Topple Thomas' fliers fuel feud

Mayor Thomas is the target of a political flier critical of his performance. A police union leader defended the mayor and dismissed the flier's contents, saying the publication was probably the work of a few disgruntled DPS employees.

Campaign fliers attacking Mayor Robert Thomas have fueled a fierce dispute between his supporters and critics, signaling an increasingly bitter clash as the two sides head for a showdown in the Sept. 14 primary.

Urging voters to "topple Thomas," the fliers stop short of endorsing any of Thomas' five opponents. Instead, they encourage Westland residents to "vote for anyone but Mayor Thom-

The controversial campaign fliers are signed by a so-called ABC committee, which stands for A Better Community. No specific names appear on the literature.

The fliers attack Thomas on several fronts:

They accuse him of being anti-labor for bringing in non-union contractors last winter to clear snow from city streets. Thomas has said he hired the outside workers because not enough employees from the public services department were available during what he termed a snow emergency.

Program revision knocked

By Leonard Poger

A divided Wayne-Westland school board approved Monday a major revision and decentralization of the alternative education program for secondary school students.

But the board and administration which recommended the program to start with the opening of school Aug.

30 face a legal challenge from the Wayne-Westland Education Association, which represents nearly 1,000 teachers in collective bargaining.

A union leader said "we'll take you to court" if the new alternative education program is approved before the restoration of the elementary expressive arts program, cut by the board in May after voters rejected a millage renewal proposal.

The WWEA has already filed grievances relating to that and the claim that the union wasn't involved in the summer discussions which led to the recommendation for a revised alternative education program.

At one point, Superintendent Larry Thomas and union president Bill Reece sparred verbally on whether the WWEA was asked last spring to take part in the discussions for a new program.

Thomas claimed that he tried to involve the union but was told that teachers don't work during the summer months when an informal task force was meeting.

"You're a liar," said Reece, saying that while he got some 400 calls from teachers during the summer, he didn't get any from the administration.

The revised program is for secondary school students who have experienced academic or behavior problems in a traditional school setting.

Earlier in the 31/2 hour discussion, Reece criticized the school board for its budget priorities, saying the board

Police suspect same person in robbery, theft

The same person is believed to be responsible for targeting two elderly women during a robbery and a theft that were reported during a two-hour span Friday evening at a Westland strip mall, police said.

The thief appears to have been aided by an accomplice during one of the two incidents that occurred at Wildwood Plaza on the northwest corner of Ford Road and Wildwood, just west

The first incident occurred shortly after 4 p.m. when a 76-year-old woman reported that she was robbed of her purse while walking from the strip mall to her nearby apartment, police reports said. The woman, who had been shopping at Farmer Jack in Wildwood Plaza, was walking near the west side of the strip mall parking lot when a young man asked if she needed help carrying her groceries, police reports

The woman refused, prompting the man to threaten her with what appeared to be a toy handgun, police said. The man warned that he would shoot her, the woman told police.

The victim tried to escape by stepping through a fence that separates the strip mall parking lot from a nearby apartment complex, but the thief seized her purse and ran away, police reports said.

The woman reported that her purse contained keys, an address book, her identification and some loose change.

She told police that she believed the thief was the same person she had seen a short time earlier inside the Farmer Jack store. After the robbery, the woman recalled that she had seen the man inside the supermarket buying a toy gun, police reports said.

Worker's obscenity upsets woman

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A Westland woman who supports Mayor Robert Thomas said she was appalled that a city worker yelled obscenities at her for posting a Thomas campaign sign in her yard.

Carol Griffin, a Venoy Road resident, said a public services department worker recently drove by her house in a city truck and yelled "f--- Thomas" at her.

Griffin's comments during Monday's Westland City Council meeting came amid strained relations between the Thomas administration and some DPS workers, who have accused the mayor of harassing them because they don't support his bid for a second four-year term.

Thomas has rejected the claims and said his administration has clamped down because some DPS workers have been ignoring work

Griffin lashed out at DPS workers Monday, calling them "nothing but a bunch of juvenile delin-quents." She called the alleged comments made by the DPS worker "degrading."

"If that is what we have working for us, that's a sad situation,' she said.

One DPS official, Bruce Guertin, said the administration has "a real good idea" of who yelled the obscenities, but cannot prove it unless provided with more information, such as a city truck number.

Griffin vowed to try to get the number if the incident is repeat-

"I will, next time, if I have to chase it down," she said.

"I have never seen anything like this in my life," Griffin said. "It's mudslinging."

Another Westland woman told the council Monday that she recently saw a DPS truck being driven west of Lilley Road in Canton Township, and she questioned why the city vehicle would be outside of city limits.

Guertin, superintendent of construction, maintenance and motorpool, said he has confirmed that a DPS foreman was driving the truck but "was within the parameters" of his job.

Guertin said some DPS supervisors live outside of Westland city limits. He declined to elaborate on the incident.

Thomas, embroiled in a dispute with DPS workers, drew support from several speakers at Monday's council meeting. Thomas is being opposed in his re-election bid by council members Kenneth Mehl and Charles Pickering and mayoral hopefuls Doug Noel, Kenneth Raupp and Louis Teler-

On Monday, Mehl indicated the mayor orchestrated the turnout of pro-Thomas supporters at the council meeting.

Thomas disputed Mehl's claims and said he can't control what citizens say when they address the council.

Thomas repeated an offer, made several months ago, to have political statements edited before council meetings are broadcast on Channel 8 WLND, the city's governmental channel.

Pickering reiterated his opposition to such a move.

"We can't control what they say, but we're certainly not going to censor what they say," he said.

Churchill grad killed, senior hurt in shooting

AND MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITERS

Churchill High School graduate Nick Kavalos, 18 of Livonia, was shot and killed late Sunday in a northwest Detroit neighborhood where he had reportedly gone with a friend to sell a car.

Daniel Deckard, 17 and a Churchill senior who lives on Ramblewood in Livonia, was reported in fair condition Tuesday in the intensive care unit at an area hospital, also suffering from gunshot wounds, a spokeswoman reported.

Detroit Police confirmed the victims' names but gave few details on the shooting or their investigation.

Visitation for Kavalos will be noon to 9 p.m. today at the Fred Wood Funeral Home, 36100 Five Mile.

Funeral services are 10:30 a.m. Friday from the funeral home, then Sts. Constantine & Helen Greek Orthodox Church in West-

Surviving are his parents, Dimitrious and Sofia Kavalos; a brother, Pete; and two sisters, Irene and Emily.

Kavalos' parents were vacationing in Greece when the shooting occurred and were expected back

Churchill High principal Rodney Hosman remembered Kavalos, who graduated in June, as a "free-spirited young man" who "liked to wear baggy pants and did his own thing.'

"He was very easy-going," Hos-man said. "He wanted to graduate and run the station for his dad.

Kavalos reportedly was shot near his father's Detroit gas sta-

Both Deckard and Kavalos were shot in the same incident, a relative of Kavalos said.

Deckard reportedly received wounds in the head and neck.

Kavalos died from a gunshot wound to the head, according to a spokeswoman for the Wayne County Medical Examiner.

Detroit Police reported discovering Kavalos lying on the street about 10:50 p.m.

A red, 1993 Ford Escort, reported stolen from Livonia Aug. 4, was found at Shirley and Buena Vista — about 30 feet from Kavalos — with a smashed window and punched steering column, police said.

Livonia Police confirmed that the car belonged to a Redford woman, but said they had no information from Detroit Police whether the stolen vehicle was related to the shooting.

Pete Kavalos said his brother and Deckard were together Sunday night.

News reports said that a customized Jeep-like vehicle with large, built-in stereo speakers, apparently owned by Kavalos, figured in the shooting.

Police reportedly are searching for the vehicle, which the Churchill principal recalled as Kavalos'.

On Tuesday, members of the Deckard family declined to discuss the shooting.

A neighbor, Doug Masura of Ramblewood, said the family moved into the neighborhood in 1976, when Daniel still was a little boy.

"I've seen him cutting the grass and washing the car," Masura said. "They were good people. This is bad news."

Ex-board member opposes school tax hike request

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

Two people associated with Livonia Public Schools have now spoken out against the one-mill property tax increase on the Aug.

Many attending Monday's school board meeting were dismayed when James Merner, a former board president and school board member from 1978-1985. stepped to the podium and read a four-page statement outlining his opposition to the millage.

'After seven years of non-involvement, why do you attack now?" asked former trustee Carol Strom. "Where were you in March, July, when budget decisions were being made? You are arriving late on the scene as a self-appointed expert. This will only create confusion among the voters. Your motive and timing is questionable. Abandon this illtimed and ill-advised campaign and join your neighbors.'

After Merner spoke, 18 supporters of the millage strode to the podium to support the millage, which, if passed, will restore sports and extracurricular activities and certain other elementary programs cut in the 1993-1994 LIVONIA

Anti-millage campaign

School board trustee Joe Laura. absent from Monday's meeting, also opposes the millage proposal on which Westland residents in the Livonia school will help de-

Billboards proclaiming "no new taxes" have sprouted up around the district. The billboards are paid for by a "no new taxes" committee, of which Merner is the treasurer. Also on the committee is David Parr, a member of Livonia's Zoning Board of Appeals. A spokeswoman for the city planning department said Parr recently sold his Livonia home, will shortly step down from the board and will soon move to Northville.

Merner had asked school administrators to compile information showing the district's finances for the past few years. The chart prepared by Mike Furlong, finance director, gives an historical overview of the district's finances starting with the 1980-81 school year. Merner had asked for the following:

Percentage of pay increases given to Livonia teachers.

Revenues for each year.

Expenditures for each year. Whether expenses exceeded revenues, or vice versa. ■ The fund equity, or rainy day fund, for each year. In preparing his statement read to the trustees, Merner said he used information gleaned from the chart.

Yearly deficits claimed

Merner said the district's financial woes can't be laid solely on the doorstep of the state.

The chart shows the district has engaged in deficit spending every year since the 1987-1988 school year.

"This district has operated in the red for seven consecutive years," Merner said. "During that period of time, revenue to this district has increased 46 percent. If we add the $12 million you have taken from reserves, the revenue has increased more than 60 percent. The consumer price index for the same seven years has only increased 37 percent. Simply put, this board and boards before it have outspent the consumer price index by 30 percent.

"Ladies and gentlemen, you don't have a revenue problem. You have a spending problem."

In that seven-year period, Merner said, the cost of teacher contracts jumped 63 percent.

"You simply cannot expect the taxpayers of this district to pay more taxes on top of that when districtwide test scores are not improving substantially," he said.

What happens next?

By seeking extra tax money Aug. 30 in an "ill-advised" special election, the district is exacerbating a funding problem that will only get worse in the years ahead, Merner said.

"It does not require a rocket scientist to expect the state solution to funding public education will provide this district with less funds than before," he said. "You will undoubtedly want to ask us to pay taxes above the money that the state provides. Unless you get the district's spending under control and fully defensible, we will not trust you to wisely use more

"In order to gain the taxpayers' trust you must micro-manage every single penny. You must test every single line item and what it produces against the demands of your only two customers: the kids in the schools and the entire taxpaying population.

Superintendent Joseph Marinelli said it's easy to criticize in retrospect, when all the facts are

"We gave it our best shot. Who knew that the tax freeze and taxbase sharing would come?'

Each year the district dipped deeper into its fund equity, Marinelli said, to avoid having to ask taxpavers for more money

Board actions defended

The chart shows the district had its most fund equity — $12.2 million — in 1986-87. It went downhill every year after that, ending with $845,169 in 1992-93.

Westland resident John Hill, a frequent board watcher, said his hours spent at board meetings showed him that the trustees "do a reasonable job" in managing

"The school board is not the guy causing the problems, they are the victims," Hill said. "The governor wants to take our money and spread it around the state. I trust you guys; I don't trust the state.

Paul Terek said he couldn't think of a better investment than the one-mill tax increase.

It's unfortunate that education in Michigan is in turmoil, but the kids shouldn't be punished because of this, said Bob Biga.

Laura Hudy, Stevenson High School senior, said athletics and education are inseparable. "You can't have one without the other," was the slogan printed on her Tshirt.

Former trustee and city council candidate Pat Sari said the board had the responsibility to put the millage question on the ballot.

"I believe we have been fiscally responsible," Sari said. "At no time have we levied all the millage we are entitled to by the com-Saying that no one knows what will happen next year, when the new school funding is in place, Cathy Pare urged residents to give students "one last good year.'

City man ordered to trial in 3-year-old girl's death

By Jay Grossman Staff Writer

Troy District Judge Dennis Drury responded both as a judge and a father last Thursday in the case of persons from Westland and Detroit involved in a police chase in Troy that ended in the death of a 3year-old Warren girl.

As a judge, Drury ordered the men to stand trial in Oakland County Circuit Court.

Calvin Billingslea, 44, of Detroit and Donald J. Gimotty, 30, of Westland are charged with first-degree murder in the death of Nichole Thibodeau. They are charged with first-degree murder because the fatal accident occurred during the commission of a felony.

'As a parent . . . ," Drury told the men during their preliminary examination in 52-4 District Court. "I guess it's my hope you spend the rest of your life in prison without parole."

If convicted of first-degree murder, the two men face a sentence of life in prison without the possibility of parole. The July 24 chase began after the two men allegedly stole a rack of dresses from the Winkelman's clothing store at 13 Mile and Woodward in Royal Oak. Both men are also charged with two counts of retail fraud. Gimotty is accused of driving a Ford Thunderbird and leading police on a high-speed chase through four cities before crashing at the intersection of Maple and Dequindre. The Thunderbird smashed into a brown Oldsmobile being driven by Nichole's mother, Lisa Ann Sarles, who was hospitalized after

One witness, John Maestri, estimated the Thunderbird was traveling at speeds of up to 90 mph before running through a red light at the intersection. "When he passed me, my car rocked side to side,"

Maestri testified. Perhaps the most difficult testimony came from Madison Heights police officer Steve Worton, one of the first people to arrive at the accident scene.

Worton said he was roughly a half-mile behind the Thunderbird when it crashed. Fighting back tears, the officer described on the witness stand how he tried to help Nichole and her mother.

"The little girl was belted in a booster seat," he said. "I undid the belts . . . I did not move the child.

She needed paramedic help.' The two men tried to run away but were quickly apprehended. A prisoner at the Oakland County Jail testified Wednesday that while he was in the prison infirmary, he overheard Billingslea congratulating Gimotty "on his driving skills." Asked if the two men showed any remorse, the prisoner said they were only sorry they were caught

Leukemia patient seeks bone marrow donor

By Susan Rosiek Staff Writer

Ken Otto is an ambitious young man looking forward to a bright future as an electrical engineer.

The 20-year-old Thurston High School graduate will be a junior this fall at Michigan State University where he plays trumpet in the Spartan Marching Band.

This summer, he's working two one full-time; one parttime — to pay for the upcoming semester.

Ken works hard and studies hard say his parents, Diane and George Otto. And right now Ken's family and many friends are also working hard to ensure that the young man has a fighting chance at that bright future.

Ken was diagnosed with chronic myelogenous leukemia in March. And although the disease is being kept in check with medication, doctors have said the "only real hope is a bone marrow transplant."

Costly search

The family's health insurance will cover the cost of the transplant for Ken and the donor. But first a donor must be found and the search is expected to cost more than $100,000.

The Ottos, who live in a comfortable but modest brick ranch house on Crosley Street in Redford Township, need help raising the money. They have a younger son, Larry, 16, who will be a senior at Thurston this fall.

George Otto, who grew up in Redford Township and graduated from Redford Union High School, is an environmental engineer at Ford Motor Co.'s Milan Plant. Diane Otto, a former Westland resident and Franklin High School grad, works as a media assistant at Addams Elementary School in South Redford, The family are members of St. Gemma Cathoic Church.

George Otto said it has cost $5.000 just for Harper Hospital to activate the search on the National Registry. There are many other registries and other fees.

Hope overseas

The family has a glimmer of hope with a donor in Austria who at this point is a partial match. But further tests which will cost more than $1,300 - must be conducted and the match must be "The closer the match, the better the chance for recovery," said George Otto, who is asking people to stop by a donor drive on Friday at the Southfield Civic Center.

The drive, from 7:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., is sponsored by the Southfield Chamber of Commerce. The drive will benefit Ken and Jeremy Leach, another leukemia patient.

Those between the ages of 18 and 55 who are in good health and willing to give about a tablespoon of blood to be tested are needed at the Southfield Civic Center, 26000 Evergreen Road. The drive will be held on the pavillion on the first floor.

'Because more and more people are going to need bone marrow transplants as many people as possible should get to these drives. Bone marrow transplants are being used to cure many different types of cancers. This isn't experimental anymore and people need to understand," explains Geroge Otto.

Finding a match, however, is "a very involved and very expensive process," he says.

Thanks to a large extended family and many supportive friends, Diane Otto says the family is coping. But it's been a rough few months.

"We were devastated. We cried, we prayed, then we panicked," she says.

They panicked because because one of the doctors who initially examined Ken and confirmed the diagnosis, told the family they'd have to find a physician to treat

Finally a friend put the family

Ken is being treated now by physicians at Beaumont Hospital and says he feels fine. He'll return to MSU in a few weeks.

He knows at this point there's nothing he can do but remain optimistic. He has spent the summer working full-time painting schools in the South Redford School District. He also works part-time at Efficient, Assembly & Packaging Corp. in Livonia.

"irresponsible for letting this happen and that the administration is irresponsible for recom-mending it," referring to the alternative education program changes.

The new program will have some 240 ninth through 12 graders who were previously housed in the Cherry Hill Center in Inkster returned to the home high schools.

The administration said the revised program would have a proposed budget of $671,700, or a savings of $455,100 over the previous year's costs.

But board president Francis "Bud" Winter questioned the value of spending that much money for what boils down to one specific alternative education class per day when compared to the expressive arts program which would benefit some 7,000 elementary school students.

His comments echoed those of Robert Kowalczwk, WWEA executive director, who questioned the board not only on the priorities of budget cuts but potential contract violations.

Winter, a former Wayne Memorial High School principal, stressed that he has always been a strong advocate of the alternative education program and even initiated a scholarship program for students in the program. But he said there were problems in developing the revised program.

Board vice president Mathew McCusker also voiced a complaint on another point - that the board should have had an informal study session on the program before acting on it.

