Wayne Road sees spark of new businesses

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

BUSINESS

Several new businesses will soon sprout up along Wayne Road, but city officials predict it will be a few years before the commercial corridor sees a real upswing.

Just last week, Westland City Council members approved three measures that could help boost Wayne Road's image. Consider:

■ A new full-service restaurant looms on the northwest corner of Oakwood and Wayne. It will lead to renovation of the once-popular Lerights, a dining place that closed more than a year ago.

■ Dillon's Jewelers will build a new store near the northeast corner of Avondale and Wayne, more than tripling the space it now occupies in a nearby strip mall.

■ An older party store on the southeast corner of Joy and Wayne will be converted into a new 7-Eleven.

The latest three projects follow other Wayne Road improvements that are nearing completion or in the works.

A Rite Aid drug store, next to a new, adjacent Thrifty Florist, is nearing completion on the southeast corner of Wayne and Ford.

"They're finishing up the Rite Aid now," Westland Planning Director Tod

Kilroy said.

And a new Auto Zone business has been approved near the southeast corner of Bock and Wayne, although many neighbors don't want it built.

"Certainly there's reinvestment in the community," Kilroy said of the latest projects.

Places of beauty

The city of Westland has announced the winners of the 1998 Summer Beautification Contest.

The residential winners include: first place, the Diachers of Fairlane Street; second place, the Gillissies of Hazelwood; third place, the Dregowskys of Bock.

Non-residential winners include: first place, Westland Estates, 6843 N. Wayne Road; second place, Taylor Towers, 36500 Marquette; third place, St. Theodore Parish, 8200 N. Wayne Road.

The awards will be presented at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 8, at the William P. Faust Public Library.

Assistant principal leaves

Donald Learmont was named assistant principal at Walled Lake Western High School. Learmont holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Central Michigan University.

He has been assistant principal at Wayne Memorial High School in the Wayne-Westland Schools since July of 1995, after serving four years as assistant principal/athletic director at East Jackson High School, and two years as athletic director at Baldwin High School.

Learmont also served for six years as a high school math teacher.

Infantry school

Army Pvt. Raymond L. Utter Jr. has arrived at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Columbus, Ga., to receive One Station Unit Training. The training combines basic military training and advanced individual training.

Utter is the son of Darlene A. Utter of Wixom and Raymond L. Utter of Westland. He is a 1998 graduate of John Glenn High School, Westland.

Changes set for corner near Glenn

In the wake of safety concerns, major changes are on tap for the Marquette-Carlson intersection just west of John Glenn High School.

BY DARRELL CLEM

Parents have won a long battle to convince Westland officials to improve an intersection considered dangerous near John Glenn High School.

Mayor Robert Thomas confirmed that major changes loom for the Marquette-Carlson intersection just west of the school.

Specifically, a traffic light will be installed and Glenn's westernmost driveway will be moved to align with Carlson.

Work could begin as early as February or March, although it possibly could be delayed until the school year ends, Thomas said.

Parents such as Linda Long and Tina Schweim have long sought intersection changes to increase safety for students

City puts land on selling block

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Scores of vacant land parcels and nine houses will be placed on the bidding block following the city of Westland's decision to get rid of land it acquired from non-payment of taxes.

City officials hope to spur some new development and boost tax revenues by selling properties to high bidders.

"The main thing we're trying to do is get these properties back on the tax rolls," Assessor James Elrod said.

Potential bidders face a 10 a.m. Sept. 28 deadline if they want to try to buy some of the 151 parcels and nine houses that the city wants to sell, Elrod said. Bids will be opened the same day.

Bid packets, including maps that show available property, can be picked up at Westland City Hall, 36601 Ford Road.

One nonprofit group, Peoples Community Hope for Homes, plans to submit bids on vacant land on the city's far southeast side amid hopes of boosting a revitalization effort in Carver subdivision.

The group builds new homes, sells them and uses the money to pay for other new housing. The project also is fueling the renovation of older, dilapidated homes that get placed on the market.

"We'll be putting in bids," Hope for Homes executive director Sam Brown said. "Exactly which lots hasn't been decided yet."

Several lots in Carver subdivision are large enough to

Buddy Walk goal to raise awareness

Westland will be host to the Buddy Walk as part of National Down Syndrome Awareness Month in October.

The Buddy Walk will be 1:30-4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 4, at Westland's Central City Park.

This is the first walk for Down syndrome in western Wayne County, according to Angela Majorana, a coordinator of the walk. Walks are also planned in Howell and Pontiac.

A goal of the walk is to raise awareness and advocacy for people with Down syndrome, Majorana said.

"It should be a pretty good turnout," she said.

Down Syndrome is a genetic disorder that typically leads to physical and mental impairments.

Upside of Downs, a Plymouth-based, nonprofit organization, is sponsoring the Buddy Walk to raise funds for various Down syndrome support programs including parent groups, advocacy, and scientific research.

Participant will take part in a one-mile walk at their own pace and are encouraged to raise a minimum of $15 for the Upside of Downs.

Walkers who raise $15 or more will receive a T-shirt commemorating the event. The event will also include clowns, a Beanie Baby raffle and family activities. Apple cider and doughnuts will be served at the finish. Registration is at 1 p.m. at the Lions Pavilion in Central City Park. The rain date is Oct. 10.

The deadline to mail donations and registration forms and receive a T-shirt is Sept. 21. Make checks payable to Upside of Downs and mail to Angela Majorana, 12114 Hines Court, Plymouth MI, 48170. For more information, call (734) 480-8353.

Walks sponsored by the National Down Syndrome Society are held nationwide. Last year, more than 20,000 people participated.

The National Down Syndrome Society was established in 1979 to ensure that all people with Down syndrome are provided the opportunity to achieve their full potential in the community.

The society supports researchers seeking the causes of the medical, genetic, behavioral and learning problems associated with Down syndrome; supports scientific symposiums and conferences for parents and professionals; advocates on behalf of families and individuals affected by the condition; provides information and referral services through its toll-free number and develops and disseminates educational materials for individuals with Down syndrome, parents, teachers, researchers and health professionals.

Schweim's daughter, Christina Raymond, suffered leg injuries including a chipped bone and torn ligaments when she was hit by a car near Marquette and Carlson in 1997.

Schweim described the intersection as "terrible" and said students "have to dodge cars all the time."

The city and the Wayne-Westland school district have reached an agreement to pay for intersection improvements that officials say could range from $120,000 to $155,000.

"It should be ready to go next spring," Thomas said of the project.

The city and the Wayne-Westland school district have reached an agreement to pay for intersection improvements.

He also said a street light is expected to be erected to better illuminate the intersection.

Glenn Principal Neil Thomas welcomed news of Marquette-Carlson changes.

"I think it would greatly improve the intersection with the increased traffic that we have on Marquette," he said. "We have 2,000 people coming out of the school every day."

"I think the improvements would certainly help the intersection and help us remove students from the building," he said.

Westland city officials have been considering a traffic light to accommodate sometimes-heavy traffic stemming from schools and senior citizen high-rise buildings along Marquette.

Westland Police Chief Emery Price said the city and the school district will have to coordinate their efforts to make the improvements and cause as little disruption as possible.

Price said the project stems in part from Long's unrelenting efforts to convince city officials to improve the intersection.

While most Marquette-Carlson accidents have been fender-benders, Long and a few other parents have said that a disaster is waiting to happen in the intersection.

Officials can't say with certainty when the project will be done. "Unless we can do it in February or March," Mayor Thomas said, "we may as well wait until school is out."

Said Price: "A lot of it depends on the weather."

becomes more scarce, officials said.

"It's better for everyone," Kilroy said. "There's more business to be transacted within the community."

During a Tuesday council meeting, Councilwoman Sharon Scott voiced optimism about Wayne Road's potential after she and her colleagues approved the three new businesses.

In particular, Scott singled out the old Lerights building as one site that needed a boost.

"I'm happy to see something going into that restaurant," she said. "Believe me, I think that was an eyesore on Wayne Road."

Despite encouraging signs, officials say Wayne Road isn't likely to witness a true revitalization until the city's emerging Downtown Development Authority district becomes firmly rooted in coming years.

New DDA director Steve Guile is expected to start his job in early October. He will help lead a Westland revitalization effort after playing a major role in Plymouth's downtown streetscape project.

The DDA's role is to capture tax revenues from new growth within district boundaries and to use the money to fuel even more improvements.

The district includes the city's southern stretch of Wayne Road, from Ford to Glenwood, and the entire length of Ford Road through the city.

"Within five years I think we'll see some real changes," Mayor Robert Thomas said, although he said substantial progress could be made within the next decade.

"It's just in the infancy stages now," Thomas said.

City officials view revitalization efforts as crucial to keeping Westland a viable community where people will want to live, work and shop. Officials see the changes as necessary to ensure that Westland will remain competitive with other communities.

Thomas offered his theory on why business owners are looking to build along Wayne Road.

SPOTLIGHT ON

by Josephine Finazzo, D.M.D.

THE INSIDE STORY

As much as today's fixed appliances ("braces") work with a minimum amount of visible metalwork, there are some patients who wish to show even less. For these patients, lingual braces may be appropriate. They have earned the popular name "invisible braces" because they are placed on the tongue side of the teeth (rather than the fronts) as far back as the bicusps. The archwire is then attached to the brackets. This bracket placement on the backs of the teeth causes them to be pulled, rather than pushed, into their desired positions. As an aesthetically pleasing as lingual braces are, they are not suitable for correcting some types of malocclusion. A consultation with the orthodontist can help to clarify their appropriateness.

In some cases, lingual appliances may be used on the upper teeth and conventional braces on the lower teeth, as many people do not show their lower teeth when talking or smiling. THE ORTHODONTIC GROUP, 19223 Merriman, offers computer imaging to help our patients visualize what the end result of orthodontic treatment may look like. For further information or to schedule a free initial consultation, call 442-8885.

accommodate new housing, Elrod said.

"I'd like nothing more than to see them build eight or 10 new houses there," he said of the group.

Hope for Homes is an offshoot of Peoples Community Baptist Church, which is trying to spark a renaissance in the Carver area.

Properties across the city will be sold as government leaders try to get rid of tax-reverted land parcels - many of which Elrod said aren't large enough to accommodate new housing.

However, even small parcels could prove useful to adjacent land owners who might want to build garages, make other improvements or simply acquire some extra land, Elrod said.

"Hopefully these people will buy the lots," he said.

City officials placed properties on the bidding block after a committee studied the issue and recommended moving ahead. Some city residents, such as Carver property owner Arthur Warren, have been pressuring officials to get the process rolling.

The city tried to notify all previous owners of the tax-reverted properties to warn them that the land and houses were being readied for the bidding block.

"We had very little response," Elrod said.

The city has found a company to insure the property so that previous owners can't belatedly try to seize it, he said.

Mayor Robert Thomas said the city hasn't sold tax-reverted properties in several years, but officials now hope to have an annual bidding program.

"We don't really like to hold real estate that much," Thomas said.

Anything not sold following the Sept. 28 opening of bids will remain on an active sale list, Elrod said.

He estimated that the city could receive as much as $200,000 from the latest property sales, although he said he couldn't say for certain until bids are opened and awarded.

Eatery owner's a jewel after returning ring

Diane Costantino of Canton Township thought she had lost her $2,000 diamond ring for good.

Then she learned that not all finders consider themselves keepers, particularly the owner of Mike McGowan's Restaurant in Westland.

Costantino lost her ring in late August, and she retraced her steps without finding it.

"It must have just fallen off of my finger," she said. "I had been everywhere that night."

Employees of McGowan's restaurant told her they hadn't seen the ring. What they didn't know was that the owner had found it.

She returned for dinner a couple of weeks later and asked McGowan if, by chance, the ring had turned up.

"I have a girlfriend who has a ring just like mine, so she showed it to him," Costantino said.

McGowan got the ring and gave it back to her.

"I thought that was so nice," she said. "I go there for dinner pretty often because they have the best fish and chips, but he didn't know the ring was mine. He had found it on the floor."

"He could have kept it or sold it," Costantino said.

Instead, she got her ring back last week and said she thought that McGowan deserved some recognition for his good deed.

Business owner's hearing postponed

A Westland boat-repair business owner's hearing on felony criminal charges has been postponed until Oct. 1.

Edward Connolly, 74, had been scheduled for a preliminary hearing Thursday, but an attorney asked that the case be adjourned for three weeks.

Connolly was charged Sept. 1 after customer complaints that their property came up missing from Westland Marine, 8630 Middlebelt near Joy, police Sgt. James Ridener said.

Connolly is charged with conducting a continuing criminal enterprise, perjury, attempting to obtain money under false pretenses, and malicious destruction of property.

The most serious offense carries a maximum prison term of 20 years upon conviction.

Police found some of the property that customers reported missing.

Police haven't confirmed whether the case involves insurance fraud.

Connolly was charged after police raided his business, his Howell home and a warehouse he used in St. Joseph in southwestern Michigan.

Senior of month stays active

Felix Trzcienski has been named Senior of the Month for September at the Westland Friendship Center. Born in 1924 in Pennsylvania, he moved to Michigan 56 years ago. He worked for General Motors Corp. for 37½ years.

Trzcienski and his wife, Bernice, will celebrate their 50th anniversary on Oct. 21. They have four children, one grandson and one granddaughter.

Trzcienski has been active for 40 years in Knights of Columbus. He has been with Goodfellows for 25 years and is president of St. Theodore's Over 50 Club.

He is president of the senior bowling league in Westland, and he also enjoys woodworking and making exotic birdhouses to give away. He also enjoys traveling and visiting casinos to play slot machines.

In the mid-40s he signed with the Detroit Opera Guild and performed in many Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. He has sung the national anthem at Tiger Stadium three times.

Surplus food distribution set

The city of Westland will be distributing surplus federal food at the Dorsey Community Center on the following dates and times:

Residents located in the area bounded by Palmer, Stieber, Merriman and Wildwood roads, which is known as Norwayne and Oak Village, will pick up their commodities 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 17. All other residents north of Michigan Avenue will pick up their commodities 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday, Sept. 18.

Westland residents south of Michigan Avenue should pick up their commodities on the third Monday of each month at St. James United Methodist Church. Senior citizens living in Taylor Towers must call their building manager for their day of distribution.

WESTLAND ACHIEVERS

Tiffany Clemons of Westland, a student at Madonna University, has been selected by Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan to receive a $1,000 college scholarship for the 1998-99 academic year. Awarded through the Michigan Colleges Foundation, the scholarships encourage students with financial need to pursue college degrees and careers in science and health-related fields. To qualify, students had to be enrolled full time, demonstrate financial need, carry a minimum 2.6

grade-point average and major in a science or health-related curriculum.

John V. Ericson, David R. Prebola and Robert P. Wilcox of Westland were among the May graduates at Central Michigan University. Ericson and Prebola earned bachelor's degrees and Wilcox earned a master's degree.

Westland residents Colleen L.

Coppens, John V. Ericson, Eric D. Kelliher, Jennifer L. Medvecky and Jessica L. Zaleski were named to Central Michigan University's spring semester honors list, which includes students who earned 3.5 and higher grade-point averages.

Migliore, 17, is the son of Greg and May Migliore and attends Livonia Franklin High School, where he is a senior this fall. Grubb, 16, is the daughter of Larry and Susan Grubb and attends Wayne Memorial High School, where she is a senior this fall. Chiasson, 16, is the son of Victor and Nancy Chiasson and attends Wayne Memorial High School, where he is a senior this fall.

The Michigan Freedom Academy is an annual gathering of nearly 100 of Michigan's future leaders discussing and learning more about freedom. It is sponsored by the Michigan Freedom Foundation, a group of business and military leaders interested in exposing high school-age students to a greater awareness of the obligation and responsibilities inherent to a free and democratic society.

Westland resident Michael Briscoe has earned a certificate of achievement from the Online Multi-degrees in National and International Business program. A collaboration of Madonna University and Schoolcraft College in Livonia, the program allows students to earn an associate's, bachelor's and master's degree in business in four years.

Mark E. Stenstrom, a graduate of Livonia Franklin High School, recently finished his graduate work and internship to become a doctor of psychology. He graduated from the Rosemead School of Psychology at Biola University in La Mirada, Calif. He interned with the Welborn Baptist Hospital and other medical and educational facilities in Evansville, Ind. He lives in Evansville with his wife, Karen, and their two children, Nathan and Erica. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jon E. Stenstrom, formerly of Westland.

The following Westland residents were among the more than 700 graduates of Madonna University in Livonia: Yu-Wen Chen, master's degree in health services administration; Cha-An Lin, master's degree in administration-education leadership; Frederick R. Cislo, bachelor's degree in hospice education; Darin K. Keir, bachelor's degree in criminal justice; Terena J. Lawson, bachelor's degree in business administration with high honors; Priscilla R. Murdock, bachelor's degree in hospice education; Maureen R. Rize, bachelor's degree in sociology; Randa J. Safadi, bachelor's degree in dietetics with high honors; Mary Jane Wilhelm, bachelor's degree in legal assistant.

The following Westland residents were named to the dean's list for superior academic achievement during the past term at Madonna University, Westland natives Kevin J. Curtis and Denny C. Montgomery are receiving training as Michigan State Police trooper recruits. Members of the 117th Michigan State Police Trooper Recruit School, they are expected to complete basic training on Jan. 8, 1999. Both recruits will receive 20 weeks of training in criminal law, criminal investigation, crime scene processing, patrol tactics, physical fitness, first aid, firearms and defensive tactics. They will also be trained in precision driving techniques and special police enforcement functions. Upon graduation, the recruits will become Michigan State Police troopers assigned to one of the 64 state police posts in Michigan.

Why Travel Far for Cancer Therapy?

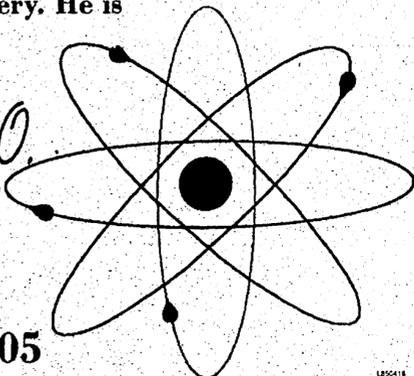

Radiation Therapy Associates P.C. in Garden City is now offering three dimensional conformal beam therapy, an advanced cancer treatment previously available only at major medical centers.

The treatment allows radiation oncologists to use advanced computer graphics to view the internal anatomy in ways that weren't previously possible, which ultimately allows them to enhance the level of precision of the radiation therapy they prescribe and deliver.

This 3-D technology is especially helpful in the planning of radiation therapy for various malignancies, including those of the prostate, lungs and some brain cancers, in addition to other types.

The team of experts at Radiation Therapy Associates also uses both conventional x-ray beam therapy in addition to electron beam irradiation administered with a high energy linear accelerator. We also perform radioactive implantation. Radiation Therapy Associates P.C. is a research affiliate of the Southwest Oncology Group. Dr. Ronald Lutsic has received an appointment as a clinical investigator by the National Cancer Institute in addition to maintaining a faculty appointment at the Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine and Surgery. He is board certified in radiation therapy.

