apparently were built over the landfill.

The parcel is across the street from Nankin Mills Elementary and the Northwest Wayne Skill Center at the former Ford school, which is attended by disabled students.

Children attending the day care center play in a fenced-in area; they can't get into the low-lying area.

So far, the spotlight has been put mostly on the contamination at Cooper school.

The DNR closed the school grounds, the district closed the school, and some parents protested when their children were sent to Whittier, a school across the street from Cooper.

The district recently fenced in the 40-acre site on three sides. Wayne County has yet to fence in the fourth side, which runs along Edward Hines Drive.

Soil borings are expected to begin soon on the Cooper site. The results of those borings could either raise or lower Cooper's current ranking of 35.

THE RESCORING of the vacant site, said DNR spokeswoman Mary Vanderlaan, doesn't mean that the DNR will order Livonia Public Schools to clean up the site, as it did at Cooper school.

The Cooper clean-up could cost the district millions.

"Now that it's been rescored, the DNR has no money to investigate it," Vanderlaan said. "The responsible party is the Livonia school system, and it doesn't have the money to do two sites at one time."

If the DNR knew for sure the vacant site's surface is contaminated, it would ask that a fence be erected, Vanderlaan said.

Ghauami, who rescored the vacant site, said it received a lower score because the surface is not known to be contaminated, as is the surface soil at Cooper.

The contaminants are buried within the vacant land, he said.

The site also scored lower because it has lower levels of contaminants than Cooper, Ghauami said.

However, the vacant land received extra points because its groundwater is known to be contaminated, Ghauami said. It is not yet known whether the ground water at Cooper is contaminated.

Both sites received an extra point for being near another school.

THE DNR HAS rescored all toxic sites in Michigan under a new model, or new rules. Ninety-nine percent of them, Ghauami said, have scored higher under the new rules.

Under the old model, sites were scored from 0-15. Under this old model, the vacant land scored a 5, higher than Cooper's score of 2.

Information about the second contaminated site owned by the district apparently surfaced after Cooper parents began asking questions about Cooper school.

"When they talked about using Whittier as an alternative school, we went through the (DNR) book and saw this land listed," said Ron Graunstadt. "We were concerned it might have been the cemetery next to Whittier, so we asked to see the DNR file."

Graunstadt said the DNR apparently learned about the land through a local real estate agent who was interested in buying it and had the soil tested after seeing the rubble-strewn condition of the land.

The agent, Graunstadt said, discovered the land had elevated levels of toxins and heavy metals.

The Livonia district apparently got the land about eight years ago through a land swap with the city of Westland.

Livonia schools gave Westland a piece of land now known as Corrado Park, near the former Monroe school in Westland. Westland gave Livonia the 10 acre parcel near Nankin Mills Elementary.

In researching the land, Graunstadt said he discovered that Westland acquired the land from the state for non-payment of taxes.

Livonia schools join state on tax lawsuit

By Marie Chestney staff writer

The Livonia school district, which serves the northern section of Westland, is still hanging onto the $700,000 check it originally was supposed to send in December to lower-valuation school districts in the state.

A Wayne Circuit Court injunction prohibits the district from mailing the check to the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency (RESA) for distribution to in-formula school districts such as Wayne-Westland until the controversy surrounding statewide taxbase sharing is settled in court.

At the time the injunction was issued in December by Wayne Circuit Judge Roland Olzark, Superintendent Joseph Marinelli said he had mixed emotions about the attempt of seven Wayne County taxpayers, one of whom is a Livonia resident, to stop their districts from forfeiting local tax dollars to the state.

Livonia is one of the six school districts named in the lawsuit.

AT THE time, Marinelli said he was pleased to see the issue of taxbase sharing come under legal review.

But Marinelli also said he was fearful the district's state aid would be put in jeopardy if it failed to make the payment.

According to finance director Michael Furlong, the district in 1991-92 will get about $3.4 million in aid from the state.

In its Jan. 2 response to the taxpayers' lawsuit, the district chose to side with the state, asking that an injunction sought by the seven taxpayers not be given by the court.

The answer reads: "The defendant respectfully requests that the Injunction not be issued and that the defendant be permitted to comply with its statutory obligations and avoid any penalties imposed by the statute."

Livonia resident Kenneth Grabowski, one of the seven taxpayers who brought the lawsuit, said he was surprised and disappointed Livonia sought to make the payment instead of questioning the legality of the taxbase sharing law.

"I'm surprised they didn't support us and surprised still more they want to give this money away," Grabowski said.

Livonia attorney Frank Guido, attorney for the seven taxpayers, also said he is surprised Livonia wanted the injunction lifted.

"They should have taken a more neutral stance," Guido said.

ANTHONY HECKEMEYER, attorney for Livonia schools, said recent court rulings gave Livonia no choice but to obey the dictates of the state.

"School districts are instruments of the state and must obey state law," Heckemeyer said. "Until the law is proved unconstitutional, we are an instrument of the state."

Taxbase sharing allows the state to skim 50 percent of the increase in commercial and industrial property tax revenue from so-called wealthy districts such as Livonia and give it to less wealthy, in-formula districts such as neighboring Redford Union or Wayne-Westland.

Grabowski said he joined the lawsuit because he believes it wrong for the state to take tax money from one group and give it to another.

Under the injunction, the Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Dearborn, Grosse Pointe, Northville and Crestwood districts are prohibited from sending money under the plan to the state.

Other out-of-formula Wayne County school districts are sending their payments to RESA (formerly known as the intermediate school district), where the money is being kept in a special escrow account until the issue is settled in court.

America's Drug Problem Is Not As Big As You Think.

If you're a parent, you should be aware that the drug problem is getting smaller every day. As hard as it is to believe, kids who get pushed into drugs for the first time are about twelve years old. That being the average, it means a lot of these kids are only seven or eight when they have their first drug experience. By age thirteen, twelve percent have already tried marijuana. Eight percent have used cocaine. And one out of every ten kids surveyed said they would like to try crack just once.

With odds like that, it's never too early to start teaching your children about the dangers of drug abuse. Call 1-800-662-HELP and ask for parent drug abuse prevention information. Call today before the problem gets any smaller.

Swiss savoir-faire

Opernhaus exemplifies Zurich's cultural ambition

By PAUL HOFMANN
New York Times Syndicate

Switzerland's largest city officially describes itself as a "world-class metropolis," although its inhabitants number just one-twentieth of New York's.

Yet Zurich's location in the heart of Europe, the Swiss-watch reliability of its communications and other services, its banking and business establishment, and its intellectual life all lend credibility to its global claim.

Zurich's cultural ambitions are exemplified by its Opernhaus. The 1,230-seat neo-Baroque building on the east shore of Lake Zurich is starting its second century after recent restructuring and enlargement with a bid to rival such shrines of opera as LaScala and other major houses.

For playing in the operatic big leagues Zurich has called on a 44-year-old Viennese, Alexander Pereira, who during the past seven years served as chief of the Konzerthaus music center in Vienna, Austria.

Pereira's first season as Zurich Opera manager presents some 20 productions with Agnes Baltsa, Renato Bruson, Montserrat Caballe, Jose Carreras, Mirella Freni, Edita Gruberova, Thomas Hampson, Ruggero Raimondi and other international stars, mostly in classics by Mozart, Wagner, Verdi, Puccini and Richard Strauss.

A highlight on the Opernhaus program is the premiere, on Jan. 19, 1992, of the ballet "Tanzpoem," or "Dance, Poem," by the newly fashionable Alexander von Zemlinsky, who was the musical mentor and brother-in-law of Arnold Schoenberg. Reprises are on Jan. 22, Feb. 1 and 15, and March 1.

Other Zurich Opera novelties are Ligeti's "Grand Macabre" on Feb. 26 and, on several afternoons, Menotti's children's opera "Hilff, Hilff, die Globolinks."

Opera prices range from $10.70 for gallery seats on some evenings to $270 for a chair in an orchestra box at a premiere. Many performances are largely subscribed. For more information write to: Opernhaus Zurich, 1 Falkenstrasse, 8008 Zurich; or phone 262-09-09.

MUSIC

The classical and romantic repertory from Haydn to Brahms and the Second Viennese School from Mahler to Webern dominate the programs of more than 100 concerts and recitals scheduled at the Opera House and the Tonhalle this winter and spring.

The orchestra of the sumptuous Tonhalle, at 1 Claridenstrasse, facing the Opernhaus across the lake, has a new permanent guest conductor, Claus Peter Flor, from Leipzig, Germany.

At the Opera, Ralf Welkert will present Charles Ives' "Central Park in the Dark" in a matinee April 5. At the Tonhalle, "Music From the U.S.A., 1905-1971" (Cage, Carter, Ives, Erickson, Copland, Crumb) will be played by the Helios Ensemble April 12.

Tickets for the opera-house concerts cost $5.70 to $34.30; for the Tonhalle, $7.15 to $64.30. For more information on performances at the Tonhalle call 201-15-812.

GETTING AROUND

Zurich's Kloten Airport is linked with the central railroad station, or Hauptbahnhof, by frequent trains. The fare for the 10-minute trip is $3 in second class, $4.85 in first.

Eight lines of Zurich's efficient surface transit system converge on the square outside the Hauptbahnhof. The ticket for a short ride on the blue trams and trolleys is $1.20 for 30 minutes, $2 for longer rides within the city limits, good for an hour with any number of transfers. Children ages 6 to 16 pay half price; under 6 travel free.

Tickets are bought from one of the vending machines at every stop, which are so elaborate that even some residents ask practiced bystanders for assistance. Newcomers may prefer to buy a 24-hour ticket for the entire city network at $4 or for the whole region at $16 from employees staffing the underground "ticketeria" at the Hauptbahnhof.

MUSEUMS

The Kunsthau, at 1 Heimplatz, boasts one of Europe's largest collections of modern art since Impressionism. There are also works by Baroque masters from Italy and the Netherlands and by such Swiss painters of the 19th and 20th centuries as Bocklin and Hodler.

The Kunsthau is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday to Friday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is $2.15; for occasional special exhibitions, $3.70 to $6.40. Take tram No. 3, 5, 8 or 9. For more information call 251-67-55.

Rietberg Museum is at 15 Gablestrasse in the Villa Wesendonck, a mansion in a park near the western lakeshore in which Richard Wagner lived for years. Now city-owned, the villa contains a 2,000-item collection, including pre-Columbian artifacts. A show of sculptures by artists of Nigeria's Yoruba people closes March 12.

The Rietberg Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday to Sunday, 5-9 p.m. Wednesday. Ad-

Admission to the following collections is free: Swiss National Museum, at 2 Museumstrasse north of Hauptbahnhof, is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday to Sunday. For more information call 221-10-10.

Thomas Mann Archive, at 15 Schonberggasse near the Polytechnic, is open from 2-4 p.m. Tuesday and Saturday or by appointment. Take Tram No. 6 or 9. For more information call 256-40-45.

Toy Museum, at 15 Fortunastrasse (fifth floor) near Bahnhofstrasse, is open from 2-5 p.m. Monday to Friday and 1-4 p.m. Saturday. For more information call 211-93-05.

EATING OUT

A recent addition to gastronomic Zurich is an offshoot of the Parisian Brasserie Kipp, centrally located on the ground floor of the tower of the astronomical observatory at 2 Uraniastrasse.

It serves drinks, snacks and such substantial fare as choucroute garnie or cassoulet (either one at $18.60) from 9 a.m. to 11:45 p.m. daily. Book early for Lipp's panoramic Jules Verne Bar on top of the 150-foot tower, which is popular for private parties. For more information call 211-11-55.

Food isn't the main attraction of Kronenhalle; atmosphere is. This old brasserie, at 4 Ramistrasse, near the opera house, has become relatively more expensive than it used to be a few years ago, but it has remained a Zurich institution. Pictures by Matisse, Picasso and Miro hang on the dark-wood paneling, lace curtains at the windows screen the fashionable patrons from the street.

At Kronenhalle if you skip the French-style entrees and the fabled chocolate mousse on the menu you can still have a filling lunch on St. Gall bratwurst and rosti; Zurich's all-purpose sliced-and-roasted potato side order, with a small carafe of Fendant wine and an espresso at $27. For more information call 251-66-69.

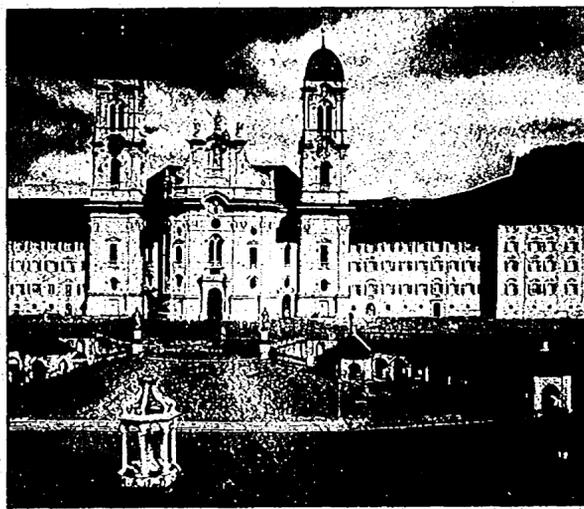

Geschnetzeltes (sliced and creamed veal) sausages and other local fishes can be sampled in the ancient guildhall restaurants around City Hall.

Zunftaus zur Safran, at 54 Limmatquai, is a 600-year-old arched building, designated as a historic landmark. It now houses a risottoeria on its ground floor. Risotto with mushrooms, seafood, saffron or other garnishings are around $22 a helping. For more information call 261-65-65.

Fast food is centered around the central railway station.

Paul Hofmann, former Rome bureau chief of The New York Times, visits Switzerland frequently.

At the ancient baroque church of the Benedictine monastery in Zurich the devout monks worship as they have since medieval times.