Supporting the program, although some board members had questions about details, were McCusker, Richard LeBlanc, Vicki Welty, Laurel Raisanen, and Leonard Posey. Opposed were Winter and Patricia Brown. ... The new program, formally called Multi Ventures Program, will be headed by Ronald Somers, named Cherry Hill Center administrator during the past school Under the new program, students will have a full day of school instead of being confined to the 12:30-4:30 p.m. schedule followed in past years. The students will also be required to be in class every day. There will be a contact with the student or family if there is any absenteeism.

The administration said it is increasing students' expectations in the new program under the new attendance rules.

Group hopes to force vote on school finance

As state lawmakers scurry to replace $6 billion in school property taxes, a suburban group wants to put the brakes on wiping out property taxes until new revenue is in place.

Citizens Alliance for Responsible Education is seeking 129,000 petition signatures to force a November 1994 public vote on Senate Bill 1, which Gov. John Engler is scheduled to sign into law this (Thursday) morning at Greenfield

"Don't dismantle the system without something to replace it,' said Vicki Barnett, a co-founder of CARE. "We need to provide a safety net that the Legislature failed to provide."

 ${\bf CARE\ is\ tri-partisan\ -\ Demo-}$ crats, Republicans and Perot adherents. Barnett is best known as chairwoman of the 11th Congressional District Democratic organization and sometime legislative candidate. But she insists business types are supporting the effort because they are unable to plan finances under the new law.

Barnett is running CARE from her home in Farmington Hills. For petition forms, phone (313) 478-0942. Fax number is (313) 473-6441.

'Put it on hold'

In two hectic days July 20-21, the Legislature passed SB 1 repealing use of the property tax for school operations effect July 1, 1994. Property taxes provide about two-thirds of public schools' $9 billion in revenue.

They constitute 65 percent of total property tax bills.

So far, the Legislature has not decided how to replace the lost revenue. Under the Michigan Constitution, they apparently may replace only $3.8 billion of state replacement taxes. The other CARE co-founder is state Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, who voted against the bill, "The concept of property taxes for funding education is not unfair; it's the level of reliance on property taxes that is unfair,' said Faxon, a veteran of school funding battles.

Barnett said-the petition drive, if successful, wouldn't repeal SB 1 but would "put it on hold until the public can vote on it in November 1994. It's a status quo

She said that if the Legislature fails to provide replacement revenue by majority vote by Dec. 31, lawmakers will need a two-thirds supermajority to do so in 1994 because the replacement law will require immediate effect.

Barnett likened the governor's and Legislature's action to a pilot's deciding to land a plane and dumping out the fuel tanks to

Youths value freedom after Venezuela trip

By Joanne Maliszewski Staff Writer

When they arrived back in the United States, the comforts of home were all the more appreciated.

'America has so much freedom. We would ride down the street - one trip was 36 hours - we would get stopped by military men,' said Beth Heneveld, 17.

Heneveld and her friend, Becky Wroblewski, 17, no doubt appreciate the comforts, freedoms and conveniences of home, but they wouldn't mind taking another trip to Venezue-

The Canton residents just got home after a month in Maracaibo. Venezuela. No. it wasn't designed as a vacation. The young women were on a mission.

'Our task was to bring Christianity to the city of Maracaibo. We were presenting a drama to the people. It was an allegory a simple story with a deep meaning," said Wroblewski, a Canton High School graduate. "It was a mime. It was about how Jesus was crucified, but the story was actually about a captain building a ship. It was symbolism.'

Wroblewski and Heneveld get the idea to go to Venezuela while on a weekend retreat last year called "Acquire the Fire."

They encouraged us to go on this mission trip. That's how e got started," said Heneveld, who will be a senior at Canton High School.

help of their church, Christ Community Church on Ford Road, the pair had enough money to make the trip. "Our church really hasn't had a mission for people to go anywhere. Our families were very supportive too," Wroblewski said.

Venezuela was chosen because Heneveld, daughter of Christ Community Church's pastor, Harvey Heneveld, had taken four years of Spanish. "I kind of have a thing for Spanish people. I thought it would be hot there so we could get a tan, she said.

Ninety young adults - divided into three teams of 30 each - presented their drama five or six times a day. But their work wasn't limited to Maracaibo. They traveled to villages and were scheduled for their presentations by local churches. Often the visitors did their work in the streets or in neighborhoods.

"I don't know if it was because we were American. But people were open to us. I think maybe they were because they knew we had come all this way," said Wroblewski. who said Wroblewski, who will attend college in January and study criminal justice.

No doubt, Heneveld and Wroblewski appreciated the enthusiasm and interest. "It was like America,' nothing Heneveld said. Added Wroblewski: "Here we would have been mocked.'

Not only was their trip to Venezuela a mission of Christianity but an adventure as Wroblewski recalls sleeping - they stayed at the best Maracaibo Suites hotel - with a cockroach on the ceiling right above her bed. Drinking the water, of course, was out of the question, but they learned about a different way of life.

"When I first got out there, I had major culture shock," said Heneveld, who with Wroblewski agreed their blonde hair turned some heads.

Maracaibo's modern style surprised the pair as much as the poverty in which they found some people — and even pets.

'I had just gotten done eating Chinese food. I didn't have enough money for lunch the next day so I thought I would pack up what was left. I then saw a woman with a baby. She motioned her hand to her mouth. I gave her the food. It really broke my heart. I don't like to see those kind of things,' Wroblewski said.

Heneveld's parents told her about the poverty she would see. "People suffer a lot. In the streets you would see the skinniest dogs. People don't have enough to feed them. Kids would walk down the streets naked."

There was another side they also saw. Wroblewski and Heneveld expected to bring home some native jewelry and other items, for example. Heneveld came home with Gap jeans — $5 a pair. "Everything is so American.

Rotisserie chicken business: hatches high-flying success

By Susan Steinmueller Staff Writer

Tom Shoan says he used to eat lot of fast-food hamburgers while living the life of a commuter and working in downtown Detroit.

But then he discovered takeout rotisserie chicken. He and wife Michele liked it so much that in July they opened their own rotisserie chicken place.

"We kind of crafted the restaurant after what would be the best for us, because we were sick of fast food and hamburgers,' said Shoan, whose T. Shoan's Rotisserie Chicken in Troy also provides homemade side dishes. "We were also concerned about our own health. You can't eat McDonald's-type foods five days a week.'

Shoan's restaurant is part of a newly hatched boom in the sale of rotisserie chicken.

From restaurants to grocery stores, in the past couple of years the sale of non-fried chicken has been one of the fastest-growing segments of the food industry, according to reports.

Flying high

Perhaps nowhere is that more evident than in the high-flying success of the Boston Chicken chain. The takeout restaurant offers slow-roasted, marinated chicken and freshly made dishes to go with it.

The first Boston Chicken opened in Massachusetts in 1985. and the firm grew to 36 outlets.

But since three entrepreneurs took over the chain in 1992. Boston Chicken, based in Napierville, Ill., has grown to 145 outlets, and plans on ending 1993 with 245 restaurants, according to marketing vice president Warren Ellish.

'We're doing very, very well," said Ellish. "I think the biggest thing is we offer our customer what they are looking for - tasty food, convenience, service and a good value.'

Boston Chicken opened the first of its 12 Michigan outlets in Livonia in September of 1992. It now has locations in Plymouth, Southfield, Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills. It plans to open a restaurant in Troy in August and in Rochester Hills in Novem-

Chef Larry Janes, who writes for the Eccentric Newspapers, said he enjoys rotisserie chicken. even if its not homemade.

He noted that rotisserie chicken is cooked in its own juices, which is a step beyond broasted chicken, which is cooked under pressure with fat.

And it tastes good. "The Janes Gang has tried it, and would definitely do so again," he said.--

State House approves toughened seat belt law

The Associated Press contribut-

Police would be able to stop vehicles if they suspected a young passenger wasn't wearing a seat belt under a bill that squeaked through the House last week.

Lawmakers voted 55-44 to send the Senate a watered-down version of a bill that originally would have let authorities stop any motorist who wasn't buckled up.

Rep. James McNutt, R-Midland, confined the bill to children age 15 and younger. That means drivers will continue to be shielded from police stops just because they're not wearing a seat belt.

Rep. Dianne Byrum, D-Lansing and sponsor of the legislation, called the move a compromise with lawmakers who otherwise felt the bill took a big bite out of individual rights.

"This is a better law than what we had," she said. "The driver of the vehicle is responsible for the passengers.

House buries bill

Punishment doesn't fit crime, reps say

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

The House of Representatives derailed a package of bills allowing police to impound property.

The state Senate designed the bills to improve law enforcement along state designated trailways. Senators responded to fears that trail users would vandalize, steal from and trespass on private property bordering the trails.

"That's an awful big remedy," objected Rep. Michael Nye, R-Litchfield, an attorney. we're going to go heavy-handed after misdemeanors."

Open house scheduled

The Wayne County Regional Education Service Agency is hosting an open house and ribboncutting ceremony for the Wayne County Environmental Learning Center 10 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 24, at 5454 Venoy, Wayne.

The center will be open to school groups, community groups and the general public to participate in educational and recreational programs.

For more information, call 467-tle Creek, a former police officer: "We give 90 days in jail and a $100 fine for a misdemeanor, but here we would allow a $20,000 vehicle to be taken (confiscated by law enforcement officials). That makes no sense at all."

The bills had been reported out by the House Local Government Committee, but Tuesday the full House sent them to the Tourism and Recreation Committee.
"We don't want them," said

Rep. John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township, a member of that committee. "(Chair Tracy) Yokich (D-St. Clair Shores) wants 'em. We'll just refer them to another committee.'

In a key roll call, the House voted 74 to 26 to send the Senate Bill 313, by Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, back to Yokich's committee. Geake's bill would authorize county boards to pass forfeiture ordinances.

Voting yes (to send the bill to committee) were: Republicans

Added Rep. Bill Martin, R-Bat- Barbara Dobb of Union Lake, Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills, Shirley Johnson of Royal Oak and Greg Kaza of Rochester Hills and Democrats William Keith of Garden City and Richard Young of Dearborn Heights.

Voting no were Republicans Penny Crissman of Rochester, John Jamian of Bloomfield Township, and Jerry Vorva of Plymouth and Democrat Maxine Berman of Southfield.

Missing the vote were Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, Justine Barns, D-Westland, and Deborah Whyman, R-Canton.

Other bills in the package would grant forfeiture powers to regional park boards (SB 312), charter villages (SB 314), general law villages (SB 315), townships park authorities (SB 316), home rule cities (SB 414) and township boards (SB 415).

The bills had been endorsed by the state Department of Natural Resources and the Michigan

The bills would allow a law enforcement officer to impound a vehicle and any property on or in it where use of the vehicle had been prohibited.

The county prosecutor would have to give notice of the impoundment. A court could order the confiscated property returned to the owner or forfeited. The judge also could order the violator to restore damaged public or private property — including stream banks — restored.

Area judge to head national council

By RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

Wayne County Probate Judge Milton Mack Jr. has been elected president of the National Association of Regional Councils for a one-year term.

NARC is an organization comprised of about 500 regional planning groups, including the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, of which Mack is SEMCOG deputy executive director Paul Tait called the NARC presidency "a very important and highly coveted position," and added that Mack can-"truly influence national policy in a way that helps out in the Southeast Michigan region.

SEMCOG is a voluntary association of counties, cities, villages, townships, intermediate school districts and community colleges in the seven-county Southeast Michigan region.

The concept behind regional councils is to encourage all the little governments of the region to work together on issues that affect all of them. Mack, 44, a former chairman of SEMCOG and now an executive council member, said it's important to get everyone pulling in the same direction, because the Detroit region is in competition with the Toronto region, the Chicago re-

Mack said that SEMCOG only makes recommendations about where the money from the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act gets spent.

"The recommendation tends to be respected and given credibility because it's known to be thoughtful," he said.

However, Tait characterized SEMCOG's role as more than advisory. Regional councils, he said. "now do make the decision on where certain funds are spent in the region." Only the governor and the federal government may veto SEMCOG's decision, Tait said.

Wayne County commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, said this new twist to SEM-COG's role makes SEMCOG a de facto legislature. Consequently, Mack's presence on the SEMCOG board bothers McCotter because no one person is supposed to have judicial power as well as legislative power in our form of government.

"I'm very concerned with the concentration, of power in one person's hands," McCotter said. '(Mack) is on two branches of government now and I don't know how a judge can do that."

Mack said it's "a substantial overstatement" that SEMCOG has legislative power, and that it would be "inappropriate for me to serve and I wouldn't serve" if SEMCOG had legislative power.

Tait said that SEMCOG's lawyers decided when Mack became a judge that he had no conflict of interest. Tait also said that distributing transportation money doesn't make SEMCOG a unit of government.

Mack, a Wayne resident, was appointed to Wayne County Probate Court in November 1990 by then Gov. James Blanc-

Flagging flag fulmination

Enthusiasm deficit marks move for flag burn ban

By TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

With dwindling enthusiasm, the Michigan House of Representatives once again has asked the U.S. Congress to start work on a constitutional amendment banning flag burning.

"We're doomed to debate this once a year," said Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, who opposed the House resolution.

That it keeps coming up seems idiotic, except for use in a political campaign," said Berman, referring to former President George Bush's call for a ban on flag burning.

"It shows respect for the U.S.," replied cosponsor Robert DeMars, D-Lincoln Park. "It's supported by the commanders group of all the veterans' organshould be penalties for any kind of desecration of the flag. It's a symbol of this country." Berman shot back: "I'd like to know where the hell the vets' organizations were when we voted on the vets (benefits) bill.

We're the greatest democracy the world has ever seen or ever will see. We can withstand the onslaught of some jerk with Berman failed to muster. enough votes to require a roll call vote. Speaker Curtis Hertel, D-Detroit, said a voice vote answered by barely a half dozen voices — was affirmative.

The closest thing to a roll call occurred when cosponsor Bill Martin, R-Battle Creek, asked that the voting board be opened for cosponsors. Just 50 of the House's 110 members flashed green (yes) lights.

Area members signing up as cosponsors were Democrats Justine Barns of Westland and Richard Young of Dearborn Heights and Republicans Barbara Dobb of Union Lake and Shirley Johnson of Royal Oak.

The issue arose in 1989 when the U.S. Supreme Court overturned the conviction of a protester who burned an American flag in violation of Texas law. The high court called that state's law an abridgment of freedom of expression.

The House resolution asks the U.S. Congress to approve a constitutional amendment "to prohibit the desecration of the American flag" and start it on the round of state legislatures. 'For more than 200 years," said the House resolution, "Old Glory has been a revered part of American life. It has been a source of inspiration in battles from Fort McHenry to Omaha Beach to Iwo Jima.

Most recently, events in the Middle East have served once again to remind us of how precious the American flag is and to fill our hearts with pride as it was flown bravely by yet another generation of America's youth in a face off with a tyrant.

'Indeed, it is impossible for patriotic American citizens to look upon the flag without remembering the valiant men and women whose courage, blood and lives have been spent to keep our flag flying freely.

Record blood drive: A blood drive campaign at the VFW Post 3323 Hall had 96 pints donated by area residents. It was the largest donation of any blood drive that day.

VFW pumps in record blood donations are veterans of military battles, recently won another important cam-

The group received blood from 96 donors, the highest for that day, said the Southeast Michigan American Red Cross.

Post commander Rodger Young was proud of the record, adding that the post will hold another blood drive Dec. 20. Details will be an-nounced closer to the drive, he said.

The record blood drive, which had help from VFW auxiliary members, was based on Young's efforts, said Richard Folsom, Red Cross representative.

Folsom said the blood donated will eventually help 360 patients in southeast Michigan hospitals.

He praised Young for his efforts in getting 140 people to register for the blood drive, held in the VFW Post Hall on Wayne Road near Avondale. One hundred and seven people actually appeared on the day of the drive but blood was not sccepted from 11 for various reasons,

The VFW total was more than three times the 31 pints donated the same day at the Kmart Store, on Wayne Road at Cherry Hill.

The Red Cross said summer blood drives are important because donations are typically lower during that period.

Student digs up lessons in helping flood victims

Robb Smylie, 17, a Redford Catholic Central senior, spent a week volunteering with his family on for flood cleanup duty in Des Moines, Iowa. "It was the most enriching 'vacation' I had ever been on I learned a lot about other people and even a little about myself," Smylie said of the July 25-31 trip with his parents, Denise and Dennis. and 14-year-old brother, Matt. Smylie will be co-editor of his school's Spectrum student newspaper. This is his account of the destruction, devastation and hopes of those trying to put their homes, businesses and lives back

BY ROBB SMYLIE STAFF WRITER

The Hotel Fort Des Moines where we had reservations, had been closed for two weeks with a flooded basement and no drinking water. They gave us jugs of bottled water at the front desk when we checked in.

That night, after we had gotten settled in the hotel, we drove around the downtown area, getting our first taste of the damage. The town looked absolutely dead, even for a Sunday. There were sandbags everywhere, in front of every store and building. It reminded me of towns I had seen on the news that were in a war zone or under martial law.

There were signs some funny, some frank — in the windows of businesses. One read: "need waitress, must be good swimmer." We returned to the hotel a little scared, not sure what awaited us the next day.

On Monday morning we called the number of the local recovery organization called the Central Companies Neighborhood Recovery Campaign, in the historic district of West Des Moines. The headquarters was in the back room of an abandoned auto parts store. It was where they kept the donated relief supplies and where we went to get our assignments.

New appreciation

Our first job was to help an elderly couple clean up their yard and basement. After picking up debris in their yard, we helped carry windows out into the sun so the frames could dry out. The husband told us how the water had flooded his basement, carried his washer and dryer from their wood slab - and his big, maple workbench - and sent them careening to another part of the basement. I never appreciated how powerful water could be until I heard people's stories about what the floods did to their homes, their lives.

Our next job was to help an elderly woman clean out the closet in her house. It was an extremely small job and only took about 15 minutes but the woman, Clara, thought it was very important. We began to wonder if all the jobs would be this small and if they really needed our help.

The next job though was our chance to do some hard work and get down and dirty. My dad and I had to help two other volunteers shovel mud out of the basement of a local business. The physical labor made me feel like I was really accomplishing something.