Most inner suburbs decline, Canton, Plymouth Twp. post gains

STAFF WRITER

Outer suburbs are leading the sprawl parade in the seven-county region, as population falls in Detroit and the closer-in suburbs.

That's the story leaping out from the latest study by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments. SEMCOG is a regional planning partnership serving Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Livingston, Washtenaw, St. Clair and Monroe counties.

During the 1990s, population crept up just 3.1 percent to 4.73 million. But households grew by 7.1 percent to 1.8 million as family sizes declined.

Biggest growth area was Livingston County, which had a population growth of 27.4 percent since 1990. Wayne County, however, was the only one to lose population - down 3.9 percent to barely two million as Garden City, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth and Redford Township joined the ranks of those losing residents.

"Population and Households in Southeast Michigan, 1995-1998," based on last July's data, showed Detroit had fallen below the one million mark to fewer than 970,000, a loss of 5.7 percent during the decade. Its housing stock fell 8 percent to 344,000. That loss will cut Detroit's federal aid and make it subject to more state laws that apply to cities of less than one million.

Here, alphabetically, is how other Wayne County communities fared during the 1990s:

Canton Township - up 23.4 percent to 70,409 in population. Housing rose 30.8 percent to 25,563. Canton, however, fell from the list of top 10 growth areas in the region.

Garden City - down 6.6 percent to 29,729 in population; up 1.7 percent to 11,404 in housing units.

Livonia - down 3.4 percent to 97,460 in population; up 5 percent to 37,728 in housing units.

City of Northville (including Oakland County portion) - down 5 percent in population to 6,309; up 7 percent in housing units to

Northville Township - up 18 percent to 20,436 in population; up 28.7 percent to 7,903 in housing units.

City of Plymouth - down 6.8 percent in population to 8,913; up 2.1 percent in housing units to 4,357.

Plymouth Township - up 10.6 percent in population to 26,163; up 18 percent in housing units to 7,903.

Redford Township - down 7.5 percent in population to 50,310; up 1.2 percent in housing units to 20,362.

Westland - up 0.4 percent in population to 85,096; up 9.1 percent in housing units to 36,111.

Percentage-wise, the 10 biggest population gainers in the region were the Macomb County townships of Macomb, Lenox, Bruce and Washington; the Livingston County townships of Iosco, Ocoola and Hartland; the city of South Lyon in Oakland County; Pittsfield Township in Washtenaw County; and Emmett Township in St. Clair Township.

AAUW local forum to feature candidates for education posts

The American Association of University Women, Livonia branch, is sponsoring a public forum Thursday, Sept. 24 in Livonia City Hall for the educational candidates in the general election Nov. 3.

Candidates for the State Board of Education, University of Michigan Board of Regents, Michigan State University Board of Trustees and the Wayne State University Board of Governors will be interviewed on public television with statewide viewing.

The candidates have been scheduled as follows: University of Michigan candidates, 6 p.m.; State Board of Education, 7 p.m.; Michigan State University, 8 p.m., and Wayne State University, 9 p.m.

Livonia City Hall is located at 32000 Civic Center Drive (Five Mile Road east of Farmington Road).

Time Warner Cable of Livonia will be videotaping to distribute tapes with plans for program tape distribution throughout the state. People are encouraged to contact their cable companies for each 30-minute program.

For more information on the AAUW-Livonia branch or the public forum, contact Mary Bond at (734) 427-8897.

Livonia board to face music

BY MARIE CHESTNEY
STAFF WRITER

Two looming decisions complicate Livonia Public Schools' goal to reinstate instrumental music for elementary students.

One is the possibility that sixth grade may soon become part of middle school. If that happens, then the goal of instrumental music for sixth graders becomes moot, as instrumental already is part of the middle school program.

The second question involves an increase in school hours mandated by the state. How will this extra time be filled? With foreign language classes? More music classes? More physical education?

Superintendent Ken Watson aired both concerns Tuesday as the Livonia Board of Education, responding to a grassroots push by parents, who once again took up the possibility of bringing back instrumental music for fifth and sixth graders.

"Our decisions will have a major impact on instrumental music," Watson said. "We hope the decision on the middle school will be resolved before the budget is set next March."

Two other pivotal issues for the return of instrumental music for fifth and sixth graders already have been settled.

With a rainy day fund around $15 million, the money is there to pay start-up costs estimated at $640,000 for the first year.

"Funding is not a problem,"

said trustee Frank Kokenakes.

One lingering financial question is how the program will be financed in subsequent years.

"We can use our savings as seed money, but what about later on?" Watson asked. "We must build the program as a line item in the budget and make that a priority."

The district already has ruled on the second pivotal question — any reinstated program will not involve "pullouts" from the regular classroom. Before the program was dropped in the early 1990s during a series of budget cuts, 60 percent of fifth graders left the classroom to practice, leaving 40 percent of the students who didn't take an instrument behind to do "busy work" or other classroom assignments.

"The challenge is not to take students from class; we need to be more creative," Watson said. "We're not looking at a model that pulls kids out and leaves other kids behind."

On the other hand, the district doesn't want to force students to play an instrument if they don't want to.

"Instrumental music has to be a cooperative effort or it's a waste of time," said trustee Dan Lessard. "I can't see everybody going."

Impeachment hearing won't be discussed ... yet

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

With the U.S. House of Representatives releasing the independent counsel's report about President Bill Clinton on Friday, Congressional members still wanted to read the 455-page document before commenting on possible impeachment proceedings.

The House voted 363-63 to release that document, an executive summary completed by Ken Starr and his staff, to the public.

It was on the Internet Friday. Starr's report accuses Clinton of witness tampering, obstructing justice, abusing his presidential power and committing perjury during his grand jury appearance last month and in a sworn deposition last January.

The document includes about 140 pages detailing grounds for impeachment, according to U.S. Reps. Joe Knollenberg, R-11th District, and Lynn Rivers, D-13th District, who both voted to release it to the public.

It doesn't include the raw evidence, such as taped evidence and 2,000 pages of appendices,

Rivers: 'Until we get a chance to look at it all, it's impossible to see what's there to sustain an impeachment inquiry.'

but if Congress wants it, it will be available.

"We'll be able to access all the information," Knollenberg said. "I'm not going to pore over 20 hours of tape. Someone on my staff will have a complete analysis of all this."

Knollenberg expected to study the report over the next several days. Those who are expecting the entire evidence will not find it in the executive summary, he said.

Knollenberg and Rivers wanted to read the report before commenting on whether Clinton should be impeached or even if impeachment hearings should be held.

"Let's get it out there, so people can look at specific evidence," Rivers said. "It doesn't matter who you're backing. I fear if just the referral is out there, we're right back into the same morass."

"Until we get a chance to look at it all, it's impossible to see what's there to sustain an impeachment inquiry," Rivers said.

Knollenberg said his constituents were vocal about the issue. "They are frustrated and unhappy with the president, making all these decisions that are examples of poor judgment." Rivers believes the entire report should be made public. "Some believe there ought to be some privacy to respect the grand jury proceedings. There are others who believe it should be all out."

Knollenberg: 'His ability to lead is getting compromised, which is not good for the president, not good for the presidency, and not good for the American people.'

"This is a quasi-legal procedure. It's not a judicial process we're used to. This is not so governed. This is so hard for people to understand. It's a difficult time and it weighs on everybody's mind."

Rivers said it was "hard to know" whether the Monica Lewinsky affair will limit the president's efforts and the United States in foreign policy.

"One of the things it has completely caught is the public's attention. There are other issues, such as health care and education, that are getting no attention. That is the basis for the argument for immediate discussion."

Rivers said the report's effect on her and other Democrats' reelection bid this fall was an "unknown."

"The initial polling from both parties show that Michigan tends to vote for individual candidates. There isn't 'guilt by association.'"

Even with the report and the Congress' attention focusing on the report, Knollenberg expected to wrap up his work on an appropriations bill.

Knollenberg said Clinton's leadership capabilities were questioned here by citizens and around the world.

"His ability to lead is getting compromised, which is not good for the president, not good for the presidency, and not good for the American people. It's not good for any of us," he said.

U.S. Sen. Carl Levin, D-Michigan, prepared a statement that said the solemn issue before the House is whether Clinton committed an impeachable offense.

"It is important for our country that the Congress proceed in a bipartisan, thoughtful and fair way, without prejudgment. The Starr report's allegations and evidence and the White House response to them must be considered together."

U.S. Sen. Spencer Abraham, R-Michigan, couldn't be reached Friday for comment.

She put her heart into healthy changes

Mary Ter Meer, and her husband Dave, a retired banker, were careful about what they ate, but it wasn't good enough. Her life changed forever in 1992 when Dave suffered two heart attacks a month apart.

Determined to help him get well, Meer began researching the role diet plays in reversing heart disease. In the process, she was inspired to write a book, "Vegetarian Cooking For Healthy Living: An Ultra Low-Fat Nutrition Guide for Living Well," with registered dietitian Jamie Gates Galeana, (Appletree Press, Inc., $17.95).

The book, which helps readers make healthy changes in their life, is the 1998 Benjamin Franklin Award recipient for "Best New Voice," an award for excellence presented by the Publishers Marketing Association during the BookExpo American Convention in Chicago. Meer will be at Borders in Birmingham Wednesday, Sept. 16, and Dearborn Thursday, Sept. 17, signing books, and offering free recipe tastings.

VEGETARIAN COOKING FOR HEALTHY LIVING

BOOK SIGNINGS

Mary Ter Meer, author of "Vegetarian Cooking for Healthy Living," will be signing copies of her book, and offering free recipe tastings at the following Borders bookstores.

■ Borders Books - 34300 Woodward, Birmingham, (248) 203-0005
7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 16

■ Borders Books - 5601 Mercury Dr., Dearborn, (313) 271-4441
7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 17

After her husband's second heart attack, Meer was anxious to make some changes in their lifestyle. "My daughter Anne sent us Dr. Dean Ornish's book. We had nothing to lose so we tried his 'Program for Reversing Heart Disease,'" she said. "You limit calories from fat to 10 percent of your diet."

The Meers ate their last chicken breast on March 5, 1992, and embraced Dr. Ornish's ultra low-fat vegetarian diet. They began exercising regularly and started learning and using stress reduction techniques.

Dave's cholesterol dropped from 240 to 170 in six months. Mary lost 35 pounds. "I wasn't even thinking about losing weight, it just came off," she said. "I've been a yo-yo dieter all my life."

Since beginning this journey to wellness, Meers said she's learned so much. "I learned that fat occurs naturally in food and that I could not add a lot of fat when I was cooking."

She was discouraged by what she read in vegetarian cookbooks. Many of recipes used a lot of oil, cheese and nuts, or ingredients she said that were so strange she didn't know where to get them.

Making changes

"I went first to my old recipes, and adapted them," she said. "In the past our meals were built around meat - meatloaf, pot roast, chicken breast."

Since then she's learned that if you use a broad range of plant food your

Here's the skinny ON worldly chicken

BY PEGGY MARTINELLI-EVERTS • SPECIAL WRITER

Pollo, poulet, csirke, kuku, hähnchen, pui, pilic, galinha. Chicken - in any language - is truly a universal food. Because of its mild flavor, chicken easily adapts to recipes of all ethnic cuisines, and we find it in dishes on all continents.

Today's chickens are descendants of wild fowl that roamed the dense jungles of primeval Asia. They were domesticated in India about 2,000 B.C. Thousands of years later, France's King Henry IV stated in his coronation speech that he hoped each peasant under his rule would have "a chicken in his pot every Sunday." This quote was later paraphrased by President Herbert Hoover.

Chicken was not always the reasonably priced meat it is today. Until as late as World War II, only the affluent were lucky enough to have their proverbial Sunday chicken. Today, thanks to modern production methods, almost anyone in our country can afford this versatile fowl. In fact, most of us think of chicken as one of the most economical meat choices.

For the health conscious of all ages, chicken can be the center of a nutritious, satisfying meal. It pairs well with pasta, rice, couscous, dumplings or potatoes, and is complemented by nearly every vegetable, many fruits and virtually all herbs and spices. With all these combinations, chicken never has to be boring.

To skin or not to skin

Hot and spicy or mild and soothing, a chicken dish can be just about anything your heart desires. However, if you've ever eaten a dry, tasteless piece of boneless, skinless chicken breast because you're watching calories or cholesterol, take heart. Researchers at the U.S. Department of Agriculture conducted a small study on chicken, and the results suggest that the reduction in fat from cooking chicken without the skin are small and unlikely to be of nutritional importance in a varied and balanced diet.

Cooking chicken with the skin on reduces cooking time and increases moisture retention in the meat; but the spices and seasoning you add to the skin are lost when you remove it before eating (as you should). The most important thing to remember is that nutritious food, like chicken, must taste good and be moist and tender to be acceptable. It makes little sense to eat foods that are not pleasurable and satisfying. If taste is sacrificed, a low fat diet becomes a burden.

Chicken and poultry must always be cooked until well done because of the high incidence of salmonella contamination. To test for doneness

BUYING POULTRY

Chicken comes in a multitude of forms; as whole birds, parts, boneless pieces, ground or canned. Buying a whole bird is usually the most economical way to purchase chicken. If you're confident, and quick with a sharp knife, you can easily cut and bone a whole chicken into halves or quarters. Some markets will cut the chicken up for you. Purchase about 1/2 pound of raw broiler, fryer, or steaming chicken for each 3 ounce serving needed.

■ Roasting chicken - These are usually young, tender birds with soft, pliable, smooth textured skin. They have enough fat to brown well at a moderate temperature. They usually range from 2 1/2 to 5 pounds and can be up to 8 months old.

■ Broiling, frying, rotisserie chicken - These birds usually weight up to 3 1/2 pounds, and are about 2 1/2 months old. They can be left whole or cut into parts for pan broiling or frying, oven baking or barbecuing.

■ Baking, steaming chicken, or hens - These are older birds, ranging in age from 10 to 18 months, and weighing in at 3 to 6 pounds. Their age makes them more flavorful, but less tender. They require slow cooking in a covered pan with water, steam or pressure. They are good in soups, stews and casseroles.

■ Rock Cornish Hen - Is a miniature chicken weighing up to 2 1/2 pounds. Each hen is usually considered a serving. They are best broiled or roasted.

■ Squab chicken - Different from the true squab, this is a very small, 4- to 6-week-old chicken that weighs no more than 1 1/2 pounds. They are best broiled, grilled or roasted.

■ Range chicken - The elite of the poultry world, instead of the mass-produced birds' allotment of 1 square foot of space, each range chicken has double that area indoors plus the occasional freedom to roam outdoors. Typically they are fed a special vegetarian diet, free of antibiotics, animal byproducts, hormones and growth enhancers. This diet, and their freedom of movement, give them a fuller flavor. However, the added amenities make them more expensive. Range chickens average about 4 1/2 pounds and are usually 10 to 12 weeks old.

on a whole bird, move the leg. The joint should move freely. When you cut cooked chicken, the juice should run clear, not pink. Use a meat thermometer to check for an internal temperature of 180°F. Done does not mean dry and tasteless.

Getting the "bird" done just right is not a new problem for cooks. A 17th century treatise by England's Sir Kenhelm Digby on how to capture the juices, directed the cook to set the chicken on a spit, heat through, baste with butter and sprinkle with flour. "This by continuing turning before the fire will make a thin crust, which will keep in all the juice of the meat."

White meat vs. dark meat

The reason leg meat is dark is because of the oxygen that was supplied to the active muscles. Chick-

Lean pork tenderloin, apples, cider a tasty trio

MURIEL WAGNER

Most of us have preformed notions about food. We base these ideas on past food experiences and food folklore. Often, these stereotypes don't match current nutrition information or food availability. Thus, we self-impose dietary restrictions that are not related to fact, and may be unnecessary.

Pork is a case in point. Most of my patients raise a skeptical eyebrow when I suggest that lean pork cuts can be part of a low-fat diet. Of course, this depends on the portion size and preparation. Pork is not the same meat that it once was. Pork producers have turned many pork cuts from fatty into lean by making changes in the diets of the animals.

Pork tenderloin is an example of a very lean cut. Surprisingly, it's nearly as lean as skinned chicken breast. It has less than half the fat of beef tenderloin which is the leanest of the tender steak cuts.

Pork tenderloin was traditionally attached to a loin roast. In recent years it has become available as a separate meat. It is very tender and cooks quickly. It should be roasted at high heat. Because it has so little fat, a lower temperature would dry out the meat before it's browned and cooked through.

This recipe enhances the flavor of the tenderloin with a natural ally and a queen of the harvest fruits - apples and apple cider. What is fall without a trip to the cider mill? However, be sure to buy pasteurized cider, or boil the cider for two minutes to destroy any disease producing bacteria. This is the recommendation of the Federal Food and Drug Administration in response to disease problems which emerged from the use of unpasteurized apple juice last year.

The choice of apples can be yours - but make mine Golden Delicious. This variety holds up well when baked. It has that tart-sweet taste that goes well with pork. Because pork tenderloin is so lean, the cider keeps the meat moist. When you serve the sliced pork tenderloin with apples, and the cider pan juices, you won't miss the fat.

I like to serve this dish with baked acorn squash halves and tiny brussels sprouts that you can find only in the fall. One of my patients makes an extra tenderloin to reheat the next day with barbecue sauce. She says it's the perfect sweet-sour combination of flavors.

HARVEST PORK TENDERLOINS

- 2 (8 to 10 ounce) pork tenderloins
- 6 apples (your choice, I like Golden Delicious)
- 3 cups apple cider

Spray a shallow roasting pan with nonstick spray. If the cider is unpasteurized, bring to a boil and boil 2 minutes. Wash apples and core. Cut into medium slices. Place on bottom of roasting pan.

Prick tenderloins with a fork. Place on apples. Pour cider over meat. Insert meat thermometer in thickest part of meat. Roast until thermometer reads 155°F (about 30 minutes). Do not overcook.

Let stand for 10 minutes. Cut into slices and serve on apples with pan juices spooned over the meat. Serves 4 to 6 people.

To shorten preparation time, cook large separate batches of brown and white rice. Package them for freezing in 2-cup packages; 1 cup brown and 1 cup white. When you're ready to prepare a recipe just defrost and it's ready to use. If you don't have the prepared rice packets in your freezer, cook rice to equal 2 cups when cooked.

BEANS AND VEGETABLES WITH RICE

- 2 cups rice (half brown and half white rice, thawed)
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 medium tomatoes, diced
- 2 small zucchini or summer squash, chopped
- 1/2 teaspoon oregano
- 1/2 teaspoon cumin
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 (16-ounce can - 2 cups) chili hot beans
- Pepper and Tabasco sauce to taste
- Nonfat cooking spray

Thaw rice and heat in microwave or oven until ready to use. Sauté onions and garlic in pan sprayed with nonfat cooking spray. Add tomatoes, zucchini and seasonings. Cover and simmer until vegetables are tender. Add the beans and heat thoroughly. Season to taste and spoon onto the hot rice. Serves 4.