Travel tidbit: People make the place

We were watching the Yugoslavian civil war on the television news, flinching every time a shell landed in the tiny walled city of Dubrovnik. "I wonder what happened to the guy we met on the top of the mountain," Micky said.

I couldn't remember his name, but the memories were clear: a young man raising a beer glass in Trebinje, or leaning out the doorway in Cilipi shouting "Ho-nus! Ho-nus!"

He couldn't speak English, so that was the closest he could get to shouting "Jones!" I finally found his name in a notebook I carried during that week on the Adriatic coast: Seki.

We'd never heard of Trebinje, but the schedule board in the local bus depot assured us that we could go and come back the same day. We rode a clean modern bus 20 miles up a rocky mountain slope, with locals carrying chickens home from market, and enjoyed the banter even though we couldn't understand a word.

Crossroads

We explored the old streets of Trebinje and returned to the hotel-bus stop half an hour before the afternoon bus was scheduled to take us downmountain. We were drinking beer in the nearly deserted hotel bar when we saw Seki, sitting with a young woman across the room.

He stared at us until we noticed him. He waved us over and kept waving until we picked up our beer glasses and crossed the room. Seki smiled, bowed, pointed to chairs and shouted for more beer.

We couldn't speak their language, and they couldn't speak ours, but talking with your hands and your feet is an important travel skill so we were soon deep in "conversation." They spoke Yugoslavian. We spoke English.

I had a dictionary so the paper place mats were soon covered with words and pictures. He drew a map of North America and we marked Detroit on it. He "asked" about our children and we held up two fingers. Seki worked in a winery somewhere near Dubrovnik.

We missed the first and second bus. We waved goodbye and ran for the last one. That would have been the end of it if we had taken the tour bus the next morning to the Sunday folklore presentation in the village of Cilipi, 10 miles south.

We took the 50 cent local bus instead and when the tour buses left we had the town to ourselves for an hour before wandering back to the bus stop on the main highway.

I was kicking stones on the shoulder of the road when I first heard somebody yell "Ho-nus! Ho-nus!" The second and third time he yelled we looked around to see where the voice was coming from and saw a man leaning out of a doorway of the hotel across the street. "Ho-nus."

"He's saying Jones," Micky said. "It's Seki!"

"Where did he come from?" Seki lived in Cilipi, where he worked in the winery. He dragged us into a wine bar where we spent the afternoon sampling the local wine and drawing pictures.

Meeting Seki was just a travel experience, one of many. But when I see news reports of war damage in Dubrovnik, and hear that the beautiful village of Cilipi has been demolished by gunfire, I don't think of history. I think of Seki. I'm glad I remembered his name.

Commissioners mull future as new districts are upheld

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Foes of new Wayne County Commission districts vow to fight on, but two area commissioners are already mulling their political future after this week's Michigan Court of Appeals ruling upholding the districts.

In a two-paragraph ruling, an appeals court panel rejected a challenge filed by Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and several suburban commissioners, including Bryan Amann, D-Wayne and Kevin Kelley, D-Redford.

A new appeal will soon be filed with the Michigan Supreme Court, deputy county executive Michael Duggan said.

"That's why we have a supreme court and that's where we're going," Duggan said.

While Amann and Kelley support the final appeal, they're also considering other options.

Amann, who represents Canton, would face fellow commissioner Maurice Breen, R-Plymouth Township, in one newly redrawn district. In addition to Plymouth Township, Canton, and Wayne, the new district includes Plymouth, Northville, Northville Township and a section of western Livonia. Its makeup is seen as giving Republicans the edge.

Amann said he may continue to run for the commission or seek another county office.

"I HAVE options," he said. "I could remain in this district, I could move to Westland to challenge (Democratic incumbent) Kay Beard, or I could run for county clerk."

Amann, a former deputy clerk, was elected to the commission last year. In the process, he sacrificed an $80,000-plus annual salary as an as-'I have options. I could remain in this district... I could move to Westland... or I could run for county clerk.'

— Bryan Amann county commissioner

sistant county executive for the $41,396-a-year commission post.

Kelley's current district includes Redford and a section of western Detroit. In his new district, he would lose Democratic voters from Detroit and pick up more Republican neighborhoods in Livonia.

"I don't have the problems Bryan Amann has," Kelley said. "I won't have to face another incumbent, and I do have a lot of friends in Livonia." — Kelley, however, said he would sit down with supporters to discuss his future before making any decisions.

Districts were redrawn in September by a county apportionment commission.

Deputy county clerk Marya Sieminski, who sat on the five-member panel, said she was pleased with the appeals court's ruling.

"These districts were fair, are fair and will be fair," Sieminski said. "The court recognized that."

Those opposed to the districts claim they penalize commissioners who support the county executive.

"This is a setback to McNamara supporters," said Kelley, who more often than not supports the executive in disputes with commission leaders.

Duggan said the new districts favor Republicans at suburban Democrats' expense.

"IT'S A Republican plan and the appeals court panel that approved it are Republicans," Duggan said. "That's a point we'll make at the supreme court."

The initial appeal also challenged population and minority population standards used by the apportionment commission, as well as the presence of Sieminski — an Oakland County resident — on the commission.

Sieminski, however, said she doubted challengers would get any further with the high court than they did with the appeals court.

"The interesting thing is they threw everything but the kitchen sink in with their appeal and the court just threw it out," she said.

Who pays the cost of illiteracy? Everyone.

Think about it. Imagine for a moment that you cannot read. How easily are you going to find a job? Do you find a low-paying job that doesn't require reading and let social welfare and government unemployment compensation take up the slack?

Or, suppose you do find a job. What happens to production when you can't understand written instructions? Who pays for the wasted time to correct your mistakes? Perhaps you haven't found a job. Your self-esteem is in the basement. You turn to a life of crime.

Did you know that 60 percent of all prison inmates are functionally illiterate and the figure is higher among juvenile offenders?

How can you help?

If you know someone who cannot read, contact one of the agencies below and give them the opportunity to open up their world.

Job training issue tops Dems' agenda

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Rep. William Keith is elated that House Speaker Lew Dodak is putting worker retraining and vocational education at the top of House Democrats' 1992 agenda.

Keith, chair of the House Education Committee, called his vocational education bill "massive reform. No longer is vocational education a dumping ground for kids who can't make it on the college track or general track."

His bill, co-sponsored by Republican Glenn Oxender of Sturgis, calls for a major industry-school partnership in on-the-job training for students.

"Whether this is the year for it or not, I don't know," said Keith, a 19-year legislative veteran who once predicted his bill would take three years to pass.

DODAK, D-Birch Run, listed job training as his top example of House Democrats' "focus on family security issues."

Dodak emphasized "middle class" families, a favorite political theme. "We must also bring back programs such as the Michigan Youth Corps and Civilian Conservation Corps," he said, accusing Engler of dismantling every program with former Democratic Gov. James Blanchard's name on it.

A Democratic task force to which Keith is close is looking at retraining the present workforce for jobs of the future. Keith said there's no pattern or coordination of the many school, community college, industry and proprietary efforts to retrain workers.

Keith said the speaker scheduled a March 18-19 Conference on Technical Education in Lansing.

"The keynote will be Willard

Daggett, an international speaker on training. He says if you took all the people training people and put them (trainers) in the job market, they wouldn't qualify. That is a scary thought," Keith said.

OTHER ITEMS in Dodak's agenda:

- Affordable child care, licensed by the Department of Education rather than Social Services, with continued inspections.
- Continued existence of MIO-SHA, the state workplace safety program.
- Protection for "urban area" residents — Detroit, Saginaw, Flint and Grand Rapids — from auto insurance rate discrimination.
- Opposition to "schools of choice" favored by Engler and many Republicans.
- Reopening of the Michigan Education Trust to new enrollments. A Blanchard administration program, MET is an investment plan guaranteed to cover a youngster's college tuition at age 18.
- State limitation on college tuition increases.
- Endorsement of a plan to end combined sewer overflows (CSOs) by giving municipalities greater bonding ability for capital-intensive projects.

County proposal says 'Buy American'

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Buy American is the focus of a proposed Wayne County ordinance that will get its first public test Tuesday.

A 10 a.m. public hearing is scheduled for the proposal, which gives American-made goods preference in most county purchases.

The proposal comes in the wake of U.S.-Japan trade talks, though primary sponsor Kay Beard, D-Westland, said she's been working on the ordinance for about three months.

But Beard acknowledges the timing doesn't hurt.

"GIVEN THE state of the economy and unemployment in our own area, this is something we need to look at," she said.

The proposed ordinance is based on a federal law that governs goods the county buys with federal grant money, Beard said.

It would require the county to buy American-manufactured goods wherever possible. Exceptions would be made for purchases under $10,000, scarce goods or for American goods whose prices greatly exceed those available from other markets.

"Initially, it's been set at 8 percent (above the cost of other goods) but that could go higher," Beard said.

County contractors would also be required to use American-made goods for all contracts of $50,000 or more. Contracts caught violating the ordinance would be banned from bidding on county projects for three years.

While the county commission holds final approval over the ordinance, most contracts are enacted through the county executive's office.

Executive's office officials said they didn't have enough information on the ordinance to comment.

"We haven't even seen it yet," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said.

The county makes it a policy to do business with Wayne County-based companies wherever possible, though the county's minority supplier ordinance was struck down in court.

Beard said she was uncertain how the public would respond to the Buy American ordinance, but she believes most county residents will be supportive.

"This Christmas, I made it a point to look for American-made goods," she said. "Charity really does begin at home."

A public hearing on the ordinance will be held by the Committee on Audit, 10 a.m. Tuesday in Meeting Room 402 of the Wayne County Building, 600 Randolph, Detroit. Comments can also be sent in writing to the committee c/o Commissioner Kay Beard, at the same address.

ARTHRITIS OF THE HIP

Most instances of what you think are hip pains, are not but originate from the femoral trochanter and reflect strain from muscles anchoring there.

The feature of hip pain is discomfort down the groin. You feel a sharp ache starting at the upper edge of the pelvis that radiates to the thigh; your initial reaction is that you have a hernia.

Osteoarthritis is the main cause of hip arthritis. Second comes congenital disorders. From birth onward a defect in the formation of the hip leaves the socket too shallow or the head of the hip completely formed. Over years walking places a strain on the impaired joint, and premature arthritis results. Other causes include rheumatoid diseases and ankylosing spondylitis.

Rest is not the first line of response; on the contrary, doctor's stress therapy as the way to keep you active. Treatment begins with aspirin or similar anti-inflammatory drugs; hip joint injection is possible but requires a physician experienced with the procedure. If pain becomes intolerable or you must curtail activity excessively, operation is in order.

Replacement hip surgery is one of the medical achievements of our time. Age is no obstacle and the operation is feasible in the face of a wide range of medical infirmities. The resolution of pain and return of mobility are worth the risk surgery involves.

Stojov, Stevenson bounce Hawks

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

With seconds left in the basketball game, Tony Stojov sat on the Livonia Stevenson bench Friday night yelling "We're for real, we're for real!"

Farmington Hills Harrison learned not only are the host Spartans for real, but Stojov, too.

The 6-foot-4 senior scored a career-high 22 points, which included six three-point field goals, as Stevenson defeated the Hawks 57-52 in the Western Lakes Activities Association opener between teams expected to be title contenders.

"Coming into the game, Harrison had a lot of press," Stojov said. "We're focused and ready this year. We picked off a real good team; hopefully, this is the first step."

The Spartans are 4-1 overall and 1-0 in the WLA. Harrison, winless in two games this year, slipped to 3-2 and 0-1.

"WE DON'T scare a lot of people coming off the bus, but that's not where the game is played," Stevenson coach Jim McIntyre said.

"As long as the kids can get their act together on the court, so be it. They worked hard to prepare for this game, and they walked in believing they could win one."

With the score tied at 46 midway in the fourth quarter, Stojov scored his last three-point and added a finger-roll layup for a five-point lead. He eventually fouled out with 2:18 remaining and Stevenson up 54-48.

"I always have the green light to shoot the three-pointer, so I thought I might try it (in the first quarter)," Stojov said. "If I'm on, I'm on. If not, somebody else will pick up the slack."

Forward Colin Stockton also had a hot hand early in the game, scoring 10 of his 15 points in the first half. Guards Ryan Furkas and Matt Grodzicki added 10 and seven points, respectively.

But it was Stojov who had the biggest impact, shooting 80 percent from the field and making 80 percent of his field goals from beyond the three-point line.

basketball

"YOU DON'T expect their center to be the outside shooter," Harrison coach Mike Teachman said, adding the Hawks played him incorrectly.

"Why would we drop off him to help inside when that's not their game — I don't understand that. But you have to give him credit. He hit the threes when he was open."

Stojov, who acknowledged point guard Grodzicki for being a "great distributor" of the ball, upheld a Stevenson tradition for playing an uninhibited offensive style.

"The kids realize that somebody is going to be hot every time we take the floor," McIntyre said. "We tell them 'If two people are open, get the ball to the closest man. If you're the closest and there's nobody in your face, shoot the ball!'"

The Spartans played that way early and grabbed a 12-5 lead, but they also showed remarkable patience and demonstrated good team play in the half-court game.

Most people think of Stevenson as an "up-and-down, scramble ballclub," McIntyre said. "But even when we're running the break we're so structured that everyone knows if someone is out of place — even if someone up there (in the stands) says 'What are they doing?'"

CENTER ANDY Fitzpatrick and forward Duane Anderson scored 11 points apiece for the Hawks, who outscored Stevenson 11-3 to end the first quarter and led 22-16. Forward Paul Gilyvdy added 10 points and guard Jeremy Teachman seven. The Spartans trimmed the Harrison lead to 32-29 at halftime.