Our last job for that day was putting up shelves for another store owner . After that we went back to the hotel and showered, a basic thing but something we would eventually look forward to each night.

Starting over

Most of the people we helped that week had about 3-4 feet of water in the main floor of their houses. Because the water was sitting there for days it had a chance to soak deep into the walls and floors. Many homeowners had to rip the paneling and insulation off the wall, pull up all carnet, and sometimes even rip up the wood floor under the carpet. Appliances and furniture were ruined.

Both of our jobs on Tuesday dealt with ripping apart walls and floors. The first job was helping another elderly woman living by herself. We ripped the paneling off her walls and pulled the stilldripping insulation out. It was so damp in the walls that there were worms living in them.

While I was taking garbage out to the curb a small boy, about 7, stopped to ask if I needed any help. This kid was an example of the good in people, the desire to help each other. This one kid put the actions of many adults we saw to shame.

After driving around awhile we saw an older man dragging garbage out to the curb. We stopped to ask if he needed help. His name was Russ, he had heart problems and his house had the worst damage we had seen so far.

Almost all the walls had been knocked out, the floors were badly

We got to know Russ better than most of the other people we helped. He told us stories about how the neighbors didn't cooperate and help each other.

Profiting from tragedy

On Wednesday we only went to one job, but it was by far the most depressing assignment we had.

Helen lived by herself and needed a lot of help.

We worked for several hours pulling up linoleum, carpet, and wood floors and we felt good about our work.

Then it happened. My dad and I had about two feet left to go in a large wood floor we had been pulling up. A man came by and said he heard that Helen was interested in selling her house.

Now before the flood, it would have been worth maybe $30,000. He offered 10.

She thought she would take the deal, too, because she just wanted to get out and start over.

This man was obviously not interested in helping her start only in making money, even if it meant taking advantage of people who are in distress.

We decided to finish tearing up the floor and then leave, thoroughly depressed and angry. We realized we had been doing all that work for a man who didn't need it, a man who didn't deserve

Our first assignment Thursday was moving donated carpet, with five other volunteers, from a warehouse to a store in town where people in need could take it for

Sandbagged: "Closed" signs and flood preparations greeted visitors to the downtown business district free. Our partners had driven from Miami with trucks full of relief supplies. They were all victims of Hurricane Andrew, grateful for the help they had received, wanting to return the favor.

Soup's on

My family split up to do the next job. My dad and I went with another volunteer to rip up a floor at someone's house. My mom and my brother got stuck with the dirty job.

When all the water left people's basements, it left a thick, sticky affectionately called mud — 'Gumbo' by residents — that covered everything. The best way to clean the basement is by power washing, a high-powered jet of water to wash the mud off, while several people use squeegee brooms to direct the muddy water down the drainage hole in the Later, we enjoyed a free meal at restaurant called the Rocket Cafe. They were grateful to all the volunteers who saved their store.

Our last assignment for the trip was probably the most fulfilling; helping a couple knock down walls in their mother's house.

We got to work with some other nice volunteers. Three of the women had been driving past Des Moines and just decided to stop and help. The other two were with a church group from Kansas.

Also, the people who owned the house worked alongside, helping themselves.

By all working together we finished almost the entire house.

It made a very nice ending to a tough week.

Minority hiring

Schools did the right thing

he Wayne-Westland school board and administration took a big boost last week in improving the presence of minorities in top management positions. With a minority student enrollment of about 13 percent, there have been no African-Americans visible in the administrative cabinet.

But that changed last week when the board of education confirmed the recommendations of Superintendent Larry Thomas to name four women, three of whom are African-Americans. to top positions.

The action came after two years of public discussion on what the district can or should do to attract qualified and talented people to teaching and administrative positions.

In recommending the women to the board, Thomas said he hopes the appointments will send a strong message to the community and work force that he is working hard to achieve more minority representation in the district.

Currently, minorities comprise only 1 percent. of the faculty - which is nothing to brag about for a large district in the metropolitan Detroit

Hopefully, Thomas, who has been superintendent for nearly 14 months, will continue his search for minorities to fill key roles as central office administrators or building principals.

It's important for Caucasian students and parents as well as minorities to see African-Americans in visible, responsible positions.

An excellent example of that was Walter Durant, who served many years as principal at Marshall and Adams Junior High schools before retiring two months ago.

An excellent pattern has been set under Thomas, and the Observer hopes he will contin-

In an Observer interview just weeks before his untimely death, Hunter said he feared that the regional dial-aride service, which he headed from its beginning in 1976 until his resignation last April, will lose its personal touch with passengers under a reorganization.

Hunter personified the need for making local NTC passengers feel comfortable. His drivers knew the names of many of the riders, and the drivers went out of their way to help handicapped and/or elderly passengers get in and out of the vans.

A frequently seen action was that of drivers getting out of their vans to help a passenger walk to the entrance of a store or doctor's office. It wasn't required of the drivers, but it was a

Parents suffer tuition hikes

igher education fared poorly in Michigan's 1994 budget.

Michigan harms students by continuing to force an increasing share of higher education cost onto tuition. We risk pricing college education out of the market.

Tuition increases are particularly hurtful to the middle class, where parents are neither rich enough to afford anything nor poor enough to qualify for financial aid.

Community colleges would have had a zero increase this year but for one lucky break: Voters in the Wayne County Community College district finally approved local tax support, so the Legislature took the $7.3 million savings and spread it around the other 28 two-year colleges.

Result: a 3.24 percent increase in state aid to the other colleges. The $240 million in total state aid, which makes up about one-third of the colleges' budgets, is virtually the same as last fiscal year.

Yet Oakland Community College trustees increased tuition to $45 a credit hour from $41, an increase of 9.75 percent for in-district students.

Schoolcraft College trustees increased its rate to $43 from $40, or 7.5 percent for residents.

Appropriations to the 15 universities were virtually flat - a total of $1.3 billion, an increase of less than one-fourth of one percent.

Nearby Oakland University responded by increasing tuition 9.8 percent for freshmen and sophomores and 9.88 for juniors and seniors. Rates at the University of Michigan-Dearborn will go up 9.12 and 9.09 percent respectively. Those increases are particularly distressing because OU and UM-D are considered "commuter" schools.

Even Wayne State University, which has tried to keep tuitions low, responded with increases in the 8 percent ballpark. The University of Michigan jacked up rates about 11.6 percent. Michigan State University had some of the lowest increases in the state at 6.4 percent for under and 7.8 percent for upperclassmen, but even those were double the rate of consumer price inflation.

What's going wrong?

Certainly Gov. John Engler has tried to make education a priority, holding the line there while slashing such areas as the arts, general assistance welfare, state parks and commerce.

Higher education faces some built-in problems. Labor costs are the bulk of college budgets, and these include health care.

At the community college level, where much job-oriented technical training goes on, they are spending a ton of money on computers, computer-aided design and medical technology equipment. Such stuff isn't as cheap as fountain pens and adding machines.

Engler is trying to make welfare reforms to pare that nearly $6 billion drain on the economy, but so far they haven't paid off.

Prison costs are triple what they were 10 years ago, when James Blanchard became governor. Prison costs now top $1 billion — almost as much as universities get, four times what we give to community colleges and more than the general fund contributes to local public schools.

Programs mandated by the federal government gobble up 30 percent of all new revenue at the state level.

Miliage opposed

ince there appears to be some confusion, I would like to express my reasons for publicly opposing the upcoming Aug. 30 millage election. My opposition is based on the following:

■ We do not have all the facts we need to go out and ask our citizenry for a millage. Our populace must have complete knowledge.

■ The state school aid bill has not yet been decided on, and until it is, we do not need the Aug. 30 millage funding.

Our employees must be willing to work with our community and sacrifice (concessions) for the common good. How else can we ask our populace for similar sacrifices (millage)?

We are not completely sure if the money from the millage will all stay in Livonia, or if part of it will be taken from us.

I sincerely believe that going for a millage at this time is a waste of the taxpayers' money. We have not adequately explored all of our options as a board. At the very least, we should wait until later in the year when we have all the facts to run a millage (if needed).

Other concerns: ■ I am upset about the date of the millage. Why Aug. 30, why not with the city election on

■ Why are we wasting $30,000 of the taxpayers' money to conduct an election without facts and one that appears to have minimal chances of

■ Why as a board are we so grid-locked on this budget? Why have we spent (as a board) so little time on the budget? Why is the board unable to come up with more creative solutions to our financial problems?

Saying all of this, let me assure you that I adamantly support sports and activities for our children. I will not allow them to go away without a fight. In our current financial state we have the money to fund these items (without

I have received a number of calls and letters that have supported my position. To date, I have only received one negative letter which was unsigned.

In closing, please go out and vote on Aug. 30. It is your right and obligation. Mine is but one opinion. You, the voters, are what really count. You, alone, will decide if Livonia Public Schools has formulated an ill-constituted effort to raise funds that are not needed.

I think that this genius is absolutely right, and she should be commended for her creative solution to the school funding problems. Likewise, let those who use the Social Security system pay for it.

If the older folks in our community, state, and country want inter-generational warfare let's get on with it, and let's see who wins. Is a $55 (on average) increase in taxes for one year too much to ask, or pay, to keep our kids busy, and our school program, and property values, strong? In my opinion, these school activities are the cheapest drug prevention programs around.

Anyone but Thomas

s someone who you have come to in the past, and have taken me as an honest individual who always looks to the future, and considers the past as a learning process, I again offer some advice for your consideration.

As past president of the Westland Chamber of Commerce I have gained considerable insight and knowledge of the Westland community. Almost four years ago Robert Thomas ran for mayor. He made many promises to the over 86,000 residents and to the business community. He pledged to end the fighting in the government, to listen to the people, to use numerous people on boards and commissions, to generally treat the citizens and employees much better than they have ever been treated, and to end once and for all the "cronyism" at city hall.

Many people truly believed that he would, and eventually, trusted him enough to elect him as mayor. Mr. Thomas has proven, that he indeed had no intentions of living up to those campaign promises, and has continuously broken them, time and time again, much to the concern of many of those who supported him and helped him get elected.

I am not suggesting who you support in the Sept. 14 primary election, but I believe you should send a strong message that the voters in the City of Westland will not support a Mayor that tells the voters what they want to hear, then does what he well pleases.

Send a strong message to Mayor Thomas that you will no longer listen to promises, the citizens will make this community a one-term mayor until that person who promises . . . de-

Vote, but vote for anyone but Mayor Thomas on Sept. 14.

Parenting skills needed to help raise children

ince child protection laws were adopted in Michigan in 1964, society has taken a closer look at children's needs. Some criminal justice authorities believe the link between child maltreatment and delinquency are intertwined, not separate problems.

Many of them, along with professionals in the education field, believe that parent education programs are essential to the well-being of the child. Some believe effective parenting techniques can be taught to parents in order to benefit families and that, generally, early intervention is most benefi-

In the late 1970s, I began working in an early intervention program with young children and their families. I read everything I could find regarding the importance of effective parenting skills. Although I found some controversies regarding techniques, I believed they were important learning tools. Of course, a portion of that reading was also for my own personal information. I was more likely looking for an answer to "exactly what is it?"

Was there a magic formula written somewhere that if I followed steps one. two and three I would have perfect children? Were there certain buttons to push? Did they need batteries? And if I took the time to learn the steps, how would I know when it was time to stop? Or even when it begins? And who were the judges who decide if I am doing things right?

I became aware that gone were the days when extended families lived together and everyone helped out. Many young parents were on their own, with limited resources, so it was essential to look into the community to develop them. Yes, we did need to look into strategies to enhance our parenting skills. Most of us learned to parent from the way we were parented, and our parents learned from their parents, and so on. But times, as well as laws, have changed, and some past teachings are not necessarily best for our children today.

GUEST COLUMNIST

We learned together that one of the best things we can do for our children is give them choices. That teaches consequences and responsibility. Even the smallest child who can reach for a cookie can make a choice between one or another. Possibly the most difficult part of parenting, but the most important, is being consistent. If certain behaviors are not acceptable in your familv. don't allow them. Give lots of encouragement to reinforce behaviors you want repeated and try to ignore the ones you do not.

Children always need lots of unconditional love, hugs and strokes. This is a great effective parenting technique. If you become frustrated and angry when they are persistent, perhaps even lash out, it does not make you a bad parent. It makes you human, working with little humans, and you can vow to do better tomorrow. You become aware and awareness is learning.

Listen to your children even when they are not aware. It is absolutely fascinating to watch a 3-year-old play.

and there are lessons to be learned if you listen.

I don't believe there is a magic formula that I missed, but I do believe that most parents work to the best of their abilities with the resources they have. I never found the book with all the answers, nor did I promise it to the families I worked with. And I did not mind when the children invaded my office, banged on my typewriter and sat across the desk from me as they pulled paperwork to the floor. That is much better than having them invade my office and sit across from me at the desk I sit at today.

Problems make a voucher system unworkable

QUESTION: There is a lot of talk about citizens having a right to select the school district they want their child in, the schools of choice/ voucher program. I've heard plenty from the supporters of these concents, but what are the basic problems that will need to be faced?

ANSWER: Let's say schools of choice becomes a reality, meaning parents can select the school district they want their child to attend. And let's say hundreds of parents in the Taylor or Wayne Westland School District de cide they want their children in the Plymouth School District (or vice versa), or hundreds of parents in Pontiac want their students in the Bloomfield Hills or West Bloomfield School Dis-

We have a minor problem. The receiving districts, Plymouth or West Bloomfield's school buildings are presently full of students and there isn't room for a hundred or more students.

A solution could be the districts sending students, i.e. Pontiac, renting a massive crane to pick up one of their elementary school buildings, setting it on a massive U-Haul, driving it to Bloomfield Hills, finding some (donated) vacant land and turning on the lights. Sorry, it is too much of a task to move a building from "Poorsville" to "Richville," so where are the additional facilities coming from

And if an exodus of school children does transpire from one community to another community, who pays for the extra buses to haul the kids - the sending district or the receiving dis-

These are just a few "minor" problems for those who believe schools of choice will improve competition between school districts, driving the "bad" districts out of business and improving a child's education. It is not practical and won't work. Consolidation of school districts may occur, but

DOC DOYLE

And, yes, I recognize a money voucher will probably go with the child. My guess is the voucher would be between $3,000 and $5,000 per student.

The question then is: If the receiving school district is spending $8,500 per student and if a hundred students move into its district with $3,500, who makes up the $5,000 deficit per student for a total $500,000 tab?

You got it - the local taxpayers in "Richville" will suddenly find themselves handed the bill to make up the difference or else start to live with a

School of choice advocates say they are equalizing educational opportunity, and that may be true. But it will be paid for by those school districts with more money who now will pay not only their own children's education, but their neighbors' children as well.

And I guarantee that "Lansing" will allow local districts to raise more money through local taxes over and above the state's present tentative plan (so much money per child).

This governmental thinking is not new. In the '50s, the state mandated and paid for driver education. After a few years, the cost of teaching kids to drive fell upon the local taxpayer. Vocational education, during the Johnson and Kennedy era, was funded at about 80 percent; today the state pays about

The same with the most expensive program in education, special education. The federal law says that states only have to provide services from ages 6 to 20. Michigan legislatures passed a law to provide services from 0 to 26. Guess who got tapped with the bill! Local taxpayers.

No one denies the great need for special education for children, but let's be honest. Every program started by our leaders is eventually dumped on the local taxpayer who, in turn, believes the local school district administration is the money-grabbing one at fault.

So I wouldn't get too excited about the school of choice issue yet. There are, as you pointed out, many factors to be considered, some of which are not

State arts funding leads to verbal legislative fisticuffs

f you want to get into a fist fight, tell people in western Michigan that the Detroit Institute of Arts, Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Detroit Zoo, Detroit Historical Museum and the Edison Institute are state jewels which the state should pay for.

That notion, an article of faith in these suburbs, gets little respect the other side of US-23.

"Regional facilities should be supported on a regional basis, warned a Grand Rapids legislator as he tried to cut funding for the aforementioned sacred cattle. What he's saying is that metropolitan Detroit benefits most from these cultural cows, and he's tired of funding what his folks don't consider sacred.

The $29 million cultural aid bill won 81 to 18 approval in the state House of Representatives. But the truth is that political support for arts funding is very, very soft. If there hadn't been a few million for the Grand Rapids Museum, which folks around here hardly consider a state asset, the whole bill might have gone down.

In short, we in southeast Michigan had best consider supporting regional cultural institutions ourselves.

We got into this mess in the mid 1970s, when Detroit Mayor Coleman Young decided European-oriented culture wasn't his city's priority. Young cut Detroit's contribution to the world class Institute of Arts to the vanishing point. He precipitated the Detroit Symphony crisis of four or five years ago by withholding its grant.

Under Gov. William G. Milliken, the state began giving "equity" grants to Detroit area culture, starting at $9.7 million and reaching a high of $32.4 million in the late 1980s. At one point, the state even gave Young $10 million of highway money for the zoo.

Then the economic roof caved in.

Gov. John Engler is pictured as a mean-spirited country and western lout for cuttings arts funding. But I've read a lot of state budgets, and if Beethoven or Botticelli were governor, the arts couldn't have fared any better.

Citizens Research Council of Michigan, an independent outfit with some intellectual clout, rejuvenated an idea some of us have had for 15 or so years — a multi-county agency to support the arts. It suggested the United Way approach to fund-raising, with one organization serving everything.

CRC projected some tax rates that Oakland, Macomb and Wayne counties could levy to percent Myself. I think it would be social justice to charge rock concert-goers a 6 percent amusements tax to support the symphony and maybe to bring back the Metropolitan Opera. But they declare it would be unfair and ask: What if we taxed symphony-goers and DIA patrons to support rock music?

State Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, has trouble with any governmental funding of the arts. Kaza is a free market policy wonk and no redneck. He trotted out remarks of many artistic greats in support of his view, notably novelist John Updike: "I would rather have as my patrons a host of anonymous citizens digging into their own pockets for the price of a book or magazine than a small body of enlightened and responsible men administering public funds."

But I fear the Kaza-Updike view ignores an economic reality: The works of Rembrandt and Rachmaninoff will be unavailable to Americans without government money.

We had better come up with a method besides the state budget, or kiss our fine arts heritage goodbye.

Livonia resident Christofer Machniak has been chosen to receive the second "Marie McGee Memorial Scholarship."