CORN AND POTATO CHOWDER

- 1 1/2 cups finely chopped onion
- 1 cup thinly sliced carrots
- 2 stalks celery with tender leaves, thinly sliced
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 cups cubed red-skin potatoes
- 2 cups nonfat chicken broth
- 1 cup skim milk
- 1 cup fresh or frozen corn
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Cayenne pepper to taste
- Herb and spice blend seasoning to taste
- Nonfat cooking spray
- Garnish: fresh parsley

In large saucepan sprayed lightly with a nonfat cooking spray, sauté the onions until tender. Add carrots, celery, bay leaf, potatoes and broth. Cover, bring to a boil and cook for 10 to 15 minutes or until potatoes are done. Add milk and corn and simmer another 3 or 4 minutes. Remove bay leaf. In a blender, puree 1 cup of the soup then return it to the pot. Add salt and other seasonings to taste. Garnish with snipped fresh parsley if desired. Serves 6.

ens and turkeys walk around, but do little, if any, flying so their breast muscle is white and their legs dark.
 Game birds fly more, and the breast meat is almost as dark as the drumstick. White meat is lower in fat than dark meat, but dark meat supplies a bit more iron than white meat. Eat the meat you like.

Purchasing

When purchasing chicken, the color of the skin has nothing to do with the fat content of the bird: Chickens with yellow skins had different feed than those with pinkish skin. Skin color does not affect nutritional value, flavor, tenderness or fat content. Avoid chicken with an off odor, or with skin that's bruised or torn.

When cooked, the darkening of the meat around the bones is not spoilage but is caused by natural pigment that seeps through and colors the bone during cooking. It contains iron and is safe to eat.

The skinny on chicken

We tend to think of chicken as a low-fat meat. However, depending on its preparation method, this may not be true. Batter-dipped fried chicken, mayonnaise-based chicken salads and fast food chicken sandwiches are often higher in fat than a hamburger.

To keep your chicken skinny, flavor it with vinegar, wine, soy sauce and citrus juice, instead of heavy sauces and gravy, to bring out the natural flavor of the bird. Try using ground chicken instead of beef in your favorite chili, meatloaf, spaghetti sauce, or hamburger recipe.

From Tetrastini, fajitas, chicken curry and shawarma to pot pies and good old Kentucky fried, on dinner tables around the corner, and around the world, you'll always find chicken.

FLAVORFUL CHICKEN STOCK

Put bones and scraps of raw poultry, along with some onion, carrots, celery, and few snips of parsley, in a large stock pot of water. Add pinch of thyme, salt and pepper for good flavor.

Simmer the mixture for at least 3 hours. After cooking, remove the bones and scraps and refrigerate. Once cooled, a layer of fat will rise to the top. This can be easily skimmed off, and the broth used in your favorite soup or stew recipes.

This dish makes chicken a special occasion!

APPLE/CRANBERRY STUFFED CHICKEN DINNER

- 3 Macintosh or Granny Smith apples (about 3 cups)
- 2/3 cup dried cranberries
- 1 tablespoon rubbed sage
- 1 tablespoon sweet marjoram
- 2 cups (plus a little more) apple juice or apple cider
- 3 slices day-old white bread, cubed
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 chicken (3 to 3 1/2 pounds)
- 12 baby new potatoes, washed
- 3 medium sweet onions, quartered
- Cornstarch to thicken (about 1/2 tablespoon)
- Salt and pepper to taste

Core and dice apples into 1/4-inch pieces. No need to peel apples. In a sauté pan, simmer apples, cranberries, sage and marjoram in 1/2 cup apple juice until apples are tender. Drain and reserve liquid. Add bread cubes and walnuts to apple mixture. Preheat oven to 350°F. Season chicken with salt and pepper. Gently separate the skin from the breast, leg and thigh of chicken with your fingers, being very careful not to tear the skin. Carefully take about half the apple/cranberry stuffing and put it underneath the skin. Spoon the remaining stuffing into the body cavity. Then truss the bird.

On the bottom of a roasting pan, pour 1 cup apple juice. Place chicken on a rack and put this in the roasting pan. Put potatoes and onions on the bottom of the pan, in the apple juice. Roast for about 1 1/2 hours, or until 180°F internal temperature. If the skin of the chicken is getting too brown, cover with a lid or foil.

Carefully remove chicken and vegetables from roasting pan. Skim fat from roasting pan being careful to save the roasting juices. Add the reserved juice from the stuffing and 1/2 cup apple juice to the roasting pan juices. Place pan on top of burner and simmer mixture, reducing by one half. Check seasoning for salt and pepper and thicken by combining a little (about 1/2 tablespoon) cornstarch with a small amount of cold apple juice and adding a little at a time until sauce coats a spoon.

Remove legs and thighs from chicken and place on a serving plate. Remove stuffing from cavity. Carefully remove the chicken breasts from the bone. Slice and arrange on a plate. Surround with potatoes and onion quarters. Serve sauce and dressing on the side. Serves 6 people.

Choose the right apple for cooking, dicing, eating

SPECIAL WRITER

Apples are always around, but they are especially appealing when there's a snap in the air and the new fall crop brings bushels of bright, seasonal varieties to market. With stores and local farm stands loaded with a wide assortment now, you may feel challenged in choosing what kind of apples to buy. How you will use them is as important in making this decision as personal taste.

For eating straight from the bushel basket, crisp, juicy, tangy varieties are best. But apples that are perfect eaten-out-of-hand don't necessarily make good sauce or pies, or even work well in a salad.

For sauce, pick varieties that break down easily. Avoid these same varieties for pies and baking, instead taking apples that hold their shape when cooked. If a salad is the goal, select for crunch plus resistance to discoloring.

Eating

Red Delicious is the most popular eating apple, though you may prefer a denser Granny Smith, a softer-fleshed Macintosh, or the distinctive taste of local farm varieties like Newton, Pippin, Macoun or Sweet Sixteen. And no matter how much you like them, avoid using Red

Delicious in cooking, which turns them into bland mush. For sauce, Macintosh is most and has good flavor. Personally, I like to use Cortlands because their sweetness means I add less

tart apple like the greening Granny Smith, and some flavorful varieties like the Pippin, Winesap, Crispin and Jonagold.

When deciding how many apples to buy, figure 2 large, 3 medium or 4 small apples to the pound.

apples, but I like to use 8 large or 10 smaller ones.

Remember to always store apples in the fridge, where they keep 10 times as long as they do at room temperature.

Information and recipe written for the American Cancer Research Institute by Dana Jacobi, author of "The Claypot Cooking," and the "Natural Kitchen: Soy!"

GINGER-STUFFED BAKED APPLES

- 4 Rome Beauty apples
- 1/4 cup crumbled ginger snaps, 2-4 cookies
- 2 tablespoons golden raisins
- 1 tablespoon dried currants
- 1 tablespoon light brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon minced crystallized ginger, or 1/4 teaspoon ground dried ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/8 teaspoon ground cardamom
- 4 tablespoons wildflower or clover honey
- 1 cup apple cider

Preheat the oven to 375°F

Peel the apples, removing the skin from only the top half. With a medium-size melon baller, scoop enough flesh from the center of each apple to make an inch-wide cavity reaching almost to the bottom of the fruit. This includes removing the core. Place the hollowed-out apples in an ovenproof dish just large enough to hold them without touching.

In a small bowl, combine the crumbled gingersnaps, raisins, currants, sugar, ginger, cinnamon, and cardamom. Spoon this filling into the apples, filling them all.

Drizzle a tablespoon of the honey over each apple so it coats the exposed flesh as it drips down. Pour the cider into the pan around the apples.

Bake the apples, uncovered, until they are soft when pierced with a knife but not collapsing, 50-60 minutes. After 30 minutes, add more cider if the pan looks dry. Cool the apples to lukewarm. Spoon some of the liquid from the pan over the apples before serving. Or cool, cover and refrigerate the apples, then bring them to room temperature and serve. These apples keep, covered in the refrigerator, 3-4 days.

Each of the four servings contains 264 calories and 1 gram of fat.

Harvest time dessert: Ginger-stuffed baked apples are a delicious way to enjoy this fall's crop of apples.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Leg pain

"Legs for Life," a health screening for people with leg pain, will be held 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 28-29, at two locations in Ann Arbor. The screening is a joint project of St. Joseph Mercy Health System and the University of Michigan Health System.

The screening is for people who experience leg pain during exercising or walking that does not go away after a few minutes of rest or for those who get numbness, tingling or coldness in the lower legs or feet.

Doctors involved in the Legs for Life program said leg pain could result from peripheral arterial disease (PAD), a circulatory condition caused by a blockage of the blood vessels in the legs. People at highest risk for PAD are older adults, diabetics or smokers. PAD can be a precursor to serious heart and circulatory diseases.

On Monday, screenings will be held at the UMHS East Ann Arbor Health Center, 4260 Plymouth Road at Earhart, and on Tuesday at the Michigan Heart & Vascular Institute at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, 5301 E. Huron Drive. Appointments are required. Call Legs for Life Scheduling Center toll-free at (877) 583-2556.

Kids Day

Why would a health center have a K-9 dog, Teddy Bear Clinic, a D.A.R.E. program and a cake walk on its premises? For the kids, of course.

Oakwood Healthcare Center-Canton, located at 7300 Canton Center Road, is sponsoring its seventh "Kids Day" from 1-4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 19. Kids ages 3-10 and their parents are admitted free.

Kids will meet members of the Canton Fire and Police Departments and their K-9 dog. They'll receive information on D.A.R.E. and the University of Michigan Burn Center. Kids also will see what a survival flight helicopter looks like.

For more information, call (313) 791-1384.

Flexing checks dizziness

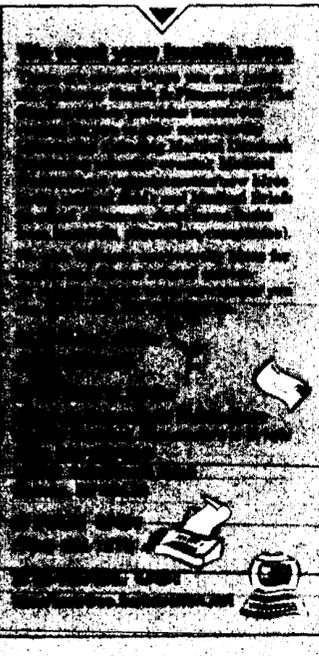

Because blood pressure falls dramatically when we stand up, the nervous system ordinarily responds instantaneously to rev it back up to normal, preventing us from fainting. However, after age 60 or so, the body's "vertical hold" mechanism can slack a bit, leading to spells of dizziness or fainting upon standing. This condition is called orthostatic hypotension.

It may be reversible.

Experts have known that certain movements, like leg crossing, neck flexing, or squatting can act as countermeasures to this kind of hypotension. In a study involving several training sessions, participants chose three maneuvers that cut their symptoms best. The most successful exercises for blood pressure regulation involved thigh and buttock muscles. By practicing these exercises, blood pressures upon rising were improved by 30 percent.

While exercises involving these muscles proved harder for participants to do, it might be because those muscles aren't being used often.

Depression

Teenagers who feel 'different' are at risk for suicide

BY RENÉE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

For many teens, what is supposed to be the best time of their lives is the worst because of depression. Days are no longer sunny and bright, activities and friendships require too much energy, and negative thoughts run rampant through their minds.

Left untreated, depression could lead to suicide.

In a 1997 fact sheet on teen suicide, the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry (AACAP) reports that suicide is the third-leading cause of death for 15- to 24-year-olds and the sixth-leading cause of death for 5- to 14-year-olds.

Parents are faced with the daunting task of determining what is normal teenage anger — a reaction to a family move, a new school, divorce, the loss of a friendship — and what are the indicators of a true depression.

"Normal sadness, except for bereavement, to life's events don't seem to go on for months and months," said Howard K. Weiner, a psychiatrist with St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor who treats children and adolescents.

"A passing thought about suicide — an isolated, reactive thing — is different than a persistent feeling or thought or wish to be dead with an actual plan or gesture," said Bob Fox, a therapist and site director at Eastwood at Botsford Family Services in Redford Township.

However, all statements about suicide must be taken seriously.

"A lot of adolescents and adults kill themselves unintentionally," said Fox.

Symptoms

"A lot of times parents come in and say 'Is this normal stuff? I'm confused,'" said Fox. "There may be depressive symptoms rather than a full-blown depression."

The question is how to discern problematic behavior from unreasonable behavior. For example, a drop in grades alone is not always an indicator of depression. It may be due to age-related transition, or perhaps the teen is too consumed with a new interest. However, if the teen begins isolating himself from not just family but friends and withdraws from previous interests, it's unreasonable behavior.

Lethargy, decline in hygiene, radical change in style of dress, or signs of self-mutilation (such as self-inflicted tattoos) are indicators of depression, as is drug and alcohol abuse.

Warning signs of depression

According to the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, many of the symptoms of suicidal feelings are similar to those of depression. Parents need to seek professional help when one or more of the following signs persist:

- Change in eating and sleeping habits.
- Withdrawal from friends, family and regular activities.
- Violent outbursts, rebellious behavior or running away.
- Drug and alcohol use.
- Unusual neglect of personal appearance.
- Abrupt personality change.
- Persistent pessimism, difficulty concentrating or a decline in the quality of schoolwork.
- Frequent complaints about physical symptoms, often related to emotions, such as stomachaches, headaches, fatigue, etc.
- Loss of interest in pleasurable activities.
- Not tolerating praise or rewards.
- A teenager who is planning to commit suicide may also:
 - Complain of being "rotten inside."
 - Give verbal hints with statements such as: "I won't be a problem for you much longer," "Nothing matters," "It's no use," or "I won't see you again."
 - Put his or her affairs in order, for example, give away favorite possessions, clean his or her room, throw away important belongings, etc.
 - Become suddenly cheerful after a period of depression.

"Kids who are feeling kind of different gravitate to drugs and alcohol. It's a way to isolate yourself, to feel differently, a self-medication," said Fox.

Weiner defines the symptoms of depression in collective terms: "The hallmark is a functional decline."

Weiner also said most teens seriously contemplating suicide have thought about it for a long time. However, there is an "impulsive" subgroup. Parents need to clarify thoughts of suicide with their children by asking, "Did you say that in anger or do you mean it? Have you thought how you would do it?"

Parents should not think they'll be "putting thoughts in the child's head" if they talk about suicide, said the AACAP. Rather, such a question provides assurance that somebody cares and gives the young person a chance to talk about problems.

However, if parents have any doubt about their teen's intentions, they need to go to the emergency room immediately, Weiner said.

He adds a final warning: Get firearms out of the home. "Locking them up is no defense against a determined teenager. There is no second chance with firearms."

Causes of depression

While there are multiple theories of causation, no single factor is responsible for depression. In every case, there is a mixture of factors, said Weiner.

There is the biological factor. Depression runs in families. Studies of twins raised apart indicate a shared incidence of depression. Medical factors include problems with hormones, thyroid, adrenal gland, vitamin deficiencies and infections like syphilis and HIV.

Depression also is associated with general medical conditions like asthma, arthritis, and diabetes. It can result from the use of steroids or with drug and alcohol abuse and withdrawal.

However, genetics and biological factors explain just 50 percent of serious depressions. Environmental factors account for the other half.

Psychological or cognitive factors include self-esteem and anger, which is often repressed and turned against the self. Also, a conscience may be overly punitive and severe. "It's a matter of degree and adaptability. It's never one defense operating at one time," said Weiner.

Prior to puberty, males and females suffer equal rates of depression; after puberty, female depression reaches a

2 to 1 ratio. For both sexes, the rates of depression increase significantly after puberty. And sadly, Weiner said childhood and adolescent depression usually forecasts adult depression.

Chemical imbalance

Dr. Joseph M. Carver, a consultant psychologist with the Adena Regional Medical Center in Portsmouth, Ohio, says long-term high stress results in a depletion of serotonin, a slow-acting brain neurotransmitter associated with sleep, appetite, energy, alertness and mood.

In a community handout he wrote about depression, Carver equates serotonin with a car's oil. During long-term high stress, the brain burns its oil, serotonin, faster than it can be replaced.

Besides loss of physical energy, social withdrawal and the ability to concentrate, a low serotonin level results in early morning awakening (usually around 4 a.m.) and a "racing" mind. The brain becomes an enemy, reaching into the memory to pull out and exaggerate every bad experience.

A brain low on serotonin also will invent new thoughts of torture. Carver refers to this process as the "garbage truck." In reference to teens, he writes:

"Due to their youth, most of their life experience is associated with the family, remembering that family experiences makes up 70 percent of their mental video tape. For this reason, the 'garbage truck' will be reviewing every mistake or issue in their upbringing. In such cases, the parents are 'dumped on' with what they did wrong, bad decisions they've made in raising the son/daughter, or feeling that were never discussed related to their brother or sisters.

"With the low self-esteem created by the depression and the stress, the son/daughter may be intensely rejecting, as though feeling they must reject the parents before the parents have a chance to reject them."

Carver cautions parents to get past the hostility and see the depressed mood.

There are medications — Prozac, Zoloft and Paxil, for example — that refuel the levels of serotonin. They are an important component in treating severe depression.

Dr. Jay D. Kuris, chief of psychiatry at The Medical Center at Princeton, wrote in a recent article on curing depression that new drugs "not only cure depression but also reverse some subordinate conditions including panic, anxiety and eating disorders, body image problems and phobias."

Weiner sees medication as part of successful treatment, not as a replacement for therapy.

"You can take Tylenol to treat the flu, but it doesn't cure flu. You're just waiting for it to come back," said Weiner. "Chemical imbalance is part of the picture, but only part. Working with a trained mental health clinician to get a comprehensive evaluation is important."

The good news is depression can be cured. Experts agree that the combination of medication and therapy is extremely effective. "Treating the person as a comprehensive person alters outcomes," said Weiner. "That's been my clinical experience."

Missing school may be depression clue

"It's all in your head," you say to your teenager who misses a lot of school because of dizziness or stomach aches.

You may be right.

According to a study reported in the May 1997 issue of the Journal of American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, a teenager who misses a lot of school because of lightheadedness or stomach pains may suffer from depression or anxiety.

The study, conducted by child and adolescent psychiatrist Gail A. Bernstein, M.D. of the University of Minnesota, involved 17 males and 27 females ages 12 to 19. The subjects were chosen because they were depressed, anxious and missing a lot of school, up to 72 percent of the school year.

The most frequent symptoms were lightheadedness or dizziness, sick stomach, and back pain. Other common symptoms included stomach pains, vomiting, and menstrual problems. The more severe the anxiety and depression, the more severe the symptoms.

School attendance, however, was not strongly related to the severity of the symptoms and was unrelated to the level of anxiety or depression.

Some symptoms were related to specific forms of anxiety. For example, teens with separation anxiety were highly likely to have gastrointestinal symptoms but unlikely to have cardiovascular symptoms.

The study's researchers emphasize that parents, school administrators, and physicians should recognize that adolescents who frequently exhibit symptoms and miss a lot of school may need to be evaluated for possible anxiety or depression.

Recognizing the "psychosomatic" nature of these symptoms may help identify the real problem and eliminate unnecessary diagnostic and drawn-out tests and other problems related to absence from school.

The study's authors plan additional reports to see how the teens in the study respond to treatment for their anxiety and depression.

