New board president sets goals for library

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Newly chosen Westland Library Board President Daniel Bourdeau cited a Norwaynebased satellite facility, long-range planning and improved public relations as goals he hopes to Bourdeau, a two-year board member, was chosen Wednesday to replace trustee Michael Rintz as president.

Certainly I would like to see expansion, and one of the opportunities would be a possible library branch at the Dorsey Center," Bourdeau said, one day after he rose to the board's top spot.

Mayor William Wild also has indicated support for a possible library center inside the Dorsey Community Center, located south of Palmer and east of Venoy. Officials have said the facility could bring books, computers and other materials closer to home for Norwayne residents, particularly children.

Among Bourdeau's other goals: Develop a written, multiyear plan for the library "so that we have a guiding document to move us forward."

■ Improve public relations and advertising to let the public know about services, such as wireless Internet access, that the library offers.

Bourdeau was chosen by his library board colleagues to serve a one-year term as president. Other elected officers include Vice President/ Secretary Jim Bloom and Treasurer Duane Moody.

Rintz has remained as a trustee, but another trustee, Mark Welch, has announced he will leave the board. The mayor said Thursday he will recommend that the city council approve new trustee Leslie Bell for a five-year term.

Said Bourdeau, "I personally thank Mr. Welch for his volunteerism by serving on the board and bringing to it an invaluable professional opinion and viewpoint."

Bourdeau, Welch, Rintz and Moody were involved in hiring the newest library director, Cheryl Napsha.

Bourdeau described himself as "absolutely" pleased to be chosen as president.

"I think it's an opportunity to move forward in a positive manner," he said.

Glenn mentors look to 'KO' freshman fears

BY SUE MASON STAFF WRITER

Aaron Jackson remembers very well his first day at a new school.

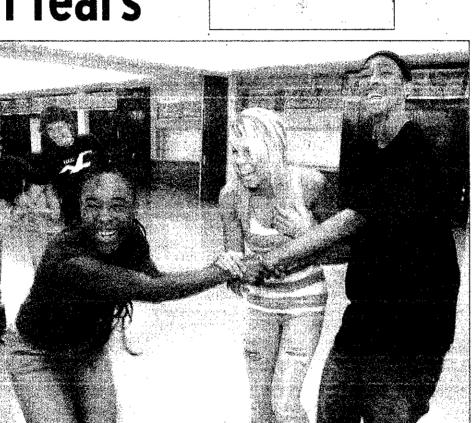

"I didn't have a seat at lunch, so, I found an empty table and sat down," said the John Glenn High School

That memory was enough to make him be the first to jump up and commit himself to a new Wayne-Westland Community Schools program designed to help incoming freshman make the transition from middle school to high

Jackson is one of 89 juniors and seniors who went back in school just days after the end of the school year to learn how to help incoming ninthgraders navigate through the initial awkwardness of being in an unfamiliar building and the social challenges of high school life.

"When we open in the fall, we'll have 560 freshman who may or may not be comfortable with school, you can see how this will help," said ninth-grade coordinator

Judge orders trial in Internet sex case

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A 54-year-old Westland man has been ordered to stand trial for charges he used the Internet to solicit sex with an underage girl and send sexually explicit images

Craig William Randles could face prison if he's convicted in Wayne County Circuit Court of charges that arose in early June, when authorities arrested him and confiscated his home com-

He faces trial after he gave up his right Wednesday to a preliminary hearing in front of Westland 18th District Judge Sandra Ference Cicirelli, according to a court clerk. For now, Randles is free after posting a $25,000 surety bond.

Randles was arrested June 5 by authorities from an Internet predator unit of the Michigan Attorney General's office. He was arraigned that same day on four counts of using the Internet to communicate with a minor for immoral purposes — a 10-year felony

- and on two counts of using the Internet to disseminate sexually explicit information to a minor, punishable by up to four years in prison. A not-guilty plea has been entered in Randles' court file. He has been ordered not to have any contact with a minor and not to use computers.

Matt Frendewey of the Attorney General's office has accused Randles of chatting online for several months with an undercover officer posing as a 14-year-old girl.

"Over time, the discussion turned sexual in nature to where he was using a Web camera to send sexually explicit images," Frendewey said in June.

He also warned parents to be vigilant of where their children go on the Internet, saying "it's important to know what your kids are doing and to monitor them."

Randles' arrest brought to 136 the number of individuals arrested by the Internet predator unit.

Q: Why are you the best mayoral candidate to lead the city of Westland forward? A: The timing is right. After working for the same employer at Metro Airport for 30 years, I can freeze time I have vested and focus my attention and energy on the city. With my daughter graduating soon from Oakland University, it sets a good example to show her it is important to get involved in community. I will work hard to make this a safe and enjoyable place. I will work to develop new business and keep current business owners involved. I want to give back to the city that provided a welcoming neighborhood for my family for 47 years. Q: Describe your style of leadership.

A: I am a very focused individual with the energy to handle heavy workloads. I am able to work with others in a positive way, to help motivate key players to work efficiently. I

I believe a good leader is not afraid to do any job that needs to be done and will not pass the buck, but will get the job done to my high standards. Q: Given Michigan's economic crisis, budget surplus in Westland and to protect city services? A: We need to focus on work provided by city workers and outside contractors. Work should be done in a timely manner and correctly the first time. We need to work closely with surrounding cities to eliminate contractors who do substandard work. We need to maintain our equipment so that it can get work done more efficiently and last as long as possible. The cost of certain equipment can cost the taxpayers significant money. Safety issues are also of concern. We need to stay on top of safety to prevent injury to workers and citizens, which affects rising health care costs. Q: What can be done to attract more homebuyers and businesses. to Westland considering Michigan's economic climate? A: We need to address the schools to assure that the quality of education does not? decline and to provide a safe environment.

These things are important in attracting new enrollees. If we can succeed in bringing new residents to the city, new business will follow. We can continue to showcase local business on the Westland cable channel and start a recognition program on cableby interviewing local business

Q: Given Michigan's economic crisis, what would you do to maintain a budget surplus in Westland and to protect city services?

A: Given Michigan's economic crisis, I would do several things to maintain a budget surplus in Westland and to protect city services. I would monitor the city's budget

Editor's note: These are several in a series of candidate profiles and answers to an Observer questionnaire by the 11 council candidates in the Aug 7 primary. The top eight vote-getters will advance to the Nov. 6 election, when four seats will be filled.

and curtail all unnecessary spending.

I would also encourage the city to seek all available grant money. Equally important, I would work with neighboring communities to share expenses and/or purchases where possible.

Q: What can be done to attract more homebuyers and businesses to Westland, considering Michigan's economic climate?

A: Attracting new homebuyers and businesses can be done by promoting what the city has to offer families and businesses. Westland has many neighborhood parks, plenty of shopping, a great library and good schools. I would highlight that Westland is a good place for new businesses as evidenced by the new successful businesses that have come to Westland recently.

I would encourage new businesses to look at the DDA corridor and seek what the DDA has to offer. I would work with administration to make sure it is easy for new home buyers and businesses to get the necessary permits.

Q: Cite three of the top priorities that you believe should be addressed by the City Council.

A: Three top priorities of mine are the budget, the issue of recycling and the reopening of Central City Park. Continued cuts in state-shared revenues to the city and other decreases in city revenue will require fiscal responsibility and belttightening well into the future.

Recycling will need to be addressed. The city needs to determine what cost-effective types of recycling are available.

Residents want Central City Park reopened as soon as possible. The areas of the park that need to be remediated must be remediated so that those areas are safe for our residents.

Q: Why should voters choose you over other candidates to fill one of four council seats at stake in this year's election?