The $1,000 award honors former Observer & Eccentric editor Marie McGee, who died in 1990. McGee lived in Livonia for 24 years and saw her five children graduate from Bentley High School. She had a special fondness for young journalists and was particularly interested in nurturing high school newspaper Machniak, 18, graduated from Churchill High School last June and plans to study journalism at Michigan State University. He is the son of Ronald and Patricia Machniak of Mayfield in Livonia.

"I aspire to be a force in our world," Machniak wrote on his scholarship application. "Either as a newspaper reporter or involved in government somehow. I want to help the world to be a better place. I have worked extremely hard to help the student publication at (Churchill), The Charger Herald. For two years I served as business manager, and this year as editor in chief."

Machniak's other activities at Churchill included membership on the tennis and cross country teams and forensics. He also served as announcer for Churchill athletic events.

Machniak was recommended for the scholarship by Churchill teacher Ellen Betel, who wrote:

Chris mastered the intricacies of negotiation and other higher-level thinking skills. Chris' involvement in the class clearly demonstrated his abilities to coordinate, formulate and implement foreign policy based on knowledge, intuition, critical thinking and people skills."

Machniak was awarded the scholarship by a committee of Observer & Eccentric editors in part because of a paper he wrote part because of a paper he wrote regarding free speech legislation. Machniak criticized the Legislature for squashing two bills that would have granted greater First Amendment rights to high school students, including editorial freedom for student newspapers.

"For in the educational process, the best way to learn is to let the people explore and find out which values are good and which ones are bad," Machniak wrote. "To accomplish this the state shouldn't limit a student's line of down. Censorship often leads students to want to use that language or express that way of thinking even more."

Birmingham Brother Rice hockey coach Mike Brown said he has turned down an offer to be the hockey coach at Redford Catholic Central, his

With Brown withdrawing his name from consideration, a source said Gordon St. John, who started the Detroit Country Day hockey program in 1961 and was an assistant for several years under former coach Jack Gumbleton at CC, will be the Shamrocks' next coach. CC announced in late June it would not renew the contract of Gumbleton, who coached 15 years.

Brown looked like a perfect match with CC since he graduated from the school in 1975 and played on the Shamrocks' last state champion in 74. Brown has coached at Rice the last three years, leading the Warriors to the 1992 Class A state championship and a runnerup finish in 1991.

Prior to accepting the job at Rice, Brown led South Lyon to one league championship in four years and a 22-1 record in 1990. Brown said his loyalty to Rice and his job as an accountant manager at a data processing consulting firm did not allow him to accept the CC offer.

"It was a tough decision," Brown said. "It's always something I wanted to do but my loyalty to the players is way up there and Brother Rice has been real good to me and my staff. Timing is everything in job changes. Like I told (CC athletic director) Bob (Santello), 'I can't believe I'm saying this, but I have to decline.' I'm honored for the opportunity. Steve Kowalski

Spartan grad finds gold in water

Livonia Stevenson graduate Scott DeWolf struck gold earlier this month at the U.S. Junior Nationals Swimming Championships in Orlando, Fla.

After winning the gold, DeWolf got on the winner's stand and pointed a bouquet of flowers at his mother who was sitting in the stands.

Golf pro Mallon renews Mercy ties

By Dan O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

Most people would say Meg Mallon has it made, and she would probably agree with them.

Mallon has become a superstar in women's professional golf, lives in sunny Arizona, makes her living as an athlete and has earned more than $1 million on the tour.

But that doesn't mean it's always an easy life. While it sounds like fun to jetset around the country, meeting schedules, keeping appointments, granting requests and trying to maintain the competitive edge of a pro can be a strain.

"As far as the life itself, it's a constant adjustment," the Farmington Hills Mercy dumna said. "You have to be a flexible individual, and you have to be very disciplined in golf.

'It requires a lot of energy to travel. play golf, do the interviews and handle the responsibilities you have when you win. I've also learned to say no and not feel bad about it. It doesn't do any good to show up if you're tired.

Mallon would never say no to her alma mater. Playing for the school golf team was a springboard to a career at Ohio State University and now the LPGA.

Sparkle Valley

Ex-Glenn QB Stover joins top dog Grand Valley

BY C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

This guy must be somethin'. How else can one describe the coaching ability of Brian Kelly, head man of Grand Valley State's football program? He took over the position at age 29; in his first two years on the job, he's finished second and first, with a 17-6

And it isn't like he sneaked up on anybody, either. His team was picked to finish first both times.

A recruiting genius? Maybe certainly that's part of it. How big a part could be revealed this sea-

For the fourth consecutive year (three under Kelly), the Lakers were selected in the coaches' poll to win the Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference championship. They were chosen despite not having a definite starter at quarterback. Of the 28 players who started during the 1992 campaign, 12 must be replaced.

Kelly's biggest problem could be at quarterback, where he must find a new starter for the thirdstraight year. There are three candidates entering fall drills, including Westland John Glenn graduate Eric Stover.

A 6-foot-1, 180-pounder, Stover attended Grand Rapids Community College, guiding the Raiders to a win in the Dixie Rôtary Bowl last year. He enrolled at Grand Valley in January and participated in spring drills with the Lakers, completing 8-of-12 passes 117 yards in the spring game.

Adding pressure to the situation is the loss of running back Jamarl Eiland, who gained 1,029 yards and scored 17 touchdowns. But tailbacks Anthony Evans (484 yards) and Andre Dudley (167 yarda), and fullback Ryan Ostrowski return; so do receivers Youssef Sareini (28 catches) and Diriki Mose (18 catches).

All of which helps. But if the Lakers don't get some production from Stover or another quarter-back, they'll be hard-pressed to collect a title.

If offense proves to be the decisive factor in this year's MIFC race - something few coaches ever admit — then one must look to Hillsdale and Saginaw Valley State.

Hillsdale has one of the top NCAA II running backs in the nation returning in Scott Schulte (1,582 yards, 16 TDs), as well as starting quarterback Greg Younger (97-of-195, 1,099 yards, 12 TDs, 9 intercepts). The Cardinals have a potent backfield back: Brett Mullins (772 yards, six TDs) and Brett Burris (520 yards, three TDs). Quarterback Kent Sikora also returns (90-of-182, 1,580 yards, 12 TDs, five intercepts). But can offense win a title? If defense is the difference, Ashland University - which has the added incentive of knowing this will be coach Fred Martinelli's final season (he retires after 35 years) will be loaded, with nine defensive starters returning. Still, gone are seven offensive starters that could make it tough for the Eagles.

The sleeper pick of the year is Wayne State. Sure, the Tartars have been hard-pressed to hit .500 (the last time they did it was 1984, when they were 6-5), but if everything breaks right, could challenge for the title. they

The defense is solid, returning nine players with starting experience, including senior defensive end Eric Ruth (6-2, 260, from Livonia Stevenson), senior cornerback Rob Zeno (6-0, 185, from North Farmington), and senior strong safety Ebbie Herbert (6-0, 188, from Redford Bishop Borgess).

But the key for WSU could be how big a factor former star Tim Morris is. A senior outside linebacker (6-0, 230, from West Bloomfield/Birmingham Groves) who left the team after two seasons to try his hand at Eastern Michigan, he has returned to add strength to a powerful linebacking corps.

The Tartar offense will rely on junior Joe Gough, from Orchard Lake St. Mary. Gough (6-0, 215) switched from linebacker to fullback last season, and gained a Dietz, an attorney who helped the Marlins win the Class A state basketball title in 1977, received the Mercy Sports Achievement Award. Dietz was a senior and Mallon a freshman on that team, which finished 25-0.

"We were scared to death of Diane," Mallon said. "She walked around with so much confidence. That's exactly the way we wanted to be.

"She was such a good basketball player and so smart. Everything fell into place for Diane; she just had it all together '

Dietz had recalled in an earlier story Mallon distinguished herself that year by memorizing the words to every song on the radio.

"When you're the youngest of six kids, lullabies aren't your crib music," Mallon said. "It was the Beattles and Rolling Stones. Being the youngest of six growing up in the '60s, music was a big influence."

Now in her seventh LPGA season, Mallon became a bonafide star in 1981 when she won four tournaments and skyrocketed her earnings.

She has been successful the last two years, too, but in different respects. She had no wins in 1992 but was in contention most of the time. She, has two wins this year but has not finished in the top 10 as much.

"Last year I played so well and didn't win, but it was a very satisfying year," she said. "To start out and win twice this year was great. It takes the pressure off for the rest of the team-record 1,340 yards; he'll be at tailback this year.

Here's a brief look at each team, in order of selection in the coaches' poll.

Grand Valley State

Kelly's had opportunities to try all sorts of approaches to his No. 1 selections. This year, he gave thought to the Lou Holtz (of Notre Dame) approach: "We'll be terrible, we won't win a game." No-body bought it from Kelly, either.

Still, the Lakers (8-3 overall, 8-2 in the MIFC in '92) must rely on the blending of junior college talent to fill holes. Besides Stover at quarterback, Ryan Johnson (6-4, 240, from Plymouth Salem and GRCC) could get playing time at tight end and Tim Wymes (6-3, 230, from Southfield and GRCC) may get in at linebacker. All three have junior eligibility.

Ashland University

Martinelli, who should know his stuff after 34 years, said eight or nine teams could be in the MIFC title picture. His Eagles will be one after last year's 7-3 (8-3 overall) campaign, particularly with eight starters back on a defense that led the the past two years. Defensive linemen Bill Royce (20 sacks in '92), a third-team NCAA II All-American, leads the unit.

Still, scoring could be a problem.

Hillsdale College

Dick Lowry, who has coached at Hillsdale for 13 years, said this about Schulte: "I've been coaching 26 years, and I have coached anybody this elusive and good." High praise, indeed.

But the Chargers (9-2, 8-2 in '92) return just nine of 22 starters and must rebacker corps. Junior Butch Callison (6-3, 224, from St. Mary's) could see plenty of action at inside linebacker.

Ferris State

Last year's surprise team (10-3, 8-2) will be hard-pressed to match that effort. Thirteen of 22 starters return, but key players are gone — like quarterback Doug Arnold (Rochester Adams) and line-backer Monty Brown, both all-MIFC performers, and leading receiver Pat Pettit

Mike Brooks Ferris linebacker

And yet, there are three first team all-MIFC players back on defense in defensive back Rich Eash and linemen Ed Philinebacker Mike Brooks (5-11, 209, from Livonia Churchill), who started as a freshman, and senior defensive back Brian Adams), who had two interceptions in

The top three rushers, led by junior Juron Johnson (740 yards), are back, too. The Buildogs will have something to say about the outcome of the MIFC race, to

Saginaw Valley State

A strong offense will be needed, if the Cardinals (7-4, 6-4 in '92) are to contend. Six starters must be replaced on de-fense. Junior Delsean Littlejohn (5-9, after a year at taliback (424 yards rushing), and sophomore Larry Jones (6-2, 225, from Bishop Borgess) is expected to fill one of the openings at linebacker.

There are a lot of strengths on this team, but several questions, too.

Wayne State

If the Tartars (4-7, 3-7 in '92) are to challenge, the defense must sparkle. Ruth anchors an otherwise inexperienced line, but the rest of the defense is very tough. Morris, who set school records for tackles three years ago, will have to re-earn a starting spot at outside linebacker. Zeno led the team in interceptions with Offense, however, will be a problem. Gough was a pleasant surprise in '92; he'll have to be even better this season. 'He's going to be our go-to guy," coach Brian VanGorder, a former prep standout at West Bloomfield HS. "He has to understand that going in.'

The kicking game must improve. Junior Nick Palombit (Troy/Madison Heights Bishop Foley) is the placekicker (3-of-9 field goals, 19-of-21 extra points, 28 points); junior Erik Burton (Livonia/Redford Catholic Central) is the punter (36.5

College of St. Francis

One of two new teams in the MIFC (the other is Northwood University), the Fighting Saints from Jollet, Ill., were 4-5 in '92 and have 16 starters back — eight on both offense and defen oth offense and defense. The biggest holes to fill will be at running back, where starters Tyrone Isaac and Mike Seneker are gone, and in the secondary, with three starters missing.

Then there's the transition from NAIA to

Northern Michigan

Without doubt, this is one of the MIFC's most puzzling teams. The Superior Dome, where the Wildcats play, is certainly superior to anything in the MIFC. But since moving in, the team has struggled; Northern was 1-9 in '92. With 16 starters back (eight offensive, eight defensive), maybe things will change. The top three fushers are gone, however, including Nelson Edmonds (809 vards). Sophomore Kurt Butterbaugh n City), who transferred from Michigan State, will challenge for the place-kicking job.

Saint Joseph's College

Ten of 22 starters from a team that went just 1-8-1 in '92 are gone. Maybe that's good.

The Pumas' fate will rest on the knee of Harry Vinegar. An all-MIFC running back in '91 (882 yards), Vinegar suffered a knee injury before the start of the '92 campaign. He joins running back Brent Eastwood (219 yards) and quarterback Dave Jordy as key offensive returnees.

But even with a healthy Vinegar in '91, Saint Joseph's was just 4-6. With two winning seasons in the last 11, the Pumas will be hard-pressed.

University of Indianapolis

Fourteen starters return, but this is a team that surrendered a league-worst 311 points in its 1-8-1 campaign. Replacing quarterback Greg Sassmannshausen the biggest question mark; freshman Matt Knee is the favorite.

Leading rusher Deon Harding (370 yards) and top pass receiver Josh Werling (30 catches) are also gone. It could be another long year for the Greyhounds.

Northwood University

New coach plus new conference equals better results?

The Northmen hope so, But Pat Riepma, who served at Hillsdale as an assistant for eight years, is making no victory "We do have some talent. The thing we need to accomplish is for the kids to experience some success on the football field."

Northwood was 0-9-last year as an independent. Eighteen starters are back, but so what?

The top three ground-gainers return; so do both quarterbacks. Perhaps an infusion of the CC spirit - the Class A powerhouse is represented by seven players - will make a difference.

Dream job

Dietz describes his position marketing the Tigers as pure pleasure

By MARTY BUDNER STAFF WRITER

Imagine Tiger Stadium as one huge playground. Now imagine yourself as the person responsible for making that playground appeal to everyone - children, teenagers, adults and senior citizens.

That's Michael Dietz's job. The 32-year-old Birmingham resident is completing his first year as marketing director for the Detroit Tigers. Dietz admits some days seem endless and challenges constantly pop up like a Cecil Fielder fly ball. But, in the same breath, he'll tell vou baseball is only a game and it's supposed to be fun. And that's exactly the way he's approached his job the past 12 months. "It doesn't feel like work to me," said Dietz. "It's fun. It's a game. I love what I do. I love everything about it.

'It's amazing. My job is to promote the Tigers and be an ambassador for one of the greatest teams tion. I think about the team all the time," he said.

While Dietz constantly is thinking baseball now, many fans had trouble digesting the nation's pastime the last few years during the Tom Monaghan era.

The previous Tigers owner seemed to alienate a great number of people. Tiger Stadium was not an attractive place to be, and with the baseball team struggling on the field, attendance declined drastically Detroit's baseball fans were given a slice of fresh hope when pizza magnate Mike Ilitch purchased the club last summer. Deitz, who had been employed by Ilitch's Little Caesar Enterprises, Inc., was given the job as Tigers marketing director.

Ever since then, Dietz and his staff have worked hard to reacquaint the area's baseball fans to Tiger Stadium. From the time Mr. Ilitch bought the team, to the opening pitch of the season, we never stopped," said Dietz. "It was a fast, fast pace. Anything that would help out the team we were looking at.

"The team ended up with an attendance of 1.4 million (last year). At the beginning of this year our goal was to reach 1.7 million. That was our front-office

"From a marketing standpoint, my goal since the beginning of the year has been to hit two million. I still think we have a shot at it,'

Although the team has slipped from first to fifth in the American League East Division standings, attendance actually has increased over the past month. After 52 games last year, the Tigers averaged 17,000-fans per game. This year, they're averaging 24,000 over the same number of games Dietz, who attended St. Hugo's grade school and Brother Rice High School, prefers to think the organization's new, "fan-friendly" approach to marketing has had an effect on that increased attendance figure.

The Tigers have more promotional giveaway days now (46) than any other team in baseball. They have instituted post-game fireworks shows on Friday nights and allowed youngsters 14 and under to run the bases after Monday night games.

Some other in-stadium marketing strategies include a luxury Tiger Den section for season-ticket holders, a non-alcohol family section out in left field, a couchpotato promotion in right field, and special hot dog and peanut giveaways at selected times during every game.

"It really is a whole new ball game," said Dietz, who played college basketball at Western Michigan University.

"You hear about major league baseball players getting paid too much, and they're losing touch with their fans and this and that. Well, we get to start all over. We don't inherit anything.

"We can just say the Detroit Tigers are really close to their fans. We let the fans run around the bases. We throw fireworks shows for them. We have giveaways. They didn't have senior citizens' discounts before and now we do on certain days.

"We went through everything that was old and wrong and tried to make it new and better," he

Dietz's days consist of meetings with various community relations departments, talking to sales people, organizing giveaways and listening to staff members' advice. That office work usually makes for a full day itself. However, on game days, Dietz usually walks a block west to the stadium from his office at Eighth and Trumbull. When he arrives he makes sure everything — from the promotional giveaways to the fan-usher relationship to the celebrity sing-along — is working smoothly.

'Our whole philosophy is to make Tiger Stadium fan-friendly and fun," said Dietz. "We're trying to give the fans something special every single day they come down here.

The idea is to make sure everyone wants to return to the playground.

Westland 1-2 at World Series

The Westland America baseball team finished a banner season last week by going 1-2 at the Mickey Mantle World Series in Scottsdale, Az.

Westland was ousted from the double-elimination tournament on Saturday with an 8-0 loss to the Glendale (California) Bears, who were the eventual champions.

Mike Brusseau (Redford Catholic Central) had Westland's only two hits. Brian Berryman (Redford Union), the first of three pitchers, suffered the loss. Westland started the tournament on Thursday with a 7-6 victory over the Springfield (Illinois) Pride. Westland trailed 6-3 after 51/2 innings before scoring three runs in the bottom of the sixth for the win. Mark Taylor hit a two-run home run and Kevin Sullivan added an RBI double during the rally.