Second Annual Batten disease walk will take place Sept. 19

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON
STAFF WRITER

The Second Annual Batten Disease March, slated for Saturday, Sept. 19, is drawing close as founder Linda and David Houghtby prepare to publicly raise awareness about the fatal disease that cost their son his life.

Houghtby, a Livonia resident, lost son Dan to Batten disease in 1990. The family has since initiated the first Michigan Chapter of Batten Disease (Batten Disease Support and Research Association) and the Annual Batten Disease Walk.

Dan Houghtby was diagnosed at age seven with juvenile Batten, one of four forms of the neurological disease that primarily strikes infants, toddlers and school-age children. To date there is no treatment and the disease is always fatal. Characteristics of Batten disease can involve vision loss, decreased mobility, seizures, and limited cognitive ability.

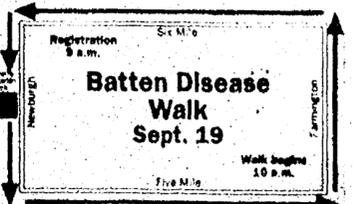

Participants in the 1997 walk numbered over 100 and the Houghtbys are hoping to surpass last year's count at Saturday's event.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 19, at St. Timothy Presbyterian Church (16700 Newburgh Road, Livonia). The 6-mile walk is scheduled to start at 10 a.m., rain or shine. Participants will receive a T-shirt for their efforts and Absopure of Plymouth is donating bottles of water for the walkers.

"Such a mysterious disease requires the proper funding in order for the mystery to be solved," said Houghtby. "With everyone's help it's not impossible that a cure could be found so that no other child has to suffer like my son Dan."

Those who wish to make a tax deductible donation should make checks payable to: BDSRA, 2600 Parsons Ave.,

Columbus, OH 43207. For more information about the Michigan Chapter of BDSRA, call (800) 448-4570.

Newspapers' job fair on Sept. 23 will offer winning situation for all

BY RENEE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

Cross those t's and dot those i's on your best resume. It's job-hunting time.

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and the HomeTown Newspapers will host their first job fair from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 23, at the Laurel Manor Banquet and Video Conference Center in Livonia.

It's free to job seekers. Rick Ficorelli, director of marketing, expects a crowd at this first-time event. It's a sell-out, with 65 companies signed up and several on the waiting list. "This is just an extension of the newspaper and cements our relationship with these companies."

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and HomeTown Newspapers are subsidiaries of HomeTown Communications Network of Livonia.

It's also a winning situation for the newspaper's readers since a variety of industries will be represented, including retail, personnel staffing, banking, hotel management, health care and restaurant.

"We decided to maximize our potential success by being general and going after everybody," said Ficorelli.

Companies waiting to shake your hand and take your resume include: Pepsi Cola, The Kroger Co., Home Depot, Sears, Unique Restaurant Corp.,

McDonald's, Prudential Preferred, Skyway Precision, Snelling-Livonia Staffing Services, Tempform Corp., New Horizons and Ford Motor Co.

Ficorelli said he expects the companies' employment needs to range from "the general to the specific." Job seekers are encouraged to come with up to 70 resumes and be prepared for on-the-spot interviews. Appropriate attire is recommended.

Based on the enthusiastic response to this year's job fair (the Observer & Eccentric was "bumped out into the hall" because of lack of space), Ficorelli said the newspapers plan to do another fair next March.

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and HomeTown Newspapers are subsidiaries of HomeTown Communications Network of Livonia.

The Observer & Eccentric publishes 15 twice-weekly community papers in Oakland and western Wayne counties. HomeTown publishes papers in Northville, South Lyon, Brighton, Novi, Milford and Livingston County.

BUSINESS MARKETPLACE

Businesses participate in Livonia senior event

Booths at a popular western Wayne County senior citizens event are available to area businesses.

The Livonia-Plymouth-Northville Senior Celebration Day from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 16, at the Burton Manor in Livonia includes a health fair, games, raffles and entertainment. Tickets, available by pre-registering, are limited to the first 1,000 sold.

The event is sponsored by state Reps. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, and Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, and cosponsored by the Livonia Community Foundation.

"Area businesses with a stake in the growing senior market should participate in this prominent event," said Banks.

"One of the reasons that seniors attend is for valuable consumer information," said Law. "A booth gives businesses tremendous visibility to a large portion of the area's senior population."

William C. Fried, Livonia Community Foundation treasurer, said attorneys, accountants and health-care providers should participate. "This is a special service we are providing the community as a kind of marketplace for senior-related products and services."

Businesses are encouraged to donate raffle prizes.

Interested businesses must request a booth by Sept. 16. Various sponsorships are available.

For more information, call Sandy Nash at (517) 373-3998.

Valassis expands board of directors

Valassis Communications, Inc. of Livonia has elected three outside members to its board of directors effective Aug. 24, increasing the board's size from eight to 11.

New directors are: Patrick F. Brennan, Dean Marcella A. Sampson, and Brian J. Husselbee.

The Valassis board also elected Richard N. Anderson, executive vice president for manufacturing and media, to the board effective Dec. 31, upon the planned departure of David A. Brandon.

Alan F. Schultz, president and CEO, said Anderson will be "an excellent management addition to the board. The majority of our employees are in the manufacturing area of our company, and his election is recognition of their importance to our organization."

Brennan retired in 1996 as president and CEO of Consolidated Papers, Inc. of Wisconsin Rapids, Wisconsin, a manufacturer of coated printing paper.

Sampson is the dean of students for Central State University, Wilberforce, Ohio. Central State is a leading predominantly African-American university. Sampson is a recognized expert in the field of college student placement.

Husselbee is president and CEO of NuWorld Marketing, Inc., the largest coupon clearing organization in the world. A British subject, he has a wide range of experience in the promotion marketing industry.

Valassis is the leading company in the sales promotion industry, including free-standing newspaper inserts. It had revenues of $675.6 million in 1997.

Clinton scandal fodder for those browsing the Web

As the world watches the latest developments in the strangling scandal involving President Clinton, the Word Wide Web is awash in chat rooms, Web site and online petitions devoted to all aspects of the controversy.

MIKE WENDLAND

The traffic has been so heavy as people dialed in and logged on that the entire Internet has sometimes slowed to a crawl, especially after Congress announced that large chunks of the damning impeachment report issued by Special Prosecutor Ken Starr would be released online.

At the Café Domain, the Internet coffee house and business center in Royal Oak where I spend a lot of my time these days as vice president of Internet Development, a steady stream of customers were renting time on the fast T1line-connected computers to exercise their curiosity in cyberspace. At times, it resembled a party atmosphere as people scrolled through the online sites that chronicle every aspect of the case.

On WWJ Radio during morning rush hour Friday, I was even doing regular "Internet updates" on the latest opinions being voiced across the Net. That's how ubiquitous the Internet and the Web have become.

"The Internet," as I said in an interview about this on Fox2-TV, "is the world's new back yard fence."

My quick search of the Net revealed more than 50 Web sites devoted to exposing and publicizing impeachment efforts and Clinton troubles, compared to only a handful of pro-President sites.

And interest in the Starr Report was astounding. On Thursday, MSNBC (<http://www.msnbc.com>) put up an online questions asking its readers how much information they wanted on to be made available on the Internet. Within hours, tens of thousands had voted. In the eight hours, the tally was over 50,000 responses, 80 percent of whom wanted all the details.

Here are some of the more interesting sites related to impeachment and the Starr report:

- Starr's letter to Congress (<http://www.abcnews.com/sections/us/underinvestigation/index.html>) ABCNews.com has put together an extensive background on the report, including the text of Ken Starr's letter to Congress turning over his massive report.

- House Rules Committee (<http://www.house.gov/rules/>) This is the Congressional panel that hammered out the parliamentary details of receiving and processing Starr's report. Their resolutions on the issue are available here.

- One to watch is Drudge Report (<http://www.drudgereport.com/>) Everybody's heard of so-called Internet columnist Matt Drudge by now. Everybody says he's too fast with half facts. Everybody pretends like he's the scourge of cyberspace. But his site remains probably the most checked Net resource for the latest news of the scandal.

- Impeach Clinton Now (<http://impeachment.org/>) This site has been shrill and loud on the issue for months. And no wonder, it's a site affiliated with the John Birch Society.

- The Committee to Impeach President Clinton (<http://www.impeachclinton.org>) This site is a project of the Clinton Investigative Commission, which purports to be a grassroots organization that claims to have delivered over one million petitions to Congress asking for impeachment.

- The White House (<http://www.whitehouse.gov>) Don't forget this site, the President's own home page, so to speak. What will this site say? What won't it say? How will the White House cover its own story. This should be an interesting spot to watch.

- Another choice is Zippergate (<http://www.shastalake.com/gate/index.html#menu>) It's not very tasteful, but this collection of sites that dissect, lampoon and discuss the crisis show how insatiable the Internet appetite for scandal has become.

Coming events: I'll be broadcasting the PC Talk radio show on TalkRadio 1270, WXYT live next Saturday, Sept. 19, from the Inca Computer Builder's store on Woodward Avenue, just south of Maple. I'd love to meet as many readers of the column as possible. Stop by and say hello.

And be sure to register for the PC Mike Internet/Computer seminar to be held from 10 a.m. to Noon on Sept. 26 at the Café Domain, Washington and Fourth, in downtown Royal Oak. You have to register in advance to attend. Call (248) 423-2721 and check my Web page (www.pcmike.com) for details.

Marketing is orchestra's key to future success

Julia Kurtyka is calling on past winning ideas to market the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra in the future. Kurtyka, in her position as the orchestra's new executive director, has managed several orchestras on the West Coast and in Michigan.

A musician, with bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Michigan School of Music, Kurtyka is considering a method she used to increase season subscriptions for the Inland Empire Orchestra in San Bernardino, Calif. How does awarding two airline tickets to Paris to a lucky season subscriber sound? Well, not this season, but maybe next, the Plymouth Symphony could give away the trip of your dreams.

"I'm excited because the board is extremely enthusiastic, and appears to be a working board," said Kurtyka. "While there won't be a lot of change right away, I have some ideas on how I'd like to see things change a little. Visibility is extremely important, newspaper coverage, but also one-on-one. We want to increase visibility by

What: The Verdi Opera Theatre of Michigan celebrates its 10th anniversary in a concert with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

When: 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 20.

Where: Italian American Banquet Center, 39200 Five Mile Road, Livonia.

Tickets: $15, includes an afterglow and opportunity to meet the artists. Call (734) 591-0346 or (734) 451-2112.

Kurtyka visited business owners in the community, the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, and Plymouth Community Arts Council her first week on the job.

"Not a lot of revenue comes from ticket sales so I'd like to take a look at fund-raising events," said Kurtyka. "One idea, which was successful last year, was a season subscription party."

Children are the future

If the Plymouth Symphony, or any other symphony for that matter, hopes to exist 10 or even 20 years from now, they must court children. Kurtyka would like to see a multitude Pedestrian sign symbols come to life, a flock of stilted performers dressed as ostriches and a recreation of the blues music heard on Hastings Street in the 1940s — the 12th annual Detroit Festival of the Arts outshines itself this year with a spectacular celebration of visual art, music, dance and culture Friday-Sunday, Sept. 18-20.

Co-produced by the University Cultural Center Association and Wayne State University, the festival features more than 500 visual and performing artists, including photographers William Thayer of Redford and Barbara Abel, West Bloomfield (see chart for list of local participating artists), a children's fair, literary arts festival, international foods, arts processions and a 50-ton sand sculpture of stampeding safari animals. And it's all free thanks to the Chrysler Corp. Fund and other sponsors. The University Cultural Center Association worked all year to raise the $700,000 necessary to bring in interactive art activities such as Truck Art where visitors can help paint a mural on three 48-foot semi trucks located at Woodward and Farnsworth.

Peter Cummings, a Bloomfield Hills resident and vice chairman of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, co-chairs the festival with John E. Lobb, chairman and chief executive director of Detroit Edison.

"What sets the Detroit Festival apart is the diversity," said Cummings. "It's an absolute kaleidoscopic mix of events — performing artists from Cuba, Africa, Asia and the Americas, visual arts and offbeat kinds of American History, if you put it all together, it's going to evolve into one of the great festivals in the country."

Arthur L. Johnson founded the festival with the concept it would be "second to none." The retired vice president of Wayne State University Relations remembers the first festival 12 years ago, and the emotional experience of looking at the 15 blocks of festivities he'd created in the University Cultural Center. Early on, Johnson made three elements priorities — a children's fair on the WSU campus, a literary arts festival and an Artists Marketplace. As adviser to this year's event, Johnson's elated that the festival is growing.

Children's fair

Nearly 60 arts and science organizations, including Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village, Pewabic Pottery and Very Special Arts Michigan, provide a variety of safari-style activities for children from hands-on projects to puppet shows at WSU's Gullen Mall. Children can paint the Serengeti Plain, make animals masks and insect puppets. A Grand Arts Procession begins at 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday with young and old alike invited to don masks and costumes and take part in the festivities. New this year is the Fabric Action Artscape — a 4,000-square-foot performance playscape from New York City. There is also a youth artists market featuring students from Farmington Hills, Bloomfield Hills, Southfield, Pontiac and Clarkston. Garden City dance teacher Michelle Orow, and the rest of the Wayne State Dance Lab, will host workshops 12:30 p.m. Saturday and noon Sunday in the Detroit Medical Center performance area.

Johnson originally founded the festival to draw the university, Detroit Institute of Arts and other cultural and educational institutions into a campus community. He approached then WSU president David Adamany who enthusiastically applauded the idea. They set out to "develop a festival that's second to none."

Today, the festival spotlights not only Wayne State University and the Detroit Institute of Arts, but Center for Creative Studies, the Detroit Historical Museum, Detroit Science Center, Charles H. Wright Museum of African American History, Detroit Public Library, The Heritage Museum, International Institute, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and the Scarab Club which hosts its first juried sculpture exhibition, "Off the Wall." Internationally known artist and sculptor Jean Jacques Porret juried the show and will talk about the award-winning pieces during an artists reception 6-10 p.m. Saturday at the historic club behind the Detroit Institute of Arts.

By no means a Detroit-only audience, the festival attracts visitors from the surrounding suburbs. Last year's event drew a crowd of more than 250,000. Event coordinators expect that number to rise as the 1998 festival has been expanded to cover more than 20 blocks. Seven performance stages, five of them outdoors, host a variety of international performers.

Beginning 3 p.m. Sunday on the Charles H. Wright Museum of African American History stage, the Hastings Street Revue recreates the spirit of Detroit's legendary Hastings Street with a 1940s blues revue.

Violinist seeks balance in life, music

STAFF WRITER

Violin virtuoso Joshua Bell began playing violin when he was 5 years old and was playing concert halls by the time he was 14, but he has been widely recognized as one "child prodigy" who has been able to maintain a balanced life.

"It's very important to me," he said. "I can't imagine life being just music; I have lots of other interests."

He even takes days off when he doesn't practice.

Bell plays his music with a passion and precision that he also brings to tennis and golf.

"I played (golf) twice this weekend. It's getting better. In another lifetime I could see myself playing a lot of golf." In this lifetime, Bell will open the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's 1998-99 season with a performance of Mendelssohn's Concerto for Violin. The orchestra, under music director Neeme Jarvi, will also perform Buck's "Festival Overture" and Mahler's dramatic Symphony No. 5.

Bell's boyish good-looks do not mask the musical artistry he's been honing since childhood. Bell was born and reared in Bloomington, Ind., home of Indiana University, noted as one of the country's best music schools.

Joshua Bell

When he was 12 he began to study with Josef Gingold, a former concertmaster of the Cleveland Orchestra and noted teacher.

"I was lucky to be born in Bloomington, my mother was born in Detroit and went to Wayne State, actually. But they moved to Bloomington because my father taught in the psychology department," he said.

At 14 Bell won the Seventeen Magazine/General Motors Competition and made his orchestral debut with the Philadelphia Orchestra. He has since performed with many of the world's leading orchestras and has recorded widely, first for London/Decca and recently for Sony.

Bell was reached in Toronto where he is attending the premiere of "The Red Violin" at the Toronto Film Festival.

Potters share techniques and sweet corn

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Kris Darby has served sweet corn every night since her house guests arrived from Nicaragua. Clay artists Amanda Guzman and Paula Rodriguez fell in love with the seasonal treat while giving a series of ceramics workshops sponsored by Potters for Peace in Illinois and Pewabic Pottery in Detroit. They were in Plymouth to demonstrate their traditional craft at the Village Potters Guild founded by Darby.

The dark brown clay they brought to shape the birds, animals and market women sculptures they dug from an area at the foot of a Nicaraguan volcano known to locals as Hebericles San Jacinto. After sculpting the ceramics at the potters guild, Guzman and Rodriguez applied a dark terra cotta red slip before burnishing the exteriors with polished stones, a rare commodity in their homeland. Assisting the potters, Darby proudly lifted a plastic bag of stones she'd purchased as a gift for them the day before.

"These are very rare," said Darby displaying a polished stone in her hand. "Because they only have river rocks, they're passed from generation to generation."

Rodriguez first learned to shape clay at her mother's side at age 11. By 19, she began working by herself to create her own designs instead of her mother's. Her studio is in the barrio in which she lives, a community of attached huts made from stucco. Her daughters, ages 16 and 10, now learn ceramics from Rodriguez. Rodriguez's husband is also a ceramic artist and she's very proud of that.

"I like animals and different things to do with nature," said Rodriguez. "I of programs to interest young people in symphonic music. When she was with the Toledo Symphony, Kurtyka started a youth orchestra. Although that's an idea the orchestra might foster later on, right now they're interested in attracting the audience of the future. To do so, they're encouraging attendance by giving free admission to children through high school age starting with the season opener 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 17, at Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium.

School is another good way to reach children so orchestra members are setting aside the week of Monday-Friday, Sept. 28 to Oct. 2, to introduce orchestral music to third graders in Plymouth Canton Community Schools. The demonstrations will acquaint youngsters with flute, oboe, clarinet, violin, and cello.

"Education has always been important to me," said Kurtyka. "Everyone says the children are our future audience, but aside from that, it helps all of us. It's good for the kids. It exposes them whether they go into a musical career or not. Music is limitless. I enjoy rock as well and have played with Smokey Robinson and with Rod Stewart at Tiger Stadium."

Regrets

Kurtyka has taught music since the mid-1960s so it is with sadness that she is giving up teaching the Suzuki method of violin. She thinks it's important to devote all of her attention to the orchestra. She also plans to continue performing as a violinist. Kurtyka spends a lot of time on the road traveling between orchestra rehearsals and concerts. She is concertmaster with the Grosse Pointe Symphony, International Symphony (Port Huron/Sarnia), co-concert master with the Southern Great Lakes Symphony (formerly the Allen Park Symphony) and the Michigan Opera Theatre Orchestra. She also performs with the Birmingham Bloomfield Symphony Orchestra.

"We're trying to get youth involvement by having school band members and youth clubs volunteer to meet and greet concert goers," said Kurtyka. "We're trying to increase the size of the audience. We're reaching out to senior citizens by offering them a ride to the concert. We're also going out to the senior citizens center to give programs."