A: Voters should choose me because as an educator, I possess the characteristics that allow me to listen to the needs of our community. I will be accessible to Westland residents and will work diligently to address the issues raised seeking new and various ways of helping. I will always stand strong on issues regarding services for our citizens.

I intend to help Westland continue to move forward in a positive way by encouraging businesses to come to our community, creating jobs for our citizens.

Bulson: Prioritizing maintains services

Gary L. Bulson II, 38, is the owner/manager for Men on the Move. He is married and has two children. He is a high school graduate. He is currently on boards for Advisory Council. He has formerly been involved with groups such as the Westland Festival and Westland Business Owners Association. He served as Westland Jaycees president and on the Michigan Jaycees as government involvement program manager.

A: Fortunately, the financial status of our city is very healthy. Whether Westland has stable budget or financial crises, it is the responsibility of community leadership to be frugal with taxpayer money. If a crisis is foreseen, it would be important to scrutinize and prioritize our existing programming and if need be, eliminate programs temporarily, if they are not a necessity. This will allow the city to maintain essential city services.

Q: What can be done to attract more homebuyers and businesses to Westland, considering Michigan's economic climate?

A: Finding unique businesses not represented in our city is a great place to start. Our demographics make us an ideal location for many businesses whether service or manufacturing. I would invite them to a chamber meeting to show how well we support and promote each other as business people.

The chamber and other nonprofits would be great partners to promote our city to businesses and potential homebuyers. We need to highlight all of the programs that we have and our great community pride to entice homebuyers to search out Westland for our quality of life (public safety, schools, community programming).

Q: Cite three of the top priorities that you believe should be addressed by the City Council.

A: Public safety — The safety of our children and families is the most important foundation of our community.

Adequate staffing in both police and fire departments will provide a strong, safe community today and for years to come.

Senior living — People are living longer and more active lives. We, as a community, need to provide services that our seriors want, and more importantly, need. Senior transportation is particularly important.

nportant. Parks and recreation — We need programs to help our children become more active and off the streets and give families the opportunity to enjoy our great city.

Q: Why should voters choose you over other candidates to fill one of four council seats at stake in this year's election?

A: I have been a successful businessperson and an active community volunteer for the last 15 years. The leadership skills that I have learned in these endeavors will help me find the best answers to our community issues and promote the great community of Westland.
My activity on many community boards and committees (chamber Jaycees, S.P.A.R.K., to name a few) has taught me what it takes to make Westlandbetter — partnerships and teamwork. Twill work diligently to ... bring people together to make Westland an even better place to live, work and raise our families.

MENTORING

Deanna Forester. At times Lee Lonzo, the national director and founder of the Kick-Off Transition Program or KO Program for short, resembled a revival tent minister, urged students to shout with passion that "failure is not an option for my freshmen." He had them come up with as many words as they could think of to describe a mentor in 90 seconds than gather in numbered groups that changed in size each time he hollered out a new number. He called it the game of high school.

"It makes me think of the cliques you see at every high school," he said. "It's called exclusion and at some point you're kicked out of the group. Everyone in high school is excluded in some form."

The game also reminded Lonzo of the first day high school for freshmen - "very chaotic, confusing, you don't know who you should be with," he said.

Lonzo came up with the idea of mentoring freshmen while an administrator at Carmel High School in Carmel, Ind. He did it for nine years and it went so well, that he went national with it. The program has since been started in more than 170 school districts in 22 states.

Upperclassmen are trained to be mentors and to conduct interactive orientation days right before the first day of school. The goal is to "create positive yearlong connections between them and incoming ninth-graders" and to ease the transition for new students and their parents.

In all, 400 juniors and seniors were recommended for the Glenn program by teachers. They were invited to an assembly and asked to fill out applications. From those applications, 96 students were selected to be KO mentors.

"We asked for referrals, not just students in the National Honor Society or sports, but maybe the quiet student who would be a good role model," said Forester.

Each student will be assigned five freshmen. They will meet them on Aug. 27 at the Kick-Off Orientation Day. Incoming students will have a chance to meet the principal and counselor, watch skits presented by the KO mentors and participate in three break-out sessions. They also will tour the building so they don't fear of what Lonzo calls the "three L's -- lockers lunch and getting lost." "The freshmen will be invited to come and will be paired off with a mentor, so when they come in the first day it won't feel like the first day of school for them," Forester said. "They'll know someone." Lonzo stressed that the students will work as a team at orientation and that the students not the adults will run the program. He added that by doing the program, the students will change their school forever."

"I can guarantee there will be a change, but it depends on you," he said. "You're only going to take with you what you leave behind. Signing up as mentor tells me you want to leave something behind."

owners and recognize their ### success Q: Cite three issues that would be top priorities of your administration:

A: A top priority would be to create more youth groups, a place and forum to allow our youngsters to enjoy themselves without the pressures of society. We can establish lower fees for sports programs or perhaps a no-fee program. I want to provide an arena for youth to express their talents and focus their energies on.

All work in the city has to be done in an efficient and costeffective way.

The senior population is rising, and we need to do more to address this faction of our population, (such as) providing forums on prescription drugs and cost-saving ideas.

Drivers scramble to safety as flooding turns I-96 into a lake

BY REBECCA JONES STAFF WRITER

The mess should be cleaned up by midweek, but for more than an hour Thursday a portion of I-96 in Livonia looked more like Niagara Falls than a freeway, the result of a water main break on Schoolcraft near Middlebelt.

Water cascaded down the embankment, flooding the freeway and stranding some drivers.

According to George Ellenwood, Detroit Water and Sewer Department assistant director for public affairs, the department was still investigating what caused the break.

The freeway reopened Thursday evening, but eastbound Schoolcraft remains closed between Merriman and Middlebelt, Livonia Fire and Rescue helped five people from their vehicles, some who had climbed on top of their cars to avoid the rising waters. Drivers like Maria Rakes of Livonia reported that the downpour came on suddenly.

Driving home east on I-96 when halfway between Merriman and Middlebelt, she saw the flooding.

"You didn't even see it before that," she said. "There was water everywhere."

Rakes got off the freeway at Middlebelt and headed toward the Wal-Mart parking lot, but said no one would let her over. Her 2007 Explorer Sport Trac was taking on water and stalled on the service drive.

David Pridmore was driving his Honda motorcycle when he saw a sheet of water flowing off two overpasses and cars stopped.

"I had to hold onto the side of the (dividing) wall to keep my bike up," he said.

Pridmore got off the freeway but was stuck on the service drive with three lanes of water 11/2-feet deep separating him from dry ground. Instead of leaving his bike and wading through, he decided to give it

"I ended up going as fast as I could," Pridmore said. He popped a wheelie over a curb he couldn't see because the water was too deep. "I've never done that before. It was wild."

He reported no mechanical damage, but the highway pegs of his motorcycle broke off. Kenyatta Chambers, a Wal-Mart employee, watched as a man helped rescue a pregnant woman in a small pickup.

"She didn't want to get out of her car, so he pushed her car to the dry part," she said. The man was about 6 feet tall, and the water was over his waist, she said. The broken 48-inch main serves eight communities, including Garden City and Westland. In the aftermath, residents do not have to boil water, but they were asked to refrain from outdoor watering to maintain better water pressure throughout the city.

Pat Hogan, Livonia's director of public works, said the water main pipe should be replaced this weekend; concrete for the roadway will be poured by a DWSD contractor and if all goes as planned Schoolcraft will be reopened by Thursday.

"We've been monitoring water pressure since yesterday and have not found that there's any significant change," he said Friday.

Staff writers Dave Varga, Matt Jachman, Tony Bruscato and Kurt Kuban contributed to this report.