"Actually, I was surprised it was as low scoring as it was," Teachman said, referring to Stevenson's half-court effort. "They slowed down the game themselves by sometimes passing 11 times."

"They played awfully well together as a team, because they would run the offense for a long time to get (Stojov) that shot. Grodzicki did a nice job running the offense, handling the ball and getting it to the right people."

While playing a solid zone defense, the Spartans outscored Harrison 15-10 in the third quarter and moved in front 44-42 with Stojov scoring eight points (two threes).

"We got the ball inside pretty well in the first half," Teachman said. "They collapsed the zone even further, and we didn't get any second shots in the second half. The big thing was they stepped up their inside defense."

Furkas hit a three-pointer to make the score 54-48, and Grodzicki sank three free throws down the stretch to clinch the victory.

Harrison was 4-of-18 from the field in the third quarter, 8-of-30 in the second half and 19-of-62 overall for 31 percent. Stevenson, respectively, was 6-of-12, 10-of-21 and 21-of-46 for 46 percent.

Spartans trim Churchill in city tilt

By Neal Zipser
staff writer

Livonia Stevenson reinforced the adage of "the only statistic that matters is the final score," as the Spartans trounced Livonia Churchill 7-2 Friday at Eddie Edgar Arena.

The final score didn't indicate how evenly played the game was, but Stevenson was able to capitalize on a couple of lapses by Churchill's defense.

Stevenson received two goals apiece from seniors Kevin Bush, Kit Mastroberto and Anthony Flevaris en route to the victory.

The Spartans, leading the Suburban High School Hockey League and ranked No. 3 in Class A, improved to 7-1-1, while the Chargers are now even at 5-5. (Stevenson is 5-0 in league play, while Churchill is 3-2.) The Spartans scored first, just 1:34 into the opening period, when Mastroberto dug the puck out of the corner to the left of the Chargers' net and fed it to the blue line. The pass landed on Bush's stick as he whistled a drive through two Churchill defensemen and past goalie Jeremy Niemiec.

THE CHARGERS tied the game two minutes later on a shot that should have been stopped. Junior forward Shawn Thomas took a Brian Jankowicz pass and carried the puck into the Spartans' end, lofting a 30-foot shot toward Stevenson goalie Mike Williams. The puck glanced off the top of Williams' glove and trickled behind him for the tying goal.

The goal sparked Churchill's offense as the Chargers kept heavy pressure but couldn't score on Williams, who mishandled three shots.

"Mike is a gamer," Stevenson coach Paul Ferguson said. "He was fighting it early in the game but got it going and made some big stops for us."

Stevenson took control of the game with just under three minutes left in the first period, as the Chargers went on the first of their two lapses.

In a scramble in front of the Churchill net, Mastroberto was able to shoot the puck past Niemiec to make the count 2-1. Flevaris and Matt Corriveau picked up assists.

"We took advantage of our opportunities, especially in the first peri-

Pats freeze Andover

Livonia Franklin tallied three short-handed goals Thursday en route to a 10-0 romp over host Bloomfield Hills Andover in a Suburban High School Hockey League encounter at the Detroit Skating Club.

Franklin is now 8-1-1 overall and 4-1-1 in the SPSHL play. Andover drops to 4-3 in the league.

"We worked well," Franklin coach Terry Jobbitt said. "We back-checked well and finally came up with a great team effort."

Rick Bernard had a six-point night for the Patriots with three goals and three assists. Mike Nutting also notched the hat trick with three goals.

Bryan Berger finished with five points on a goal and four assists, while Jeremy Klosowski recorded four assists.

Shane Hastings contributed one goal and two assists, and teammate Justin Osman had a goal and one assist.

Franklin goaltender Joe Huber turned away 21 Andover shots to pick up his first league shutout in two years.

"He played a great game and it was a very good game for everyone," Jobbitt said.

STEVENSON 7, WYAN-DOTTE 2: Anthony Flevaris' hat trick powered state-ranked Livonia Stevenson to the SPSHL victory Wednesday over the host Bears at Yack Arena.

Kit Mastroberto and Matt Corriveau contributed four and three assists, respectively.

Stevenson jumped out to a 3-0 first period lead on power-play goals by Chris Rennie (from Corriveau) and Scott Johnson (from Mastroberto and Kevin Bush). Mastroberto also had an unassisted goal during the period.

The Spartans increased their advantage to 5-1 after two periods on goals by Flevaris (from Mastroberto and Corriveau) and Doug Gulau (from Ryan Gusk and Mark Peterson).

Flevaris added two more in the final period, the first from Mastroberto and Corriveau, and the second, from Bush and Ryan Fawkes.

Mike Williams earned the victory in goal for Stevenson.

NAIA salutes Madonna's Hicks-Finley

By C.J. Rieck
staff writer

A record-setting season reaped its rewards when post-season honors were presented by the NAIA.

Madonna University's volleyball team landed three players on the 12-player all-District 23 team and one of those — sophomore middle hitter Dana Hicks-Finley — was first-team All-American.

Hicks-Finley's honors were the culmination of a 42-11 Madonna campaign. The Lady Crusaders finished first in the district in the regular season, then lost in the playoff final to Northwood Institute, which went on to place third at the NAIA

"Dana is a dominant middle-hitter and blocker," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham. "Her statistics were among the best in the country. It was very difficult to stop such a power in the middle, she had such diversity in her shot selection. A lot of good teams were impressed with her."

Hicks-Finley, the only sophomore on the NAIA All-American first team, was also named the District 23 player of the year. But she wasn't the only Madonna standout — junior outside hitter Tonia Smith and senior setter Penny Baker were both chosen to the all-district team.

volleyball

HICKS-FINLEY LED the team with a 331 kill average and 835 kills, 4.96 per game. Her 321 blocks (2.79 per game) also topped the Crusaders.

The only down side regarding Hicks-Finley is her status: Although she has two years of eligibility remaining, her husband is in the armed forces and is currently stationed in Virginia. That's where she is living now, but Abraham said she is planning to return in the fall.

Smith posted good numbers as well, making Madonna's front line an imposing one. The Walled Lake Western graduate had a .316 kill average, totaling 518 (3.33 per game) for the season. Smith also had 105 blocks (1.71 average), 3.79 digs a game and a .901 serve average.

Baker shared the setting position with Mazie Pilut, but still posted some impressive numbers: 2,162 assists-to-kills (9.96 per game) and a .925 serve average.

ALL THREE were the district's player of the week during the season; Hicks-Finley turned the trick twice. Also named to the all-district team was Michigan-Dearborn sophomore setter Karl Domanski, from Garden City (and Livonia Ladywood). Abraham was selected as coach of the year after guiding Madonna to a school-record number of wins and ending Northwood's five-year reign as district champ.

Two other Crusaders were named academic All-Americans: junior outside hitter Melissa Mara (from Redford Bishop Burgess), who had a 3.6 grade point and a .301 kill average; and senior defensive specialist Jennifer Sladewski (from Livonia Stevenson), who also had a 3.6 grade point and led Madonna with 6.10 digs per game.

Crusaders fall to 2-11

The injury-riddled Madonna University lineup was no match for NAIA District 23 basketball rival Aquinas College Thursday, and it showed: the Lady Crusaders were swamped, 67-33, in Grand Rapids.

Madonna coach Bill Potter, whose team fell to 2-11 overall and to 1-3 in the district, had just seven players to call upon against Aquinas, and one of those — leading scorer Jill Burt — was hurting, too. Burt was involved in a car accident Wednesday night and was well below par. She was 0-for-6 from the floor and did not score.

On the sidelines for Madonna were Karen Sangregorio with a knee injury and Lori Creten with a sore back. Sangregorio is expected back Monday, Creten on Wednesday.

Two other Crusaders are already out for the season: senior guard Stephanie Niebauer (knee) and freshman forward Marianne Ervin (leg stress fracture).

The injuries brought Madonna's size deficiencies to the forefront. "We only have one six-footer on the team," said Potter. "That's really where we've been taking a beating, on the boards."

Aquinas (6-8 overall, 1-0 in the district), which led 29-12 by halftime, had three players reach double-figures in scoring: Samantha Reenders with 17 points, Heather Woodcock with 13 and Ann Hayward with 12. Madonna had just one: Lyndell Ingalls had 17 points. Kim Kibbey was next best with seven.

Audet keys Lady Ocelot win

The challenge facing Schoolcraft College's women's basketball team Wednesday was a tall one.

Alpena CC was "bigger than us," noted SC coach Jack Grenan. "And we had three people hurt."

So the Lady Ocelots used a different tactic to offset the Lady Jacks advantage — defense. SC made 28 steals, forcing 40 turnovers in all, and that enabled them to hold on for a 73-70 Eastern Conference victory at SC.

"We were basically the walking wounded," said Grenan, numbering his injured: Sis Guth, chipped bone in her foot; Stacie Smith, sprained thumb; and Vicki Adkins, strained thigh muscle. "I thought this would be a game of attrition. They beat us up with rebounding and we beat them up with defense."

college sports

It turned out to be a test of which team could best utilize its advantages. Alpena outboarded SC by a wide margin, 40-22, but the Lady Ocelots forced those 40 turnovers while committing just 14 themselves.

EACH TEAM had a nine-point lead and lost it. Alpena's came in the first half, but by the intermission SC had trimmed it to 33-32.

With 3:30 remaining in the game, it was the Lady Ocelots turn to be embarrassed. They were up by nine, but in the next 2:14 their advantage melted away. An Alpena three-pointer tied it at 70-all with 16 seconds left.

Grenan's strategy was to take it inside. Jen Audet did just that and was fouled. Audet made the first of two free throws, then rebounded her miss. With 12 seconds to go she was fouled again, and this time she hit both to push SC's lead to 73-70. Alpena failed to score again.

Donna Galli led SC with 23 points and seven steals. Guth managed 15 points, six rebounds and four steals in spite of her injury. Dana Hudson had 13 points and five steals, and Nicolo Daprich scored 10 points.

The victory evened the Lady Ocelots' conference record at 2-2 and made them 12-5 overall. Alpena slipped to 2-2 in the conference.

Wayne halts Railsplitters, 79-41

Wayne Memorial came out smoking Friday, opening up a 22-4 first-quarter lead before burying Lincoln Park in a Wolverine A League boys basketball encounter, 79-41.

Senior guard Lee Williams sparked the victorious Zebras, now 5-1 overall and 3-0 in the league, with 16 points.

Three others scored double figures for Wayne including senior forward Rick Barnes (13), senior guard Greg Hartman (12) and junior guard Don-Dez Prewitt (10).

Barnes also grabbed 13 rebounds, while Hartman dished out six assists.

Jim Durham scored 17 points for the Railsplitters, who dropped to 2-4 overall and 0-3 in the league.

SALEM 58, FRANKLIN 43: Sophomore center James Head tallied 17 points and junior guard Mike Stone added 14 as Plymouth Salem (4-2) opened Western Lakes Activities Association play with a win Friday over visiting Livonia Franklin (3-2).

The stubborn Patriots trailed by only three after three quarters, 39-36, before Salem pulled away during the stretch.

Senior guard Keith Roberts netted 13 to lead Franklin.

The Patriots were outscored 19-7 in the final period.

CANTON 66, JOHN GLENN 50: Hal Heard, a 6-foot-5 senior forward, scored 20 points and yanked down 10 rebounds to lead Plymouth Canton (3-3) to the WLA victory over host Westland John Glenn (1-3).

Derrick McDonald contributed 18 points and eight assists. He hit four 3-pointers. Tony Coshatt and Mike Stafford contributed 13 and 11 points, respectively.

The Chiefs opened up a 34-16 halftime advantage and were never threatened.

Micah Orr scored 12 for the Rockets, while Kevin Champion and Kevin Claypool added nine each.

N. FARMINGTON 64, CHURCHILL 52: A big first quarter carried North Farmington (2-3) to the WLA victory Friday over visiting Livonia Churchill (1-4).

The host Raiders jumped out to a 22-10 first-period advantage and never looked back.

Jon Sturtis tallied seven of his team-high 22 points during the eight-minute surge. Mark Temple and Dean Pennaja added 13 and 11, respectively.

Senior center Keith Gullian, who has netted double figures in all five Churchill starts, scored a game-high 23 for the Chargers. Senior guard Marcus Sarnovsky added 14.

AVONDALE 76, CLARENCEVILLE 62: Five Livonia Clarenceville players scored in double figures, but it wasn't enough Friday as host Auburn Hills Avondale gained the Metro Conference victory.

Senior guard Dan Nunery paced the Trojans and all scorers with 17.

Other Clarenceville players in double digits included John Kalaj (12), Mark Kalaj (11), Tony Malinowski (10) and Mario Ivezaj (10).

Max Spankile tallied 16 for the victorious Yellowjackets, now 4-2 overall and 2-0 in the Metro.

"They put it to us in the third quarter," said Clarenceville coach Rob White, whose team was outscored 23-14 after trailing by only five at the half. "We started turning the ball over and we just didn't shoot well."

The Trojans were hurt at the outset of the second half when an apparent field goal was waved off because of offensive goaltending.

"They (the officials) said the ball was on the rim and Mario (Ivezaj) was called for a technical," White said. "It was a six-point swing."

REDFORD CC 72, U-D JESUIT 67: Redford Catholic Central's one-two punch of Bob Kummer and Chad Varga combined for 43 points and 22 rebounds Friday in a Catholic League Central Division triumph at University of Detroit-Jesuit.

CC is now 6-1 overall and 2-0 in the Central.

Kummer, a 6-6 senior committed to UNC-Charlotte, tallied a team-high 24 points (on three 3-pointers) and 12 rebounds.

Varga, the 6-5 senior who has signed with Richmond, added 19 points and 10 boards.

Marc Gondek added 12 for the victorious Shamrocks, who led 29-17 after one quarter.