Westland used three pitchers, with Brusseau getting the victory after two innings of late relief work. Westland fell into the loser's bracket after Friday's 3-2 loss to the host team, Scottsdale Fire Birds. Starting pitcher Brandon Robinette suffered the loss despite allowing only three runs in six innings. Robinette was relieved in the sev-ll-American named co-champ

By Steve Kowalski Stapp Writer

Rain again halted the Bay City Modified Softball Tournament but at least this year the championship wasn't decided by a coin flip.

The All-American Sports Center out of Farmington Hills shared the co-championship with Chiro Plus from Port Huron after Sunday's championship game between the two teams was called due to rain.

Each team carried a 5-0 record into the final but the tournament director decided against flipping a coin to decide the outright champion. Last year's tournament was called because of rain before the semifinal and final games and a coin flip was used to decide the winner.

All-American finished second in the coin flip so this year, coach Dave Brubaker was delighted going home a co-champ. Jerry Staszel handled all the pitching

"The first thing I said to the tournament director was 'There's no way we're having a coin toss to decide first place.' He said, There's no coin toss, we'll have co-champs.' That's the best thing to do," Brubaker said. "I was not about to go to my sponsor and say we lost again on a coin flip. Once is enough."

All-American earned the right to play in the championship game with a 15-8 semifinal victory Sunday over Cripps from Port Huron. Tom Haeger went 3-for-4 with three home runs over the fence and six RBI:

"He doesn't look like a big hitter but he can turn on it real good," Brubaker said.

Mike Kesson of Plymouth responded to being placed No. 9 in the lineup by hitting two homers and five RBI. He also played a solid shortstop throughout the tournament in place of Doug Kirkpatrick who broke two fingers on the team's annual canoe trip.

'Kesson hasn't had a great year with the bat and he'll be the first to tell you that but I shook up the lineup and he came through," Brubaker said.

Rich Roy of Livonia was 2-3 with a solo homer, while Burbak-

All-American went 4-0 in divisional play, including three wins on Saturday.

The first victory came at the expense of Curso's, 8-4. Haeger, was 2-4 with a run scored and two RBI. Mike Greener and Roy also had two hits. Roy had a triple and double and two RBI and Pat Greener was 1-1 with an RBI. Dave Mondoux (Livonia) contributed a two-run double.

All-American followed with an 18-4 win over Moran Builders of Port Huron. The win was sparked by a 10-run second inning.

Pat Greener went 3-4 with an RBI and Mike Greener was 2-2 with two runs scored and three RBI. Roy added two hits and four

All-American completed a perfect Saturday with a 6-3 win over Duso's Bar. All-American scored four runs in the second to open up a 5-3 lead. Pierce was 1-2 with two RBI, Kesson had a double and a run scored and Rowley contributed a sacrifice fly for an RBI.

All-American finished divisional play with an 11-6 victory early. Sunday over Modern Septic & Sewer of Port Huron. Brubaker had two hits, including a double and two RBI. Mondoux, Shawn Maloney (Livonia) and Kesson added two hits each. Roy and Pierce had two RBI each.

All-American will end its season over Labor Day, playing at the Nine-Man Class A Nationals in Greensboro, N.C. All-American last year finished the season with a 25th place showing in the Nine-Man Majors, which is considered more competitive.

"The Class A is for good ball teams that usually have only one pitcher," Brubaker said. "The Majors teams sometimes are three-pitchers deep. Jerry is not going to overpower anybody but he's very crafty and when his knuckleball's on he's tough to hit. His fast balls slip by ya, too.'

P/C teams continue practices amid gloom

By Dan O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

Plymouth-Canton sports teams were going ahead with plans Wednesday, but not with the usual preseason optimism.

The mood among coaches and players was one of gloom and dismay after voters rejected a 4mill property tax increase Tuesday that would have saved co-curricular activities.

Adding to their frustration was a state of limbo in which teams found themselves since the school board had not issued an order to cease practice.

"All we've been told is we can continue to practice unless we're told to stop," Salem football coach Tom Moshimer said. "I'd like to say we're just operating as normal. We're not hanging our heads; we're still going after it."

Salem and Canton planned to scrimmage other schools as planned today; however, Canton football coach Bob Khoenle canceled practice Wednesday afternoon because players were so distracted by the situation.

The kids were so down and depressed," Khoenle said, "No one knows what's going on. It's like standing in quicksand, and you don't know if you're going anywhere.

We have bright ideas

This stuff tears you up as you go along. It's hard to keep the kids in it." As the first game draws closer, he said, "Are the kids going to be thinking about football or what? It's a disturbing

'We haven't been told no and we haven't been told ves. either." he said. "Until something is absolutely confirmed, we're going to try and prepare as best we can.

The coaches had worked to support the millage and expressed their disappointment with its defeat.

"It's inconceivable how a community of this stature could allow something like this to happen,' Moshimer said. "For teachers and coaches, there is always another year, but for many of these kids there isn't - and that's what is "In our community, we have a group of young people who are very dedicated to being good in their extracurricular activity — and not just athletics," Thomann said. "We have young people who can flat-out do it. When you take away that opportunity, it's a sad day.

It appeared there might still be hope for co-curricular activities,

Athletic Director Paul Cummings and other administrators spent most of Wednesday discussing possible alternative plans to be put before the school board Monday night.

Cummings wouldn't say if (or to what extent) a pay-to-play system might be part of that plan, since no decision had been made. Earlier indications were that the board might impose a fee of $500

"We're going to brainstorm all different areas of finance and ways and means we can to provide for our young people," he said. "We're planning to take something (to the board), but I can't tell you (what it is) right now.

"We have to come up with something because right now there's nothing there. I just want to have some alternative by Monday night."

Obviously, coaches remain hopeful of maintaining their programs and will be interested in any proposal that does that.

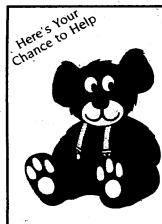

'We'll push for getting our program back whatever it takes,' Moshimer said. "Athletics teaches kids to deal with adversity because they're going to see it in life. This is a big adversity for them, and they'll deal with it because of their involvement in football."

All but 10 of the 52 varsity football players at Canton were present for morning practice Wednesday.

III PARKS MAKE MONEY

Michigan state parks play a very important role in Michigan's tourism economy, according to a Department of Natural Resources report on parks-spending patterns.

"The report estimates that 21 million state park visitors produced a $260 million contribution to the state's economy in 1992," said DNR Director Roland Harmes. "This is quite a return on a state investment in the park system last year of only $7 million in general funding support." Researchers reached the $260 million figure by applying updated state parks data to regional economic models developed by Michigan State University's Department of Parks and Recreation. The report considered only visitor spending within 30 miles of state parks and travel to the

WARBLER POPULATION UP

Michigan's population of the endangered Kirtland's warbler is the largest in 30 years with 485 singing males reported in the 1993 Department of Natural Resources count which was completed in mid-June.

The 485 birds represents a 22percent increase over the 1992 count and is the largest number since 502 Kirtland's warblers were counted in 1961. The numbers have increased every year since a record low of 167 in 1987.

II HOME IN THE CITY

The Department of Natural Resources nongame wildlife specialists have announced that Detroit is the first city in Michigan to boast the successful natural breeding and hatching of endangered peregrine falcon chicks in its downtown area.

Although several peregrines have been released by the DNR atop skyscrapers in Detroit and Grand Rapids, the last documented natural nesting of peregrines in Michigan was on a cliff in the Upper Peninsula during the 1950s.

A pair of adult peregrines sighted around the Book Building this spring have nested and produced two chicks, which were banded by DNR biologists for identification and monitoring.

Pop and Judy, as the chicks were nicknamed, used a recessed window well, lined with pebbles, on a ledge on the 33rd floor of the Book Building as a nesting site. Two of the four eggs laid remained unhatched and were sent to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for analysis.

An earlier nesting attempt by two other peregrine falcons on the Fisher Building proved unsuccessful, but the immature female peregrine is still roosting there.

E FISHING FACT

At least two million anglers a year fish for more than 50 species of game fish in Michigan's 38,000 square miles of Great Lakes waters, 22,000 inland lakes and 36,000 miles of river.

LSO benefit offers taste of Livonia

Food, fun and music await at "Sunday, Sports and Symphony" a benefit for the Livonia Symphony Orchestra at Laurel Park Place.

By Linda Ann Chomin Special Writer

The gala benefit that's become the social event of the season in Livonia, "Sunday, Sports and Symphony" promises an evening to delight the senses 6-9 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 29. Hosted by Laurel Park Place at Six Mile and Newburgh, the fifth annual festival-like fund-raiser on behalf of the Livonia Symphony Orchestra, takes place in the mall.

Hear dynamic music from "Phantom of the Opera" and "Cats," taste tempting treats from 25 Livonia restaurants, smell the heavenly scent of fresh pastries, see items up for bidding in the silent auction, and meet basketball celebrity, Vinnie Johnson, formerly with the Detroit Pistons.

Tickets are $25 per person in advance or $30 at the door, and available by calling the Livonia Symphony Orchestra office, 421-1111.

This is the social event of the year for the city of Livonia. It's a fun, fun evening with 25 restaurants, the silent auction and performances by the Livonia Symphony," said Livonia Symphony Society president, Ken Kelsey of Farmington Hills.

Co-chairing the event this year are Lee Alanskas and David O'Neil.

"This is one of our major fund-raisers. The symphony needs the support of the community," Alanskas said.

"Almost all of the communities where they have a larger cultural base, a symphony orchestra enhances the worth of the community. It gives area residents an opportunity to enjoy the cultural arts.

PREVIEW

Livonia Symphony Orchestra under conductor Francesco DiBlasi will run 6-7 p.m. and 8-9 p.m. Featured guest artists include Nancy Delewsky Villeneuve, soprano singing "Times of Your Life" and "The Way We Were" "Fat Bob" Taylor also known as the singing plumber and pianist, Howard Watkins playing Gershwin's classic "Rhapsody in Blue."

"Sunday, Sports and Symphony has been so popular and successful and the symphony, they're sure the focal point of the evening," said Michael Buescher, marketing director for Laurel Park Place, a Schostak Brothers venture.

"It's very important to support the symphony as a cultural entity in our community and the fund raising part is very vital to that," he said.

with notes and a G Clef A diamond, ruby, emerald and sapphire adorn the piece created by Jack Demirjian. This is one of many items being offered in the silent auction.

Topping the list of auction items is a resort vacation courtesy of Northwest Airlines and Livonia Marriott Hotel and Convention Center.

Other valuable prizes include an autographed Detroit Pistons basketball; autographed photos from Scott Livingstone and Mike Henneman of the Detroit Tigers, and Ted Lindsay and Eddie Mio of the Detroit Red Wings; gift certificates from Eleganza Boutique, I Natural Cosmetics, Dara Michelle, Rivalry, Land and Seas, Sherman Shoes, Chamils Menswear, Winkelman's, Jos. A. Bank Clothiers, Russell's Tuxedos, Charisma Salons, Apple Wreath, Genitti's and Italian Cucina restaurants, Courtyard by Marriott Hotel, Quality Inn, Hotel Baronette, Hampton Inn, Livonia Schwinn, and free graphic design work from Graphics Plus and printing from Kapchuk and Associates.

"If any business or organization is vice to the silent auction we'd really appreciate it," said Buescher. Contact him at 462-1100.

Last year's event raised more than $10,000 for the symphony. Two sources of revenue produced that sum monies from auction items and the close to 500 tickets that were sold.

"We have new music, new restaurants. Besides being the major fundraiser of the year it's our opportunity to get all our patrons out in a social setting to mingle with the board and musicians. It's a great value for the money they spend. One of the best values around in fund-raising," Kelsey said.

Every city needs some type of cultural event like the symphony concerts to make the city fulfilled. To the city it's important to have an orchestra to bring so many benefits to the community. Young people have the opportunity to come and hear and be exposed to good symphonic music at our children's concerts.'

This year's benefit is cosponsored by Laurel Park Place, Northwest Airlines, Livonia Marriott, Schostak Brothers & Company and the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Participating restaurants and bakeries include Max & Erma's, The Novi Hilton, Y Not Yogurt, The Coffee Beanery, D. Dennison's, Olga's Kitchen, The Cookie Factory, Livonia Italian Bakery & Cafe, Embassy Suites, Leo's Coney Island, Little Caesar's, Bobby's Country House, Subway, Genitti's, Marriott Hotel Garden Court Restaurant, St. Aidan's Banquet Facility, Sweet Dreams, and The Heritage Bakery.

The Livonia Symphony kicks off its 20th season 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 2 with a concert featuring piano so-loist, Tony Bonomici in Schumann's "Piano Concerto in A minor at Churchill High School Auditorium, 8900 Newburgh. For tickets call the LSO hot line at 458-6575.

Woody Allen tracks missteps of would-be sleuths

A keen observer of the foibles of friends and lovers, Woody Allen reveals the often farcical nature of contemporary relationships as he chronicles the misadventures of would-be sleuths in uptown Manhattan in "Manhat-tan Murder Mystery," opening Friday at metro Detroit movie theaters.

Directed by Allen from a screenplay he co-wrote with Marshall Brickman, "Manhattan Murder Mystery" is a contemporary comedy in which a husband and wife find themselves totally bewildered by a possible murder. Filmed in New York, "Manhattan Murder Mystery" is the 23rd feature Allen has directed and either written or co-written. Alan Alda, Wooden Allen, Anielica Huston and Diane Keaton star in the film, which co-stars Jerry Alder, Joy Behar and Ron Rifkin.

In the film, the untimely death of a seemingly robust upper West Side matron turns some of New York's literary set into amateur detectives. Suspicion abounds, and not all of it revolves around the supposed killer.

PREVIEW

Diane Keaton, as Carol Lipton, is the self-appointed leader of the group. Carol, a former advertising executive married to book editor Larry Lipton (Woody Allen), has given up her career to raise their son and has become an expert cook, with dreams of owning a restaurant.

Impetuous and inquisitive, with time to spare, she becomes curious about the sudden death of her neighbor's wife - to the infinite dismay of her more apprehensive husband, who would just as soon ignore the whole af-

Alan Alda plays the Lipton's engaging, unmarried friend Ted.

'There's an unusual atmosphere of improvisation and catching it on the run," said Alda about working with Allen on a film. "It's more like coming into a play. It's well thought out by Woody, but the actors don't suffer the boredom of the long waits and repetitions that are part of most movie making."

Anjelica Huston portrays a charming author whom Allen describes as "not only attractive and sexy, but also very intelligent.

Ron Rifkin plays Sy, married to Marilyn (Joy Behar). Friends of the Liptons, Sy and Marilyn encourage their investigation, offering their own opinions and ideas, and importantly their technological expertise.

Jerry Alder portrays the mysterious neighbor, Paul House, who may be a murderer.

Principal photography began in September 1992 and trailed the novice detectives through a variety of venues in and around New York, including: the Hotel 17 on the East Side, the famed "21" Club, the Cafe des Artistes for a poker lesson, Elaine's, Madison Square Garden for a New York Rangers hockey game, Lincoln Center and a night visit to a steel smelting factory.

Behind the scenes, Allen assembled his longtime creative team, including producer Robert Greenhut and executive producers Jack Rollins and Charles H. Joffe.

"Manhattan Murder Mystery," a TriStar Pictures release, opens Friday at AMC Maple, AMC Woods and Showcase Pontiac. It's rated PG (Some material may not be suitable for pre-teenagers.)

'The Secret Garden': heartwarming magic works through another looking glass, the young heroine in The Secret Garden" finds a miracle growing behind a locked gate on her uncle's estate. Her discoveries

MONAGHAN about it, herself, and the people around her lead to one of the year's most charming films. By now, we all know the story. After all, aside from being a perennial children's bestseller, Frances Hodgson Burnett's "The Secret Garden" also surfaced on the big screen in 1949 with Margaret Ö'Brien, as a 1987 TV movie and, most recently, as an acclaimed Broadway musical.

Somewhere around the turn of the century, an earthquake in India turns 10-year-old Mary Lennox (Kate Maberly) into an or-phan. Her uncle, Lord Craven, (John Lynch), out of obligation, takes her to live at his dreary Gothic mansion, where she looks upon everything with a sullen, dark-eyed glare.

This is not a happy place. Mary is told not to go poking around the castle, where screams sometimes echo through the corridors. The girl, both spoiled and neglected during her years in imperial India, can't even dress herself without the aid of servants.

Mary changes when she discovers a secret garden, kept shut off by her uncle in memory of his beloved wife, who rumor has it died there. The screams, she discovers, are those of her young cousin, Colin (Heydon Prowse), an invalid who has never glimpsed sunshine or even ventured out-

The girl's mission now becomes clear. She brings the overgrown mass of thorns and dead leaves back to life, and in the process, rejuvenates virtually everyone around her. She's joined in the task by Dickon (Andrew Knott), a peasant boy who has the power to attract baby animals to the gar-

Francis Ford Coppola, whose American Zoetrope produced the similarly winning "The Black Stallion" in 1979, wisely recognizes the audience for quality children's movies. He has assembled some top-notch filmmakers for this project, including Agnieszka Holland, director of the art-house hit "Europa, Europa."

Holland uses every technique available to create a movie that will bring "The Secret Garden" alive for both children and adults. Stop-motion animation even slips in as roots feel their way through the soil and rose petals open before our eyes.

We share in the mystery of the castle through Mary's eyes. This is helped greatly by an assured performance by young Maberly, who tranforms in the film from the "quite contrary" Mary left waiting by her uncle at the boat docks to the bright-eved redheaded girl who later introduces him to the garden. Maggie Smith, as the bullying housekeeper Medlock, brings a soul to what could have been a one-dimensional villain while Lynch's Lord Craven undergoes his own appropriately melodramatic change of character.

"The Secret Garden's" unbridled sentimentality might not appeal to everyone, but it is far from what one local critic called "a museum piece." Heartwarming in the best possible sense, it's as garden in June.

Secret Garden is now showing at these suburban movie theaters: AMC Abbey, Showcase Auburn Hills, AMC Americana West, GCC Canton Cinema, Showcase Dearborn, Showcase Westland, Star Winchester, AMC Laurel Park,

"I have a strong passion for food," said Luciano. "I like simple cooking."