Fire damages 8 units at Capri Apartments

BY'SUE MASON STAFF WRITER

Westland fire personnel have determined that careless smoking was the cause of a fire that damaged several units of the Westland Capri Apartments on Ann Arbor Trail west of Merriman Friday.

The fire broke out on a coach in a second-floor apartment and spread to a second apartment in the 16-unit building. Those two apartments as well as two below them on the first floor sustained fire damage while eight other units had smoke damage, Westland Fire Chief Michael Reddy said.

It took firefighters at least 25-35 minutes to get the fire under control and longer to handle small hot spots under the roof, Reddy said.

'The guys made a great stop, they confined it to the east end of the building," he added. "It was really a good stop, considering the conditions when we got there."

response agreement, firefighters from Garden City, Inkster and Wayne helped battle the blaze.

Under the automatic

No one was injured in the fire.

"All of the tenants were outside when we arrived, smoke detectors alerted them to the fire and we were glad to hear that," Reddy said.

The American Red Cross was on the scene Friday afternoon, providing items like blankets for the displaced tenants. The apartment complex's management also was working to place tenants in vacant apartments in the complex while others planned to stay with relatives.

Residents of the eight units not damaged in the blaze were expected to be able return to their apartments Saturday, Reddy added.

Retiree should avoid IRA transfer fee

Dear Rick: My husband is retired from GM. We are contemplating moving his GM retirement account to an IRA at a local bank. They told us there was a 5.7 percent one-time fee for this to take place. Is this reasonable or should we still be shopping? You definitely should be shopping around. It appears that the 5.7 percent is a commission, also known as "load," that the bank is charging you and there is no reason to have to pay that fee. There are many places you can go to avoid having to pay high fees when you invest your money. When you pay commissions, Money Matters or loads, it means that money comes off the top of what you have invested. For example, if your husband's GM retirement plan was valued at $100,000 and you were paying a 5.7 percent commission that means $5,700 was coming of the top and what is actually being invested is less than $95,000. There are ways to invest money so that the entire $100,000 goes to work for you.

Rick Bloom

If you want to invest in a diversified portfolio of mutual funds, companies like Vanguard (www.vanguard.com or (800) 997-2798), Charles Schwab & Co., (www.schwab.com or (866) 232-9890) or Fidelity (www.fidelity. com or (800) FIDELITY) can assist you in investing money on a totally commission-free, also known as no-load, basis. Charles Schwab & Co. and Fidelity have branches in the Detroit/ metropolitan area if you want to sit down with someone in person.

If you are a conservative investor and do not want principal fluctuation on your portfolio, you can even invest on a commission-free basis using equity-index annuities. I recommend Jim Hutton from Hutton Financial ((800) 870-4444). He represents annuity companies on a commission-free basis.

Not all financial advisers work on commissions. There are a growing number of financial advisers who are known as fee-only advisors who charge a fee for their advice and then recommend commission-free, no-load

For an individual who wants to avoid commissions and get professional, unbiased,

I am not a fan of paying commissions. One of the main reasons I don't like paying commissions, particularly for things like mutual funds, is when you consider the performance of loaded funds (funds that charge a commission) vs. no-load funds (funds that do not charge a commission), you see the average no-load fund outperforms the average loaded fund.

advice a fee-only advisor can be a great way to invest. The benefits of using a fee-only adviser is he/she will help you set up a game plan designed for your situation and then help you monitor it. Also, there is no potential conflict of interest between what is right for you and which product will pay the advisor the most because the advisor is paid by you and not by the fund

I am not a fan of paying commissions. One of the main reasons I don't like paying commissions, particularly for things like mutual funds, is when you consider the performance of loaded funds (funds that charge a commission) vs. no-load funds (funds that do not charge a commission), you see the average no-load fund outperforms the average loaded fund.

It makes no sense to pay a fee to buy a sub-par

As I have mentioned many times in this column, fees and costs do matter and I congratulate the reader for asking about fees before she invests money.

Unfortunately, too many investors are either embarrassed to ask about fees or are unaware of the fees and, thus they end up over-paying for investment advice which eventually leads to under performance.

The bottom line is the bottom line and that is why before you invest in any investment, you must determine the fees to buy, maintain and sell an investment.

Always remember, the fees you save end up in the most important pocket — yours.

Fire up that barbecue

As of June 21, it's officially summer, and the smart money says if you haven't fired up the grill yet this year, it's only a matter of time.

Barbecue: It's a time honored American tradition, and not just in the South.

"A lot of confusion surrounds the terms grilling and barbecuing," writes Steven Raichlen in "The Barbecue Bible." "Grilling is a high-heat cooking method done directly over live flames, cooking food in a matter of minutes ... one of the greatest pleasures of grilled food is it immediacy. You literally watch it being cooked ...' "Barbecuing lies at the opposite end of the spectrum ... It is a long, slow, indirect, low-heat method that uses smoldering logs or charcoal and wood chunks to smoke-cook the food, usually some sort of meat," he adds.

Barbecue, of course, also refers to the sauce used on the meats being cooked with this method. Cheryl and Bill Jamison give a few tips for creating your own competition-worthy barbecue sauce in their "Big Book of Outdoor Cooking and Entertaining."

"Start with a strong foundation - in the United States, typically vinegar, meat drippings or stock, mustard, or a tomato product - include an acid, such as vinegar, citrus juice, or pickling liquid," they write. "To balance the acid, you probably want some sweetness. Salt helps with the balancing act, either in granular form or as soy sauce [or] anchovies. Many people, including us, like some heat."

Whether barbecuing or grilling, it's really all about the food. Fire up some great recipes at the library.

In addition to numerous books by Raichlen and the Jamisons, we carry grilling titles by Bobby Flay, George Foreman and Karen Alter and Judith Fertig ("The BBQ Queens"). Page through Margaret Howard's "All Fired Up!: Outdoor and Indoor Grilling," or Paul Kirk's "Championship Barbecue," which promises "575 lip-smackin' recipes from the baron of barbecue."

Check out Raichlen's Web site www.barbecuebible.com - for recipes and tips. While you're online, read the USDA's recommendations for safe grilling at www.fsis.usda.gov/ Fact_Sheets/Barbecue_Food_Safety. ### ROTATOR CUFF TEARS

The rotator cuff consists of three muscles that connect from the scapula (wingbone) to the top of the long bone of the shoulder (the humarus). The term rotator cuff tear refers to a disruption in one or more of these muscle tendons

The rotator cuff allows the shoulder to move in front, back and swinging motions associated with normal shoulder function. In daily life, the supraspinatus is the tendon that receives the most use and is the most vulnerable to injury. Thus, most rotator cuff tears begin with a slight tear in the supraspinatus tendon fibers.

in most instances, but not always, the body repairs the break. Over time, the small tear become wider and deeper. If still small, you develop supraspinatus tendinditis. If the tear becomes sufficiently large, you experience both pain and loss of motion that are the features of a rotator cuff tear.

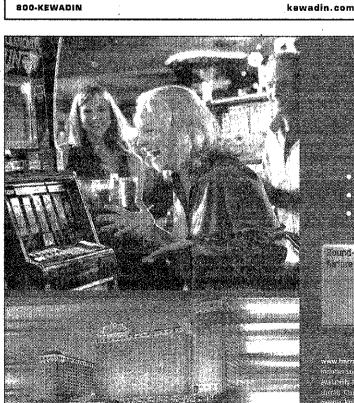

Diagnosis comes out of the nature of your pain, the limits of shoulder movement on examination, and the findings from imaging studies such as shoulder x-ray, ultrasound, and MRI. Treatment includes physical therapy to strengthen surrounding muscles, and/or intra-articular injections to ease pain and remove joint fluid from further blocking shoulder motion.