Herman Jenkins scored a game-high 26 for the Cubs, while three others netted double figures including Julian Bonoer (13), Darnell Kalgler (11) and Rakhsah Roland (10).

S'FIELD CHRISTIAN 73, LUTH. WESTLAND 57: In a Michigan Independent Athletic Conference game played Friday, host Southfield Christian used a balanced attack to beat Lutheran High Westland.

The victorious Eagles were led by senior guard Jason Taylor, who scored 15 points, including nine in the opening period as Southfield Christian led 22-11.

Senior guards Christian Monea (14), Billy Boldt (11) and Charles Ryle (11) were others in double figures along with senior center Brent Pfeiffer (10).

Junior center Kevin Nelson topped Lutheran Westland (1-5, 0-2) with a game-high 20 points, including 10-of-10 from the free throw line. He also grabbed seven rebounds.

Senior guard Matt Grams contributed 10 points.

"We lost, but I'm relatively pleased that we started to play basketball like we can," Lutheran Westland coach Scott Wiemer said. "It wasn't a 16-point game."

Southfield Christian, now 4-2 overall and 1-0 in the MIAC, hit 25 of 55 free throws.

The Warriors shot an impressive 88 percent from the line (22 of 25).

Lutheran Westland pulled to within five points of the Eagles twice in the third quarter after trailing 42-30 at intermission, but couldn't get over the hump.

Plymouth Christian clips Huron Valley

By Darren A. Nichols
staff writer

After scoring the first seven points Friday night, one might have thought Westland Huron Valley Lutheran was going to run away with its boys basketball game against Plymouth Christian Academy.

That was before Jason Neil got started.

Neil, a senior guard, scored 25 points as Plymouth Christian rallied for a 64-37 win over Huron Valley Lutheran at Lowell Middle School in Livonia.

"After we scored the first seven points of the game, our offense was destroyed," Huron Valley Lutheran coach Dave Kolander said. "Our offense is designed to create points. Instead, we created the offense with the dribble. It was pathetic all day."

"Our guards couldn't handle the press and we executed our offense (only) once all night and got a layup. That's what was wrong."

Plymouth Christian coach Daniel Brandel praised his team's defensive effort.

"The key to winning this game was good defense," Brandel said. "We've been working all year on our (defensive) intensity and it's the key to our offense. We just tried to put pressure on the ball to make them work hard all night long."

Plymouth Christian got its first win of the season and improved to 1-6 overall. Huron Valley dropped to 0-5 overall.

Senior center Jeff Hess added 15 points for PCA, while freshman forward Andy Roose chipped in nine.

Forward Art Preibe led Huron Valley with eight, while center Aaron Thompson, who sat out the fourth quarter with a bruised knee, scored seven.

Huron Valley kept the game close until the end of the third quarter when the Hawks trailed 49-33.

PCA went on a 15-4 fourth quarter run that blew open the game.

pair of free throws and a basket with 6:18 left in the game to put PCA up 53-33.

Roose closed the run with a basket with 1:15 remaining in the fourth quarter.

All the Hawks could muster out of the quarter was a free throw by Shawn De Rutter and a three-pointer by Greg Hannewald with six seconds left in the game.

Huron Valley made a valiant effort to get back into the game with a late third quarter run that cut the Eagles' lead to eight with 2:56 left in the quarter.

Plymouth Christian had four straight turnovers during the run against the Hawks' press.

Gary Schmalz scored a basket that started the 8-0 run with 3:34. Priebe and Hannewald stole passes and scored to cut the lead to 40-30 with 3:15 left.

Doug Hartley scored to end Huron Valley's scoring in the run. Neil stopped the Huron Valley run with a jumper with 2:44 left in the quarter.

That was as close as the Hawks would get the rest of the game.

Plymouth Christian never trailed after the 1:56 mark of the first quarter when Neil hit a basket to put the Eagles ahead 11-10.

Huron Valley took a 7-0 lead with 6:28 left in the first quarter on a basket by Dave Page.

PCA COUNTERED with its own 7-0 spurt to knot the score with 5:22 left. A trey by Hartley put Huron Valley ahead 10-7, before a pair of free throws and a basket by Neil put the Eagles ahead for good.

They led 16-12 after one quarter.

Brandel was impressed with some things he saw on the floor against Huron Valley.

"I'm pleased with how we played," he said. "We've been growing every game this year, but we still have some room to grow. I felt Roose and Bhat came off the bench and played well."

"And of course, my captain, (Jeff) Hess played well. He controlled the game and provided stability."

NEIL OPENED THE run with a

Ocelot men's cagers falter at Alpena, 79-57

The word came down Tuesday, and it wasn't good: two players lost.

That's not as bad as it has been in the past for Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team. The Ocelots have lost as many as four players due to academic deficiencies at the mid-season semester break in previous years.

But the guys they lost this time will be costly. It showed Wednesday, when SC got pummeled by visiting Alpena CC 79-57.

"They didn't use any of their brains yesterday," said SC coach Dave Bogataj.

Much the same could be said of Mitch Fyke and Rahim Woodson for most of last semester. The two sophomores made up SC's starting backcourt; now they are sidelined because they didn't make grades.

Schoolcraft sports

Woodson, who had to deal with his grandfather's illness and subsequent death during the semester, may rejoin the team if he can make up a grade.

Their absence was noticeable against Alpena. The Lumberjacks forced SC into 31 turnovers. "It was horrendous," summed up Bogataj.

HE TOOK particular notice of how involved inside threats Scott Meredith and Jarvis Murray were in the offense. The team's top two scorers combined for just 14 shots, four in the first half.

"They went individual," said Bogataj of his team. "We're going to have to regroup. We are not going to beat anybody unless we cut our turnovers down and shoot close to 50 percent (from the field)."

The Ocelots did neither against Alpena. They made just 23-of-69 shots (33 percent) and were 1-of-8 on three-pointers (12.5 percent).

Tony Rumble replaced Woodson at point guard and unleashed 16 shots, making six and scoring 12 points. Chris Habitz was worse: 4-of-15 from the floor, 10 points.

Although Murray got off just six shots (making four), he led SC with 13 points and nine rebounds (five offensive). Meredith was limited to seven points and four boards.

Alpena, which improved to 10-7 overall and is 4-2 in the Eastern Conference, got 19 points from Bret Benvenuti and 16 from Jermaine King.

The loss left the Ocelots at 7-9 overall, 1-4 in the conference.

SC NOTES: Much has been made of the academic failures of SC's basketball team the past few years. With two key starters lost, this season seems no exception.

But the other end of the spectrum should also be noted. Chris Habitz, a freshman from Lutheran Westland, posted a 4.0 grade point during the first semester; four other Ocelots had 3.0 or better grade points, according to Bogataj.

Bumper bowlers take baby steps

THESE COULD be the youngest National Bowling Champions ever to appear in this paper. The results are in from the first National Baby Bumper Bowling championship held last week at Woodland Lanes in Livonia. First place went to Dazaro Ziegler of Detroit, who rolled a 107. Second place was an all-Livonia tie between Ryan Burger and Laurer Cetesky, each with a 103. Cassie Pegg of Plymouth was fourth with 92. Considering that the age limit for the tournament was 4 years, these scores represent quite an accomplishment. These are now the National Champions from the Midwest region. There were also tournaments being held in New York and California. Overall, the event was a huge success, especially for the little ones, who were treated to juice, cookies, balloons and lollipops. I'm sure that Al Winkel of Woodland Lanes would like to hold this tournament again next year. So if you have a small fry at home, get them ready for the next one.

Some bowlers may notice a difference in lane conditions lately. The new rules as specified in the "System of Bowling" officially went into effect Jan. 1. One rule calls for three units of oil on the outside lane surface. Many houses adopted the system early, however, there are those which opted to wait until the first of the year. The 29th Annual Greater Detroit Bowling Association Masters Tournament is almost here. It's one of the areas elite tournaments each year. It will take place at Century Bowl. Qualifying rounds will be on Jan. 18-19, with head-to-head competition slated for Jan. 21-26. It's an actual pinfall event, therefore, only top competitors can enter. For those who like to watch bowling at its finest, this is a fine way to do so. There's no admission charge. For further information, call the G.D.B.A. at 773-6350.

Dustbin is true to punk

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Although too young to have experienced it and they sure don't sound like it, the punk ethic lives with Ned's Atomic Dustbin.

Too often, we get caught up in whirlwind of images and sounds of the late 1970s era of music. Sid Vicious, safety pins through the nose and bodies and saliva flying with equal trajectory quickly come to mind as does the scratchy and snarling guitars and vocals to match with lyrics of angst and anarchy.

What tends to get overlooked is the insurrection that took place from within. For a brief period, music had been taken over by the masses — those who seemingly didn't know the difference between a guitar chord and an extension cord.

Those fledgling outfits persevered on the simplest and purest of inspiration: make and celebrate joyous noise.

Frankly, the history lesson is lost on Ned's Atomic Dustbin guitarist Garath "Rat" Pring a decade later.

"I don't think (punk) influenced us at all, really," said Pring, 21, from his home in Birmingham, England. "We were between the ages of 6 and 9. We listened to a little bit of it after."

"When we started we couldn't afford good equipment, so it sounded raw. It was sounded like we were punk. Basically, we are a pop band."

Though the band's upbringing is similar to a tradition forged by the Sex Pistols, Social Distortion and countless other bands, by no means is Ned's Atomic Dustbin a punk cliché.

SINGER JONATHAN. "Jon" Penney, bassists (yes, there's two) Alex Griffin and Matt Sweet, drummer Daniel Worton along with Pring formed Ned's Atomic Dustbin in college. Musicians they weren't.

Rather the band learned their craft bludgeoning Ramones records. They soon went out on the road, not bothering to turn up for class for two months and were eventually drop kicked out of school.

Maintaining a yeoman's schedule of gigs, they ended up on successive tours with fellow West Midland bands Wonder Stuff and Pop Will Eat Itself.

Undoubtedly, performing live only added more virulence to Ned's Atomic Dustbin's cataclysmic sound, which is largely careening melodic pop ditties driven by psychedellic buzz guitar. Lyrically, songwriter Jonn has an ardent sense of the absurd.

The rawness is detectable on both the band's debut EP, "The Ingredients," and its ensuing LP "God Fodder" on Columbia. Both are adequate representations of their music.

It's their belief, though, that the stage is the ultimate confessional for a band's commitment and passion.

"We built our reputation by playing live," said Pring, whose nickname "Rat" was given to him at age 2 by his mother. "We do over a 100 gigs a year where we've only been in the studio for about say 10 weeks during our whole career."

"IT WEARS on you. Personally, I think it's the best thing about being in a band. The enjoyment still there and there's still a high when you come off the stage if the gig has been brilliant. You get a kick out of it."

The game has changed from the heady days of punk. Alternative music is no longer alternative, increasingly dominated by major labels who use the term as a ruse for a farm system.

"A couple of years ago, if you were an alternative band in England you were alternative and you stayed there major or not. Now, there's no such bands like that anymore."

But, as Ned's Atomic Dustbin certainly prove, "The majors hasn't hurt it one way or the other," Pring said.

Ned's Atomic Dustbin will perform Monday, Jan. 13, at Industry, 15 S. Saginaw, Pontiac. Doors open at 8 p.m. Cover is $6. For information, call 334-1999.

REVIEWS

IDYLLS — Missionary Stew

Yes, they wear their hearts, souls and spirituality on their tattered sleeves of discontent. And, perhaps, they can be a tad maudlin. Missionary Stew may be forgiven for such transgressions, though.

Their pop sensibilities and musical craftsmanship — albeit some borrowed — more than sees them through on "Idylls," the local band's second release.

Missionary Stew has never been a band to use vague imagery and mixed metaphors to speak their case. Rather the five-man outfit uses the stringent confines of a pop song to explore contradiction and confusion within. The quest for spiritual solitude is often hard-fought battle in the Missionary Stew camp, never complete and always questioned.

From that end, this band neither proselytizes or panders to those of the Christian persuasion as evidence in the lyrics: "I said I would be true to you/ You needn't ask if I've been good/I can't go back on what I said," sings Dion Roddy from the confessional number "Can't Go Back" in a flawless voice tailor-made for pop music.

To hone in solely on this band's belief in "Him" and hastily categorize them as Christian rockers would be sorely missing the point and not accurate. Then again, not acknowledging the guiding light that drives this outfit would be an oversight. You just consider it part of the overall package.

Tight arrangements and sterling musicianship allow for that. Spanish trumpets open "Mystery," EMP-sounding keyboards segue way into personal solace in "Peace Like a River."

"No One's Cried for Me" is the band's sole blemish here, no check that, a splattered blot. This resembles a lounge-lizard's opus, complete with piano sounding like the keys were soaked in gin and down-and-out lyrics sung with vocals choking on stale smoke. This song, in particular, sounds out of character for a band of this talent. Perhaps one could surmise it was a joke.

Otherwise, "Idylls" is quite an accomplishment from a band that continues to evolve musically.

Option of free will is not available to abused

Ms. Schiff,

Thank you for letting the abuse speak out, if only in written words. I'm enclosing a poem I wrote one day while reflecting on the abuse taken by my mother.

*I'm old beyond my years.
I'm fearful and confused.
I walk alone, I'm no longer woman.*

*I'm a dark image of a body.
The loneliness has taken over.
Disoriented I cannot find my way.*

*This shadow is my inseparable companion.
I cannot lift my soul up to the light.*

*I'm lost forever.
I'm only a shadow of a woman.*

As a child, I could not understand nor could my mother tell me why she let this go on. The destruction it caused my siblings and myself for a while was overwhelming.

I thank God everyday for the love he has sent me. The man I married is also from an abusive family. Together we have had analysis and come to understand this chain behavior. We have found true love and a relationship with great meaning. The chain of abuse can be broken and I thank God we are two of the lucky ones. There is no excuse for abuse.