Help wanted

Now that the orchestra has filled the position of executive director, it is searching for a new concertmaster. Auditions for concertmaster, string and horn positions for the orchestra's 53rd season take place Monday, Sept. 14. The 60 to 70 member orchestra is also searching for a conductor to replace Russell Reed when he retires at the end of the 1998-99 season.

"This season we'll continue to have a few guest conductors, other prospective conductors will come for rehearsals and some conducted last season," said Kurtyka.

In all, eight conductors are being considered. A decision will be made at the end of the season.

Kurtyka is also looking for volunteers like Janice Hallsworth who works in the office two days a week. No experience necessary, said Kurtyka, to help with mailings, filing, etc. To volunteer, call (734) 451-2112.

"I enjoy it," said Hallsworth. "I enjoy the people I work with."

like to do things that give people a good feeling and utensils you can make with a natural form."

Forty years of experience and knowledge go into making Guzman's ceramics. Guzman learned to craft pottery from her grandmother "in the old tradition." All four of her children earned college degrees. Son Ramiro, 26, however, could not find a job as a chemical engineer in Nicaragua so he now throws pottery on a wheel.

"My grandmother made cooking and eating utensils, water jugs, soup pots," said Guzman, "but I like to make things of nature too and people of my village, gorditas and campacinos."

Guzman's sculptures of market women (gorditas) and the "common man" (campacinos) honor her people. In a country where teachers and police officers earn $140 a month, Guzman makes heroes of everyday people like cannery workers who survive on $1,500 to $2,000 a year.

In January, Darby visited Nicaragua for a month as part of the Potters for Peace program. Potters for Peace is trying to help Nicaraguan artists market their ceramics. Currently, Guzman and Rodriguez sell their work at markets and alongside roadways.

"They put water jugs by the side of the road and hope someone who needs a jug passes by," said Darby. "We not only want to help them market their work, but to bring them here for workshops. It's so important for us to be exposed to their culture, their techniques, their views and ways with clay and for them to learn about our pottery, glazes and our culture."

Eileen Hewett, a guild member from Irish Hills, appreciated the educational workshop with Guzman and Rodriguez. After removing the wares from the kiln, Guzman and Rodriguez sprinkled wood chips on top of the ceramics to create the black surfaces.

"It's such a privilege to take part in this, to have the experience of working with someone who does something as fast as on a wheel but with their hands," said Hewett. "This is the first time watching somebody sculpt something by hand. They seem to do it with so much ease and they make their own tools. A piece of coconut shell is used to shape the clay."

In Nicaragua, Guzman and Rodriguez fire clay in a hand-built brick kiln. At the Village

Potters Guild, they used a gas flame kiln. That's part of the concept behind Potters for Peace -- to expose artists from developing countries to American ways. Guzman, like Rodriguez, enjoyed meeting all the people she encountered along the way but more importantly she expanded her knowledge by watching American potters at work.

"I like seeing a lot of the things like the kilns, tools and clay," said Guzman. "In Nicaragua there's just one or two kinds of kilns but there are a lot of artists there."

Overall, their opinions of America were favorable. While Guzman and Rodriguez didn't like the elevators and escalators, Rodriguez thought Americans were no different from her people.

"The cities are very different," said Rodriguez. "You have a lot of things we don't have in our country, but I don't want to live here. In my country, life is tranquil and calm. Everything is too busy and fast here. In my country we have time during the day to just sit and visit. There's a very close fraternity with our friends and neighbors. Here, there's such a distance. It's just on the telephones."

Bell was musical consultant and performs the music of John Corigliano on the soundtrack to the Francois Gerard film. Gerard directed the acclaimed "Thirty-two Short Films About Glenn Gould."

Corigliano is one of many contemporary composers whose works Bell has championed, while also recording the standard repertoire.

"I know there are many that don't get recognition, it's hard to get played and I'm as guilty as anyone," Bell said. "I have a stack of manuscripts from composers that they sent me. It takes so much time to weed through because a lot is not good."

Bell composes his own cadenzas and enjoys composing.

"I don't fancy myself as a composer, yet. Every time I've done it, I've loved it."

Bell's most recent recording is a selection of music by George Gershwin with John Williams and the London Symphony. The music was transcribed especially for the violin. Bell's approach to Gershwin is typical of his general view of music.

"Gershwin obviously is appreciated by so many people," he said. "There's not any category you can put him in. It's a shame we have to label everything so exactly. The term crossover is so distasteful to me, such as the idea that my playing Gershwin is crossing over. Gershwin is its own thing, part pop, jazz, classical. 'Porgy and Bess' is a great classical opera and then it isn't. He's one of the greatest composers of all time."

Bell's two current recording projects show his musical eclecticism. He will record major concertos by Sibelius and Goldmark with the Los Angeles Philharmonic and he recently completed a project with bass player/composer Edgar Meyer, whom Bell has known since college.

"He wrote all the music and there's a lot of bluegrass and we play with bluegrass performers like Sam Bush and Mike Marshall. I learned a lot," he said.

In Detroit, Bell will demonstrate his ability to make the familiar new.

"Mendelssohn, I consider to be one of the greatest violin concertos, maybe in some ways the greatest... It's often referred to as 'the perfect concerto,'" he said.

Bell said the important thing is to make it fresh and honest.

Detroit Christians
call for a shared Jerusalem
Heritage, Hope and Home of Two Peoples and Three Religions

Jerusalem is a sacred city to Jews, Christians and Muslims, the Children of Abraham. All long for Jerusalem to be the City of Peace. For most of its history, the fate of Jerusalem was determined by war. Now the ancient hope for peace can become reality through negotiations.

Israeli leaders hold that Jerusalem should be Israel's capital under the sole sovereignty of the State of Israel. Palestinian leaders hold that traditionally Arab eastern Jerusalem should become the capital of a new State of Palestine.

As Christians committed to working for peace, we support a negotiated solution for Jerusalem that respects the human and political rights of both Palestinians and Israelis, as well as the rights of the three religious communities. We urge Jews, Christians and Muslims to open dialogue on these issues.

Jerusalem at peace cannot belong exclusively to one people, one country or one religion. Jerusalem should be open to all, shared by all... two peoples and three religions.

We urge the United States government to call upon negotiators to move beyond exclusivist claims and create a Jerusalem that is a sign of peace and a symbol of reconciliation for all humankind.

GUIDE TO THE MOVIES

'If I Don't Six' uncovers ugliness of college football

Elwood Riley, a big, no-neck line-man from working-class Cleveland who defies all the stupid cliches about big "dumb" jocks. Riley (Reid) would rather read books than hit people, though football gives him a rush. He is especially taken with the Stoics and the emperor/philosopher Marcus Aurelius, whom he quotes to anyone who'll listen. He resents being pushed into "easy" classes by Coach Roe (read Bo Schembechler) and makes out his own schedule.

BY HUGH GALLAGHER STAFF WRITER

This roman a clef set in the football world of the University of Michigan will be an eye opener for any of those still naive enough to believe that college football builds character, makes boys into men, is played for the love of the game or any of those other obnoxious cliches.

Elwood Reid, who played for the Wolverines as Brian Reid before being sidelined by injuries, uses his own sad experience as an offensive lineman to testify otherwise. College football is a raw world where the players are separated from other college students, brutalized by their coaches and each other and reduced to being fodder for the sake of college revenues and NFL recruiters.

Even those who most love the game soon find themselves physically and mentally traumatized, looking for ways to get out of playing and still retain their scholarships. "Six" is short for "deep six," the practice of taking a career ending but endurable injury in order to retain a scholarship.

"If I Don't Six" is an unsettling debut novel. Reid is a talented writer. He has a direct, clipped, minimal style with an excellent ear for dialogue. Indeed, much of the book is told through conversations that capture the various and conflicting voices with dead accuracy, or at the least brilliant parody.

But there is a problem in Reid's telling. The protagonist is between words eliminated - one can find words, phrases, even short sentences by applying various consistent skip sequences: 1 letter skipped, 2 letters, 3 letters, up to several thousand.

That finding alone would be unremarkable, writes Drosnin, were it not for related information encoded in close proximity. Yitzhak Rabin's name, for instance, is crossed by "assassin" that will assassinate, and located nearby is the name of his murderer: Amir.

Formerly an investigative reporter for The Washington Post and The Wall Street Journal, Drosnin was highly skeptical when he first heard of the Bible code. Mildly curious, however, he flew to Jerusalem in 1992 to meet the decoder, Soviet-born mathematician Eliyahu Rips, who teaches at Hebrew University. Rips, along with two other mathematicians, had made a startling discovery. Using the technique of equidistant skip sequencing, they found the names of 32 Jewish sages, from Biblical to modern times, encoded in Genesis, along with the corresponding dates of their birth and death.

In an attempt to uncover a hoax, Pentagon code breaker Harold Gans wrote his own computer program, using a different set of names. He came up with the same results. All the names were encoded in the Bible, matched with their dates and even the cities in which they were born.

Drosnin maintains that the statistical methods used by Rips and his two colleagues have been confirmed by Harvard professor David Kazhdan and Yale mathematician Piateski-Shapiro. Rips' article, published in August of 1994 in Statistical Review (and reproduced in Drosnin's book), passed three peer reviews.

One might ask how a text written 3,000 years ago could foretell the future. "It is God," say some. It is a relic from a close encounter with alien intelligence, explain others, including the author.

Then does the Bible code imply that human life is predetermined, that the prediction of an atomic holocaust in 2000 or 2006 will come true? Drawing on quantum physics and the Uncertainty Principle that states "there is not one future but many possible futures," Drosnin believes that the Bible may actually record multiple outcomes. Truly, "The Bible Code" is a revelation. It is well documented and written persuasively. But whether the miracle in Drosnin's book is divine or mathematical remains to be seen.

'Bible Code' reveals messages

The Bible Code By Michael Drosnin Simon & Schuster, 1997, $13

According to author Michael Drosnin, the Bible is an interactive computer program. Encoded in its first five books (the Torah) are names of prominent persons, dates of significant events and warnings of future catastrophes.

Yitzhak Rabin's murder, for example, is encoded in Deuteronomy and was uncovered by the author a year before it occurred. References to Hitler and the Nazis, the moon landing, Nixon and Watergate and the Gulf War are found in the Bible.

"There is a Bible beneath the Bible," writes Drosnin in the New York Times bestseller "The Bible Code." For 3,000 years, it was time-locked, awaiting detection with the invention of the computer.

The code, found only in the original Hebrew, operates by a process called "equidistant letter sequences." If one prints the Torah as a continuous strand of 304,805 letters - with spaces between words eliminated - one can find words, phrases, even short sentences by applying various consistent skip sequences: 1 letter skipped, 2 letters, 3 letters, up to several thousand.

That finding alone would be unremarkable, writes Drosnin, were it not for related information encoded in close proximity. Yitzhak Rabin's name, for instance, is crossed by "assassin" that will assassinate, and located nearby is the name of his murderer: Amir.

LIMITED SPACE

Canton Project Arts is taking reservations for a trip to see "I Love You, You're Perfect, Now Change," Sunday, Oct. 11 at the Gem Theatre in Detroit. The bus leaves the Canton Township Hall at 4:30 p.m. for a 6 p.m. performance.

Tickets are $22.50 per person (includes transportation) and available at Resource Development in Canton Township Hall, 1150 S. Canton Center Road. Deadline for reservations is Sept. 21, call (734) 397-6450.

FINAL DAYS

Gallery owners Scott Smith (Penniman Gallery) and Annette Horn (Native West) are among the "Familiar Faces" portrayed in an exhibit of photography by Jill Andra Young through Sept. 18 at the Plymouth Community Arts Council, 774 North Sheldon at Junction.

The series of black and white photographs feature local Plymouth personalities depicted in such a way as to say something about their profession—chiropractor Sidney Disbrow with a stethoscope around his neck and a human skeleton in his hands, Downtown Development Authority director Steve Guile wearing his many hats, and Beth Stewart, Plymouth Historical Museum director.

"Familiar Faces" represents a departure for Young, whose studio is located on Penniman in Plymouth. Although she trained as a commercial photographer and worked at a professional portrait studio, Young is best known for her pet portraits. In keeping with the concept of the exhibit, Young's self portrait in the show depicts her with dog Annie in "Bark Softly and Carry a Big Bone."

Hours are 9 a.m. to noon Monday to Friday, until 9 p.m. Wednesday. For more information, call (734) 416-4278.

OPENING RECEPTION

Zoom Gallery hosts an exhibition by Randall Veilleux Sept. 19 to Oct. 18 at Zoom Gallery, 212 Miller Avenue, Ann Arbor. A reception takes place 7-9 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 19 at the gallery.

Veilleux new anthropocentric drawings offer a rare glimpse into the empirical, whimsical and holistic vision characterizing the Ann Arbor artist.

For more information, call (734) 747-9944.

NANKIN MILLS BENEFIT

A painting of Nankin Mills by Westland resident Paul Maceri will be on exhibit during the 10th annual wine and cheese fundraiser 5-7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 23 at Nankin Mills, 33175 Ann Arbor Trail, east of Farmington in Westland.

Presented by the Friends of Nankin Mills, the evening includes the opportunity to sample a variety of Michigan wines while learning about the future plans for Nankin Mills as an interpretive center. Come and hear what the naturalist has been doing with school groups and summer camp during the past year or tour the historic mill.

Tickets are $20 and available 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday to Friday at the mill, or at the door. Call (734) 261-1990.

CHORALE AUDITIONS

Madonna University's Chorale is holding open auditions for the 1998-99 season. Auditions consist of an individual meeting with David Wagner, chorale director.

The chorale rehearses from 7-9 p.m. Tuesdays for its Christmas and spring concerts. There is no charge to sing in the chorale but academic credit is given to Madonna University students. The choral consists of students and community members.

For more information, call (734) 432-5708 or send e-mail to wagner@smtp.munet.edu.

ARTREACH FALL LUNCHEON

The Plymouth Community Arts Council is hosting a luncheon featuring Lois Bro and her "Doll Art" 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 23 at the Joanne Winkelman Hulce Center for the Arts, 774 North Sheldon, Plymouth.

Cost is $15. Proceeds will go for an annual field trip to the Detroit Institute of Arts for all Plymouth-Canton Community Schools fifth graders.

In conjunction with the luncheon the arts council is hosting a workshop with Bro 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 24. Learn to make beautiful faces for cloth dolls. A basic doll body, 12-14 inches, will be furnished for you to complete and take home. Bring needles, thread and scissors. Cost is $53 and includes all materials. To register for the luncheon or workshop, call (734) 416-4ART.

Bro earned a bachelor's of fine art degree in sculpture from Center for Creative Studies. She works in clay, porcelain and soft sculpture. Founder of Stuffits, a soft sculpture group in South Carolina, Bro shares her doll making skills in seminars and workshops throughout the country.

MONOTYPE WORKSHOPS

The Visual Arts Association of Livonia presents two workshops in watercolor monotypes with Lily Dudgeon 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays Sept. 19 and 26 at the Jefferson Center, 9501 Henry Ruff, south of Plymouth Road, Livonia.

Learn to print by hand or with a press. Bring watercolor supplies and sketches or photos for subjects to print.

The cost is $45 for VAAL members, $50 non-members. Instructor will sell print paper for cost. Call (313) 561-4457 for instruction sheet.

To register or for more information, call Mary Ann Adams at (734) 455-9517.

FLOWERS AND ART

Noted for its formal gardens, wetlands and winding trails, the grounds of the University of Michigan's Matthaei Botanical Gardens are being enhanced with sculpture crafted by contemporary artists from Michigan and the Great Lakes region. Each piece of work will be displayed for 12-18 months in one of 20 locations.

Among the items in place at the gardens is the "Arc," created by Tom Phardel. Located in the wetland area, Phardel's scul-ture combines natural and man-made steel. Further down the path near the bend of Fleming Creek, Jim Melberg's "Forest Murmurs" and "Two Figures" provide a fascinating play of light and reflection off the six-foot tall highly polished cast aluminum forms. Located near the main entrance to the Gardens at Willow Pond is Jon Rush's "Jane LaRue Sun Dial." Part of Matthaei's permanent collection, this piece is rooted in earth seeming almost totemic. The Rose Garden plays host to Lou Marinari's "Dawn" and "Dusk."

The 350-acre Matthaei oasis is open daily from 8 a.m. to sunset. Hours for the conservatory housing more than 1,200 plants from around the world are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily except Christmas, New Year's Day and Thanksgiving. To arrange a tour or learn about upcoming events and programs, call (734) 998-7061.

Cranbrook exhibit explores disturbing view of gender

By FRANK PROVENZANO
STAFF WRITER

Just when the dilemmas of politically correct language seemed to be resolved comes the ultimate post-modern gender twister in Cranbrook Art Museum's season-opening exhibit, "It's all about ME, Not You," an installation by the late Greer Lankton.

Within one of Cranbrook's interior galleries is a rectangular, white-sided house. Inside is a cathartic look at the artist's life, including photographs, pen and ink drawings, images of heroes and heroines, and psychologically tortured dolls, some of which resemble the artist.

But in reality, there are only approximations of the artist.

In mind, body and art, Lankton is the personification of a pushing-it-to-the-edge artist—morally ambivalent, outrageously androgynous and excessively individualistic.

Through Lankton's imagery of gender exploration, viewers will inevitably become curious about what was the day-to-day life of the artist, a transsexual, who, at age 38, died in late 1996 from the apparent effects of drugs and anorexia.

Indeed, there's no separating Lankton's art from her tortured life as a "woman in a man's body," then a transsexual and an artist seeking a 3D world to recreate the haunting images ruminating in her mind, and sculpted into the deep pores of her dolls.

A reading room adjacent to the exhibit provides biographical information on Lankton as well as a range of books on gender studies.

"This exhibit isn't really about 'me,'" said Irene Hofmann, associate curator at Cranbrook Museum of Art. "You feel the soul of the artist. Perhaps people will feel more compassion and understanding."

The small installation house of Lankton's art is placed on an ersatz set: tacky patio furniture rests on an astroturf lawn. A pair of legs wearing red ruby shoes are stuffed under the house.

Apparently, the house landed in a bizarre world not far from Oz, but there's none of the joy of watching Dorothy finding her way home.

"It's all about ME, Not You" is utterly gut-wrenching. Not because of its stark confrontation of transsexuality, but because of its relentless psychological and physical exposures of the artist.

New Exhibits at Cranbrook Art Museum, 1221 N. Woodward, Bloomfield Hills, (248) 645-3300

■ "It's all about ME, Not You," an installation by Greer Lankton, through Nov. 1. Opening reception 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 18.

■ "The Squeeze Chair Project" by Wendy Jacob, through Sunday, Nov. 1

■ "Somewhere," an installation by Carla Preiss, through Sunday, Jan. 3

■ "Motel Movies 24 Hours," a project by Robert Andersen, through Sunday, Nov. 1

While some may find Lankton's work painfully beautiful, it is quite difficult to look beyond the pain and vulnerability.

Exposing the private life

Upon reading and seeing the graphic details of Lankton's sexual transformation in art, and accompanying photo album, there's an uneasy, but all-too-familiar exposure to the private side of life.

In the name of art and with the hopo-to-shock sensibility of a raucy tabloid, Lankton's 15-minute of fame has the effect of a cattle prod forcing viewers to face their own issues of gender and sexual identity.