The final choice is shoulder surgery. Advances in shoulder replacements are ongoing, however, outcomes are uncertain. Furthermore, rehabilitation can take months, and in the elderly may be stressful. Thus, physical therapy remains the mainstay of therapy.

Westland man charged Granholm: Budget must include new revenue with purse snatching

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, July 15, 2007

STAFF WRITER

A Westland man accused of grabbing a woman's purse inside a local Kroger store is facing trial for unarmed robbery and being a second-time offender.

Hassan Alwaily, 20, faces trial in Wayne County Circuit Court after he gave up his right to a preliminary hearing Thursday in front of Westland 18th District Judge Sandra Ference Cicirelli.

Alwaily, jailed with a $25,000 cash bond, is accused of grabbing a woman's purse around 10:30 p.m. June 29 inside the Kroger store on the northwest corner of Ford Road and Central City Parkway. The store is located just east of the Westland police station.

Mathews, the victim had placed shopper and employees tried unsuccessfully to stop him, purse was recovered and nothing was missing. Penalties for unarmed robbery range up to 15 years in prison, but Alwaily could face a potentially longer term, if convicted, because he is charged as a second-degree habitual offender.

Gov. Jennifer Granholm is continuing to make her pitch for new revenue sources to balance the 2007-08 state budget.

Granholm met with the Observer & Eccentric editorial board Tuesday and said any budget agreement needs to include cuts in government spending, a replacement for the Single Business Tax (the new Michigan Business Tax signed Thursday by Granholm), reforms in state operations and new revenue in taxes and fees.

She says she's confident she'll reach agreement with the Republican-controlled Senate and Senate Majority Leader Mike Bishop unless they have another agenda.

"We thought we had broken the logjam," she said Tuesday. "We approved the (2006-)2007 budget because we thought the reforms would be made. My fear is that there is a strategy to push this off until Oct. 1 (start of the new state fiscal year), to cause a government shutdown. I think that would be terrible for Michigan. It may be good for him (Bishop) personally, that he held out to the last minute, but it would be bad for Michigan."

Granholm arrived at the OSE office shortly after announcing plans for a trip Aug. 19-25 with the Michigan Economic Development Corp. to Sweden and Germany to attract business investment. Granholm has made several trips to Germany; this would be her first trip to Sweden.

"On the Sweden side, they have a very aggressive policy in place to encourage alternative energy businesses and this is a sector we want to move into as a state, given both our history and geography," she said.

Granholm credited the justapproved Michigan Business Tax, to replace the Single Business Tax, and the 21st Century Job Fund as making it possible to successfully attract foreign investment.

'We want to market the heck out of Michigan and tell them to come here. We have the workforce that is willing and able," she said.

Granholm said alternative energy was a natural development for Michigan because of its unique location, surrounded by the Great Lakes, and its history as an auto manufacturing state.

"No other state has the combination of things that Michigan has to help lead the U.S.' ability to be free of foreign oil and fossil fuels. This is such a natural for us to capitalize on the history of the automobile," she said. The governor said all these trips were about bringing jobs to the state. She said it was also important to offer training so workers can fill the new positions that are available.

"I'm not interested in throwing money at retraining if that retraining doesn't lead to jobs," she said.

On the budget crisis, Granholm said term limits may be playing a part in the partisan squabbling that has stalled talks. She has criticized the Senate for taking a vacation over the last two weeks as schools are waiting on a budget agreement. The Republican Party issued a statement criticizing the governor for her planned trip to Europe.

The couple married June 1, 1971, and had two sons, Jason and Jim. They lived in Canton, the moved to Plymouth some 16-17 years ago. For several years, Walls Smith wrote her column for the Observer newspapers. It was, her husband said, what she loved to

"She was a hippie who grew up wanting to be a writer," Dan Smith recalled. "She had aspirations of doing great things as a writer and then she became a mom. She always thought she'd hood as a vehicle for her columns, taking a satirical look at being a wife and mother, but leaving no doubt how much she loved both. According to her husband, Walls Smith tried to work out a syndication deal at one point, but the paperwork and the process became more than Walls Smith deemed it to be worth.

"There was too much to it, putting a portfolio together and everything," Dan Smith said. "She liked to do what she liked to do, but if it turned into 'work,' she just didn't do it." Walls Smith was also an artist, and had many artist friends. Her watercolors adorn the Smith home today, and Dan Smith used to do the framing for not only her work, but the work of her friends, had grown, and she was "looking for something to do," Dan Smith said. Her solution? She took some art classes.

"It just sort of migrated into water colors from there," he said. "She always could draw. She had that natural ability."

What Walls Smith did best, though, according to her husband, was to share herself, flaws and all, mostly through her writing. Her column, he said, was popular, and she drew attention from people when the couple went out in public.

She was open and honest with everybody," Dan Smith said. "It made people comfortable, because they knew she was non-judgmental, and they could be themselves around her."

out by the anti-tax rhetoric

n 2004, our neighbors to the north voted Tommy Douglas the greatest Canadian in history in a poll sponsored by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

He was the premier of Saskatchewan in the 1940s. More importantly, he was the father of Canada's Medicare universal health program.

Despite the deluge of propaganda that is generated south of Canada's border against their system, Canadians selected Douglas as their greatest citizen by a wide margin.

Douglas and his legacy come up in humorist and provocateur Michael Moore's hilarious and sad new documentary Sicko. A Canadian, a member of the now ruling Conservative Party, tells Moore that pretty much everyone in Canada supports universal health care, as do the citizens of most Western European countries. It's a non-issue and a great relief. Contrast that with George W. Bush's strong denunciation of a proposal to extend a children's health insurance program to cover more lower middle-income families, who often struggle with health bills.

For the president, this was just one more skid on the slippery slope to - gasp "socialized medicine," warning of "rationing, inefficiency and long waiting lines." Not to mention a possible decline in insurance company and drug company profits and the income of medical specialists.

This debate over health care, stirred by the often over-the-top Moore, is part of a larger debate that is being waged in states all across the country about the role of government and our willingness to pay for it through taxes.

The state Republicans are doing their best to demonize all government spending, well almost all. Craig DeRoche, the previous boy speaker of the House, is shocked that the state is spending taxpayers' money on "welfare, Medicaid" and decent wages for state employees. So many buzzwords, all of them

"If they don't want to do the reforms or the revenue, then they need to pass a budget that reflects what we have and my guess is that will be impossible for them to do," she said. "No one wants to slash public education as would be required because of the size of the deficit we are facing."

But since the early days of Reagan, many Republicans have adopted a "starve the beast" philosophy. They figure the best way to kill programs that help people be successful is to take away the funding.

The anti-tax, anti-government people have had a long time on the forum and convinced a lot of people who are hurt by their philosophy that they are right. The case for government hasn't been made as forcefully, even by our media savvy current governor.

On Tuesday, she acknowledged that much and offered this view:

"I think since the '80s there has been a very effective voice that says it's your money and you should keep all of it and there has not been an effective voice which says we live in a community and that there are certain things that we have decided to pool our resources to

"It's a tougher argument because it allegedly goes against self-interest, but it may be your money, but it's your schools, it's your roads and it's your public safety and it's your grandparents who are on Medicaid or Medicare and that voice, that collective voice that we've decided to pool, has not been as

"So I don't think the case has been effectively made in a way that counters the other voice, until people see their schools get cut. At that point they say, enough is enough. The question is how far to the brink do people have to be taken before they agree that there are certain things that we pool our resources

And is brinksmanship the best way to run a government?

Voice for community drowned | May the 'n' word rest in peace - or will it?