Grateful It's over

Dear Readers,

For the past few months we have heard from women who have experienced being victims in abusive relationships. They speak eloquently.

I would like to be able to say that this is not a gender-distinct problem and that men also feel stuck in such relationships. However, no man has written. I am hoping that some male reader will write to fill the void.

With the misgiving of knowing that this is a topic worthy of volumes, I will attempt to sum up.

The themes I hear in these letters is that women in abusive relationships feel helpless. Each feels they have no options. Because they cannot leave, then, the reasoning goes, the men must change for the relationship to be different. If neither partner can change, then it becomes the responsibility of our social institutions to enforce laws or provide support that will stop the abuse.

The first issue — the woman's lack of choice — is a question of the viability of free will. Are people self-determining? It seems that some are and some are not.

I assume that the women who have written to me on this topic are only the tip of the iceberg. If this many have written, then there must be many more, certainly enough that they cannot be considered outside the realm of normalcy.

There are then many for whom the option of free will is sadly not available. These women lack a self capable of being alone.

If you are reading this and having trouble understanding it because you are a person with a strong sense of self, then imagine yourself dancing, if you have no rhythm, or singing, if you are tone deaf.

No matter how hard you willed it, you couldn't make it happen. Maybe after a lot of teaching you could achieve some success, but without no amount of will could make you an adequate singer or dancer.

Could independence and/or a problem solving ability be something like that? My column that generated these responses asked whether or not it was luck, as a woman from Haven said, that led to a woman being in an abusive relationship.

I took the position that each one of us must take responsibility for ourselves. I said it was not luck. I do not feel as sure of that stand now. Is it the luck inherent in genetics which makes it possible for us to sing on key, dance to the music, solve problems or be independent?

As I have said, that is an issue worthy of volumes and still there would not be an answer to some of the worst problems.

Continuing with our original line of logic, the man should change for the abuse to stop. But must we not say the same of him as we have said a way to become independent. They are indeed the lucky ones. I can only hope that they will be an inspiration to those less fortunate.

In pondering this problem, I have become more aware of the large role luck plays in all of our lives. Again, thanks to all the women who have helped me better understand this problem.

Charles Bovary (Jean-Francois Balmer) takes his wife, Emma (Isabelle Huppert), to the opera in Claude Chabrol's "Madame Bovary."

'Madame Bovary' adapts to the screen beautifully

When Claude Chabrol set out to tackle a screen version of "Madame Bovary," he stuck close to his source — the classic novel by Gustave Flaubert.

"I decided to be absolutely faithful," the director has said in interviews. "All the dialogue, all the phrases from the film are taken, almost to the comma, from the book. I wanted to make a film that Flaubert could have made himself."

Along the way Chabrol has created a masterpiece of his own. Currently on screen at the Maple Theatre in Bloomfield, "Madame Bovary" is a beautifully realized examination of a woman breaking free of the restrictions of her time, escaping into passions that eventually lead to her destruction.

Isabelle Huppert plays Emma Bovary, the 19th-century tragic heroine who marries a doctor (Jean-Francois Balmer), has a child by him, but then finds herself trapped. She seeks the luxuries of lovers and shopping sprees that the family can't afford.

VETERAN director Chabrol has perfectly captured the rustic French villages of the previous century. He has also chosen actors who become breathing embodiments of their literary counterparts.

Huppert, who worked with Chabrol on the controversial "The Story of Women," has an amazing quality that allows her to look both plain and stunningly beautiful at the same time. She begins the film grim-faced, even after an elegant ball that she describes as the best time of her life. The depression returns. Emma seeks the help of the church, but the pastor only makes her feel guilty for her moodiness while the less fortunate starve.

Soon she allows herself to be swept off her feet by a smooth-talking aristocrat. Then she turns to a clumsy young romantic. Both turn out to be cads. When the first skips out on his promise to run away with her, Emma breaks down. Her husband fawns at her bedside throughout, neglecting his patients and throwing the family deeper into debt.

A master of turning the tables on moral issues, Chabrol obviously sympathizes with the henpecked Charles, but also points out the foolishness of blind sainthood. His puppy dog affection and lack of opinions grows grating. He's ignorant of the money that surrounds him in expensive carpeting, drapes and Emma's clothing.

LURKING throughout the film is a conniving Shylock who tempts Emma with imported finery from the big city. He allows her to use credit and when she can't pay, promissory notes and inflated interest sink her deeper and deeper into debt.

Huppert has called Emma Bovary "an eternal feminine archetype," a feminist before her time. In a time when divorce was out of the question, Emma used the resources available to her (mostly her conniving) to fly above the boredom.

Flaubert's characters are indeed timeless. The modern "born to shop" philosophy and reliance on credit cards proves that Emma Bovary still walks among us at suburban shopping malls.

SCREEN SCENE

DETROIT FILM THEATRE, Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, Detroit. Call 832-2730 for information. ($5)

"Rhapsody in August" (Japan — 1991), Jan. 17-26 (call for show times). Four children spend a summer with their grandmother, who shares with them her memories of brothers and sisters and her husband, who was killed by the atomic bomb explosion in Nagasaki. Richard Gere plays the woman's Japanese-American nephew in the opening film of the DFT's new season.

HENRY FORD CENTENNIAL LIBRARY, 16301 Michigan, Dearborn. Call 943-2037 for information. (Free)

"Romeo and Juliet" (Britain/Italy — 1968), 7 p.m. Jan. 13. Franco Zeffirelli directed perhaps the best film version of Shakespeare's classic romance. Stars Olivia Hussey and Leonard Whiting were just 15 and 17 at the time of filming. Laurence Olivier and Michael York also appear, along with a fabulous score by Nino Rota.

MAGIC BAG THEATRE CAFE, 22918 Woodward, Ferndale. Call 544-3030 for information. ($3; $2 students and senior citizens)

"Tune in Tomorrow" (USA — 1990), 8 p.m. Jan. 13-14. Based on the autobiographical novel by Mario Vargas Llosa, the story of a young radio news writer (Keanu Reeves), who falls in love with his scattered Aunt Julia. He receives advice for the love from a whacked-out scriptwriter in an over-the-edge performance by Peter Falk.

"Urgh! A Music War" (Britain — 1981), 11:30 p.m. Jan. 17-18. Priceless concert footage captures the early '80s' most innovative rock groups, including The Police, The Go-Gos, XTC, The Cramps, Joan Jett, Gary Numan, Pere Ubu and a wild guy named Klaus Nomi, who has apparently sunk into oblivion (along with many of the performers here) since the film was initially released.

MAPLE THEATRE, 4135 W. Maple, Bloomfield Township. Call 855-9090 for show times. ($6; $2.95 twilight)

"Madame Bovary" (France — 1991). French "New Wave" director Claude Chabrol tackles Gustave Flaubert's novel about Emma Bovary, whose longing for romance results in several lustful flings and luxury spending on borrowed money.

MICHIGAN THEATRE, 603 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call 668-8397 for information. ($5; $4.25 students and senior citizens)

"Jimi Hendrix on the Isle of Wight" (USA — 1991), through Jan. 17 (call for show times). The guitar legend is captured in concert just 18 days before his untimely death. Here, on England's Isle of Wight, he delivers a superb set including "Voodoo Child" and "Red House."

"The Bicycle Thief" (Italy — 1949), 7 p.m. Jan. 14-15. In post-war Rome, an Italian worker has his bike stolen, and his life is devastated. He and his son spend days searching for it in vain so that he can keep his job. Still one of the great ones.

STATE WAYNE THEATER, 35310 Michigan West, Wayne. Call 326-4600 for information. ($2; $1 children and senior citizens)

Double feature — "The Sound of Music" (USA — 1965) and "High Sierra" (USA — 1941), Jan. 15-19 (call for show times). In the first, Julie Andrews stars in the syrupy Rodgers and Hammerstein musical based on the life of the Von Trapp family, who fled from the Nazis in their native Austria. In "High Sierra," Humphrey Bogart has one of his best early roles as "Mad Dog" Earle, a killer with a soft heart. Ida Lupino co-stars.

WINDSOR FILM THEATRE, 2135 Wyandotte St. West, Windsor. Call (519) 254-FILM for information. ($4.25)

"The Adjuster" (Canada — 1991), Jan. 14-20 (call for show times). In the latest film from the talented Toronto-based director Atom Egoyan, an odd collection of stories unfold. In one, an insurance adjuster and his wife live in a grand house in the middle of nowhere. In another, a wealthy couple live out bizarre sexual fantasies through role-playing games. Definitely worth a drive over the bridge to check out.

Time to pound in new habits

True confessions! I used to be a professional dieter. People would ask — "do you watch your weight?"

I would respond — "Yes, I watch it go up, I watch it go down."

Most people think that when it comes to changing a lifestyle, dieting is like trying to afford, and find, food in a Russian grocery store — nearly impossible.

Do you think dieting is:

A SCOOP of cottage cheese on a canned peach half?

So much tuna that you feel like spawning when you cross a bridge?

Entering the local "diet club" and having the secretary call you by name and accept your check without identification?

TODAY WE embark on a new beginning. This writer will attempt to lose those last "15 pounds" that somehow popped up during the holidays.

Really folks, I went to bed one night and woke up the next morning with what is more commonly known as a "jellyroll."

I WISH I could blame those 15 pounds on the "fat fairy."

Nowadays, everyone seems to be telling us what and how to eat.

Can I help it if I love fish pan fried instead of broiled dry?

Roquefort on my salad is tastier than a splash of lemon.

You know what I'm talking about — butter always tasted better than diet margarine.

And I won't even mention those famed Janes Gang Dry Southern Comfort Manhattans knowing darned well they help change the numbers on the digital scale opposite the mortgage rates.

Anyone who has ever known me knows that when I start something, I finish it.

I'm stubbornner than a mule once my mind has been made up. I have willpower (I also have 15 extra pounds).

Want to know my secret? First let me tell you what I learned long ago — the first three letters in diet are die. I'm not into punishment, liquid potions and stair climbers.

There are a few things I try to accomplish when I start treating my body to good health. I'm an eternal optimist and I use many positive affirmations.

INSTEAD OF getting down on myself for indulging in too many peanuts on Super Bowl Sunday, I will congratulate myself for not eating the entire bowl.

I will control my eating and drinking, and reward myself with something nonedible like a massage.

THERE ARE a few eating habits I need to change, and I will resolve to change them.

Things like only eating when sitting down. I'm notorious for having one spoon in the pot and another in my hand.

I'll also work on eating three healthy meals a day with planned snacks rather than eating when I want to and where I want to.

The best change I resolve to make, however, is one that will reap the most benefit of all. I will continue eating well remembering that quality is far better than quantity.

I will not eat broiled dry fish, but one that has been pampered in the oven with herbs and exotic flavors of fruits and vegetables.

Cost will be of little object. I deserve the best, and will not judge fish solely by its price.

I won't have to eat a cup of cooked previously frozen over-rapped vegetables.

I can appreciate and enjoy the taste of fresh vegetables in season and cooked to perfection.

If you're in the same boat as me, we can do this, and we will — together.

Recipes

CHEESE SOUFFLE WITH MUSHROOM SAUCE

This easy to make recipe can be assembled ahead up to the point where the milk and butter are poured on top of the bread and cheese.

11 slices of bread, cubed with the crusts trimmed off (Pepperidge Farm Sandwich bread is recommended)

4 eggs, separated
2 cups milk
¼ pound butter or margarine
¼ pound New York sharp cheddar cheese, grated

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Place cubed, trimmed bread into a non-stick sprayed 2 quart size soufflé or high-sided baking dish. Sprinkle grated cheese on top of bread and toss to mix well. Heat the milk and add the butter. Once the butter is melted, pour the mixture over the bread and cheese.

Separate the eggs, beating the yolks briefly with a fork and then adding them to the bread and cheese mixture. Whip up the egg whites until they are stiff and form peaks and fold in gently with the other ingredients. Place the soufflé dish in a plate that is partially filled with water and bake in the oven for 45-50 minutes. When serving, spoon a small amount of the mushroom sauce on top of the soufflé. Serves six.

MUSHROOM SAUCE

1 package fresh mushrooms, washed and sliced, 8 ounce size
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 can cream of mushroom soup
Saute sliced mushrooms in butter. Sprinkle flour over mushrooms, stirring so as to prevent lumps. Pour in 1 cup of milk and stir until thickened. Add 1 can of cream of mushroom soup and heat thoroughly over low heat. Serve on the side or spoon over individual servings of soufflé.

BANANA NUT BREAD

¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup sugar
6 tablespoons sour cream
2 eggs, beaten
3 bananas, mashed
½ cup or desired amount of walnuts

Grease and flour a loaf pan. Cream the butter with the flour, baking soda and sugar. Add the sour cream, eggs, bananas and nuts. Beat until mixed well and pour into loaf pan and bake for 1 hour and 15 minutes at 325 degrees.

FRESH FRUIT SALAD

Cut up fresh fruit (watermelon, cantaloupe, honey dew melon, strawberries and sliced kiwi) and serve on a bed of lettuce.

"KINGWOOD SPECIAL" ICE CREAM BALLS

Always a favorite at Kingswood School Cranbrook, this is an easy dessert to make. Soften a carton of vanilla ice cream slightly. Using an ice cream scoop, make ice cream balls. Place each ball in a paper baking cup and store in a muffin pan. If ice cream balls get too soft, place in freezer until they have hardened and then roll tops of balls in pecans. Serve with heated Sander's hot fudge sauce.

Column works for households

As I begin this 100th Winner Dinner column, it is my sincerest hope that these columns have in some way helped solve the great "dinner dilemma" that occurs in many households on any given night.

As well as offering recipes and menus, they have also provided a way in which people can reach out and share what works for them.