"We're not doing our job if we're not making people think," said Hofmann. "The exhibit suggests that gender ought not to be so clear cut."

To conservatives or those supporters of the Christian Coalition, Hofmann's mere choice of the exhibit might appear as an endorsement of the transsexual lifestyle.

To those possible critics, Hofmann pleads for tolerance and compassion.

"Greer didn't have control of anything in her life, except for her art, especially her dolls."

The dolls had been a life-long infatuation for Lankton. At an early age as a boy, she chose to play with dolls. Soon thereafter, she made her own dolls that apparently symbolized her emotional turmoil.

Her life is filled with stories of ridicule and rejection. But surprisingly, also of acceptance.

Lankton's father is a Presbyterian minister, whose church raised money to pay for the artist's sex-change operation. Several years later, Lankton's father also officiated at the marriage ceremony of his son.

Best of the West: Southwest and Native American art at Native West in Plymouth.

Browse two of 'the best'

Native West in Plymouth and Knightsbridge Antiques in Northville are among the "Best of Malls and Mainstreets," according to readers. In case you don't know what I'm talking about, several weeks ago an announcement ran on these Malls and Mainstreets pages, inviting readers to write in, listing their favorite places to shop. The resulting list would be called "Best of Malls and Mainstreets." My job this week was to check out two of the stores that readers nominated and see what I thought about them.

SHOPPING CENTERED

One of the stores was Native West, which received this glowing nomination from a reader: "By far the very best, and I mean the very best in authentic Native American art and furnishings from the Great American Southwest, is Native West. The quality of merchandise is terrific! And talk about service... I love going in that store. No pressure but an excellent staff knowledgeable about so much." I had a great time visiting Native West. Every item there has a story or legend behind it, and learning about them was a lot of fun.

Take the store's fetishes, for example. Fetishes are small animal sculptures carved of rock or stone. Each animal is associated with different traits and if you have a fetish and respect it, then it is believed that those traits will rub off on you, shop owner Annette Horn said. Bear fetishes make great gifts for people who are ill, because they are supposed to give a person a stout heart, a strong will, inner knowledge, strength and good health, Horn said.

Other things you'll find at Native West include: hand carved drums (the largest ones can be used as coffee tables), beautiful rugs and blankets, Navajo sand paintings, Southwest-style tables, Native American jewelry, pottery, copper wall art, hot sauces, dips and more.

"We will not sell an item without disclosing information about its origin," Horn said, adding that the store is a member of the Indian Arts and Crafts Association, which works to protect the interests of Native American craftspeople. Native West, 863 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, (734) 455-8838.

A reader who nominated Knightsbridge Antiques wrote that, "(I) could spend hours, no days, just looking (there). By far the best antique mall we have ever been in." I haven't been to a lot of antique malls, but I enjoyed visiting Knightsbridge Antiques. It's sort of a museum of pop culture and every piece I saw raised questions like: who did that belong to, why did they give that up, why on earth did someone save that, or, I have something like that, I wonder how much it's worth?

Some of the strangest things I saw there were Pepsi straws from the 1930s and 1950s. The ones from the 1950s came two in a wrapper for $2. The ones from the 1930s were unwrapped and were $8 each. The most intriguing thing I saw was a wooden box that a soldier inscribed with a love poem and sent to his wife during World War II. Did he come back from the war and why would anyone part with such a romantic heirloom? Knightsbridge Antiques has more than 300 dealers and does not carry things made after 1960. It is located at 42305 Seven Mile Road. Call (248) 344-7200.

Next week in Malls & Mainstreets, look for more readers-choice "Best Of" places and products.

Birmingham has become a destination city. Folks flock to its bustling downtown to shop for cutting-edge fashions, peruse art galleries and antique stores, relax in coffeehouses and indulge in salon services. Come sunset, the sidewalks teem with restaurant- and movie-goers, scene-stealers and people-watchers.

With this "see and be seen" attitude in mind, the Birmingham-Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce and more than 100 Birmingham merchants, restaurants and galleries loosely dubbed their ninth annual Fall Spectacular, "A Day in the Life... Birmingham," with a fashion show that will take viewers on a stylish spree through town, with appropriate attire for day-to-evening Birmingham pursuits.

Fashion coordinator Heather Luplow Hartle hopes to convey the "vibe that is Birmingham." The production will offer a slice of life, highlighting what makes the city special. "You'll recognize Birmingham on stage," she says. An eclectic mix of live and recorded music will add to the show. In keeping with the clean, polished look of this fall's key fashion trends, the runway will be filled with sophisticated grays and cosmopolitan collections. The Spectacular, a fashion and dining extravaganza complete with live and silent auctions, is slated for Wednesday, Sept. 23 at 6 p.m. under the tents between the Townsend Hotel and The Community House. The event benefits the Pediatric Cancer Survivors Scholarship Fund of William Beaumont Hospital.

"This year our goal is to provide 20 children with college scholarships," says Richard Astrein, event co-chair.

"What's so unique is that so many Birmingham people participate. It's the only event that pulls all types of businesses together to raise funds for such a special cause," says Astrein.

Florists donate flowers, art and antique dealers decorate the tents, local salons provide hair and makeup services for the models and 25 Birmingham merchants provide the clothes for the fashion show.

"It's fashion and entertainment that will emphasize Birmingham's community spirit," says Hartle.

General admission tickets are $45 ($55 at the door). Patron tickets are $125. Tickets are available at all participating Birmingham merchants, salons and the Birmingham-Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce at (248) 644-1700.

Fall finery adds polish to Gem Theatre reopening

When the curtain rises on Act Two in the Gem Theatre's housewarming production of "I Love You, You're Perfect, Now Change," Kate Wilinger appears on stage in a comical Kelly greensatin bridesmaid's ensemble complete with giant bows and dyed-to-match shoes. Fortunately, though good for laughs in the Gem's musical comedy, the garish gown and its like was not visible at the theater's Wednesday night celebration of Chuck Forbes and his relocated cabaret showplace. Instead, Forbes' friends and family, neighbors, arts patrons and downtown movers-and-shakers gathered in the Gem's garden-gated courtyard wearing tasteful, understated summer-into-fall formal wear. Some 450 guests cozied up to the ever-gracious Forbes and admired the polished-to-perfection "gem" of a theater. "What a welcome addition to the neighborhood," said communications guru Leland K. Bassett of Farmington Hills, whose office is just across the street. The pony-tailed Bassett mingled in an elegant tux with casual-chic black sneakers. The first cultural event of the season found women searching their closets for appropriate attire. "It's hard to know what to wear this time of year," said Susie Hunt of West Bloomfield. "I spent a long time deciding." She made her entrance in a black satin gown with a tiger-striped bodice. And when the evening turned cool, around dusk, she and other stylish theater-goers donned lightweight jackets, shawls and sweaters.

A sea of black dresses and suits circulated among the chrysanthemums on the gray tiled terrace. But an occasional royal blue or fuchsia gown punctuated the landscape, and songstress Amy Jackson, who opened the show with a lovely performance of "Bless This House," was stunning in red pleated silk.

John Heide, longtime usher at the Gem and Fox theaters, has seen his share of openings, but this one was special. He conducted his own personalized private tours, bragging about the interior refurbishing, the miracle move from East Columbia Street and the amazing tenacity of Chuck Forbes and the building. "Everyone's saying it looks just the same. It's like an old friend. And it looks like it belongs right here. And they're right. Nothing's changed, except it's even better than ever." As for the fashion, this was a tame, elegant crowd in Heide's estimation. "I've seen some outrageous costumes in my time," he said. "And they weren't always on the actors."

Fall is fine for family camping in Ontario

SPECIAL WRITER

Visions of lazy Labor Day potluck picnics have faded fast. Summer's casual pace has been replaced.

School project deadlines, cupcakes for the Brownies, soccer and more soccer, are sandwiched between late night business meetings, dentist appointments and PTA activities. You anticipate each precious weekend, only to spend them grocery shopping, cleaning the house, hauling the kids to soccer games and dance classes, catching up on the laundry, cleaning the yard, repairing that leaky whatever, visiting with the in-laws, 45 minutes for church and spending an entire 20 minutes of quality time with the family. WAIT!

The fall season offers a scrumptious milieu for family outdoor adventure. Plan a quick fall fix right next door, camping at Canada's Pinery Provincial Park, only about a two-hour drive northeast.

"Ugh!" You say. If sleeping in the dirt without TV isn't exactly your idea of a family quality experience, look at it this way: You will be traveling to foreign soil, no passports necessary. When crossing from Port Huron to Sarnia, Ontario, I advise a detour to the duty free. Opt for the giant bottle of Bailey's (it's a great value), just to take the chill out of the evening air.

Bring your camper, your trailer or your tent; lots of easy-fixin' comfort food; your camera; and a comfortable pair of walking shoes. Oh yeah, and do bring the kids. If you don't own a camper or a tent ... consider borrowing one. Camping devotees - and we all know them - have every conceivable outdoor gadget and gizmo that would make feasible even a trip to Antarctica. Just ask to borrow their gear. One caveat though, be prepared for a lengthy oration as they perform like Felix the Cat and his magic bag "... And this turns into a table for day, a bed for evening and a kayak for fishing. See!"

The amber, sanguine and saffron foliage, and the crisp weather is perfect for Patagonia-clad lads and lasses to roam the 10 hiking trails that showcase distinctive conifers and mammals. Trails vary in difficulty as well as scenery, ranging from .8 km to 3 km in distance. (That's about .5 to 1.86 miles for those of us who never grasped the metric system.)

The crowds are minimal this time of year. Take time and stroll the well-kept trails; complete with wooden stairways that make it easy to climb hills and cross swampy areas. Trails ramble along the river, around ponds, through forests and some even to Lake Huron's shoreline.

We found the campsites to be private, quiet and relaxing. So relaxing, that we forgot the cardinal rule of camping: secure all food. A nocturnal visitor absconded with half a dozen apples (those large delicious ones) and several navel oranges. This was no squirrel. Although temperatures may dip considerably, we were snug in our zero-degree rated sleeping bags. Actually, we cheated and hooked up to electricity, since it was only 60 feet away. Serenaded by a pair of hooting owls, we all slept like babies.

Need more reasons? Did I mention that the Provincial Parks are clean, clean, clean! Maybe it's as much an honor to be one of the Provincial Park's Toilet Police as it is to be a member of their Mounted Police. They have full-service comfort stations with steaming hot showers, in addition to out houses. A little advice: hit the showers before 8 a.m.

One gem you will want to include is Rock Glen, located just outside the tiny town of Arkona, about 16 miles south of the Pinery. Established along the Au sable River, Rock Glen is a delightful 64-acre conservation area teeming with fossils. Fossil specimens like brachiopods, horn coral, crinoid stem sections and trilobite geological formations, as well as Indian artifacts are on display in Rock Glen's quaint museum. Playing Indiana Jones, you can meander the nature trails, past scenic waterfalls, along the Au sable River bed and into the dam ruins, on a treasure hunt for traces of marine life from the Devonian Era. We successfully unearthed all but the elusive trilobite. If you've never fossil hunted, let me tell you, it rates right up there with scavenging the Great Lakes shoreline for that perfect skipping stone, or traipsing white ocean beaches in search of the supreme shell. Some of the horn coral even have an uncanny resemblance to dinosaur teeth. These fossils are actually older than many dinosaurs (that's pre-Jurassic Park), some 345 to 395 million years old! Is this not sounding more like a Disney vacation?

For conifer-lovers, the area offers southern climate trees of sycamores, sassafras, black walnut and tulip-trees, standing side by side with sugar maples, beeches, white elm and basswood that generally grow in the North. It's yet another great reason to make a quick weekend trip to visit our Canadian neighbors.

The Pinery boasts nearly 1,000 campsites available in three areas: Burley, Dunes and Riverside campgrounds. They also offer 400 year-round sites at Riverside Campgrounds. But if you plan to include a trip to Rock Glen, make sure you get there by late October, when it closes for the winter.

It's still a bargain, remember that the fees are all in Canadian currency. The camping fees are $17.75 a night non-electrical; $20.75 a night electrical, plus a $6 reservation fee. Admission to Rock Glen is $2 per person or $5 per car. And duty free is a bargain. For information and reservations (recommended) for the Pinery, on Hwy. 21, 8 km southwest of Grand Bend, Ontario, call (519)243-3099. For information about Rock Glen, call (519)828-3071.

OBSERVER SPORTS SCENE

Area golf divots

•Mike Stewart of Livonia won the men's division title at the Detroit News Hole-in-One contest Sept. 2 at Rogell Golf Course.

Stewart, using a cut 5-iron shot, finished 3 feet, 8 inches away from the cup on the 149-yard hole. He won $150 gift certificate and a trophy.

Al Hernandez, Sr. of Livonia won a $100 gift certificate for finishing runner-up in the Senior Men's. He was 4 feet, 6 inches away.

The overall champion was Joe Katz (3 feet, 3 inches away) from Southfield.

•Six spots were determined Tuesday for the 18th U.S. Mid-Amateur Championship qualifier at Walnut Creek Country Club in South Lyon.

Earning spots were Mitch Wilson (Portage), 70; John Barbour (East Grand Rapids), 71; Del de Windt, III (Troy), Randy Lewis (Alma), 72 each; John Gaffney (Williamsville, N.Y.) and Dale Black (Flushing), 73 each.

Local players missing the cut included Robert Cenker (Livonia), 77; Claud Johnston (Westland), 78; Glen-McLraith (Livonia), 79; Kevin Janasik (Livonia), 81; and Alex McLuckie (Livonia), 83.

Collegiate notes

•Northern Michigan University freshman Melissa Backus (Livonia Stevenson) has been named Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Women's Soccer Player of the Week.

Backus, a member of the two-time defending state champion and undefeated Stevenson teams, scored three goals and added four assists as NMU captured three straight games, including the Wisconsin-Oshkosh Invitational Tournament.

In the previous two seasons, NMU was 2-22 overall.

•Sophomore forward Nicole Tobin (Stevenson) had a goal as the Siena Heights University women's soccer team opened its season with a 3-1 win (Sept. 5) over St. Xavier (Ill.) in the first round of the Tri-State (Ind.) University Classic.

Tobin set single-season record for the Saints as a freshman with 25 goals and 19 assists.

•Adrian College sophomore defensive back Kevin Biga (Livonia Franklin) had a 20-yard interception return in the Bulldogs' season opening (Sept. 5) Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Conference football win over Defiance (Ohio).

Biga's interception set up a 25-yard field goal with two seconds remaining in the first half.

The Bulldogs won the 1997 MIAA title and posted an 8-1 record. Biga lettered as a freshman, intercepting two passes and making five tackles.

Rutherford update

Rather than risk injury, the Clearwater Phillies of the Class A Florida State Baseball League has sideline pitcher Mark Rutherford (Livonia Churchill) for the final weeks of the season.

Rutherford posted an 8-5 record with 71 strikeouts in 119 innings. He allowed only 20 walks with an earned run average of 2.65, third best in the league.

Rutherford is a former All-MAC performer at Eastern Michigan University.

The Livonia Hawks, an under-13 girls soccer team, captured first place Labor Day weekend in the Dayco Invitational in Dayton, Ohio.

The Hawks, coached by John Buchanan, outscored their opponents 26-2 in five games, including a 4-0 win in the final.

Members of the Hawks, managed by Linda Cauzillo, include: Kyle LaPorte, Livonia; Jordan Falcusan, Plymouth; Marissa Sarkesian, Canton; Kathryn Cummings, Jenny Szymanski, Troy; Sabrina Must, Bloomfield Hills; Nicole Cauzillo, Whitney Guenther, Deanne Kubas, Northville; Erin Doan, Dearborn; Nikki Herman, Novi; Jill Kehler, Flint.

Spartans' late TDs stop Franklin

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS EDITOR

PREP FOOTBALL

After losing momentum at halftime and well into the third quarter, Livonia Stevenson seemed to be going in reverse.

But the host Spartan rallied for a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns to subdue pesky Livonia Franklin, 21-7.

Ryan Van Belle's 31-yard sideline strike to Phil Szumlanski with 7:03 remaining proved to be the difference.

Stevenson added an insurance TD on Waleed Haddad's 1-yard run with 1:04 to play.

"We were kind shell-shocked after the third quarter," Stevenson coach Tim Gabel said. "But the kids on the sideline made sure everybody stepped it up and we were able to bounce back quickly after they scored."

Van Belle, a senior, connected on 10 of 21 passes for 133 yards.

He also bounced back from last week's 19-7 loss to Dearborn when he was two for 11 with one interception.

"Ryan threw the ball well, and he's capable of throwing well," Gabel said. "The situation in the Dearborn game, where we ran only eight plays in the third quarter, dictated some of that. And in the red zone we missed some assignments."

The Spartans had 336 total yards to Franklin's 181.

Stevenson ran 37 first-half plays and enjoyed a 7-0 lead when Eric Puninske scored on a 4-yard run with 8:44 left in the second period.

And the Spartans were poised to take increase their advantage when Steve Bartlett recovered a fumble at the Franklin 28 with 1:47 to go.

His 21-yard attempt was blocked by Bryan Moore.

Sophomore linebacker Jesse Edmunds plucked the ball out of mid-air and the foot race was on to the end zone.

With the goal line in sight, Edmunds roared 80 yards, only to be tripped up at the Stevenson 12 by Mike Mocerri and Mike McClain.

"We didn't make mistakes, we made blunders," said Gabel, referring to the first-half turn of events. "That had a noticeable effect on the game."

With only three seconds left, the Patriots failed to capitalize as Dave Scicluna's 31-yard field goal attempt sailed wide.

"Running 37 plays at the half made me feel good, but after that huge breakdown and only leading 7-0 at the half, I didn't feel good," Gabel said. "But the Franklin coaching staff and kids deserve credit as well."

"It was like many Franklin-Stevenson games. They played really hard."

Franklin, given new life, controlled play in the third quarter, marching 76 yards on 12 plays, capped by sophomore quarterback Joe Ruggiero's 1-yard speak. Scicluna's extra point tied it at 7-7 with 6:30 left in the third quarter.

The score was set up by junior Jeff Job's 26-yard run. Job led all carriers with 91 yards in 22 attempts.

Meanwhile, Haddad and Jason Allen ran for 69 and 67 yards, respectively, to pace Stevenson.

Poor field position and a pair of costly penalties hurt Franklin on the next two series of downs.

Ruggiero, however, showed poise and a strong arm in his second varsity start.

Tractors plow past Wayne Memorial

STAFF WRITER

It was a gift that was earned.

Wayne Memorial practically handed Dearborn Fordson its two touchdowns Friday night but the Tractors definitely worked for their 14-0 victory.

It was the Michigan Mega Conference Red Division opener for both schools following season-starting non-conference wins by each.

"What hurt us the most was giving the ball up," coach Floyd Carter of the Zebras said. "But give Fordson credit."

"It's a typical Fordson team. They possessed the ball. And when they do that, we can't score."

"They came off the ball well and ran the ball hard."

Wayne had ground out a pair of first downs on its first possession of the first home night game in Fordson history when it coughed up the football and defensive end Belal Majed pounced on it as the Zebra 33.