Everything on the menu is made fresh daily. Nothing is premade. Realizing that going out to-

Linen tablecloths were replaced with white paper, and crayons were put on every table so children can have fun drawing or playing games while they're waiting for dinner.

"People come in dressed in jeans and say, 'oh we're not dressed up enough.' I reassure them they're dressed fine. We're really affordable. It's not uncom-

A new Camaro, Mustang, a couple of new pickups, plus a brandnew small car from Chrysler will come from the domestics, while about four new Japanese cars will round off the new-car launches, not counting the numerous lesser restyling efforts.

It's an odd year, not only because ordinarily this kind of new hardware would be warming even the cockles of a dealer's heart, but because along with the glitz there is a noticeable effort to promote safety features, along with horsepower and sheet metal.

It wasn't so long ago that safety was something you did but didn't talk about. For some reason, a few years ago features like airbags and antilock brakes got a sudden push in to the limelight. Now the new ads will often feature crushed and crumpled cars, not exactly the kind of image that you want to think about while kicking tires.

This year's new cars mainly will have airbags, and many will have two. The side doors have to withstand an oblique hit by a moving car. Also, for the most part, crash structures will be designed to withstand 35-mph frontal impact.

All this has come slowly, with the technology mainly available at least a decade ago. Safety technology, in fact, has been the basis of a series of highly successful local businesses, staring with Robbins Manufacturing, which started making seatbelts, and later was sold to Allied Signal. There are several labs doing biomechanical research, and various suppliers making the high-tech hardware necessary for airbags and crash testing. All in all, it has been a lucrative trend, as well as a useful one. But while the research a long with questions like 'Does it have an airbag? displacing

Notice: Public Participation for Regional Long Range Transportation Plan SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments

The Southeast Michigan Region is federally mandated to revise its Long Range Transportation Plan (LRTP) as a result of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act. The LRTP looks ahead 20 years at the transportation needs of Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, St. Clair, Monroe, Livingston and Washtenaw Counties.

This plan is being revised with input from federal, state and local government levels and must be completed by October 1, 1993. Local elected officials will make decisions about how to prioritize spending of transportation dollars for road reconstruction, road improvements and the building of new roads. Policy decisions must also be made about other forms of transportation buses, airports, bicycles and trains - for example. In addition, the 1990 Clean Air Act identifies Southeast Michigan as a moderate non-attainment area. The LRTP must support efforts to reduce regional hydrocarbon emissions by 15% by 1996 as required by the Clean Air Act.

Public participation is a vital ingredient in the revision of the LRTP. Elected officials must have some sense of the public will if a comprehensive plan is to be developed that addresses regional transportation

Public information meetings will be held to provide an opportunity to comment on the draft 2015 Long Range Transportation Plan for Southeast Michigan. Meetings will

- Wednesday, August 25, 1993, 7:00 p.m., at the Detroit Edison Communications Center, 26801 Northwestern Highway (north of 10 mile), Southfield.

At these meetings, the 2015 Long Range Transportation Plan for Southeast Michigan will be presented and the public will be invited to comment on any portion of it.

Copies of the draft document will be available at these meetings. For further information contact John Rempala at (313)

Staying sharp in print game

■ Troy-based Northwestern Printing is the first in Michigan to offer the $2 million, six-color Heidelberg Speedmaster printing press, which experts hail as the brightest, cleanest printer on the market.

By R.J. KING Staff Writer

The next generation printing press has arrived in metro Detroit, and at a cost of $2 million.

Gary Driscoll. owner and president of Northwestern Printing in Troy, hopes the technology rolls off run after run.

'In this industry, you can't sleep. Everyone is pushing quality and driving to be on the edge," he said. "No sooner do you put your neck on the line with a new piece of equipment than another comes along and you do it all over again.

Earlier this year Northwestern Printing became the first printer in Michigan to purchase a six-color Heidelberg Speedmaster press, which offers between 20 and 40 percent higher clarity than a conventional press by means of a new process called waterless printing.

"Waterless printing creates a much brighter, cleaner image and that's exactly what we need," said Jack Irwin, production manager for the Florist Transworld Delivery Association (FTD) in Southfield. "We recently produced a selection catalog for our members using the waterless method.

"It was a four-page piece with a double spread of a floral arrangement. Our business demands high detail and waterless certainly fits the bill.

The detail is the best I've seen and we've received excellent feedback. It's going to be a real asset for us.'

One benefit of the waterless printing process is that it eliminates conventional photographic plates, the most labor-intensive step in operating multiple color presses. The system transfers images on a special plate to paper without the need for water and chemical additives, hence the name waterless.

The machine completes the process in 15 minutes and does away with waste water. Discharge from conventional presses contain a wide variety of chemical compounds such as ink pigments and alcohol. The mixtures are typically collected and carted to hazardous material sites.

'By doing away with alcohol we eliminate freight charges, which is a big expense," said Driscoll. "We're targeting waterless to the high-end buyer such as the automotive, floral and retail industry, especially food. The difference (between conventional and waterless) is like night and day.'

Eliminating the liquid process allows press operators to match color proofs much faster because water so-

EARTHA DEYAMPERT

It happened again . . . bed-wetting

"It happened again!"

Those are the words which young children, even adolescents, use to tell about another episode of Bed-wetting or enuresis is a condition that can be frustrating and embarrassing to the maximum for older children. It evokes agitation and concern in both parents and children.

When bed-wetting occurs frequently with a toilet-trained child of five-six, a common reaction might be, "Why didn't you get up in time? Didn't you feel it?" Perhaps, if all liquids were cut off by a certain time, that would resolve the problem. Unfortunately, another reaction might be that a child is lazy and just didn't feel like getting up at

With children under five (three-four years of age), some parents chalk it up to not being completely toilet trained enough to know how to wake up and tend to their toilet need. Fear of the dark and similar ideas also may play a part.

When children are frequent bed-wetters, parents too become frustrated with washing bed sheets, blankets and scrubbing down matresses. It can become so upsetting to a child that they're afraid to go to sleep for fear it will happen again.

Usually, children are consistently dry by age five. It has been noted that there is a broad experi ence among both girls and boys at this age. Bladder control like crawling, walking and talking, is relative to the body's maturity and individual maturity rate.

The cause of the bed-wetting is likely to be developmental — typically a delay in the maturity of the brain to send the body a signal needed to control the bladder. Some individuals handle sleep or the body's physical processing of sleep different from others. Typically, we go through stages of sleep, first drowsy to light sleep, then on to deeper more relaxed sleep.

Some individuals who experience frequent bedwetting go from the first stage of sleep to immediate deeper stages of sleep and continue throughout the night. This perhaps makes it sometimes difficult for the brain to send the body its bladder control message.

Bed-wetting can be a temporary problem with the bladder filling and emptying. Physical abnormalities in the urinary tract and urinary infections are sometimes the cause. Stress, a death of a family member, pet or loss of a best friend or playmate, divorce and abuse may trigger bed wetting. These events often cause a child to regress, affecting their metabolism and bladder control.

What happens when you are 12-13 years of age and this condition is one you know only too well? It is a secret you've carried with you since you were old enough to realize it being a problem at age six. When most of your friends or so you thought, had dry nights since kindergarten, you continue to feel sad, burden and most of all baffled as to what is happening to you.

These thoughts are common among three adolescents who were brave as well as trusting enough to share their unwanted experiences of bed-wetting as older children. All three agrees that they shy away from accepting invitations to sleep-over parties and have made ever excuse in the book to even close friends about participating. "It's too risky," said a 12-year-old girl. "Î'll feel zapped with embarrassment.

One 11-year-old said: "It's a little kid's problem; it shouldn't be mine." He talked about how he would hide sheets from his family and not sleep underneath his comforter to avoid getting it wet and because it was difficult to hide something that was so obvious and expect to be in bed in the morning. He could rightfully display the dry comforter without anyone becoming suspicious about what wasn't under the comforter, the bed sheets.

The emotional trauma, anxiety, irritability, sleepless nights an older child may likely experience due to enuresis should be put into clear perspective by parents and the child as well. First of all, individuals who battle with this condition do not choose to be bed-wetters. Understanding and having a positive approach to handling the situation helps children maintain self-esteem. (Older children have their hands full, handling psychological, physical and hormonal changes at this

Shaming, scolding or teasing has no place or value. It only adds insult to injury and places limits on the coping process. Treatment for bed-wetting can be diverse. Urologists and other physicians may prescribe using an alarm system — a buzzer goes off as soon as the wetting occurs, allowing the

Birthing the baby — at home

Prissy may not have known anything about birthing babies in "Gone With the Wind," but today, a growing number of women are taking up the call to be lay midwives, helping other women have their babies at home.

By Christina Fuoco Staff Writer

Kathy Nunez had her first child, Joseph, at home 20 years ago. Over the next four years, Nunez discovered that there were other women out there who wished to birth at

One by one, she decided to help these women. Since then, Nunez has helped deliver more than 400 births as a lay midwife.

Cuddle time: Janice Molnar cuddles with her newborn daughter Catherine. Nunez also helped deliver Catherine at Molnar's Livonia home.

"I love what I do; it's satisfying to help these little babies into the world," she said.

One child she helped deliver is newborn Catherine, who's laying on the shoulder of her mother, Janice Molnar of Livonia.

Molnar met Nunez through a friend who had hired Nunez as a lay midwife.

'I attended one of her home births and it was really peaceful," said Molnar, who has birthed three of her five children at home.

Heidi McCluskey of Plymouth discovered home birthing ing in England, where it is more

"I really can't imagine having a baby in a hospital," said McCluskey who gave birth at home to her third child, Samuel, at 4:40 p.m. Tuesday, July 27.

Although McCluskey was confident of her decision, her parents were apprehensive about her choice.

"My dad's a doctor and my mother's a nurse. My dad asked if there was a problem with the hospitals in England," McCluskey said with a laugh.

She prefers to birth at home because it's a less disruptive atmosphere. "I don't feel like I have to stop my

'My mom was the same way," she said. "She was really apprehensive at first. But after she was there and she got to know Kathy, she would tell everyone, 'Oh, this is my daughter. She had a home birth.

"It's amazing how people's perception changes when they experience it. It's really a wonderful thing to have a baby at home.

Because most lay midwives don't advertise, referrals are their main source of clients, Nunez said.

"We're 100 percent referrals or repeats. It's better. We're self-screened," she said.

There are no licensing requirements in Michigan for lay midwives because there is little medical training involved, said Nunez and Doris Foley, licensing administrator for the state's Office of Health Services which includes the Board of Nurs-

Because of this, midwives and their clients regulate the midwives themselves.

Nurses take on new role as midwives

By JOANNE SOBCZAK SPECIAL WRITER

The listening, skilled physician is a cherished individual by both male and female patients. But often, when the medical problem or condition is "female." the woman may prefer another woman to talk to.

In an effort to create a more comfortable, natural atmosphere, whether it's for an annual Pap smear or natural childbirth, the University of Michigan School of Nursing has joined 38 other teaching institutions across the country to train registered nurses as certified nurse-midwives.

These female medical practitioners, who work in collaboration with physicians and are authorized to prescribe medication, offer extra medical attention combined with health care education, primarily during pregnancy.

Last spring, six students graduated from U-M with master's degrees in science - the college's first class of CNMs. This year, seven more are expected to graduate.

"Graduating our first class is a step toward alleviating the shortage of obstetrical care in this and nearby states," said program director Barbara Petersen, U-M assistant professor of nursing. 'As the program grows, it should have a positive effect on Michigan's high infant mortality rate, particularly among infants born to economically

Even though the CNM specializes in obstetrical care, a woman seeking a more personalized understanding of her reproductive functions can consult the medical practitioner for routine gynecological health care.

"Nurse-midwives, I have found, listen to you," said student Marilyn Filter, a registered nurse in the maternal child department of Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills. "When you come in and say, 'I'm feeling this at this time of the month' nurse-midwives are the people who sit you down and start to relate it to other things.

"It hasn't been very long since women have acknowledged that we have different problems than men do."

The term midwife is Old English for with woman and was applied to women who took a special interest in maternal care and whose loving hands carefully guided newborns into the

The first U.S. midwives were colonists trained in England and licensed under the auspices of the Church of England. They were initially well respected and honored by society. During early American history, a change in reputation occurred and in colonial times, it often brought accusations of witchcraft if a child was born mal-

Later, a primarily male-dominated medical field in the early 1900s controlled the vast majority of childbirths, further slowing down the growth of the midwife profession.

Midwives

The midwife tradition was professionalized in this country in 1925, when Mary Breckenridge, a U S.- and British-trained and licensed midwife, brought the European model of nurse-midwifery to the hills of Kentucky to help fight high maternal and infant mortality rates. It was part of the Kentucky Committee for Mothers and Babies, later becoming the Frontier Nursing Service in 1928.

In 1932, the first students of nurse-midwifery were admitted to and attended classes at the Maternity Center Association in New York City, the first official American school of nurse-midwifery.

In 1955, the American College of Nurse-Midwifery was established, then merged with the Kentucky-based American Association of Nurse Midwives in 1969. It was renamed the American College of Nurse-Midwives, which now accredits all U.S. education programs.

Until the early 1970s, nursemidwives worked extensively with women and families living in poor areas, then the more affluent consumers discovered nurse-midwifery. Birthing centers became a trend around the country, offering prenatal health supervision and personal care during childbirth in close collaboration with physi-

Today, nurse-midwives practice throughout the U.S. and though some may attend births at home, most are found in hospital settings, health maintenance organizations, public health departments, private practices and birthing centers.

Good listener

"A good CNM not only has the technical skills, but is a good listener and has good communication skills," said Filter, an eightyear veteran in obstetrical nurs-"I've always loved OB, mother and baby care, the family. I feel that the family is a very important aspect of society."

The Livonia mother of three and a graduate of the University of Michigan-Dearborn and Schoolcraft College believes nurses offer the majority of professional support during labor. The likelihood of the physician being there for anything other than the delivery is virtually nil, she said.

'Most women just want it done; labor is a very painful, stressful time," she said. "(But) the experience is very rewarding because you have a positive ending — you get this wonderful child."

Sherry Vespa, in the medical records department at a Detroit Medical Center facility, has worked with practicing nursemidwives. She never once saw an OB/GYN throughout her entire first pregnancy and it wasn't an economic issue. As long as the pregnancy is complication-free and the mother-to-be is healthy, a doctor is only involved if the situation calls for a more trained opinion.

Right choice

"When I became pregnant, I thought I'd prefer to see a woman because she would know what I was going through," she said. "I wasn't sure if I was going to like them (CNMs), but after I made the first visit, I knew I'd made the right choice."

In March, Vespa gave birth to a son at Hutzel Hospital in Detroit. Because the prenatal care, labor and delivery were basically without any major problems, a physician was not present for the delivery. Vespa found her prenatal visits to be more personal and that the CNM answered any questions she had. Statistics indicate that the average consultation with an obstetrician is six minutes as opposed to 24 minutes with a CNM.

The 25-five-vear-old, first-time mom spent close to 10 hours in labor, but was insistent that between husband and nurse-midwife, it was all teamwork.

"She spent most of the time in the room with me, not just when I was ready to deliver," Vespa said. "She was there 90 percent of the time monitoring me, being very supportive and always telling me what a good job I was doing. She was like my secondary coach.' First was husband Vince.

'He got along great with the nurse-midwife," she added. "She would reassure him, often complimenting what a fantastic job he was doing. It kept his confidence up to keep my confidence up." One challenge

One challenge to the CNM practice is insurance reform. They have achieved direct third-party reimbursment and services are covered by most private medical insurance carriers as well as Medicaid and Medicare. CNMs themselves also are covered by professional liability insurance.

The cost of the delivery and prenatal care doesn't differ from fees charged by the physician since the care is the same.

According to Filter, who currently is doing clinical training at Hutzel Hospital in Detroit, nursemidwives will accept someone on their ability to pay because the profession is based foremost on compassion and an interest in women's health care.

"It is cost-effective for communities to hire nurse-midwives over OBs," she said. "That's why there are many inner-city hospitals like Hutzel, which has 21 CNMS, providing care for Medicare and Medicaid patients.'

Nationally, some 250 nursemidwives are certified each year and CNMs assist in the births of approximately 3 percent of all newborns in the U.S. In 1991, there were 1,000 babies delivered at Hutzel through CNMs as opposed to 100 in 1985.

National data supports the premise that access to care is a problem for poor, uninsured minorities and in Michigan, access is also a problem of the young. More than 50 percent of the uninsured are young — 33 percent under 17 and 30 percent age 18-25, according to the Governor's Task Force report of 1990.

"These statistics reflect a rious need for additional CNMs," said Petersen, naming Women's Hospital, Pierson Clinic at Cottage Hospital in Grosse Pointe Farms and the Corner Adolescent Health Center in Ypsilanti as the few metro area health facilities employing nurse-midwives.

"I think women will have the opportunity to get cared for in a very personal and empathic way that truly meets their individual needs," she said.

ANNIVERSARIES

Bill and Nancie Williams

Bill (Leon) and Nancie Williams of Livonia recently celebrated their 40th wedding anni-

Many friends and relatives witnessed the renewal of their marriage vows on Aug. 1 at St. Edith Catholic Church in Livonia.

Their vows were heard by her cousin, Tony Cominotto, a deacon in the church, who married their son Bill Jr. and will marry their daughter MaryBeth this Novem-

A brunch at Fox Hills Country Club followed the ceremony.

The Williams grew up together in Epiphany Parish in Detroit. They were married Aug. 1, 1953, after the groom returned from serving in Korea. She is the former Nancie Fedrigo.

The Williams lived in Detroit until moving to Livonia in 1969 and were very involved in youth hockey programs. Their children, Sharon, MaryBeth (and fiance Stan) and Bill (and wife Kim) all graduated from Livonia high schools and colleges. They also have one grandchild, Kaitlyn.

We hold the answer to who we are the season for the resumption of school.

As students prepare for the beginning of the school year, we reflect upon the various types of students who enter schools to receive instruction.

In a book that contains the maxims and aphorisms of the wise men of centuries ago, we see depicted before our eyes in a vivid metaphor four categories of students: the sponge, the funnel, the strainer and the sieve. The sponge absorbs everything and retains it all: the funnel merely serves as a passageway receiving all and retaining nothing. The strainer rejects the wine, retaining only the dregs; and the sieve expels the dust but retains the flour.