I am filled with thanks and gratitude for the many people who have helped me turn a dream into a reality. For just as recipes are made up of many ingredients, so it was that with a dash of luck, a cup of advice, a quart of support and a gallon of work this column was cooked up.

It was just three years ago that I took an aptitude test at the Johnson O'Connor Research Foundation in Chicago and discovered journalism and creative problem-solving were two of my strongest aptitudes. That was big news to me, but somehow, just knowing that I could do something gave me new-found courage and confidence to proceed with the idea of putting together a cookbook of family-tested, everyday-type dinner menus complete with shopping lists.

This concept, born out of a desire to streamline the mealtime process — from meal planning and grocery shopping to putting dinner on the table, had been "cooking" in my brain for some time.

Thanks to the advice of a family friend, Geraldine McInerney, I revised my initial plan of writing a cookbook and decided to approach the Observer & Eccentric with the concept of doing a weekly column.

Dream became a reality on Monday, Oct. 16, 1989, when the first

'I would like to thank the many people who have supported this column by taking the time to submit their favorite menu. If it weren't for them, there would be no Winner Dinner Winners.'

— Betsy Brethen

Winner Dinner column rolled off the presses. As the letters and recipes started coming in, I began cooking up a storm. Another day, another dinner, until finally my three sons and husband started begging for my old meals. Ironically, the very same ones that they used to moan and groan about and refuse to eat. Initially, anyone who walked into our house was fair game for testing whatever creation happened to be bubbling away on the stove, including the boys' friends, neighbors, my son's drum teacher, and even the firemen who responded to my call for help when the dishwasher short-circuited and started smoking. Now, I usually test two or three meals a week — a compromise that has made everybody happy.

I would like to thank the many people who have supported this column by taking the time to submit their favorite menu. If it weren't for them, there would be no Winner Dinner Winners. Interviewing the weekly winners has been a delightful experience. Invariably, I have ended our conversation feeling so lucky to have had the opportunity to get to know a little bit about each one of them and their lives.

I would also like to thank my friends and family for all the love, support and encouragement they Picking three Winner Dinner Winners to reprint in celebration of the 100th Winner Dinner column wasn't easy — all of them are good.

But some stand out like Fish Haters Surprise, Italian Meatballs and Chicken Kebabs. Readers called to say they these were some of their favorite Winner Dinners.

I'm still hearing about the Write Your Own Winner Dinner — Sept. 9, 1991. We moved the Winner Dinner column from the inside of the Taste section to the front and something got lost — the Winner Dinner recipes. The error was caught in the middle of the press run and quickly corrected. Half of the papers had the recipes, half didn't.

The half that didn't get the Winner Dinner recipes called to find out if this was the new format. We must have gotten over 50 calls that day, and no one ever forgot the recipes again. Here are the recipes:

FISH HATER'S SURPRISE

Quick and easy, this recipe submitted by Debbie Wallis Landau of West Bloomfield on Feb. 4, 1991, provides a tasty and appealing way to get family members to eat fish. This recipe serves 4-6.

1½ pounds orange roughy or other mild, white fish
1 egg
½ cup low-fat milk
¼ cup or more seasoned Italian bread crumbs
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
Cayenne pepper, garlic powder and onion powder to taste, or other preferred seasoning, to taste
Canola oil

Beat the egg and mix in the milk and seasoning. Dip the fish fillets into the mixture. Combine the bread crumbs and Parmesan cheese and completely coat the fish with this dry mixture. Place the fillets in a baking dish sprayed with a non-stick coating. Drizzle a little oil on the fillets before baking.

Bake the fish at 325 degrees for 20 minutes. Then, broil for 3-4 minutes until browned, under a 500-degree setting.

RED, WHITE AND GREEN PARTY PASTA

8- or 12-ounce box of bowtie pasta
1 small bunch broccoli
1 large red bell pepper
2 cups fresh pea pods
4-5 large red radishes
1 bottle Wishbone Light Creamy Italian Salad Dressing or other creamy-type dressing of your choice, herb blend of your choice

Fresh parsley, chopped finely, optional
Boil the pasta until it is al dente, about 8-10 minutes. Drain and set aside.

Clean and separate broccoli into small flowerettes. Blanch in hot water for a few minutes or cook in the microwave until it, too, is al dente. Drain.

Wash and slice radishes into rounds and slice the red pepper into strips. Wash the pea pods.

Add vegetables to cooked pasta. Mix the herbs in with the dressing and pour over the pasta and vegetable mixture. Toss well and garnish with parsley. Serve in a glass bowl lined with red cabbage leaves.

WINTER FRUIT MELANGE

2 navel oranges
2 firm-fleshed fresh pears
1 jar spiced apple rings
1 tablespoon honey
1 tablespoon cinnamon
Peel and slice oranges and pears. Drain apple rings and set aside the liquid.
Combine fruits and place in an oval baking dish. Add 1 tablespoon honey and 1 tablespoon cinnamon to the liquid from the apples and mix well. Pour this over the fruit. It can be baked alongside the fish for 20 minutes at 325 degrees. Melange also can be made ahead, and it keeps well in the refrigerator.

Cheese soufflé with mushroom sauce, banana nut bread, fresh fruit salad and "Kingswood Special" are a winning dinner combination.

Attorney sets precedent in wine newsletter, books

Success hasn't spoiled Robert M. Parker, Jr. He is the most read wine writer in America. Even with the rigors of European travel, daily tastings and publishing a wine newsletter that started it all, he remains enthusiastic, upbeat and excited about wine.

We spoke with Parker while he autographed 600 books for people attending a tasting of 1989 Bordeaux sponsored by the Cloverleaf Market of Southfield at Detroit's Rattlesnake Club.

"I am a product of the Ralph Nader generation and I never tire of the chase," Parker said. He states emphatically that wine is pleasure and meant to be enjoyed. "If it isn't, you're drinking the wrong wine."

UNTIL 1984, Parker practiced corporate law in Monkton, Maryland. He followed the love of his life to Europe, married her and fell in love with French wine. By 1978, his love of wine had blossomed into a wine newsletter that he called "The Wine Advocate."

"Actually, I wanted to use the French word, avocat," Parker said, "which translates as lawyer or barrister. At first, I sent my newsletter free to my friends and anyone who was interested. When I retired from law, I made wine my full-time occupation. I am proud that I remain an independent critic, paying my own way on all European trips and paying out of my own pocket for 75 percent of the wine I critique."

"The Wine Advocate," with a circulation over 28,000 (including 4,700 foreign subscribers), is completely subscriber-driven. It is remarkable that Parker has been able to survive publishing an independent newsletter without one shred of ad-

focus on wine
Eleanor and Ray Heald

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

Although Parker ranks the 1989 Haut-Brion ($79) as one of the best of the vintage, at half the price we'll take the 1989 Cos d'Estournel ($38). Not all Bordeaux wines are this expensive. A visit to your wine shop will attest to that. Several values taken from the Parker tasting include: 1989 Boujeaux ($16), 1989 La Dominique ($22.80) and Phelan-Segur ($15.40). The best buy has to be the 1989 Grand-Mayne ($14.80), a rising star whose price has not caught up with its quality. (Prices quoted by the Cloverleaf Market, Southfield).

vertising revenue. It is evident by the twinkle in his eye and the pride in his voice that Parker is pleased that he is not a part of the wine trade, as are the British Masters of Wine, who have set wine opinion for the last 100 years. He is also happy that he, as an American (not British) has become one of the world's foremost wine critics.

PARKER, A prolific author of wine books, has written six books in as many years. His first book on Bordeaux, published by Simon and Schuster in 1985, was recently updated to include 2,700 tasting notes on the wines of 677 chateaux from the 1961 through 1990 vintages.

"I learned about the wines of Burgundy and the Rhone Valley first, but I established my credentials more easily by writing about Bordeaux," he said.

Parker has also published books on the wines of Burgundy, the Rhone and Provence, and a consumer buying guide that is the most popular of the lot.

"Bordeaux vintages can be divided into heat-wave years producing wines with richness and early drinkability (1981, '82, and '87) and years producing hard, concentrated wines (1986) that require patience," said Parker.

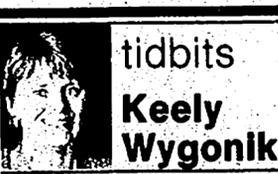

Of the 1989 Bordeaux wines tasted, Parker prefers the Chateau Haut-Brion and Chateau Lafite-Rothschild. However, since he knows that not many people can afford these classic renditions, he is quick to point out good values. For more affordable Bordeaux he likes the 1989 La Dominique and Grand-Mayne.

Parker is well known for his opinion that there are "too many disappointing California wines." However, he does find many distinctive California zinfandels. Perhaps this is because there is no French counterpart for comparison!

DEVILED STEAK STRIPS
3 pounds sirloin steak, cut 1 inch thick

Devil's Sauce
Garnish — cherry tomatoes, parsley, peppers and mushrooms

Remove bone, trim steak. Cut into 1 inch strips, three inches long. Combine Devil's Sauce ingredients. Line baking dish (10-by-15-by-1) with foil; brush well with sauce. Lay steak strips on top; brush sauce over exposed surfaces. Roast in hot oven (425 degrees) 30 minutes, brushing with sauce every 5 minutes. Arrange on serving platter. ## ITALIAN MEATBALLS

A family favorite for two generations, this recipe for Italian meatballs and spaghetti sauce submitted by Sandy Futterknecht of Bloomfield Hills on Dec. 24, 1990 is delicious and easy to make. Double the recipe and you will have enough for two meals.

- 1/2 pound ground beef
- 3 slices very dry brown toast or 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs, combined with 1/4 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons parsley, chopped finely
- 1 clove garlic, chopped finely
- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper

Combine all ingredients and work together until thoroughly blended. Form 12 balls and fry them slowly in a small amount of oil until brown.

Do not turn the meatballs until they are absolutely browned.

Add several tablespoons of water to the skillet and with a spoon scrape the drippings and add them to the sauce. Simmer the meatballs slowly in the sauce for about 20 minutes.

ITALIAN TOMATO SAUCE FOR THE SPAGHETTI

- 2 cans tomato paste, 6-ounce size
- 1 can Italian tomatoes, 20-ounce size
- 2 tablespoons butter or oil
- 1/4 cup onion, chopped finely
- 1 clove garlic, chopped finely
- 1/4 cup celery, chopped finely
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon granulated sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/2 teaspoon oregano
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 cup parsley, chopped finely
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/4-1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 cup fresh mushrooms, sliced

Italian meatballs

Saute onion, garlic and celery slowly in butter or oil for about 5 minutes.

Put the tomatoes through a food strainer and discard the seeds, or simply crush the tomatoes with hands until they are broken apart into pieces. Add the tomatoes and tomato paste to the onion, garlic and celery mixture.

Add all the other ingredients, except for the baking soda and mushrooms, and simmer in a covered saucepan for about 1 hour. If you are adding the baking soda, cook at least 4 hours on low if the soda is omitted.

Stir often to prevent scorching. Then add the meatballs that have been browned on all sides and simmer, covered, for about 30 minutes longer, or until the meatballs are tender. Mushrooms may be added during the last 15 minutes of cooking.

Baking soda should be added 10 minutes before the sauce is done. Baking soda helps neutralize the acidity in the tomatoes, making the sauce more palatable. Add the soda, a very little at a time, and cook the sauce several minutes longer. Taste and add more soda if needed.

If the sauce should become too thick, a little water or stock (beef broth) may be added as needed. If the sauce is too thin, cook the sauce uncovered for about 15 minutes. This recipe serves 4-6 people.

CHICKEN KEBABS

This quick and easy-to-assemble dish was submitted by Toni Johnson of Birmingham on Jan. 11, 1990. With a little bit of supervision you can delegate and let your children make up their own kabobs. This recipe makes four to six kabobs, depending on the size of the vegetables that you use.

- Kebabs
- 1 1/2 pounds boned chicken breast, cut into 1-inch chunks
- 2 large zucchini, sliced thickly and halved

- 12 cherry tomatoes
- 1 red pepper, cut into 1-inch strips
- 3 onions, quartered
- 8-9 large mushrooms

- Marinade
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 1/4 cup red wine
- 1 clove garlic, pressed

Marinate the chicken alone in the marinade. The longer the meat marinates, the tastier it will be. However, it can be marinated for just a few minutes and still have a delicious flavor. Peel and quarter the onions and microwave them for 2 minutes. Thread the skewers in this order: chicken, onion, cherry tomato, zucchini, mushroom and red pepper. Place the skewers in a 9 x 13-inch Pyrex baking dish and cover with some of the marinade. Cook on a hot grill for 5 minutes on a side, turning once after brushing the kebabs with more marinade. Remove the meat and vegetables from the skewers and serve over the rice, spooning more marinade on top, if desired.

RICE WITH CELERY AND ONIONS

This rice dish is so delicious. It is practically a meal unto itself. 1 cup converted long grain rice. 2 cups chicken broth. 1 head celery hearts, coarsely chopped, leaves and all. 1 large onion, coarsely chopped. 1 heaping teaspoon instant chicken bouillon. Bring all the ingredients to a boil and simmer, covered, for 20 minutes. Remove from the heat and let the rice rest until all the moisture is absorbed.

MAGIC COCONUT PIE

This dessert is easy to make and so delicious! 2 cups milk. 1/4 cups sugar. 1/2 cup biscuit mix. 4 eggs. 1/4 cup butter or margarine. 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla. 1 cup shredded coconut. Combine milk, sugar, biscuit mix, eggs, butter and vanilla in a blender. Blend on low for 3 minutes. Pour into a greased 9-inch pie pan and let stand for 5 minutes. Sprinkle with coconut and bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes. Serve warm or cool.