Nine straight running plays by Munier Ali and Rendall Winston marched the ball to the six. On third down, quarterback Ali Dabaja rolled right and hit Mohamed Salamey with a touchdown pass.

Kassem Anani kicked the extra point and Fordson had a 7-0 lead with 13 seconds left in the first quarter. Wayne ran just nine offensive plays in the first period.

Late in the second quarter Ahmed Harajli recovered another Wayne fumble, this one on the Zebras' 19.

Six runs, including a fourth-down gain of three yards by Dabaja for a first down on the seven, put the ball on the one and Ali ran it over from there with a good second-effort lunge. Anani's kick made it 14-0 with 2:35 left in the half.

"When you give them the ball that deep, they're in four-down territory," Carter said. "Against a team like Fordson, you can't do that."

Wayne played without its best back, Cameron Mingo, whom Carter hopes to have back for Belleville this Friday. Giant lineman Steve Barber played only the second half "and both those things played a factor," the coach said.

"We did not execute well offensively," Carter said. "And we made blocking mistakes up front. We would stutter and not get any momentum. That hurt."

Winston ran the ball up the gut 31 times for the Tractors and gained 92 yards. Ali was 11-for-20 rushing while Majed not only contributed defensively, he also ran four times for 13 yards including a big 10-yard gain near the end of the third quarter which got Fordson beyond its own 20.

The two first downs Wayne got on its first possession were the most it got any time it had the ball.

Chargers left smarting in 0-0 divisional tie versus Patriots

PREP BOYS SOCCER

It was a 0-0 deadlock, but from Livonia Franklin's standpoint it was an upset win.

On Wednesday, the Patriots stunned visiting Livonia Churchill in a Western Division boys soccer match in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Churchill is 5-0-1 overall and 0-0-1 in the division, while Franklin is 2-5-2 and 0-0-1.

"It was an emotional game for us, the guys were pumped up," Franklin coach Dave Hebestreit said. "Our guys stepped up and played better than they have all year."

"And they followed the game plan to a 'T.' Franklin came out in a 4-5-1 attack with Ken Douglass and Ryan Kracht marking Churchill's top two scoring threats Mark Sicilia and George Kithas.

"Franklin took us out of our game," Churchill coach Chad Campau said. "We played kickball and didn't possess it at all."

Franklin took 13 shots with six on goal. The Patriots had three corner kicks and five fouls.

"Playing a 4-5-1 we didn't expect a lot of offensive pressure, but we got it," Hebestreit said. "It was end-to-end action."

Churchill had 10 shots, five on goal, with 17 fouls, two corner kicks and three yellow cards.

"Our guys lost their composure, it was inexcusable," Campau said. "Give Franklin credit. They worked us hard."

Steve Kleczynski was in goal for the Chargers, while Jeremy Bruckner was Franklin's keeper.

Hebestreit was impressed with his defense, particularly sweeper Bill Fischer.

One-on-one: Churchill's Tim Kaminski tries to elude Franklin's Ken Tamonis.

"He just played all out and was making all the tackles," Hebestreit said. "And John Nettles did a good job on Shaun Murray."

Ragland goes for 186 in Clarenceville win
Spearmon's 221 boosts Rockets

Good things are happening on Livonia Clarenceville's football field. Of course when Walter Ragland touches the ball, and if he touches it often enough, then good things are as likely as sunny September days.

Ragland touched the ball 16 times Friday night on running plays and twice ended up in the end zone to lead Clarenceville to a 28-0 victory over visiting Allen Park Cabrini.

Ragland's runs were from 26- and 10-yards out as he gained 186 yards in the game.

Freshman Tim Shaw ran 12 times for 96 yards and scored on a 15-yard run as the Trojans expanded a 6-0 halftime lead to 22-0 after three periods.

John Wallace scored the other Clarenceville touchdown from two yards out. Two of the team's touchdowns were on long drives.

Freshman Bill Nesbitt carried the ball four times and gained 35 yards while Wallace contributed an interception to the Clarenceville cause.

Clarenceville is now 2-0 while Cabrini lost for the second time.

JOHN GLENN 33, CANTON 7: The Reggie Spearmon show was more than Plymouth Canton could handle Friday.

Spearmon, a senior tailback, scored four touchdowns — three of them coming in the second quarter — to help bury the visiting Chiefs. Glenn improved to 2-0 overall; Canton is 0-2.

After a scoreless first quarter, Spearmon erupted for the Rockets in the second. He scored on runs of 15, 10 and 44 yards as Glenn built a 20-0 lead by halftime. Jeremy Catarino converted 3-of-5 point-after-touchdown kicks in the game for the Rockets.

Spearmon finished his assault on the Chiefs with an 89-yard dash to paydirt in the final period. For the game, Spearmon totaled 221 yards rushing on 11 attempts.

Glenn's final score came with 2:37 left in the game, and it was scored by Eric Jones on a 55-yard run. Jones carried the ball twice, gaining 86 yards.

Jones' TD came right after Canton had erased the zero on its side of the scoreboard. Emmanuel Etim plunged 2 yards for a score with 2:52 left, and Kirt McKee booted the extra point.

The Chiefs were paced by sophomore running back Jerry Gaines, who totaled 63 yards rushing on 16 tries.

SALEM 33, CHURCHILL 7: David Clemons and Gabe Coble scored two touchdowns apiece as host Plymouth Salem racked up 387 rushing yards Friday in its victory over Livonia Churchill.

The Rocks (1-1) led 33-0 before the Chargers (0-2) scored with 7:46 remaining in the game following an 82-yard kickoff return by Ryan Kearney.

Salem's Eric Peterson ran 5 yards for a first-quarter touchdown, and Jason Furr kicked the extra point.

Clemons had a 4-yard run scoring in the second quarter and Furr ran for the two points, giving the Rocks a 15-0 halftime lead.

Quarterback Coble had touchdown runs of 51 and 54 yards off the option in the third quarter to make the Salem lead 27-0.

Clemons broke loose for a 63-yard run early in the fourth quarter to complete the Salem scoring.

Following the kick return by Kearney, Churchill's John Bennett passed 10 yards to Eric Geddes for a touchdown.

Kearney, who returned two kickoffs for 120 yards and punted five times for an average of 43 yards, booted the PAT.

Clemons rushed 10 times for 137 yards, Coble eight for 127. The Rocks passed for 23 yards and had 410 in total offense.

LUTHERAN EAST 39, LUTHERAN WESTLAND 22: Neither half started out well for the Warriors.

The first points of the night came when Lutheran Westland was sacked in its own end zone for a safety.

The Warriors scored twice in the second quarter and trailed, 15-14, at halftime but the Eagles dented the Lutheran Westland end zone twice within two minutes of the third quarter and wound up with 18 unanswered points for a 33-14 lead.

Lutheran East was minus its top two quarterbacks, both serving suspensions, and thus stayed strictly on the ground (except for one incompletion).

The Eagles ran 27 times for 259 yards, capitalizing on big plays, while Lutheran Westland ran 50 times for 165 yards.

The Warriors' Josh Moldenhauer ran 20 times for 72 yards, including a 5-yard scoring run, while Scott Archer counted a 3-yard run among his 20 carries for 66 yards. Archer also had six tackles on defense.

Robert Quinnie scored on runs of 35- and 17-yards for the Eagles. Steven Lewis burst 39- and 61-yards for scores. Lewis gained 91 yards on only three rushes.

Dorian Crawford had a 16-yard TD run and Mike Hertel had a 1-yard run.

Gordie Engel threw a 15-yard scoring pass to Charlie Hoeft after Moldenhauer's score for Lutheran Westland in the second quarter.

Loose pigskin: Stevenson's Mike McClain (right) tries to make the catch as Franklin's Adam Sexton comes in for the hit.

"The passing game improved because we did a better job of picking up the blitz, but we still have a lot of work to do," Lee said. "We gave ourselves a chance to win, which is better than last week (a 19-0 loss to Lincoln Park). That's all you can ask. And we were playing within our scheme more this week."

Defensively, Dan West led the Spartan with three solo tackles, four assists and two sacks. Tackle Dominic Freda contributed four solos and three assists, while junior linebacker John Van Buren had five solos, one assist and a sack.

Franklin got standout defensive play from Edmunds, Billy Merrifield and Jason Craven.

"I'd go into the trenches with them — they're fighters, they dug down deep" Lee said. "Defensively we came up big when we needed it."

"But Stevenson is a fine ballclub, well coached. We had the momentum and had them on their heels, but we've got to get better with our concentration level. We're still young and inexperienced."

Kwame Hampton was the leading Zebra rusher with nine carries for 39 yards, 36 of it coming on one fourth-down burst off right tackle and around right end which put the ball on the Tractors' 38 late in the fourth quarter.

Wayne couldn't get any closer and an incomplete pass on fourth down gave Fordson the ball with 2:37 to play.

"Our defense as a whole played well," Carter said, "when you figure where we gave them the ball and where their field position was."

Scott Sheedy led Wayne with 14 tackles, Jeremy Overton had 12 and Terry Turner 10.

Quarterback Turner had a couple decent runs for the Zebras. He threw 10 times, completing three for 16 yards. He was intercepted once but it was at the end of the half.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

Warriors throttle East; Pioneer edges Blazers

Lutheran High Westland put to rest any doubt about the outcome in a 45-18 Metro Conference girls basketball win Thursday over visiting Harper Woods Lutheran East.

"Team defense for us was awesome," said coach Ron Gentz, whose team squared its record at 2-2 in its Metro opener.

Junior guard Anna Rolf and senior forward Anna Schwewe scored 10 points each for the Warriors.

Freshman guard Karen Abramczyk chipped in with seven.

Lutheran Westland held winless Lutheran East, 0-5 overall and 0-1 in the Metro, to eight points in the first half while scoring 18. It started the third quarter 13-0 and ended the period with a 19-2 margin.

•PIONEER 48, LADYWOOD 44: A difference in shooting percentages told the story Friday as visiting Ann Arbor Pioneer held on to defeat Livonia Ladywood.

The Pioneers made 18 of 42 field goals for 43 percent. The Blazers were 15-of-52 from the floor for 29 percent.

Erin Hayden and Michelle Harakas scored 12 points apiece to lead Ladywood (1-3). Carly Queen added eight points, and freshman center Liz Obrecht had six rebounds.

Angie Feleccia's nine points was tops for Pioneer (3-1), which led 25-17 at halftime and 31-30 after three quarters.

The Blazers took a 33-32 lead — their first since scoring the first basket of the game — early in the final period, but the Pioneers outscored them 17-14 over the full eight minutes.

•CHURCHILL 58, YPSILANTI 25: Kersten Conklin scored a game-high 20 points Tuesday to lead Livonia Churchill to the non-league road victory.

The Chargers (2-2) jumped out to a 17-5 lead after the first quarter and extended their advantage to 37-10 at halftime. Churchill received 13 points and 12 rebounds from Lauren Ruprecht and nine points from Stacey Sapanich.

Ypsilanti is winless in three games.

The Braves started the third quarter with the first 13 points.

•W.L. CENTRAL 61, JOHN GLENN 33: The Vikings cleaned the glass and cleaned the Rockets' clocks in the Western Lakes Activities Association Lakes Division opener for each team.

"They're a very big and physical team," Coach Joel Lloyd of visiting Westland John Glenn said. "Michelle Bortz, Leah Douglas and Becca Saldana all start and they're all over 6-feet."

"We knew it was going to be a war on the glass. They just did a tremendous job on rebounds."

Seniors Bortz and Douglas led Walled Lake Central with 22 and 20 points, respectively.

Freshman guard Stephanie Crews led the Rockets, 3-2 overall and 0-1 in the Lakes Division, with 14 points while junior forward Nicole Panyard scored six points.

Walled Lake got off to an 18-7 start in the first quarter but John Glenn shaved two points off that lead to trail, 29-20, at the half. However the Vikings came out and held the Rockets to just two points in the third quarter to put the game away.

•RIVERVIEW 60, WAYNE 40: Jen Thurman, a junior guard, had 16 points and grabbed seven rebounds Thursday to lift the host Pirates (2-1) past Wayne Memorial (1-3) in a non-leaguer.

Danielle Kowalski contributed 10 points and added seven rebounds for the winners.

Sarah Moore and Laneetra Austin each scored nine points for Wayne with nine points. Tonya Crawford added eight points and 13 rebounds.

"It was another game we could have won," said Wayne coach Matt Godfrey, whose team trailed 25-24, but led 33-30 after three quarters.

Riverview's Kelly Baillentine hit eight-of-eight free throws in the decisive fourth quarter.

•MACOMB CHRISTIAN 41, HURON VALLEY 33: Warren Macomb Christian finished with a 9-0 run Thursday to win the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference crossover game against visiting Huron Valley Lutheran.

Patty Wiegand, Jenny Wiegand and Sue Goltz each scored nine points for the victorious Crusaders, now 2-2 overall.

Huron Valley got 11 points from Rachel Zahn and nine from Jessie Cherundolo.

The Hawks (0-3) trailed 18-7 after one quarter, but whittled the deficit and eventually led 33-32 in the final quarter, only to have Macomb score nine unanswered points.

•PLYMOUTH CHRISTIAN 47, CLARENCEVILLE 5: On Friday, host Plymouth Christian Academy, led by senior center Jenny Sutherland's game-high 16 points, drilled Livonia Clarenceville (0-3).

Senior guard Carrie McCoy added eight points, while junior forward Karen Moran added seven steals and four points.

Danielle Sledz had all five points for the Trojans.

year, 3-1. "Playing back-to-back didn't have any effect," Campau said. "We hope to learn from this. We can't let our emotions run the game. We have to play with more composure."

"But we still have a chance to win our division."

•STEVENSON 7, N. FARMINGTON 2: Seven different players scored Wednesday as Livonia Stevenson (4-1, 1-0) opened Lakes Division play in the WLAA with a win at North Farmington.

Nick Zibron had one goal and two assists, while Tony Maldonado and Mike White each contributed a goal and one assist.

Nick Soper (game-winner), Jon Mathis, Matt Freeborn and Martin Kennedy also scored for the Spartans. Jeff Budd and Tom Eller also drew assists.

Craig Hearn and Justin Street scored in the second half for the Raiders.

"The last few games we had been missing our finishing touch, but tonight we put the balls on target and we got some quality crosses," said Stevenson coach Lars Richters, whose team led 2-0 at intermission. "We were more dangerous on goal."

"But we need to tighten things up defensively."

Junior midfielder Matt Trussler tallied the game-winner with 13 minutes to go from senior captain John Sterling.

•JOHN GLENN 1, W.L. CENTRAL 1: In a WLAA-Lakes Division opener Wednesday, host Walled Lake Central earned the tie with 10 minutes remaining, leaving Westland John Glenn with a 2-1-1 overall record.

Goalkeeper Justin Ballard made five saves.

"We just couldn't finish," Glenn coach Jerry Poniatowski said.

The Glenn coach singled out the efforts of sophomore midfielder Jeff Ruppel, senior midfielder Kevin Derwich and John Sterling, a senior forward.

•LUTHERAN WESTLAND 7, LUTHERAN EAST 0: Freshman Jeff Broge had a hat trick Thursday as host Lutheran High Westland (3-1, 1-0) opened Metro Conference play by blanking Harper Woods Lutheran East (2-3, 0-1).

Sophomore Derek Bias added a goal and two assists, while freshman Don Murdock and senior co-captains Adam Voigt and Clint Gowen each contributed a goal.

Sophomores Ernie Fackler and Brian Woehike drew assists, along with senior defender Brian Rose and junior defender Ryan Noel.

Senior stopper Mike Randall, who missed the previous two games with a foot injury, was back in the lineup.

Goalkeepers junior Andy Glieman (first half) and sophomore Brad Nollar (two saves) combined on the shutout.

•WAYNE 2, GROSSE ILE 1: Nick Warmolts and Kingsley Matthew scored second-half goals Friday as host Wayne Memorial (1-3) earned its first win of the year at the expense of the Red Devils.

On Wednesday, Andy Timmer had the lone goal as Wayne dropped a Mega-Blue encounter to host Gibraltar Carlson, 5-1.

•LIGGETT 11, CLARENCEVILLE 0: Host Liggett jumped out to a 5-0 halftime lead Wednesday and cruised to the victory.

The Trojans are 0-3 overall and 0-1 in the Metro.

Vert, Cunningham spark Madonna past Hillsdale

Rayna Vert and Erin Cunningham combined for 23 kills Thursday to lead Madonna University's women's volleyball team to its 10th victory in 11 tries.

Vert had 12 kills and Cunningham 11 as Madonna defeated visiting Hillsdale (3-7), 15-12, 6-15, 15-6, 15-0.

Deanne Helsom had 35 assists and three service aces. Vert had seven digs, two blocks and five block-assists. Nicole Burns had seven assists on blocks and Brandy Malewski eight, in addition to six solo blocks.

Malewski also had eight kills and Stephanie Ubalde had seven.

VOLLEYBALL

MaryLu Hemme served a pair of aces.

On Tuesday, Madonna blitzed Tri-State (Ind.) in straight sets, 15-3, 15-13, 15-10.

The Crusaders hosted the Madonna University Invitational during the weekend.

Lady Ocelots win in 4

Schoolcraft's women's volleyball team trimmed Macomb CC, 15-11, 8-15, 15-13, 15-11, to improve its record to 4-5.

Coach Tom Teeters' team got 26 kills from Megan McGinty and 11 from Kelly Johnston. McGinty had a 25 percent success rate, best on the team.

McGinty also led her team with three blocks and service reception accuracy, taking 41 of 42 successfully. Johnston received 46 serves with only three miscues.

Melissa Plave served three aces in the matches and Johnston recorded 29 digs.

Pickering wins Westland softball playoffs

Prudential Pickering Real Estate battled its way out of the loser's bracket to win the City of Westland Parks and Recreation men's slowpitch softball championship.

Prudential Pickering, made up of several Westland John Glenn High and Westland Federation summer baseball standouts, captured seven straight games capped by an 18-12 win over Scores in the tournament final Sept. 3 at Central City Park.

Chuck Hammonree clubbed a 3-run homer in the final, while Jeff Dundas and Mike Hammonree each added three RBI. Clint Straub contributed six RBI.

Pitcher Chris Merandi won all seven games for Prudential Pickering.

Beaver Creek knocked Prudential Pickering into the loser's bracket with a first-round 16-6 victory.

The comeback started Sept. 2 at Jaycee Park when Prudential Pickering defeated Reiser's 18-10, and the Rockies, 22-11.

Moving back to Central City Park, Prudential Pickering took its third straight with a 22-17 win over Mr. Pizza.

On Sept. 3, Boss Construction (17-11), undefeated Scores (18-16) and nemesis Beaver Creek (26-13 on a mercy rule) all fell victim to Prudential Pickering.

Other members of Prudential Pickering, which qualified for a national tournament later this month in Indianapolis, include: Gary Stersic, Norm Bunch, Amado Varona, Tony Berardo, Tim Metcalf and mascot Sherry Berry.

Jimmie's Softball Club 4th

Jimmie's Softball Club took fourth place out of 57 teams in the U.S. Slowpitch Softball Association Class A World Series over Labor Day weekend in Shawnee, Kan.