This is an analogy that holds true in many areas of life and characterizes different types of personalities, for all of us are enrolled as students in the Academy of Life. There is one type of person who, like the sponge, would absorb everything and retain it. Thanks to limitations of the senses and the structure of memory, this is, of course, not possible. And for good reason. If we remembered every face we encountered, every word spoken, every incident transpired, we would be living in a nightmare of shadows.

If we kept everything we owned, we would truly possess nothing. Think of the housewife who refuses to part with old utensils. Think of the person who cannot relinquish a broken tool or a shabby garment. Life to these people is an attic of useless trash. To some extent, life would be unbearable if we did not subject our emotions to a periodic house cleaning. We ought not nurture every grievance, hold fast every joy, be dejected by every hurt.

Other people assume the aspect of a funnel in their attitude to life. They choose nothing; they retain nothing; they ignore everything. They gaze upon the panorama of life like bored spectators. Their motto is: "So what!" Nothing in life is worth the fuss and bother. They are immune to life's pain and joy, blind to its beauty, deaf to its poetry, and unconcerned about its problems. They simply do not care enough to become involved in the concerns of this world.

The third type of personality exemplifies an evil far greater than the funnel. We refer to the strainer which rejects the wine and retains the dregs. Some people are seemingly capable only of absorbing the corrupt, the rotten, the impure. This is the person who has eyes only for the evil in life and is blind to the good.

In all ages and societies, there are embittered, hate-ridden souls who walk through life searching for victims upon whom they project the venom of their hostility: the bigots, the hate mongers, the twisted and distorted people who bring pain in their wake. Who among us has not seen the person who goes out of his way to inflict hurt on others, who enjoys other's suffering, who delights in cruelty. This is the strainer type who expels the wine and retains the dregs of life.

The highest moral attainment is symbolized by the sieve which rejects-the chaff and retains the noble and nurturing qualities of

The Carnegie Hero Foundation was established some years ago to recognize and award heroic human deeds. In 40 years, it distributed 10,000 awards for heroic acts. The world contains many of the sieve type of person who separates a bit of heaven out of earthly dross. Such a person dis-that he does. He finds life's blessing in the eyes of a beloved friend, in the smile of a cherished child, in the engrossing aspects of one's life-work; in the glory of service. These, then, are four types of people. Before you start assigning your various acquaintances into these respective categories, take a closer look at yourself - the four types are all contained within

You can be a sponge, absorbing everything and learning little; or a funnel, choosing nothing and ignoring everything. You can be a strainer, retaining evil and losing the good; or you can be a sieve, rejecting life's corruption and refining its raw materials by idealism, dedication and sincerity. The answer lies within us.

Golf invitational to help with needed transplants

The Kaitlin Davis Transplant Fund Golf Invitational will take place Monday, Sept. 20, at the Tournament Players Club of Michigan in Dear-

Tickets are $300 per person. Businesses can also sponsor a hole for $250 and ads in the program are $50 each.

Proceeds from the golf outing will benefit the Kaitlin Davis Transplant Fund.

Kaitlin Davis, 2, was born with a non-functional digestive system. She needs a $500,000 liver and small intestine transplant. Without this surgery, doctors have given her one year to live.

The family's insurance company considers the surgery experimental and will not pay half for the procedure. Pittsburgh Children's Hospital is the only facility in the country that performs this surgery, which has a 80-83 percent success rate.

Donations may be sent to: Kaitlin Davis Transplant Fund, Box 103, Clarkston 48347. For more information, call 625-7713.

Vann: Help wanted, help needed

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

Wayne Vann is getting pretty good at dealing with disasters . . . someone else's.

When Hurricane Bob hit Cape Cod. Vann was involved in the cleanup. When Hurricane Andrew devastated south Florida, Vann was there, serving thousands of meals to the homeless. And he's ready to help with the cleanup in the Midwest as the flood waters

But help may have to come in a different way this time. There may not be the thousands of people to feed while they clean out their flood-ravages homes because their homes are being razed. a merciful end for structures that have been under water for five-six weeks.

"I've learned with disasters that you've got to be flexible, said the Livonia resident, who does Brotherhood (mission) work for the Southern Baptist Church in Michigan. "I talked to the national coordinator (for the relief effort) in St. Louis and he said The 'Don't send volunteers.' houses they're getting to are being condemned and bulldozed. The wooden homes are like Jell-O from being under water.'

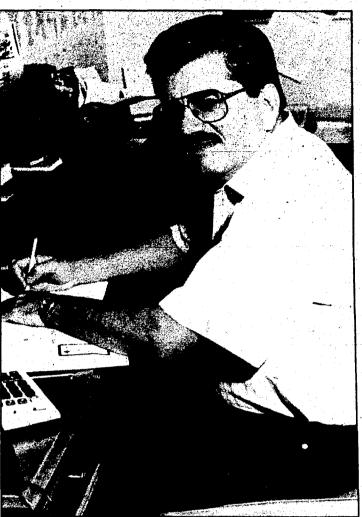

Vann had a group of 20 volunteers ready to leave Aug. 13 and was preparing to send a second group when word came to hold off. The disaster teams go into an area and cook and serve food, provided by the Red Cross, for up to 10,000 people.

Earlier, volunteers went to Des Moines, but were pulled out because there weren't enough people to feed. Where 8-10,000 meals is the goal, the teams were serving 3,800 and most were being taken to where they were needed, to the sandbaggers.

"It's been a little confusing," Vann said. "A flood is different than a hurricane. A hurricane comes and goes; a flood comes

Lessons learned

Possibly, it was lessons learned from Hurricane Andrew or the nature of the flood, but Vann, who quickly marshalled forces to collect clothing and household goods and got them delivered to south Florida, has been rebuffed about similar collections for the Mid-

Waiting game: Wayne Vann is waiting to hear from the national coordinator for disaster relief to see what kind of volunteer help will be needed in the flood-stricken Midwest.

Large corporations have stepped into provide things like cleaning supplies and "FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) and the Red Cross have been aware of it long enough to get the stuff together for the cleanup," Vann said,

But that doesn't mean help isn't needed. The word Vann has gotten that instead of shovels pumps and hoses will be the tools needed for removing the sludge left in homes not condemned. Water will be mixed with the residue to literally pump it from the homes, work that will have to be done within five days of the water receding to keep infection down. A money also is needed. Many of the people caught in the flood, didn't have flood insurance and will need help in rebuilding.

And Vann needs help himself in stocking a 16-foot Wells Cargo trailer that will be used for mass feedings in this disaster and others that may occur. Vann would like to have it ready to roll by Sept. 1.

Vann is in need of funds to replace equipment as it wears out. He also is in need of $13,000 for a step van. The Southern Baptist teams are the only ones that do mass feedings and wherever a teams goes it must bring enough food to intially feed 10,000 people. Once gone, the Red Cross gives vouchers for more food, which the team would pick up, hopefully with the van.

Early last week the word was that the teams should be pre-pared for a long stay in the Midwest, but that may change with the condemning and bulldozing the homes. Prior to that, the estimate was that 100,000 volunteers would be needed to facilitate the cleanup, Vann said.

Being prepared

But even if their services aren't needed in the Midwest, Vann plans on being prepared. After all, it's hurricane season. He would like to organize interfaith disaster teams — people of all religions working together for the betterment of others.

'In order for this (disaster relief effort) to work, it's going to take people," Vann said. "We have the people who want to volunteer, they just need an open door to do

People or groups interested in becoming part of the Interfaith effort should said their name, address and telephone number to the Baptist State Convention of Michigan, attention Disaster Relief, 1563 W. 12 Mile Road, Southfield 48076.

Monetary donations for the flood victims also can be sent to the convention. Checks should be made payable to the Baptist State Convention of Michigan and also be marked for disaster relief, Vann said.

Southern Baptist relief teams are still working in south Florida, To date they have helped rebuild 465 homes and have identified another 400 homes, Vann said. In fact. 14 volunteers for the Midwest were returning home after a week's work when one vehicle was struck by a car. Two volunteers were killed and five are in critical condition, Vann said.

'We keep reminding people not to overwork themselves," he added. "But they give so much of themselves and get so much joy from it. You get down there and start working and you forget about yourself."

Persons interested in helping Wayne Vann with his mission work, can call him at 522-9007.

'God's creation'

School fun: Youngsters at St. Paul Presbyterian Church in Livonia enjoyed worship, stories, crafts, music and fun, all with a focus on creation and taking care of God's world. As part of the vacation Bible school program, the children appeared in a parade as rain forest plants and animals. They also donated money that will be used to buy acreage in a rain forest. Walking with some of the rain forest flowers in the parade was teacher Laura Kulisz (top photo), while the Rev. Wendy Baily made friends with Carolynn Yarmy, Laura Yarmy and Anna Stromberg during a picnic.

Researchers refute allegations against religious groups

Allegations made this spring by U.S. media that the Montanabased Church Universal and Triumphant is "the next Waco waiting to happen" are false, two Oakland University researchers claim.

The possession of weapons does not constitute a community threat, according to psychologist Larry Lilliston and sociologist Gary Shepherd, following on-site observations made in July. They also refute international charges of child abuse brought against members of a second religious movement called The Family (formerly known as The Children of God).

Area business leaders back AET changes

Representatives of a coalition of Michigan environmental and business organizations are warning that federal regulations will hinder economic growth in the state unless Michigan lawmakers approve major changes in the Auto Exhaust Test (AET) program.

They strongly criticized the Service Station Dealers Association of Michigan for mounting a "self-serving scare campaign" against proposed legislation that would correct the problem.

In a position paper prepared by SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, coalition representatives indicated that the current AET program does not meet air quality requirements of the federal Clean Air Act and stated its position that the program must be improved in several respects, including more sophisticated and reliable emissions tests utilizing new technologies, centralized testing facilities that are separate from private repair facilities and private operation of the state's centralized pro-

Coalition representatives said the improved AET program is the major component of Michigan's plan for reducing air pollution, as required by the Clean Air Act. Failure to demonstrate compliance with the Act by Nov. 15 of this year would result in serious federal sanctions on Michigan, including loss of $500 million in federal highway funds and severe restrictions on industrial development.

"These sanctions would cost Michigan thousands of jobs," said John Amberger, executive director of SEMCOG.

The coalition's position paper accused the Service Station Dealers Association of Michigan of attempting to sabotage state legislative activity with a "self-serving scare campaign . . based on half-truths and misleading allegations."

"Despite the dealers' false claims, the current AET program is not working as in thould in life-proved, centralized program will not produce major inconvenience for motorists; and, testing costs will not skyrocket," Amberger pointed out.

Legislation improving the AET testing program and centralizing test facilities is supported by a coalition of business and environmental organizations, including the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, American Automobile Manufacturers Association, Michigan State Chamber of Commerce, Eastern Michigan Environmental Action Council, Michigan Manufacturers Association, Michigan Chemical Council, SEMCOG, and others.

Centralized testing is done in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

been raided by authorities in several countries, on the basis of trumped-up charges, and children have been forcibly taken away from their parents. All of these charges have subsequently been dismissed and the children returned.

However, just this spring, 90 children were removed from their homes in France, and most still remain in government custody. Several California homes have also been recently harassed by detractors and professional "cult hunters."

Lilliston and Shepherd were among a dozen scholars from universities all over the country who were given unprecedented access to study the Church Universal and Triumphant.

Eilliston and Shepherd spent three weeks at the church headquarters in Montana (longest of any of the research team), living with members, observing social practices, conducting interviews, etc. They were also the only team members who went on to spend a week living with members of The Family in California, where they conducted similar observations, testing of children, etc.

Lilliston earned a doctorate from Temple University and is currently chairman of the psychology department at Oakland University. He has conducted a number of previous studies of new religious movements with a particular emphasis on socialization of Hare Krishna children.

Shepherd was awarded his doctorate from Michigan State University and has also carried out much previous research on contemporary religious movements, particularly Mormonism.

particularly Mormonism.

The recent tragedy in Waco,
Texas, and the subsequent wave of public "cult" hysteria gave special impetus to their studies. The OU researchers claim that popular conceptions of these new religious movements (the term "cult" has become debased into a pejorative label, they say), shaped and reinforced by media sensationalizing, are very distorted.

It is important that more objective information, based on unbiased scholarly motives and direct observations, be made available to both the general public and government authorities, Lilliston and Shepherd say. Otherwise, they fear that civil and religious liberties in these and other cases are likely to be seriously eroded.

Students part of Plymouth art fest tudents again will hawk their wares at Plymouth Community Arts Council's Artists and Craftsmen Show, always a biggie for Midwest artists and artisans.

The 22nd annual show, during Plymouth Fall Festival, runs Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 11-12, at Central Middle School, 660 W. Church. Hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. More than 100 adult exhibiters will take

Most student participants are in grades 5-8 but any K-12 student who lives in the Plymouth-Canton school district can sell original artwork or crafts in a booth in the school hallway. Students inventory their goods, set prices and work the booth. Prices range from 75 cents to $20.

Student fare includes jewelry, ornaments, stationery, T-shirts, headbands, bows, pencil drawings, plastic crayon holders, fabric tissue holders, string friendship bracelets, watercolors, twig Santas, even Christmas stockings for dogs.

Parents Alyce Humphrey of Plymouth and Adrienne Bodnar of Canton will oversee the booth. They hope to double last year's student participation of 12. Each has a daughter who has parlayed her creativity into cash.

The booth gives kids a golden opportunity to test their creativity while earning pocket money. Quality is wide ranging.

Interested students should call either Humphrey, 455-9673, or Bodnar, 453-2099. Items must be brought to the student booth Friday evening,

Varied adult exhibits

While a call is out for students, adults were juried into the show last winter. They'll offer everything from fine art priced up to $800 to baskets. woodwork, clay, jewelry, pewter, photography, pottery, floral arranging, clothing, toys and furniture. At least 25 of the exhibiters are new to the show 'We looked for exhibiters in tune with the '90s,' said show co-chairwoman Carolyn Simons. "An exhibiter might make it in one year but not the next because the selection committee changes," she added. "It's subjective but we try hard to go with quality and professionalism.' There's an incentive to keep booths attractive: a first prize of $50 and runnerup ribbons.

Despite safeguards, pirate booths have popped up over the years. "We've asked their operators to leave and they have," Simon said. "We've never had any major problems. Many crafters come back year after year and know if they do something not in accordance with the lease agreement they sign, they'll never be asked back again.

Show admission is $2 ($1 for seniors and students; kids accompanied by an adult, free). The show is PCAC's top fund-raiser. Last year, it cleared $15,000. Twenty-five percent went to the Fall Festival. That left $11,250, 14 percent of PCAC's 1992-93 general fund.

"Along with Art in the Park, this show really sets Plymouth off as a place with a reputation for quality art shows," said Christine Ilas, PCAC executive director._

"Art in the Park is run independently so this is the main art show we do," she added. "It's the hest kind of fund-raiser because the participants play an active role. They aren't just being philanthropic when they choose to take part.

Hometown artist

Plymouth artist Tom LeGault has been juried into the show six times. The 1974 Plymouth Salem High School-graduate finds it more relaxed than the five stops on his summer circuit: Toledo, Muskegon, Royal Oak, Plymouth's Art in the Park and Ann Arbor.

'There's less of a crush so I get to see old friends. It's a show I actually get to enjoy. By Ann Arbor, I have nearly a year's worth of orders, so the hectic pace for me is over for the year. He'll make it a point to have pieces representing all of his styles: originals or lithographs of romantic reflections of ponds, barns, lake scenes and lighthouses as well as originals of impressionistic contemporary landscapes, harborscapes, florals and abstract Southwest scenes.

In a dramatic break from his hugely popular but tightly brushed acrylic reflections, LeGault is using painting knives, huge brushes, subtle color play and thicker paint textures to fashion daring impressionism.

"These pieces are fragmented, looser and more fun," he said. "They're keeping my interest level high. They're such a bold departure from the reflections, you might think two artists are in-

Handling paint with a knife strikes a good compromise between his twin loves of painting and sculpting. "I'm doing things with paints that a lot of technically equipped, capable artists don't necessarily have a feel for. I think the sculptor in me is coming out."

Something old: Interior designer Paula Weber turned her client's vintage fabric into draperies for the guest room, of a 1918 Plymouth bungalow. Mock shades are "buttoned" to the window.

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER SPECIAL WRITER aula Weber, a collector and lover of vintage fabrics that she turns into pretty home accents, is ahead of her time. Go fig-

The Plymouth-based interior designer started her business, Custom Interior Designs, in 1988, when there was only mild interest in her

Today, she runs two workrooms (one doubling as a showroom to meet clients) with an upholster and two sewers on staff.

In Weber's line of work, the adage is true: what goes around comes

"There's real interest in vintage fabric. In California and New York, the interest is explosive, but it's beginning to catch on here, too," said Weber, 35, a graduate of Plymouth-Canton High School,

Her love of fabrics, and textiles in general, started as a child making Barbie doll clothes. She earned a marketing degree from Schoolcraft College in Livonia and learned to fit fabric working as a GM upholsterer.

For years, she dabbled in tailoring and dress design, but yearned for a decorating career. Weber started out making custom pillows and bolsters from fabrics dating to the mid-1800s, which she still sells under the name, Old Roses. She combines three or more fabrics in her trademark pillows and embellishes them with vintage buttons, cording or fringe. She uses brocade, lace, velvet, tapestry and linen. Pillows sell for $28 to $275 for needlepoint.

them," she said. "A customer recently brought in her mother's old robe to make into a pillow. I haven't decided yet, but I see something soft and comfortable, maybe plump. This is very special."

Some customers come in with family heirlooms like a rattan bench or bedroom chair they want to revive with an unusual fabric. Others want to recover their keepsakes with material from the same era. She accented an old wicker barrel chair by painting it black and attaching a black fox collar around the back.

The fur's shape fit the chair perfectly, so I thought, Why not?' My customers admired it and I liked it well enough to take home and use.'

Most of the vintage fabric Weber finds already is made up into pleated drapes, clothing and tablecloths, which she carefully takes apart for later

Gordon Wilson recently came to Weber with six panels of vintage brocade he bought at a local antiques market. He liked the rust-colored threads that had faded to copper. Weber salvaged most of it for side panels and a swag over three double-hung windows in Wilson's guest room. The two selected a translucent copper stripe fabric for mock shades that are "buttoned" to the window frame.