Column helps solve dinner dilemma

have extended to me. My mother, Virginia Chester, patiently listened to each column as I finished it, offering suggestions as needed. My husband Chip has always believed in me and supported by efforts. Finally, our three sons have been good sports as well as great Winner Dinner taste testers.

Speaking of friends and family, how appropriate it is then that the 100th Winner Dinner Winner, Nancy Strickland, should be not only a dear friend but my sister-in-law as well. A kind, loving and special person, Strickland is married and the mother of three children.

Raised on Grosse Ile, she graduated from Kingswood School Cranbrook and Michigan State University. She has lived in the Birmingham area for the past 17 years.

With her children involved in sports programs and music lessons, Strickland spends a lot of time shuttling them from one event to another. A supportive and involved mom, she is a grade representative on the Cranbrook Kingswood Middle School Mothers' Council and was instrumental in helping coordinate an intramural hockey program that was recently started at Brookside School Cranbrook.

Strickland enjoys playing tennis and golf, and is crazy about animals. Her family has one dog, two cats, a gerbil, four newts and some goldfish. Although she enjoys cooking, she doesn't do as much as she used to, as her children prefer simple foods.

The menu that she submitted features easy recipes for cheese souffle served with a mushroom sauce, banana nut bread, fresh fruit salad and "Kingswood Specials," which are vanilla ice cream balls rolled in nuts and served with hot fudge sauce. It is a definite winner, and one well worth making.

Thank you Nancy Strickland, for sharing your recipes with us, and congratulations on being selected the 100th Winner Dinner Winner. Enjoy your well-deserved apron and all the best to you and your family.

As 1992 begins, and in the spirit of the season, I would like to offer a toast to all my dear readers and their families that this year will bring them much good health, happiness, and of course, lots more Winner Dinners!

Submit recipes to be considered for publication to Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012.

All submissions become the property of the Observer & Eccentric newspapers. Each winner receives an apron with the words "Winner Dinner Winner."

DILLED ZUCCHINI SOUP

- (serves 4 at 71 calories per serving)
- 1 1/2 teaspoons olive oil
- 3 cups shredded zucchini
- 3/4 tablespoons dry milk powder
- fresh ground pepper
- dill to garnish
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1 1/2 cups chicken broth
- 1 1/2 teaspoons dill weed
- 4 tablespoons plain yogurt

Heat oil in medium saucepan over low heat. Add onions and cook until they are softened (about 5 minutes).

Add zucchini, broth, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Transfer to a blender and puree until smooth. Using a wire whisk, whisk in milk, yogurt, dill weed and pepper. Heat, then ladle into bowls and top each bowl with 1 tablespoon plain yogurt and a garnish of fresh dill. Great chilled, too!

CHICKEN TARRAGON

- (serves 4 at 185 calories each)
  - 4 - 4 oz. boned chicken breast halves, skinned
  - 4 tablespoons chicken or beef broth
  - 1 tablespoon tarragon, crushed
  - the juice of 1/2 lemon or 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- In a non-stick skillet, heat broth until it is reduced by 1/2. Add chicken breasts and saute over medium high heat for 2 minutes on each side. Sprinkle with crushed tarragon and just before serving, sprinkle with lemon juice to create a glaze from the dehydrated pan juices. Serve immediately.

RASPBERRY SPRITZER

(6 servings at 77 calories)

Serve guests Sherried Pears

AP - Next time you're entertaining, whip up Sherried Pears, easy and elegant dessert that fits your low-fat lifestyle.

SHERRIED PEARS

- 3 medium pears
- 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 cup cream sherry or port
- 1 tablespoon margarine or butter, cut up
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- Vanilla ice milk (optional)

Halve pears lengthwise; remove cores. Place halves, cut side down, on a cutting board. To fan pears, make lengthwise cuts from blossom end to, but not through, stem ends. Place pears, cut side down, in a 10-by-6-by-2-inch baking dish.

In a small saucepan combine brown sugar, water, sherry or port, margarine or butter, lemon juice and cinnamon. Cook and stir over medium heat until heated through; pour over pears. Bake, covered, in a 350-degree F oven for 35 to 40 minutes or until tender, spooning sauce over pears occasionally. Makes 6 servings.

each. Replace the champagne with club soda and save 35 calories per serving!

- 3 cups fresh raspberries (or frozen, unsweetened, thawed)
- 6 tablespoons boiling water
- 1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/4 cups club soda
- 1/4 cups well chilled champagne or dry white wine
- 6 lemon peel strips

Mix raspberries with boiling water in a bowl. Mash berries to release juices. Pour into a large bowl through a strainer lined with cheesecloth. Let stand until raspberry liquid has drained completely (at least 1 hour). Stir fresh lemon juice into the liquid. Just before serving, combine raspberry liquid with soda and champagne or wine. Pour into glasses. Garnish with lemon peel.

TWICE BAKED POTATOES

- (serves 4 at 90 calories each)
- 4 - 4 oz. baking potatoes, scrubbed

- and prebaked
- 4 tablespoons plain yogurt
- 1 teaspoon dry beef flavored bouillon
- 1 green onion, chopped fine

Split potatoes. Remove as much of the meat as possible and mix meat with remaining ingredients. Mix well. Divide evenly and place in potato shells and pop under broiler for 3 minutes or bake at 350 degrees until lightly browned.

BAKED APPLES OR PEARS

- 2 delicious medium apples

- 2 Bosc or D'Anjou pears (medium)
- 1 cup of your favorite fruit flavored diet pop
- cinnamon to taste

Split pears and apples, core and place face down in an ovenproof casserole. Pour diet pop over the fruit, sprinkle with cinnamon and bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes or until tender. Can easily be microwaved on high power for 10 minutes, covered. (Also great frozen after being baked.)

Ultralite flirts with 100 mpg

By Janice Tiger-Kramer special writer

VISITORS TO the North American International Auto Show who expect to see experimental cars that combine high performance, impressive fuel economy and state-of-the-art engineering won't be disappointed with GM's newest offering: the aerodynamic Ultralite concept car.

GM's 1,400-pound sedan, with a fuel economy rating of 100 mpg on the highway at 50 mph, made its debut during the show's press days this week.

Helping to achieve outstanding fuel use is the car's feather-weight body (only 420 pounds) made of carbon-fiber composites. Ultralite is 165 inches long — the same as the Mazda MX-3 — with a wheelbase comparable to the Lexus LS 400. It easily seats four adult-size passengers, with interior room similar to the Chevrolet Corsica.

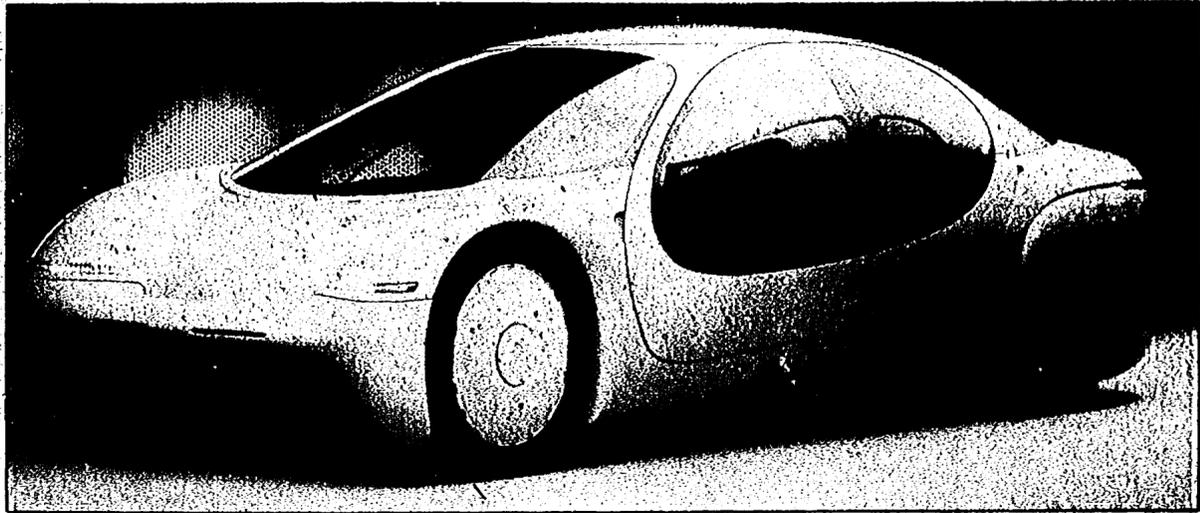

Ultralite's experimental 1.5 liter, three-cylinder, two-stroke engine enables the car to accelerate from zero to 60 mph in under eight seconds. The engine, transaxle, exhaust and suspensions are housed in a detachable power pod — possibly giving the driver the option of choosing an electric or gas turbine powerplant, said James Lutz, advanced engineering staff program manager for Ultralite.

EFFICIENCY IS evident in the car's heating, ventilation and air conditioning system, which filters out dust and pollen. Insulation properties in the car's outer body material result in less work for the system, which is housed toward the back of the car's central tunnel.

Ultralite's electronic suspension adjusts to an ideal ride height on the highway. Depending on the car's speed, the automatic, computer-controlled leveling system will slightly lower the car's front and rear to reduce air drag.

"A lot of the gains we made in fuel economy can be traced directly to the chassis systems," Lutz said. Inside, Ultralite is designed for driver comfort and convenience. Seats made of Duofix are thinner and lighter than conventional seats. The material actually reduces road vibration. The speedometer and other gauges are lit with the latest in technology.

Ultralite — the fourth in a series of fuel efficient, environmentally sensitive concept cars designed by GM — has a short hood and tapered shape with gull-wing doors adding to an overall high-tech look.

Prominent, low rolling resistance Goodyear tires on 18-inch wheels add to the car's appearance and fuel efficiency.

"CONCEPT CARS that look like bubble-topped motorcycles have been done," said Gary Dickinson, technical staffs group vice president. "We wanted to take a shot at designing a fuel-efficient vehicle with real-car passenger utility and comfort."

Charles Jordan, GM's vice president in charge of the design staff, added: "It's tough developing an efficient aerodynamic package for four people. It's even tougher turning that package into an exciting car."

Don't expect a car like Ultralite in dealer showrooms soon. For now, carbon fiber — a lightweight, sturdy material used in the aerospace industry — is hard to manufacture and too expensive to use for large-scale automotive applications.

Carbon fiber, though lighter and more rigid than aluminum and steel, costs several times more than either material. The material alone for Ultralite's body would cost about $13,000 today.

"It is just these hurdles we hope to someday overcome," Dickinson said. "But the Ultralite project is only the first step in the process."

Foreign car makers unveil newest designs

HERE'S THE lineup of some of the new and redesigned foreign-made passenger cars you'll see at this year's North American International Auto Show:

● ACURA VIGOR

Introduced in March, the all-new 1992 Vigor fills a niche between Acura's Integra and Legend models. Vigor is a four-door sports sedan. It includes a 176-hp, 2.5-liter, five-cylinder engine, five-speed manual or four-speed automatic transmission, independent double wishbone suspension, anti-lock brakes, driver's-side air bag, leather seats, wood trim and a high-end stereo system.

● AUDI 100

The all-new Audi 100 is powered by a 2.8-liter V6 engine. It is available in both front and four-wheel drive models. The mid-size Audi 100 begins the three-model series, the 100, S and CS sedans. The 100 is bigger inside and heavier than the car it replaces by some 250 pounds. It has a sculpted, more vertical profile supported by a slightly broader, more aggressive stance.

● BMW 325i

Detroit will see the worldwide introduction of the 325i coupe, a spinoff of the 325i sedan. Many specs for the coupe are the same as the sedan, such as a 2.5-liter, 24-valve dual overhead cam, incline six-cylinder engine with a recyclable one-piece fuel tank. The 325i has increased interior leg room with improved exterior aerodynamics. Safety features include a standard driver's-side air bag and an impact sensor to automatically unlock doors and turn on interior lights after impact.

● GTB1

Produced by Monte Carlo Automobile Co., this car will make its North American debut in Detroit. It is the world's first car made completely from carbon with closed cells and flexible honeycomb, the same technology used in Formula One, Indy cars, Group C and IMSA GT sport racing cars. Only 100 will be made at the rate of 10 per year. The power unit will be a 12-cylinder engine by Carlo Chiti, formerly of Alfa Romeo.

● INFINITI

The newest addition to the Infiniti line goes on sale this spring as a 1993 model. The J30 has twin projector beam headlights, a broad hood and a wide grille. The luxury sedan also has a sloping trunk, full-width tail lights and an integrated bumper. Standard are power door locks, remote keyless entry, Bose audio system, in-dash disc player, driver's-side and front passenger-side air bags and anti-lock brakes. It is powered by a 3.0-liter, dual overhead cam, 24-valve V6 engine.

● JAGUAR XJ220

This 200 mph super car marks its North American debut in Detroit. It topped 212 mph in speed trials at the Fort Stockton Proving Ground in Texas, making it the world's fastest production car. Only 350 will be built by JaguarSport at Bloxham, England. It will not be sold in the U.S.

● MERCEDES 600SEC

Mercedes-Benz will unveil the 600SEC at the Detroit show, the first worldwide introduction by Mercedes in the U.S. The two-door coupe is powered by a 402 hp, 6.0-liter V12 engine. The car will be available in two versions, the V12-powered 600SEC and the 500SEC, which comes with a 322 hp, 5.0-liter V8. Both ultra-exclusive four-seater coupes are offered as 1993 models.

● MITSUBISHI

● Eclipse — The worldwide introduction of the re-skinned 1992 Eclipse will be in Detroit. The Eclipse lineup will have a choice of three engines, two transmissions and either front or all-wheel drive. The Eclipse and Eclipse GS are powered by a 1.8-liter single overhead cam engine. The GS features a 16-valve, 2.0-liter dual overhead cam engine with two intake and two exhaust valves per cylinder to increase combustion efficiency. Eclipse GS Turbo has a front-drive; the GSX has all-wheel drive. Power-assisted four-wheel disc brakes is standard equipment on all models.