K, the "n" word is dead and gone. Now what?

Unless you've been living under a rock in recent days, you're no doubt aware of the NAACP's (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) grand symbolic public funeral for the "n" word.

The procession was attended by a wide array of political dignitaries, business leaders and entertainment luminaries.

Chris Campbell

While the spirit behind the symbolic gesture was commendable in its efforts to educate the public about the disparaging origins associated with the word and subsequent bedding of it, the procession was misguided at best and unfocused at its worst for it killed and buried the wrong

Racism still exists in both overt and covert guises, but is no longer the elephant in the room that it was in the 1940s. '50s and '60s, and the funeral merely scratched the surface.

The truth is African Americans as a community are facing much larger problems such as glaring socioeconomic disparities, health care issues, exorbitant insurance rates, high incarceration rates among African American males and a host of other issues that have contributed to a collective self-esteem problem.

Somewhere Martin (Luther King) and Malcolm (X) are turning over in their graves over this funeral for we have gone from promoting social change by marching on the government in Washington to putting words in caskets.

The irony of this newfound consciousness is that it was brought on by the ostracizing and firing of two white men — comedian Michael Richards and radio jock Don Imus.

Symbolism needs to die and real action must take its place. Hip hop culture catches a lot of the flak for the proliferation of the "n" word and rightfully so, but hip hop is not completely to blame.

The NAACP must employ the same veracity it did in addressing the Imus debacle and focus on the radio stations, record labels and media conglomerates who support music that embraces the "n" word and its mentality. If organized protests, pickets and public outcries affect their pocketbooks, then dramatic changes will occur. With that said, the "n" word will not entirely disappear until young African Americans stop using it in casual conversation. If youth can better understand the historical import of the word, then they may refrain from using it.

The funeral procession was not a total loss because it dealt with a term that is a "gateway" word — a word that can lead to other negative behavioral mindsets that influence people to equate themselves with things that the "n" word typically stands for and then trying to live up to it.

But while we're dealing with gateway terms. why not take a more universal approach and eliminate words such as "spic," "honky," "cracker" or "hymie"? They are all racist, inflamma, tory and derogatory terms.

Yes, we should have buried the "n" word a long time ago, but placed it on a grave atop all the behavior and equally offensive words that have found their way into the English lexicon.

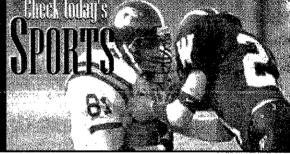

What should have been buried were the mentalities behind those words with a renewed emphasis placed on fostering cultural dignity.

That truly would have made a more sweeping and powerful statement.

Dobbyn returns to old form as Hawks clip Cleveland

Brad Emons, editor . (734) 953-2123 . bemons@hometownlife.com

Melissa Dobbyn played like the W-League MVP of 2005.

The Livonia Stevenson High grad who is entering her senior year at the University of Michigan, has been battling an offensive slump of sorts, but Friday night she broke loose for a goal and assist as the Michigan Hawks Women avenged their only loss of the season with a 2-1 soccer triumph over the Cleveland Internationals at Churchill High School.

The second-place Hawks, who travel Sunday to play the London Gryphons, enhanced their playoff chances with the victory, improving to 7-1-1 in the Midwest Division of the Central

The Hawks will meet the first-place Minnesota Lightning (7-0-1) in a showdown for the division lead, 7 p.m. Saturday, July 21 at Livonia Franklin Dobbyn came into the game with only one goal and five assists in seven games, but quickly established herself offensively, scoring the game's first goal just 7:16 into the first half off a feed from Northville's Lauren Hill, who plays for Michigan State.

Dobbyn had three good chances alone during the first half and continued to pressure Cleveland's back line throughout the second half.

After Cleveland's Rose Augustin scored from Danielle Hubka with just 13:41 left in the match to make it 1-all, Dobbyn set up the game-winner, taking lengthy feed down the right sideline from Hill and pushing a pass across to Sarah Bunco, who made no mistake in burying a shot past Internationals goalkeeper Carianne Betts with only 6:22 remaining.

The Hawks then held on during extended time in the waning moments as defender Stephanie Martin, backing up goalkeeper Kathryn Cumming, stopped a point-blank attempt by a Cleveland shooter to preserve the win.

Dobbyn, meanwhile, showed some of the form that enabled her to be the W-League's top player.

"I've been struggling as far as finishing and scoring," Dobbyn admitted. "It's been a mental thing, the drought. It was good to put one away and I felt good to get off shots. I should have gotten a couple more (goals), but I was happy to get it (the first goal) in."

Kleabir's first-ever ace unfolded on May 31 when he found the cup with his tee shot on the 139yard third hole of the Fox Hills Golf Course's Golden Fox layout in Plymouth Township.

GOLDEN EFFORT

The retired Ford employee and longtime Plymouth resident has played several legendary courses since getting bitten by the golf bug in 1966, including Oakmont Country Club, the site of this year's U.S. Open.

"But nothing compared to the excitement of getting that hole-in-one," admitted Kleabir, who used a Cobra Hybrid on his unforgettable shot. "I've come close before — probably within three or four inches — but this was my first hole-in-one in all the years I've been playing.

"I heard that the odds are about 10,000-to-1 to get one, so it's pretty unbelievable."

With his three playing companions looking on, Kleabir launched a high tee shot that landed on the front part of the green. The ball then rolled toward its date with destiny.

"The hole was in the back right part of the green and the ball rolled right toward the pin," he said. "I heard a 'clang', but I thought the ball probably hit the pin and bounced away. But when we got up there and looked in the cup, there it was. We all jumped around and my playing partners gave me a high five."

Winning Wilde

July 6 and ends this Tuesday, is $59,784,954. (Last year's winner Jamie Gold took home $12 million.)

"I started out well, then I went up and down," Massey said. "I was just short of the money (payouts started at $20,320 with the top prize $8.25 million), so that was the only thing that was a little disappointing."

Among the celebrities going out day one include singer and four-time Grammy Award winner Nelly, who Massey played against; former Major League slugger Jose Canseco, actress Jennifer Tilly, actor Ray Romano, former NHL player Rick Tocchet.

Massey also beat out talk show host Montel Williams and actor Jason Alexander, both day two casualties. (Actor Tobey Maguire was still alive on day three.)

"I had a great time," Massev said. "I outlasted 5,800 people and got beat by a pro. He had aces and fives, and I had aces and fours."

Massey began playing Texas No-Limit Hold'em five years ago at Greektown Casino, where is he a fixture once or twice a week. He is also an avid watcher of the year-long World Series of Poker, which is aired each Wednesday night on ESPN.

"I always played, but not on a consistent basis," Massey said. "What's the secret? It's a lot of skills and a lot of luck. You have to know when to bet and how much to bet because you can't control the cards."

Massey said he gained some valuable insight while playing against the best in the world.

"You've got to get a read on .... other people," he said. "It's not managing cards, it's managing people. You have to be intensely aware of everything going on at the table. They study every person intensively."

Massey, who was accompanied on the trip by his girlfriend Sue Tkachuka, spent nearly 15 hours at the table during the opening day. And vou'd think that he'd be up for a break after three demanding

"I'm here until Saturday," Massey said. "Actually, I'm waiting to get into a game as we speak.

Kleabir said the experience was both exhilarating and a little unnerving.

"I was on 'Cloud 9' for a while," he said. "It also got to my nerves a little, too, because I ended up shooting a 100 when I usually shoot around 90.

An article in a 1999 issue of Golf Digest reported that one insurance company estimated that the odds of a PGA Tour pro recording a hole-in-one were 1-in-3,756. An amateur's chances were 1-in-12,750, the story said, making Kleabir and Bauer's achievements even more remarkable.