Three Michigan teams finished in the top five.

Third baseman Mark Machulak (Redford), who hit .708 with six homers and 17 RBI, and center fielder Johnnie Simpson, who batted .704 with four homers and 14 RBI, were both named to the all-tournament team.

Jimmie's, also sponsored by Varsity Athletics, Que Sports and Easton, opened tournament play with a 36-23 win over Supreme/Worth of St. Louis, Mo. as Simpson went 4-for-6 with six RBI. Others contributing offensively included Scott Nastally (Westland), 4-for-5 with five RBI; John Sampson (Westland), 3-for-4 with four RBI; outfielder Brian Donehue (Westland), 4-for-6 with two RBI; and Scott Janack, 3-for-5 with five RBI.

Scott Hille (Livonia) homered in all four trips and knocked in eight runs, while Jason Riggs went 3-for-4 with an RBI in a 21-5 (mercy rule) victory over T's 13 of Omaha, Neb.

Matchulak had four hits and five RBI, while middle infielder John Recker added four RBI as Jimmie's beat Aftershock of Fairfield, Calif., 21-10.

Oakland Plumbing of Warren, beaten twice during the season by Jimmie's, pulled off a 31-16 triumph despite Tom Lengyel going 4-for-4 with three RBI.

In the fifth game, Jimmie's knocked off the Taylor team of Prestige, Calvert Construction and Northwest Pipe, 23-13, as Simpson went 5-for-5.

Jimmie's won the season series against Calvert, 5-2.

The run ended for Jimmie's in Game No. 6 as Sunnysvale, Calif. Valve and Fitting scored a 26-17 triumph.

Stevenson rules WLAA girls swimming

The high school girls swim season officially opened Thursday for everyone in the Western Lakes Activities Association with the annual WLAA Conference Relays meet, and guess what?

Livonia Stevenson finished first.

Big deal. Trying to figure the last time the Spartans didn't win either the season-opening relays meet or the season-ending (for most WLAA teams, anyway) WLAA championship meet might be more difficult. That's how dominant they've been.

On Thursday, their margin of victory was somewhat slimmer than last year's. But if the final standings in the relays meet are any indication, there's not going to be too much shuffling among the league's top teams.

Stevenson totaled 249 points, with North Farmington moving past host Plymouth Salem to finish second with 219 points. Salem was third (212) and Plymouth Canton was fourth (206).

In 1997, the top four spots went to Stevenson (275), Salem (227), Canton (199) and North (195).

(they had six in '97). They also finished second three times and third once; they were disqualified in the 200 backstroke relay. North won twice, Walled Lake won twice and Salem won once.

Lindsay Dolin, Colleen Bosman, Katie Clark and Meghan Lesnau combined to get Stevenson started well, winning the meet-opening 400-yard medley relay (4:17.04). Julie Kern, Jessica Makowski, Amanda Polkowski and Meghan Mocerri teamed for a first for Stevenson in the meet's second event, the 400 freestyle relay (3:49.85).

The Spartans also finished first in the 200 butterfly relay, with Clark, Paula Smith, Emily Yambasky and Emily Sondergaard (1:57.73); the 500 freestyle crescendo relay, with Abbey Larson, Meghan Lesnau, Meghan Mocerri and Kern (4:50.76); and the 200 medley relay, with Emily Irvine, Marti McKenzie, Makowski and Polkowski (1:59.53).

North got wins in the 200 breaststroke relay, with Lindsay McErlean, Randi Taur, Jennifer Bendick and Neva Alver (2:14.87), and in the 400 individual medley relay, with Lauren Turner, Melissa Navas, McErlean and Alver (4:25.74). Walled Lake's firsts came in the one-meter diving (390.15 points), and in the 200 free relay, (1:42.86).

Salem's only triumph came in the 200 backstroke relay; from Stephanie Tyler, Rachel Maurer, Jenny Foess and Kari Foust (2:04.31).

You're thinking...

- a) Why is he so happy? I never liked asking for permission.
- b) I still don't.
- c) Is there a healthcare company out there that'll let me see a specialist —without asking for permission?

At HAP, we've partnered with Henry Ford Medical Centers to create a breakthrough new program called SelfDirect. SelfDirect gives people the freedom to refer themselves to most specialists. So, when you need to see a specialist, you can. It's as simple as that. SelfDirect is an idea that's the first of its kind in Michigan. And now, it's available to HMO members who use Henry Ford Medical Centers.

Farmington woman best in U.S. class

BY DAN O'MEARA
 STAFF WRITER

It didn't take long for Caroline Gregory to achieve major success after taking up the sport of rowing just a year ago.

The 19-year-old Farmington Hills woman earned a gold medal this summer while competing for the Wyandotte Boat Club in the U.S. Rowing Club National Championships.

Gregory, a University of Michigan sophomore, was a member of the first-place lightweight intermediate eight crew July 30-Aug. 2 in Syracuse, N.Y.

"It was exciting because it was the first real medal I won in the sport," Gregory said, adding her crew won by 10 seconds or 1 1/2 boat lengths in open water.

In the lightweight class, the average weight of the rowers must be 125 pounds or lower, and no individual can weigh more than 130.

"I think I make a strong lightweight because most lightweights are shorter," she said. "I'm 5-10 1/2 and that's above average, it seems. I was the tallest girl in my boat at Wyandotte."

ROWING

Gregory, who manned the No. 2 position in her boat or second from the bow, teammates ranged in age from 16 to 32 and included a University of Virginia student, two women from England and four Wyandotte residents.

She joined the Wyandotte Boat Club to improve as a rower after making the U-M last year when the sport was raised to varsity status; Gregory was among 200 women who tried out for the team and one of 40 to survive the cuts.

"Rowing has, within one year, become a huge part of my life," Gregory said. "I've fallen in love with the sport, which is still very new to me."

There's still plenty of room for improvement, she added.

"I think I've adapted to it, but I haven't conquered it," Gregory said. "I'm no where even close, technically and strength wise."

"At Michigan they don't have a lightweight team, so I'm competing open weight. I'd compare it to a 130-pound wrestler going against a 180-pounder; so that makes it a lot harder.

"At the collegiate level, it's much more competitive than rowing at Wyandotte. To win a national championship would be a lot more prestigious than rowing at the club level."

To keep pace with her competition at U-M and to get better, Gregory followed a rigorous training schedule this summer at Wyandotte.

She was on the road early every morning, Monday through Saturday, driving to Wyandotte for practice on the Detroit River from 5 to 8 a.m.

Then it was off to her summer job with Kelly Services. She worked out again later in the day, weight training and running.

"All I did all summer was row and work," Gregory said.

The summer season ended with the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta in St. Catharines, Ontario. Gregory's eight-women crew finished fourth in its heat and didn't make it to the finals, but the four-person boat was third overall.

Gregory, who is majoring in organizational studies with a concentration in marketing, will begin preparing for the collegiate fall season, which starts in three weeks. The team trains with weights and rowing machines in the winter, and the spring season with its 2,000-meter races begins in March. U-M's home course for practices and races is Belleville Lake.

Gregory, who was a competitive swimmer for 14 years for North Farmington High School, Kendallwood Swim Club and Michigan Stingrays, is continuing a family tradition of competing with boats.

Her brother, Matt, is a U-M senior and member of its sailing team, and her father, Charles, has competed in the Port Huron-to-Mackinac yacht race.

"People wonder why I'm not a sailor," she said. "(Matt) actually is the one who introduced me to rowing and some of the girls on the team. It was a new varsity sport, so they were really recruiting around campus."

"We've always had a boat and my brother kinda went with sailing but I never caught on to it."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

WOMEN'S SUBURBAN GOLF

Northville's Carolyn Benninger shot an 81 to win first flight low gross honors in the Women's Suburban Golf Association stop Friday at Pierce Lake Golf Course.

Joey Kruthoff (Novi) and Pat Meyers (Birmingham) tied for second with 85 each.

Mary Allen (Wayne) and Diane Wazney (Dearborn) tied at 67 each for low net honors. Dolly Vettese (Northville) was runner-up with a 71.

Jan Nelson (Canton) won low gross second flight with a 91, five shots ahead of Penny Irwin (Westland).

Dorothy Cody (Farmington Hills) captured low net with a 68, while Mary Ann Kraft (Dearborn Heights) finished second with a 72.

SPORTS POWER BREAKFAST

Business leaders and sports figures will join forces in support of education in Madonna University's Sports Celebrity Power Breakfast for Annual Fund will be 7:30-9 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 24, in the residence hall dining room.

As an added attraction, the Stanley Cup will be available for viewing. Seating is limited. Companies wishing to contribute to the annual fund are invited to participate in the complimentary breakfast.

Former Detroit Tigers Bill Freehan, Jim Northrup and Jason Thompson, along with former Red Wing hockey great and hall of famer Ted Lindsay, assistant Eastern Michigan basketball coach Todd Lickliter, former Pistons coach and hall of famer Ray Scott and Detroit Tigers mascot "Paws" will be among the celebrity guests.

For more information call (734) 432-5421.

RUN WILD AT THE ZOO

The Second Annual Run Wild will take place Sunday, Sept. 20, at the Detroit Zoo for the benefit of the zoo's veterinary hospital.

Proceeds from the event, which features a 5K run and a one-mile, non-competitive walk, will fund the purchase of veterinary equipment and maintenance for the hospital and training for the hospital staff.

The hospital's veterinary staff provides services for the zoo's 1,250 animals. Run Wild is hosted by the Detroit Zoological Society and the Southeastern Michigan Veterinary Medical Association.

The K run takes place on a flat course (wheelchair accessible) circling the outside of the zoo and through the surrounding Huntington Woods neighborhood. The one-mile walk is through the zoo.

The run begins at 9 a.m. and the walk at 9:10 a.m. Aerobics instructors will lead participants in a pre-race warmup beginning at 8:20 a.m. in the zoo's south parking lot.

Individual registration fees for the run are $15 before Sept. 12, $17 through Sept. 18 and $20 on race day; family/group (three or more) rates are $12, $14 and $20, respectively.

Individual fees for the walk are $10, $12 and $15; family/group fees are $8, $10 and $15.

Race-day registration begins at 7 a.m. Only applicants whose entry forms are received on or before Sept. 12 will receive their race packets by mail. To obtain registration forms and information call (248) 541-5717.

The entrance gates to the Detroit Zoo will close at 8:55 a.m. the morning of the race. No vehicles will be allowed to enter or leave until the last runner has crossed the finish line.

CLARIFICATION

The Sunday, Sept. 6 Livonia Observer should have listed Stevenson's Leslie Knapp, Katie Sherron and freshman Sarah Kearfott as the fourth, fifth and sixth-place finishers, respectively, in the Livonia Public Schools girls cross country meet held at Cass Benton Park.

Laich gives back to community

If only everyone cared about the welfare of our youth as much as Bob Laich cares.

If only everyone cared about the welfare of our outdoor heritage as much as Bob Laich cares.

The Westland resident and father of two grown children has combined his love for the outdoors with his concern for children and the negative influences they face in today's society to come up with a marvelous program aimed at introducing children to the sport of deer hunting and wild game management.

"I had this idea about two years ago to let kids, who otherwise might not have the opportunity, get a chance to go deer hunting," said Laich, a past president of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs. "So many kids today come from split families, for whatever reason. Many times these children started out learning about the outdoors, but then the opportunity left them. This program will give that opportunity back."

Youth Hunting Day is a combined effort of MUCC and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. Although some of the details are still being hammered out, the plan is to have this special program ready to roll for the 1999 deer hunting season.

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

The program will be open to a limited number of youths between the ages of 12-14 who come from single-parent homes.

Each child will have his/her own special mentor and will be required to complete a DNR Hunter Safety Certification Program and the International Bowhunter Education Program.

Kids will be taught safety, map and compass reading, wilderness survival skills, simple first aid, game management, hunting ethics, conservation, shooting skills, hunting skills and much more before ever stepping foot in the field.

At the end of the program the kids will be able to participate in two separate weekend deer hunts at Maybury State Park. The park is traditionally closed to hunting, but the plan is to open the park for these special hunts only to help thin an abundant deer population in the park.

"So far everyone has been great and very supportive," Laich said. "There's a group called 'Friends of Maybury,' and I wasn't sure how well they'd like the idea of opening the park to hunting, but when they heard about the kids (program) they said 'OK' and wished them good luck."

"There are so many deer out there and they're eating everything. This will benefit the park, too." Laich said the first year will be sort of a pilot program and if everything goes well he already has the blessing of the DNR to possibly expand the program.

"(DNR) Director Kool told me that if everything comes off well we could do this across the state," Laich said.

Mentors are needed and will begin training after Jan. 1 so the program can be initiated in time for next fall.

If you're interested in assisting with this invaluable program and becoming a mentor contact Dennis Knapp at MUCC by calling (800) 777-6720.

"I grew up in the country (near Ford and Wayne roads) and maybe that's why this is so important to me," Laich added. "There is so much a kid can learn out in nature.

"There's so much out there to enjoy and it's a shame to not even have an opportunity. I just hope they get as much enjoyment out of the outdoors as I have."

(Anglers and hunters are urged to report your success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to: Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Fax information to (248) 644-1314, send e-mail to bparker@oe.homecomm.net or call Bill Parker evenings at (248) 901-2573.)

Nature's discoveries, identifications of deformed frogs denote changes

Working at a nature center often results in some interesting discoveries and observations.

People often bring in their specimens for identification, or ask why something is doing what it's doing. It's a challenge that keeps a naturalist on their toes.

Snake identification is very popular. In most cases they want to know if the snake is poisonous. Most of the time its not poisonous.

In fall leaves are frequently brought in for identification as students work to complete their leaf collection.

But sometimes the unusual comes in.

Recently someone brought in a six-legged green frog to the Erie Marsh Metro Park near Rockwood. It was collected on Grosse Ile.

I've read about deformed frogs, but this was the first time I had ever seen one. Except for four back legs it looked normal.

This is not the first deformed frog for southeastern Michigan.

TIM NOWICKI

In April of this year four leopard frogs were found deformed and in June a green frog was found with one extra hind limb.

One of the first things that came to mind is, what causes such malformations?

A definitive answer is yet to come, but scientists have some ideas they are working on.

First, it should be noted that deformed frogs are not new to science. Collectors from the early 1900's reported the occasional unusual frog or salamander.

But what is happening in some areas of the country is that the rate of occurrence is increased remarkably.

In Minnesota, David M. Hoppe at the University of Minnesota said he handled thousands of frogs between 1975 and 1995 and saw only two with minor limb defects.

But in 1996 he saw over 200 deformities in six different species of frogs. Fifty percent of the mink frog population in one area had abnormalities such as extra limbs, fusion of upper and lower legs and missing eyes.

Scientists have postulated three reasons for these deformities.

One is the increased incidence of ultraviolet light reaching the earth due to the thinning of the ozone layer.

of chemicals like pesticides and herbicides.

The last hypothesis is the presence of trematodes, a parasitic worm that invades the body of a developing tadpole and causes damage to the differentiating area or limb.

Scientists have tried to duplicate this condition in the laboratory but have been unsuccessful in producing deformed adults.

Some scientists are not alarmed by these unusual frogs, while others feel it is a symptom of the well documented decline in amphibian populations around the world.

Web sites on the internet have been established to allow people from around the U.S. to report normal and abnormal amphibians they find.

These findings will be used by scientists to determine patterns in the incidence of deformed animals.

Thanks to the internet this kind of reporting is possible.

This unusual six legged frog is on display at the nature center in Erie Marsh Metro Park.

A good time to view this unusual specimen would be Sept. 19-20 at the Hawk Fest.

Lots of activities focused around the migration of hawks, mostly broad-winged hawks, moving south along the shoreline.

There will be fun for the whole family.

Baseball, bowling rooted in St. Louis; Local TV shows return

When Mark McGwire broke the home run record Tuesday night he did a big favor for bowling.

If you look for similarities between baseball and bowling, there are a few, the distance from the pitching rubber to home plate is the same distance between bowling's foul line and the headpin.

The Bowling Hall of Fame, which is located in St. Louis shares the same building with the Cardinals for their Hall of Fame and museum.

Now that visitors will be more attracted to the Cardinals site, they will also be right there to go in and see bowling's national Hall of Fame on display as well.

TEN-PIN ALLEY

Bowling and baseball have also shared in the same sort of debate, now that there are so many more home runs being hit, does it cheapen the home run or enhance the game?

At least five players will top 50 this season.

The same question comes up in bowling with so many more 300 games and 800 series than ever before.

here is no question that the baseballs have been made more lively, and the same could be said for all the new high performance bowling balls that are now so popular.

Has the value of a 300 game become diluted?

Bowling shows are coming back to local TV.

It has all come about as a result of the newly formed CNTV, a marketing merger between Comcast, Media One, T.C.I. and Time Warner.

Combined, they cover 500,000 homes in the Detroit market.

If you remember the highly popular Bowling for Dollars with Bob Allison on Channel 4 many years ago or perhaps Beat the Champ with Chuck Walby in the '70s, these new shows will fill that void we have had for many years.

CNTV has agreed to a 6-7 p.m. daily time slot five days per week for bowling.

According to Gary Aldinger of Thunderbowl Lanes, the new show is Bowling for Bucks and anyone can enter simply by purchasing an entry at his or her local participating bowling establishment.

The bowling center will turn in all entries and a random drawing will be held to determine the contestants.

Those selected will then have a round of (handicapped) qualifying which will also be taped for daily viewing on CNTV. The 20 or 25 top qualifiers will then get to bowl for the bucks in a strike or bust format (so many bucks per pin). And if the result is a strike, the contestant gets another shot if a second ball is a strike, they then get the third and bigger chance at $250 cash, along with a Bowling For Bucks jacket and a dinner for two at a popular restaurant.

There will be a local sports celebrity (TBA) to host each show.

It should be interesting for it will be a chance for bowlers at all skill levels to compete and win some bucks on TV.

For more information, call

Gary Aldinger at (313) 381-2266.

The one hour time slot will be shared with another local show, more on that in the next edition of Ten Pin Alley.

Hollywood Hogan has gone bowling. Not only the Hulkster, but Macho Man, Diamond Dallas Page, Sting, Bret Hart and Kevin Nash are promoting the new Bowling WCW Leagues.

Check with your local bowling center to see if they are participating in this program sponsored by WWV and NOW wrestling.

Those who enter will receive numerous merchandise packages including a collectors series bowling ball in 6-8-10-12-14-15 or 16 pounds, along with a Henley style shirt with your favorite wrestler's name and logo embroidered and a matching cap.

These leagues are starting now, so it's time to sign up.

If your preference in NASCAR racing to wrestling, this league's for you.

Join one of the many NASCAR leagues and receive your choice in merchandise including driver uniform jackets, bowling shirt, cap, towel and watch.

Another choice is the collectors edition NASCAR bowling ball, which is for display purposes only.

The ball has a replica racing car encased in clear plastic. You can choose merchandise of your favorite driver including Jeff Gordon, Dale Jarrett, Mark Martin, Dale Earnhardt Rusty Wallace and more.

This promotional league also coincides with the 50th year of NASCAR.

See your local participating bowling center for more details and entry forms.