Mitsubishi Eclipse is re-skinned for 1992.

Finding Your Way

You might need some help finding your way around the 1992 North American International Auto Show. Now in its fourth year, the show will feature more than 40 manufacturers displaying 750 vehicles. This map shows where the exhibits will be located at Cobo Conference/Exhibition Center.

Fit for kids

Chrysler will offer the industry's first integrated child seat as an option in 1992 Dodge and Plymouth minivans. When ordered, two child seats are integrated into what looks like a regular bench seat. With an action similar to pulling down a center-mounted arm rest, and raising a head restraint, the child seat and its safety belt system are exposed.

Students play creative part in car design

By Janice Tigar-Krajer
Special Writer

WHEN PONTIAC and Michelin decided to look for some innovative ideas for the next generation cars, their first stop was the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit.

For a class called Advanced Viscom (or visual communications), 12 Transportation Design majors were asked to work on two separate projects: design a Pontiac Grand AM for the 1996-97 model year and design two concept cars for prototype Michelin tires.

The results — which judges call "outstanding examples of creativity" — will be displayed in separate exhibits at Detroit's North American International Auto Show Jan. 11-19.

The student designers showed their work and met automotive designers from General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, Toyota, Nissan and BMW at a Michelin-sponsored reception at the school.

"Students in our design classes are often asked by automakers to stretch the original design of a car by adding youthful imagination," said Sandra Braden, CCS's executive assistant to the president.

PONTIAC'S ONLY guideline for their project was to design the Grand AM from the exterior to interior, the opposite way automotive designers generally work.

Working in reverse, students were able to familiarize themselves with the car's outer body before planning inside details. Besides that, the senior design students had carte blanche, said John Manoogian, chief designer at Pontiac's Exterior Studio No. 1.

"We asked students for their most creative solutions to problems without being concerned with cost or technology. We wanted them to try designs they normally wouldn't try for business," Manoogian said.

What Pontiac got were creative drawings (done in felt tip pen and black tape) that often "pushed the envelope of acceptance," said Manoogian, who added, "That's exactly what we wanted."

The Michelin project gave students even greater freedom, since they were developing a car from imagination, not redesigning an existing one.

Michelin told students to design an "advanced-looking" electric car and a high-speed luxury coupe for which it was developing tires. The results were futuristic, aerodynamic vehicles "that stretch the imagination," said Carl Olson, chairman of CCS's Transportation Design department.

LOCAL WINNERS in the Michelin design competition were Kyle Houchens of Rochester Hills, second place electric car, and Minnhut Truong of Southfield, third place electric car. Winners earned $1,000 for first place, $750 for second, $500 for third. The project was judged by designers from Michelin, Pontiac, Ford and Chrysler.

car drawings at the Detroit auto show four years ago when the show was granted international status.

Olson, who lived in Europe before coming to CCS, knew the importance of the international shows in Geneva, Tokyo, Frankfurt and Paris and wanted his students' work exhibited before a worldwide audience here.

"Our designs stretch the limits of technology — feasibility is a small concern," Olson said. "The most important element our student designers can bring to the automotive industry is creativity."

Transportation Design students at the Center for Creative Studies put their skill and imagination to the test in a Michelin-sponsored contest to design an electric car for prototype tires. Above, a drawing by Kyle Houchens of Rochester Hills won second place ($750). Left, a drawing by Minnhut Truong of Southfield won third place ($500).

(Visitors to the auto show can see the student's Michelin project at the Michelin display, between Volvo and Suzuki. The Pontiac project will be in the CCS display, between Mazda and Lamborghini.)

New, redesigned U.S. nameplates spotlighted

The 1993 Dodge Intrepid offers a cab-forward design inspired by Chrysler concept cars.

Second of two parts.

HERE WE continue our look at most of the new and redesigned American-nameplate cars you'll see at this year's North American International Auto Show:

● CHEVROLET

● Camaro — Camaro celebrates its 25th anniversary in 1992 with a special exterior appearance option called the Heritage Edition package. The package, available on all models, includes anniversary emblems and bold hood and deck stripes, a body-color grille, black headlamp pockets and body-color wheel treatment. All 1992 models include an anniversary emblem on the instrument panel. Driver's-side air bag is standard.

● GEO Metro — The Metro, the smallest of the four GEOs, gets a new dashboard and a redesigned front and rear end for 1992.

● CHRYSLER

● Dodge Intrepid — The 1993 model offers a cab-forward design inspired by Chrysler concept vehicles. It combines performance, passenger room and value in a family sedan.

● Eagle Vision — The 1993 model will showcase a new Chrysler designed and built 3.5 liter, 24-valve V6 engine, electronic traction control, anti-lock brakes and four-wheel independent suspension.

● Chrysler Concorde — The 1993 model will combine cab-forward design, luxury and safety. Significantly larger rear doors provide easier rear-seat entry and exit, a major cab-forward benefit. Driver and passenger air bags will be standard on these Chrysler triplets, which will go into production in June at the Chrysler Bramalea (Ontario) Assembly Plant.

● Eagle Summit Wagon — Eagle's all-new, five-passenger wagon comes with front-wheel-drive or all-wheel-drive. Summit Wagon comes standard with a 1.8-liter, 16-valve, multi-point electronic fuel-injected engine. A five-speed manual transmission is standard.

● OLDSMOBILE

● Achieva — This compact model replaces the Cutlass Calais. The all-new Achieva comes as a two-door coupe or a four-door sedan. There are four engine options, including a high output Quad 4. The radio antenna in the SC model is built in the rear window for durability. Computer Command Ride system, which automatically adjusts the suspension, is optional on all models.

● Cutlass Supreme — The new base model is Cutlass Supreme S, replacing the Cutlass Supreme. The Quad Four engine is eliminated. The new base engine is a 140 hp, 3.1-liter V6. Look for slight interior and exterior changes including a redesigned instrument package.

● Eighty-Eight — The Eighty-Eight model gets a complete remake with modern styling, new interior, anti-lock brakes, driver's-side air bag and a more powerful V6 engine.

● PONTIAC

● Grand Am — The new Grand Am is dramatically redesigned with two new engines, across-the-line standard anti-lock brakes and a sedan with improved rear seating. New powerplants include a 2.3-liter quad overhead-cam four-cylinder engine with multi-port fuel injection and a 3.3 V6. Grand AM coupes and sedans have their own roof design and flush-mounted side window glass with door upper frames that wrap into the roof for better entry and exit. Sedan rear windows retract completely into the door. All models feature flush body-color door handles. A new low lift-over trunk makes loading easier. All models feature improved acoustics and new instrument panel designs with large, easy-to-read analog gauges.

● Bonneville — Pontiac's flagship gets a new exterior, interior and supercharged V6 for SSEi models, air bags and optional traction control.

The 1993 Eagle Vision will include a new Chrysler designed and built 3.5-liter, 24-valve V6 engine.

Cobo Exhibition Hall, Detroit. January 11 to 19.

Quality Network

The Quality Network is people. General Motors people working together to conceive, design, build, and sell great cars and trucks. Cars and trucks that look better, are more fun to drive, and provide greater value to their owners.

Men and women representing GM assembly and powertrain plants in North America, as well as our technical center, will be on hand at the Auto Show to answer your questions and listen to what you have to say.

Straight talk straight from the factory floor will help you learn more about the quality cars and trucks these dedicated people are building for General Motors.

You'll find them at the Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick, Cadillac, and GMC Truck exhibits. Tell them what you like. Tell them what you don't. Tell them what you want. Maybe we should call it the Auto Show and Tell.

Environment takes stage at auto shows

By Dan McCosh
special writer

THE WORLD'S great auto shows have always been a stage for new machinery, a place where an incredibly complex industry meets to strut, posture and take sideways glances at its competition.

But a dramatic change is in evidence this year, as major auto shows — Frankfurt, Tokyo and now Detroit — take on some of the trappings of a political convention as well.

Issues important to both the auto industry and general public have been influencing both the speeches and the cars on display. For perhaps the first time, the auto manufacturers not only want to interest people in their wares, they want to be listened to.

The change emerged first at West Germany's Frankfurt auto show, held last spring — as usual, the first major European show, the gathering that traditionally provides the litmus test of new automotive technology heading for the world's markets.

For decades, Frankfurt has been the venue where horsepower wars begin, where roadholding claims are argued and the major Italian designers demonstrate why every major auto manufacturer in the world turns to Turin for advice on how a proper car should look.

THIS YEAR, the theme was air pollution. A decades-old issue in the United States, dating back to ancient talk-show jokes about Los Angeles smog, air pollution in West Germany was identified strongly with the observed decimation of trees just a decade ago — a circumstance that quickly led to the establishment of the so-called "greens," a political movement that quickly attracted such a large following, it became one of the strongest common grounds transcending countries and political parties.

In fact, Europe has lagged decades behind both the U.S. and Japan in adopting catalytic converters, setting emission standards and experimenting with alternative fuels. A good deal of the pro-environmental rhetoric has been aimed at the European auto industry as a result, and has escalated to include charges that even the no-speed-limit German autobahn network is wasting fuel.

The need to refute some of these charges, and promote the notion that Europe's auto industry is in fact socially responsible, prompted the green theme to emerge full-blown at Frankfurt this year.

Virtually every manufacturer sought, with some success, to point to an aspect of the business that solved some environmental problem or other.

VOLKSWAGEN AND BMW unveiled new electric cars, and both companies claimed to have solved the problem of re-acquiring and re-using plastics. Volkswagen went so far as to announce it was opening a re-manufacturing plant that ultimately would take in old Golf models, strip them to their basic components, and put them back in the materials stream.

Not all manufacturers found it easy to embrace the theme. Mercedes, introducing a 4,000-pound, V-12 luxury sedan with a sticker price in excess of $125,000, struggled and squirmed, then brightly pointed out that its 200-mph exotic sports car on display was made of aluminum, hence could be recycled.

Regardless, the tone was set, and a few months later, at Tokyo, the Japanese pulled out all the stops.

The Tokyo Auto show, where U.S. and European manufacturers normally expected to be scared to death by new Japanese gadgets and auto technology, became a showplace where U.S. and European manufacturers were scared to death by a plethora of electric cars, new engines, experimental transmissions and even one concept car claiming 100 miles per gallon.

IT WAS fairly easy to dismiss the Japanese demonstrations as a public relations effort. Japan has been notoriously lax in enforcing its own environmental laws against industrial pollution and late in assessing Tokyo air quality.

But in recent years, this has been changing rapidly, with stiff laws and stiffer enforcement changing the industrial climate substantially. Underlying the Tokyo displays was the reality that most of the cars were headed overseas anyway, and it was crucial that Japanese cars stay current with the demands in the

Issues important to both the auto industry and general public have been influencing both the speeches and the cars on display. For perhaps the first time, the auto manufacturers not only want to interest people in their wares, they want to be listened to.

U.S. and Europe.

All of which leads up to Detroit, which has emerged in recent years as a major forum for world auto issues, as well as a stepping-off point for new hardware.

The "green theme" pursued at Frankfurt and Tokyo is being shipped wholesale to Detroit, where U.S. consumers will get their first look at the likes of Nissan's and BMW's electric cars; the Honda high-efficiency engine; and even Mercedes and Audi's outrageous, but all-aluminum sports cars.

BUT IT'S a theme that mixes uncomfortably with the reality of the U.S. market today. In fact, the auto analysts that gather in Detroit to debate current issues will be addressing the trade-offs that ultimately will follow a spate of environmental legislation — nothing like the wholesale embracing of the concept that emerged at Tokyo and Frankfurt.

In the midst of a deep recession, and anxious to rekindle public enthusiasm about cars in general and the 1992s in particular, the Detroit show this year ends up as a more traditional marketing onslaught, rather than a public issue forum.

Leading the way is Chrysler, which is anxious to quickly gain notoriety for its new intermediate, due out in mid-year, and an all-new Jeep model that will be built in the new Jefferson Avenue plant. The new models are being pitched as the cars that will "save" Chrysler, and sales acceptance is certainly critical to the survival of the company.

Likewise, the new Ford Taurus, GM intermediates and new Ford and Chevy trucks represent the largest investment in new models seen in several years.

IN THE background is ongoing debate in the U.S. Congress about extending emission standards or tightening fuel economy requirements. The U.S. already lives with the tightest safety and emission standards, and manufacturers are resisting any further legislation.

The result is an odd conflict between hoopla and a general celebration of new models intended to lead the industry out of the doldrums, and a plethora of concept cars making a political statement from Europe and Japan.

The green theme that emerged in Germany, and gained so much momentum in Tokyo, arrives in Detroit to confront glitz and hardware. The result is likely to add some drama to Detroit's effort, an underlying conflict that should make Detroit the most interesting of all.

Pontiac's seventh concept car, the Salsa, makes its worldwide debut at the Detroit auto show.

All-weather to convertible: Salsa boasts multiple faces

PONTIAC'S SALSA, Pontiac's seventh concept car in as many years, will make its worldwide introduction in Detroit.

The concept car features chameleon-like transformations from an all-weather, five-seat hatchback to a five-seat convertible or a two-seat panel delivery.

The fluorescent orange concept vehicle measures 70 inches at front and rear tires and 155.6 inches front to back.

Salsa's glass treatment includes a bronze-colored windshield along with driver and front passenger windows that feature outside rearview mirrors mounted right on the glass. It also has dual-intensity neon stop, turn and tail lamps enclosed in black lenses.

The sliding cargo drawer and drop gate, which can be opened when the drawer is fully extended, makes for easy rear storage. The drawer slides in and out and can be latched on each tooth of its track to lock in a number of positions.