"I'm normally opposed to drapes. I either have stained glass panels or nothing on the windows," said Wilson, whose 1918 Plymouth bungalow is decorated with vintage furnishings. "This is my first venture with vintage fabric. There's something interesting about old things. This fabric has real character."

Weber also collects barkcloth, the colorful nubby cotton fabric that decorated living rooms from the '30s to the '50s. Barkcloth is some 50 years short of being a bona fide antique, but to 30, to 40-yearolds, it's already an heirloom.

"It's our antique because we grew up with it," Weber said.
"One look at these fabrics and you know they were created by some wonderful artists. They're historical and, at the same time, whimsical.'

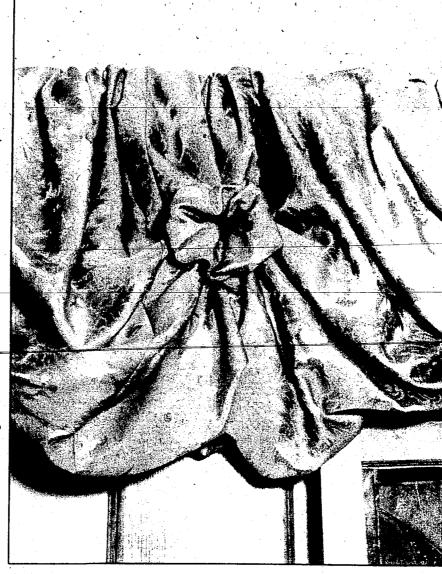

Barkcloth designs include colorful cowboy prints; scenes of the four seasons; Far East prints; bold tropical flowers and zany geometrics.

She has some unused barkcloth, but most comes from pinch pleated drapes and curtains from the '40s and '50s. She sells it for $25 to $100 per yard. The fabric makes great accent pillows and looks particularly good on old rattan pieces, Weber said.

Since I love the fabric, I'm careful about how it's used. I won't cut into a large piece for a small job if it creates waste,'

Weber believes vintage fabrics should be used like artwork: "The days of matching furniture are over. You don't buy art to match a room, so a footstool or cushion covered in vintage fabric doesn't have to blend either. I like a room that looks evolved, like it has come together over time.'

For more information, call Paula Weber at 453-9060.

music of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

"Signing a contract with the Metropolitan Ballet gives me the opportunity to dance with professional people, to stay home instead of moving away, and to graduate with my class," said Dryja, an honor student entering her senior year.

The 26-member MBT company, including four apprentices of which Dryja is one, will meet five days a week to prepare for six performances of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" Oct. 7-10. The Metropolitan Ballet Theatre, working with a $1.5 million budget under artisic director Karl Condon, will present classic ballet and contemporary as well as two world premieres in its first season. "Giselle" closes the series in

Condon, a principal dancer with the Boston Ballet until this season, dances the role of Puck in the October performances. He personally hand-picked the company's dancers from auditions held in New York, Boston and Detroit

'We want to grow to become a world-class company, to become competitive in the upper tiers of the dance realm, and to remain faithful to creating classical ballet," said Condon during master classes taught by him to the Plymouth-Canton Ballet Company at Joanne's Dance Extension in Plymouth.

"This is Detroit's own company. They should take pride in its ownership, come to our shows, our lectures. We're doing it for them. From what cities have been going through around the country with cutting the arts, we're leaders in the renaissance of the arts.

The idea for producing the first professional company in the Detroit area was the brainchild of accountants Bradley L. Stroud and Joseph A. Valentic of Birmingham. Both served on the board of directors of the now-defunct Michigan Ballet Foundation. As such, they were to formulate a long-range plan for the organization. Instead, they made an important discovery

"The research told us there's no focal point for ballet in this area. Any time dance is brought in, it sells very well," said Stroud of Birmingham.

"Having a young daughter who's studied with Rose Marie Floyd and Iacob Lascu, I would like to see programs being produced by professionals from this area instead of having to import dancers from outside the area. So we thought, 'Why not create a professional ballet company?

Once the decision was made, Stroud and Valentic sought assistance and advice from major companies across the country.

The two owners of Specialized Accounting Services in Detroit learned a lot from Boston Ballet who pulled the struggling company from financial straits in 1985.

"It's not going to hurt the Plymouth-Canton Ballet or other smaller local companies to have the Metropolitan Ballet here. It's important, as part of the arts, to support a professional company because we're a major metropolitan city and we don't have a professional company. It will bring people to Detroit," said Greene, Plymouth-Canton Ballet Company artistic director.

"It also gives our local dancers somewhere to go. Very few professional companies even come into the area to audition.

Condon will hold auditions in September to fill 30 positions composed of mainly young danc-

Pewabic Pottery display opening

By LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

Livonia Arts Commission will host the annual "Pewabic Students, Faculty and Staff' exhibition. featuring pottery, sculpture and wall pieces crafted by artists working at the historic Pewabic Pottery in Detroit.

The Livonia exhibition will run Aug. 25 to Sept. 18 in the Art Gallery on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

A public reception for the artists will take place 5-7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 27 at the library.

Supported by a grant from Detroit Council of the Arts and Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, the 84-piece exhibition by 68 artists showcases the talents of Nicholas Seidner, Pewabic Potterv's artist-in-resi dence; Ruth Dorando Marcy, education director at the pottery; and instructors David Ellison, whose work deals primarily with tilemaking and recreation of historic architectural details, Carolyn Wilson, resident clay artist at Detroit Country Day School, and Marcia Hovland, who runs a production studio for ceramic jewelry.

Pewabic Pottery of fers a multifaceted curriculum of basic ceramics, tilemaking, glaze formulations and clay sculpture as well as intensive studies in hand building and wheel throwing. Several artists enrolled in the children's education program take part in the show.

Now celebrating its 90th anniversary, the pottery, founded by Mary Chase Perry Stratton and Horace J. Caulkins, continues to make history as an atelier for the design and production of architectural tiles, vessels and the advancing ceramic arts.

n 1981 the bic Society, Inc. was formed to preserve the pottery, now designated a national historic landmark.

As the oldest art pottery in continuous operation in the United States, Pewabic is known nationally for its museum and archives, gallery, educational center and production program.

Through the years, its many commissions were Diego Rivera Court, Detroit Institute of Arts; Christ Church Cranbrook, Bloomfield Hills; the Guardian Building, Main Public Library and Holy Redeemer Church in Detroit; and National Shrine for the Immaculate Conception in Washington, D.C.

The faculty/student exhibition will be on display through Aug 21 at Pewabic Pottery before moving to the Livonia library.

Library hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday. Saturday.

Moving? Best get a battle plan

Whether you're moving up, down or just out, you'll want to develop a plan to minimize the headaches of relocating.

"Begin your planning at least one month in advance," said Mary M. Arlinghaus, president of Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors.

"Confirm closing dates with your real estate professional before scheduling your moving date. If you're renting, confirm your move-in date. Make a list of all important documents that must be transferred such as children's school records, financial and medical records," she said.

You don't have to take every thing with you, especially if you're moving a long distance. This is always a good time for cleaning closets and the basement where long-forgotten items are stored.

You might consider holding a garage sale to offset some of your moving expenses. If you donate items to charity, get a receipt for tax purposes.

Provide change of address no-bills, magazine publishers and other organizations with which you're affiliated.

"Begin the chore of packing early, particularly those seldomused items," Arlinghaus said. "If you've hired a moving company, ask about boxes and packing paper.

"A local grocery store is a good source for boxes for the do-it-yourself mover," she continued. Ask for boxes in advance. Smaller stores may receive shipments only once a week and will only give away boxes if you're there at a specified time to pick them up.

Save old newspapers for packing material. For fragile items, you may want to consider buying special packing boxes to ensure safety during transit. Wardrobe boxes may be purchased at many trailer rental locations.

Try creative packing with oddtice to the post office, credit card size and fragile items. Move mattresses with old sheets on them to provide protection from dirt. An antique floor lamp may best be moved rolled up in a rug, or a crystal decanter packed in the middle of bath towels for cushion-

> Don't let creative packing lead to confusion when unpacking. Make certain all boxes are clearly labeled. For things too precious to risk damage, move by hand, if possible.

> Pack separately items you'll need on the road during transit including prescription medication, reading material and toys for children.

> List items you'll need to settle in including cleaning supplies, light bulbs and basic hand tools. Pack a suitcase you could live out of for a few days if necessary.

"Keep careful records of all your moving expenses as some may be tax deductible," Arlinghaus said.

Two weeks before moving day. contact local utility companies to let them know when to disconnect service. Arrange for utility service in your new home. Plan carefully for the transfer of checking and savings accounts.

If you're taking on the task of moving yourself, organize loading to maximize space in the truck and ensure that the heavy box of books doesn't get loaded on the china.

And if it's a short distance to your new digs, consider transferring some staples like pots, pans, silverware, glasses and plates before the main move. That will cut down on work on the big day and give you a start on organizing to your tastes.

Upon arriving at your new home, take a quick survey of each room. Is the house or apartment in the condition you were act by Aug. 5. It allows employees to take up to 12 weeks per year of unpaid, job protected leave to care for a new baby, an ailing relative or the employee's own illness. The act applies to those with 50 or more employees including part-timers and temporar-

An employer who violates the act may be liable for double the employees' lost wages and legal fees. Employers are cautioned to review all written policies to make sure nothing runs afoul of the act

Recently, the Labor Department issued regulations concerning the application of the act. Employers must give written information to employees regarding their rights under the act, prepare additional information for those who request a leave, keep records to verify compliance and post notices explaining the act.

Please give us advice regarding updating our bylaws. We know we need some changes but we don't know enough about the state condo laws to proceed.

While it is important for every association to periodically update its by-laws, it is also important that it not undertake unnecessary legal tasks which may prolong and otherwise undermine the desired effect, which is to obtain a new and legally sufficient set of documents

You should list your various concerns regarding your present by-laws, particularly in the area of restrictions, rules and regulations to help an attorney redraft your documents. Your time and effort would be better spent assisting the attorney in determining the problems at your condo rather than trying to redraft it yourself.

I have stayed in a condo in Clearwater Beach, Fla., and wonder how their association's board of directors meet despite the diversity of its members' citizenship, both by state and country.

If you are interested in a hotel condo unit as an investment, obtain a copy of the association's by-laws. They would give you some insight as to how the board conducts its meetings. Many boards conduct meetings by conference call or take action by written resolutions. As a practical matter, the managing agent of the condo runs the day-to-day affairs while the board meets once or twice a year.

Coldwell agents win awards

Five area Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate sales associates recently were honored among the 1,500 Coldwell agents in Michigan at the firm's second annual Midwest Region Mid-Year Sales Rally.

From the Plymouth office. Chris Knight, Frank Julian, Judy Rumpel and Lucia Capicchioni won sales awards. Chuck Page was honored from the Troy off-two baths and a basement are priorities for buyers in today's existing home market.

Coldwell Schweitzer set a company record with $65 million sold and closed during the month of June.

That's what members of the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors indicated when recently surveyed as to the importance prospective buyers place on various home features.

The results showed the ranch to be the most sought-after style, followed by two story and story and a half. Brick was the overwhelming choice for exteriors followed by a combination of brick and siding. Three-bedroom houses were by far the most popular size. A majority of buyers (55 percent) look for two full baths and more than a third (35 percent) 11/2 baths. A basement is the prime feature most often sought, followed in descending order by attached garages, large lots and fireplaces. In questions on location, rank

What home buyers want Brick exteriors, three bedrooms, ings indicate that proximity to schools is of greatest concern with freeway access and nearby shop-ing opportunities following. Perhaps of even more interest to home sellers, the Realtors were asked to rank the most common failings for listed homes. Overpricing was most frequently cited.

Next came houses in poor condition, houses not sufficiently clean and those not easily accessible for showing to prospective buyers.

What improvements should more sellers consider to make their properties more appealing to

According to frequency of mention, the listing suggests in descending order remodeled kitchen, new windows, remodeled baths, new roofs, improved landscaping, new driveway, and siding added over wood exterior areas.
"This doesn't mean that sellers should make all such improvements," said Bill Deacon, WWOCAR president. "The survey suggests these are factors that could make homes more sell-able. but such investment may not always be to the seller's advantage.

"More importantly, the home should be fairly priced against similar properties in the same area and, above all, should be freshly-cleaned with all systems in prime working order,' Deacon said.

Home buyers, concerned about today's economic trends, may search more extensively to find just the right property than ever before.

Then survey among the WWOCAR's 2,500 members indicates that about 55 percent of buyers look over 10 or more houses before making a decision. Another 26 percent see at least five different properties.

anyone?: One of Rossetti's current projects is the new National Tennis Center at Flushing Meadows, N.Y., the site of the U.S. Open. The design will include 85 courts, including a 23,500-seat main stadium, as well as a 700-seat restaurantand two 300seat restaurants.

When major market sports franchises start looking to build a new stadium they often come to Birmingham to seek the wisdom of stadium architect Louis Rossetti, whose design of The Palace of Auburn Hills remains a national model.

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

What's new in sports stadiums and arenas?

Luxury suites that double as office space. Landscaping and overall design that capture the feel of the surrounding neighborhood. Diversionary activities from the main event such as eating and mingling areas.

Welcome to the 1990s and beyond guided by Louis A. Rossetti, president of a Birmingham architectural firm. Rossetti, who designed the Palace of Auburn Hills, has become a national figure when it comes to entertainment complexes.

His firm is now working on several

Pleasing all comers

"There's a number of different key elements. It's not simple," Rossetti said of the design process.

"First is the players' facilities. They're paid so much money now, you have to have the best in service for them. Starting with when they arrive. They want to be seen, but not touched. Then you have training facilities, locker rooms.

'I don't care if it's basketball, hockey or entertainment, they want the best," Rossetti said.

Home affordability improves slightly

People who bought houses last year in southeastern Michigan spend a slightly smaller percentage of their monthly household income to finance the purchase than did buyers in 1991.

Even though the average sales price of existing and new houses here increased to $126,100 from $118,500, the share of monthly income used to buy a house fell to 22 from percent.

The average monthly payment last year in southeastern Michigan, which includes Wayne and Oakland counties, was $1,060. That includes principal, interest, taxes and

The figures were reported by U.S. Housing Markets, a Livonia-based research publication of Lomas Mortgage USA, a national servicer of residential mortgages.

Falling mortgage rates apparently was the major reason for the decline in percentage of income needed for monthly payments. "That would probably be the bulk of the change," said Brian Bragg, editor of U.S. Housing Markets. "Some of the change may be attributed to an income increase.

Midwest markets, with average share of monthly income to finance, monthly payment and selling price for 1992, follows: ■ Chicago — 24 percent; $1,250; $159,500.

- Columbus 23 percent; $960; $130,200. ■ Detroit/Ann Arbor — 22 percent; $1,060;
- $126,100. ■ St. Louis — 21 percent; $980; $134,900.
- Cleveland 20 percent; $890; $123,900. ■ Indianapolis — 20 percent; $880;
- Milwaukee 20 percent; $900; $105,500. ■ Minneapolis/St. Paul — 19 percent; $920;
- Kansas City 19 percent; $830; $113,400. ■ Cincinnati -- 15 percent; $650; $88,600.

The most affordable metro areas in 1992 identified by U.S. Housing Markets based on percentage of income required to make payments were Kansas City, Minneapolis/ St. Paul, Milwaukee, Miami/Ft. Lauderdale, and Cleveland.

The least affordable metro markets were Los Angeles, 33 percent; San Francisco, 31 percent; San Diego, 31 percent; New York City, 27 percent; and Seattle, Wash., 25 per-

Nationally, the average sales price of an existing home last year slipped to $144,000, down from $145,800 in 1991, the publication reported. The decline was only the second in the past 30 years, last occurring in 1973.

The average price for a new home rose to $158,100 from $155,200.

"They want to get out of their car and be secure . . . so where they go in is important. They want quality food, quality restrooms, a club-like atmosphere. They generally like being catered

"The next group in importance is probably the press and photo-graphers," Rossetti said. "They want no hassles by the public. So we have isolated elevators to get them down to their work. They need immediate access to a darkroom. Then there's food.'

Plant operations - adminietrative offices, security and first aid - also must be considered. 'Underneath the stands, it's almost like a city," he said.

Then come sight lines, seating, accoustics and lighting for the majority of fans in the stands, Rossetti said.

Luxury, practicality

Stadiums used to be owned and operated by municipalities and consequently were built on the cheap, Rossetti said. Team ownership was more an ego thing than money maker, he added.

As expenses escalated, owners sought more revenue by eyeing parking and concessions. It dawned on them that owning the stadium rather than renting could eventually lead to more money for them.

Luxury suites turned into a major financing tool, Rossetti explained.

"Lenders felt better banking on (suite) leaseholders. If you have 120 suites that average close to $70,000 per year, that's close to $9 million a year for debt service," he the preceeding example could leverage more than $75 million.

Not just for games

Auxiliary uses at stadiums food courts, picnic areas and quiet rooms for parents - have become increasingly important as profit points. They also offer an escape from the non-fan who might want a people-watching experience.

"What we're giving is a lot more variety, a choice for the public,' Rossetti said. -

In the Ottawa Palladium, some suites normally 20-by-25 feet will be extended 50 feet to result in an additional 1.000 square feet of space which Rossetti says can be turned into working office space for a start-up company or small sales firm.

Sort of a go to work then stay for the game philosophy.

But it would probably cost upwards of $70 million and take three years to get the job done, he said. For those reasons, he sees a new stadium as inevitable.

"It's easier to build a new stadium for $150 million and have all the whistles and bells to go with it." Rossetti said. "There's no right or wrong on this. It depends on what he (Tiger owner Mike Ilitch) wants to do.

He does have some thoughts on what the new stadium should look like.

Circular, cookie-cutter facilities like Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh, Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia and Riverfront Stadium in Cincinnati are out. New stadiums that incorporate old designs are in, like Oriole Park at Camden Yards in Baltimore.

People want to have their personality, their city's personality, in (a stadium)," Rossetti said. "In the design field, we've got to find a way to personalize.

'I don't have the answer. Perhaps it's building more in the ground so they're not so high. When you get inside, instead of continuous rows of seating, why not landscape?