SEVENTH HEAVEN

Bauer, a sixth-grader-to-be at Discovery Middle school, defeated the lofty odds three weeks after Kleabir when his tee shot found the bottom of the cup on the 90-yard seventh hole of the Fox Hills Strategic Fox layout. He used his trusty seven iron to register his first ace.

"I hit it high, it bounced about three times, then rolled in," he said. "The guys I was playing with told me, 'Nice The incredible shot was not enough to move golf past hockey on Bauer's list of favorite sports.

"Hockey is first; golf is tied for second with baseball," he "Kyle called me from the course right after it happened and I could tell he was pretty excited," said his mom, Michelle Bauer. "He has two older brothers and they didn't believe it at first. But one of his friends' mom was with

Ignition add 15 in Supplemental Draft

The Detroit Ignition selected 15 players during the 2007 Major Indoor Soccer League Supplemental Draft, Ignition President Greg Bibb announced on The Ignition held the ninth and final selection in each of the 15 rounds based on the team's MISL-best 18-12 record during the 2006-07 regular season.

Draft order was determined by a team's winning percentage from the 2006-07 regular season with the league's three expansion teams - the Orlando Sharks, New Jersey Ironmen and MISL Monterrey - selecting first, second and third, respec-

Detroit tabbed goalkeeper Nicolas Platter with the club's fist pick. Platter, 26, is currently playing outdoor soccer for the Minnesota Thunder of the United States Soccer League's First Division.

The University of California-Davis product has allowed just three goals while appearing in five games for the Thunder this season.

The Ignition then selected midfielder Sebastien Le Toux of the USL First Division Seattle Sounders with the club's second pick (18th overall). The Rennes, France native currently leads the Sounders and is tied for 10th in the USL First Division in scoring with 10 points (four

"We are very pleased with the talent we are able to add during this draft process,' Bibb stated. "We are hopeful that several of the players will be wearing an Ignition uniform during the upcoming season. I look forward to watching them compete for a roster spot with our current signed players and amateur draft picks.'

Information regarding Ignition season, group, and individual tickets can be obtained by calling the club at 1-888-436-GOAL (4625); by visiting the team's official Web site — www.detroitignition. com; or by calling TicketMaster at (248)

Rams keep Eagles winless as Collop hurls 2-hit gem

Justin Collop yielded just two hits to pick up the victory Friday at Ford Field as the Michigan Rams earned a 5-2 Livonia Collegiate Baseball League triumph over the winless Detroit Eagles.

Collop, who played high school baseball at Wayne Memorial, struck out six and walked only three in going the distance. Both runs were unearned for the University of Toledo right-hander.

The 20-and-under Rams, who got two hits, including a homer and three RBI from Drew Chuchward, evened their LCBL record at 12-12-2.

Mike Wiseman went 3-for-3 and knocked in a run, while Nick Plinka contributed an RBI and scored twice.

The 22-and-under Eagles, who dropped to 0-24-1, got a double from Ryan Sharp and a single from Otis Young. John Carrier and Tim Cross scored runs for the Eagles in the opening inning.

Losing pitcher Matt eight hits over six innings. He struck out six, walked two and hit a batter.

It was the same story Wednesday as the Eagles lost 3-2 to the Rams in an LCBL encounter Wednesday at Ford Field.

Winning pitcher Joe Kennedy, who allowed just two runs on four hits for the Rams. He struck out six and allowed just one walk in seven innings.

Kennedy outdueled Alex Middleton gave up five runs on Harvey, who gave up only four hits, a pair of walks and two hit batters in six innings.

> Offensively, Nick Urban went 1-for-3 with a pair of RBI. Kyle Gendron also hit a hit in two at-bats with an RBI. Mike Wiseman, Collop and Andrew Stafford scored runs for the Rams, who tallied on in the first and two in the second.

> Cross had an RBI triple and scored a run for the Eagles. Ali Sarafa also had a hit and RBI.

How to control your anxiety

Anxiety in its worst form is worry. Max Lucado, a noted Christian writer and pastor, tells us that worry, understood in an earlier biblical meaning translates as to divide. Worry divides the mind from itself; it splits us between today and tomorrow. Further, we are anxious about what happened the day before. So living becomes more burdensome because our mind, our energy is divided and not united. We know that this kind of living, this living based on a split mind and focus, called worry, can cause diseases of many kinds.

Lucado also reminds us that Jesus, in Matthew's Gospel, says, "You cannot add any time to your life by worrying about it." Matthew 6:27)

Yet, at the same time worry is just one kind of anxiety. Anxiety also serves a useful purpose for us. Anxiety is a signal of something to be paid attention to, often of something dangerous. In that sense it is essential for survival. As one writer shares it, "Without it (anxiety) you would cross the street without concern about being hit by a car. Anxiety becomes a problem dictates your decisions. It's the smoke detector when there's no smoke." So the worry that we are talking about occurs when our anxiety is based on fears. And fears that become out of control lead to the anxiety that is burdensome, or worry. Some simple things we can do to address this kind of anxiety or worry would not be limited to but when it interferes with your life and would include: See a doctor. Is some kind of antianxiety medication needed?

Listen to your body. Author Dr. Michael Bloomfield notes that anxiety can stir up excessive adrenaline which can get out of control and affect many body organs and functions. Pay attention to how you feel physically, not just mentally and emotionally

When you worry too much, avoid caffeine, alcohol and nicotine.

Laugh. Get plenty of sleep.

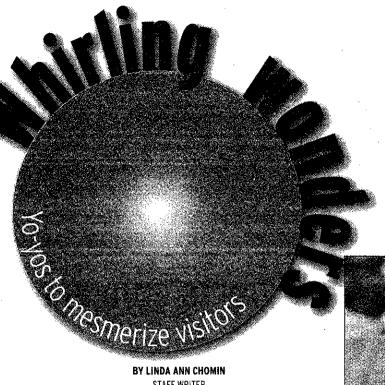

Avoid excessive worrying. Exercise. Pace yourself

Find ways to release your anxiety, in writing, relaxing, listening to music.

If necessary, find a good therapist. When your life is so full of worry we might feel like Thomas Merton, noted religious writer. He wrote in prayer-like form, "My Lord God, I have no idea where I am going. I do not see the road ahead of me ... Therefore I will trust you always though I may seem to be lost and in the shadow of death."

There is a quality of trust necessary to handle worry. The techniques described are ways to reduce the anxiety, and to make it manageable. But the thoughts, fears, emotions that can stir up worry also need care. A sense of spiritual or religious calm, easier to describe than to achieve, helps one to settle into one's life, face the fears that scare us and give us a chance to overcome that split in ourselves so we can move from yesterday, through today, and into tomorrow. Talk, sometimes medication, good selfcare, paying attention to your inner self through your faith, your participation in your religious life, all help to calm the nerves of anxiety.

t's hard to take your eyes off the whirling object attached to the string in Jake Maloney's hand. There's a mesmerizing quality about the yo-yo. While some consider the spinning sphere nothing more than a toy, Maloney uses yo-yos to compete and entertain crowds. In fact, he's become so good at Walking the Dog and other tricks, the 18-year-old Canton teen has been ranked the No. 10 player in the world since 2002.

MIDEAST REGIONAL YO-YO CONTEST

When: 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, July 28, in Kellogg Park on Main Street, between Ann Arbor Trail and Penniman, Plymouth. Cost: No charge for viewing; $5 entrance. fee to compete Details: Visit www. yoyojake.com or. send e-mail to yoyogenius@comcast.net

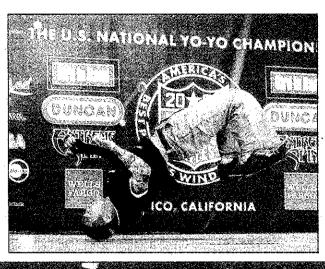

Maloney travels frequently to perform at a variety of venues and compete in National Yo-yo League contests throughout the country. This week, Maloney was in Ohio to do 13 shows at libraries, but local residents can watch him strut his stuff during the Mideast Regional Yo-yo Contest, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, July 28, in Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth.

Maloney is organizing the event to promote yo-yoing. It is being sponsored by the city of Plymouth, Rotary Club of Plymouth A.M., Duncan Toys and other yo-yo manufacturers. The top three winners receive prizes. First place in the 1A division earns a seed (definite spot) at the national contest in October. The Mideast region encompasses Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, western Pennsylvania, Kentucky, West Virginia and Tennessee.

"It's fun to watch, especially two-handed. You'll see a bunch of people with the ability to be in the nationals. It's rare to see that caliber of yo-yoers," said Maloney, who began competing seven years ago. "There will be yo-yos for sale and people around to help out if you want to learn. Like anything else, you have to practice. I've been yo-yoing nine years and still don't know every trick. It depends on how much you're willing to put into it. Eventually, it comes to a point where it's like breathing."

Maloney picked up his first yo-yo, a $3 Duncan, as a third-grade student at Bird Elementary. He is basically self-taught and recommends visiting yo-yoing.com (which has videos) to learn. Yo-yos are sold locally at stores such as Meijer and on the Internet at www.yoyo.com, yoyoguy.com and yoyonation.com. For begin-

New Madonna science building will be certified green

BY HUGH GALLAGHER STAFF WRITER

Madonna University is looking to take the LEED in green construction practices for its new $20 million Science and Media Center, set to break ground this fall and open in 2009.

A growing enrollment and changing demand for technical education convinced the university that now was the time.

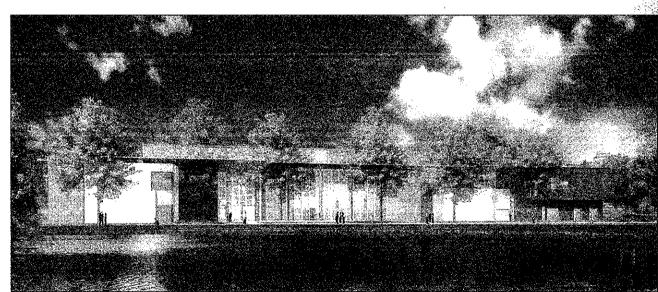

"Our enrollment in the last five years has gone up 15 percent and our facilities are being used all the time from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., said Sister Rose Marie Kujawa, Madonna president. "The building has had 40 years of use and we've ners, he suggests the Duncan Reflex. He says you can find a really good yo-yo for $10-$15. It was national turn off TV week. I was a real TV junkie. Ayo-yo craze came around to my school and I was hooked," said Maloney, who's sponsored by Duncan Toys as part of a crew featuring the country's top players. "I started getting good and thought this could be a big thing for me and it's been a blast. I've met people from England, Japan. We e-mail each other, send videos of tricks over the Internet. Yo-yoing is popular with a lot of people in Japan, Brazil, Singapore and Germany. I like it just 'eause it's fun. Everybody's really supportive of each other. It's been a great experience for me and I want other people to have a great experience.

Two $400 Freehand Duncans will be inside the case of yo-yos Maloney carries to the world competition in August in Orlando. Last year, he placed 10th. Maloney admits he doesn't practice as much as he did when he was younger.

"Yo-yoing is more popular among the younger kids, ages 7-13. You hit middle school and yo-yoing doesn't pick up girls," said Maloney, who graduated in May from Catholic Central High School, where he was a member of the football and track teams, and band. He enters Central Michigan University this fall. "There are only about three girls I know who yo-yo. It's a male-dominated thing, unfortunately."

Maloney is hoping the regional contest attracts males as well as females. Divisions vary from one-handed yoyoing to two-handed looping tricks and off-string, where the yo-yo actually separates then returns to the string.

Dennis Shatter, 20, of Livonia shares the judging duties with Maloney. Shatter's been yo-yoing since fifth grade, when a player entertained his class at Hoover Elementary. He gave up competitions in 2005 to "give younger kids more of a chance." A graduate of Stevenson High School, Shatter will earn two business degrees from Schoolcraft College next year.

"I always look at precision, accuracy," Shatter said. "The really big thing that head judges have told me is for the kids to have fun. If they have fun, you know they'll practice. It shows confidence on their part."

Debra Madonna is especially looking forward to watching Maloney demonstrate his skills. He's one of the reasons Madonna and the Rotary Club decided to sponsor the event spotlighting yo-yos, which have been traced back to 500 B.C. According to yo-yo.com, a Greek vase from this period is painted with the image of a boy playing yo-yo.

"Jake and my son Mark are good friends. His mom Gail taught my children. They used to take Mark with them to yo-yo events," said Madonna, who annually organizes the Plymouth Community Art's Council's Music in the Park series at noon Wednesdays in Kellogg Park. "It's fun and something a little different and the park is the place to do it. On Saturdays, it's packed down there. Last year I had Jake as part of Music in the Park. He entertained six minutes and was a hit. All the kids loved him."

Women's Resource Center spotlights college employees

The Women's Resource Center opens its fall Luncheon Series with Dancing with the Stars Friday, Sept. 28, in the VisTaTech Center at Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, between Six Mile and Seven Mile, Livonia.

Bill Peterson, a Schoolcraft College dance instructor, shares his many adventures as a dance enthusiast from getting started in dance to teaching on cruise lines, and the benefits of dance as exercise. Peterson will give a short demonstration so bring your dancing shoes and plan to join in the fun.

Luncheon lectures are $15 each. The afternoon begins at 11:45 a.m. with lunch followed by a speaker, and concludes at 1:30 p.m. Doors open at 11:15 a.m. Seating is limited. Prepaid registration required, no tickets issued. Call (734) 462-4443.

The series continues Oct. 26. with Michael Swope speaking about the history of television. Swope, an adjunct professor of history at Schoolcraft College, has worked as an on-air news analyst, historian, contributor and commentator in radio and television in addition to serving as senior editor for one of the country's foremost market ing evaluation publications. Swope will share stories about the early years of radio and television.

On Dec. 14, Rodney Johnson talks about the art of welding. If you have ever wondered how a metal sculpture is created the Schoolcraft College welding instructor is the person to ask. Johnson has taught welding at the college since the mid-1980s. He will share insights about welding as an art form and explain how anybody, at any age, can learn to produce metal art for personal satisfaction and extra income as well.

Sports camps come to Michigan

Adidas Jr. Phenom and Phenom 150 Camps are among the top national invitation only junior level exposure camps in the country for highly competitive male and female basketball players.

The camps are held in San Diego, California.

For nearly 20 years the name adidas has been associated with the top High School All-Star Camps in the country. Now, this great tradition is available at the grass roots level through the Phenom Camps.

Jr. Phenom Camp is for the top 100 middle school players entering the 6th to 8th grade in September of the new school year. Phenom 150 Camp is for the top 150 rising freshmen and sophomores players nationwide entering the 9th and 10th grades in September of the new school year.

This year Michigan will host the first Regional Camp at the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus. The regional camp is a qualifier to receive an invitation to the prestigious adidas Phenom Camps. Players must attend the regional camp to be considered. There are no

The Regional Camp will offer players three games with equal playing time; teams are coached by experienced AAU and high school coaches with daily drills, instruction and written player evaluations. A Regional All-star team will be selected for each grade division to compete on the final day.

The regional camp is a springboard to national exposure for Michigan players. Additionally, it provides a benchmark for player improvement and offers highly competitive games.

The registration deadline is Friday, July 20. The cost is $165 per player.

Boys camps take place Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 4-5, the girls Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 18-19, at University of Michigan-Dearborn Campus, 4901 Evergreen.

For more information or to register, call Lima Pereira. regional director at (248) 601-4503, send e-mail to lpereira@ bballuniversity.com or visit the Web site at www.miadidasjrcamp.com.

The university decided the new building would be used for the most technical education, science and mass media, which will require special technical needs and new high-tech equipment.

GOING GREEN And the new 60,000 square-foot high-tech center will be green, built to LEED specifications. LEED stands for Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design. The U.S. Green Building Council has created a certification program that awards silver, gold and platinum status for meeting specified criteria for green construc-

Working with the SmithGroup architectural firm of Detroit and Clark Construction of Detroit, Madonna is committed to making the Science and Media Center as green as possible.

"Recycling and renewing are part of our mentality, part of our Franciscan values," Kujawa said.

Chuck Bisel, who acts as Madonna's representative in discussions with the architect and builder, said the planning process has been going on for more than a

"We had interviews with various architects because of the different expertise they brought to the table, he said. "They design college buildings, are very familiar with LEED design to confirm the program we are putting together to be valid. We toured buildings they had completed." Bisel said Clark is also familiar with LEED design. He said the "bricks and mortar" will cost around $16.6 million, with the total project coming in at $23 million. He said current plans put the building at silver certification, but close to gold.

"In our first meeting with the city of Livonia, we were told we'd be the first greencertified building in the city of Livonia," Bisel said.

The center will include research and instructional labs, a tiered lecture hall, a state-of-the-art television studio, classrooms and student gathering areas.

Kujawa said the university has lined up several potential donors, but they haven't allowed their names to be used.

"We have a full-blown campaign with consultants that are working with us," she said. "Money is coming in, but once we break ground, we'll be needing it at a faster pace and we will be floating a bond, the amount to be determined later."

ACADEMIC GROWTH

When the new building is completed, the older building will be renovated.

The new facility will not be connected to the long main campus building, but stand alone in an area west of the campus pond.

The need for a new science facility developed from a master plan the university completed in 1993.

Andrea Nodge, Madonna vice president for advancement, said the new programs are in line with Madonna's

"Madonna continually surveys the needs of society and the community and what it can do to serve the community," she said. "We are always trying to educate our students."

For Kujawa, the new building will also be a commitment to society.

Four Out of Five Cases Use it as a Last Resort and More Than 90% Get Well!

Through the billions of dollars spent every year on drug ads, we have become programmed to respond to our illnesses with custommade medications. If they don't work, we go straight to prescription medications. When the drugs fail to return us back to health, there are no other choices than to try dangerous experimental medications or to perform surgery.

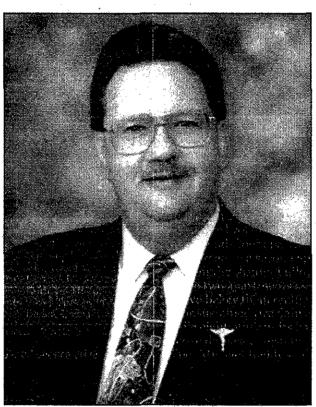

My name is Dr. Daniel Laframboise and my purpose in practice as a Chiropractor is to educate and adjust the families of Livonia back to optimal health and wellness using a completely unique and natural approach. I have been serving the health care needs of Livonia and the surrounding communities for 32 years and have received additional certification in pre-natal and pediatric Chiropractic care.

I'd like to share some incredible information with you. Most people report feeling totally helpless when they go to the doctor because, if they don't choose drugs, what else is there to do? More and more people are learning about a new and different choice for their life and health. Those with the toughest cases that don't respond to traditional care are now achieving extraordinary results and regaining healthy lives. So how could this choice be used as a last resort?

What You Weren't Supposed To Find Out Is Your Body Can Completely Heal Itself

Chemistry doesn't control your body - intelligence does. Your innate (inborn) intelligence creates all the chemistry and keeps it in balance. More than two million functions are performed every minute in your body. The brain and central nerve system carry "wellness messages" to each of the seventy trillion cells that make up a human being. As long as you have 100% nerve supply, you are likely to experience normal, healthy function. The problem exists when abnormal stress enters your body and causes an interruption to the nerve system. When healthy nerve flow is interfered with or "trapped," the body's chemistry goes out of balance and normal body function is jeopardized. By removing the nerver interference, the intelligence of your body is allowed to automatically rebalance body chemistry and to generate extraordinary healing capabilities. Amazingly, stress most often attacks the spine, creating misalignment and then affecting the nerve system (a condition known as subluxation). This revolutionary approach to achieving and sustaining optimal health has spawned the fastest growing drug-free health profession in the world. Millions of people worldwide, including your neighbors right here in Livonia, have adopted a new philosophy for the health and well being of their families.

One Important Check-Up Could Make The Difference Between Chronic Suffering and a Healing Breakthrough

Abnormal body functions like asthma, allergies, headaches, chronic pain, fatigue and lowered immunity could be associated with a disturbance in nerve flow.

If you or a loved one is suffering needlessly, you have another choice. You can make the decision that millions of people around the world and many here in Livonia are making every month. It all begins with a thorough history and consultation, including a complete spinal exam, vital nerve testing, and specific weight-bearing xrays. Normally this evaluation would costs up to $310. However, through this special offer, you can receive this complete evaluation for just a $35 donation to AAA Crisis Pregnancy Center, our Charity for the month of July.

Because of the response expected from this incredible opportunity, we can only guarantee availability for the first 20 people who call and schedule an appointment. Don't wait to call us before spreading the word to another family member or friend who may be ready to take advantage of such a generous offer. Call ANDAN Chiropractic Clinic today! # Outdoor fire hazards

Keep your family burn-free this summer

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

often in the emergency rooms at Iniversity of Michigan hospitals, Dr. Edward Walton sees children and adults burned by outdoor fires that were meant to be enjoyed. The sad part is that in most cases the pain and scarring could have Campfires, backyard fire pits and beach bonfires create dangerous situations with the potential of injuring all ages, especially children. Walton cautions adults to set up No Zones where kids aren't allowed. He recommends drawing a line around the campfire or setting up a circle of chairs to keep children away from

For the next four weeks, Walton doesn't expect to treat any children with burns at Bellknap YMCA Camp in New Hampshire where he serves as camp doctor. There, children are constantly supervised.

"Any time you have an open fire and children in the area, you have risk. Think about a child with a marshmallow. A 3-year-old puts it in the fire and it's a flaming torch so parents need to be very careful about supervising kids when they're cooking anything," said Walton, an assistant professor of emergency medicine and pediatrics at University of Michigan Medical School. Walton is a physician in the pediatric and adult emergency departments at U-M Health System.

"Children don't understand the danger. People go Up North and love their fire pits. We have kids transferred down all summer with burns. We see a lot of fire pit burns at the university. Unfortunately a lot of times it's younger children who ran through the fire or walked through a fire that's been put out on the beach with sand and it looks like a sandbox. We see burns from superficial to so severe they can require skin grafting."

One of the biggest mistakes is not totally extinguishing a fire afterward.

"People just don't know when a fire is out," said Walton. "They'll cover the coals with sand. That hasn't put the fire out that's created an oven which can smoulder for up to 24 hours.

DOUSE THOSE FLAMES

Walton recommends dousing the flames with at least two buckets of water then removing embers from the pit. He says most campgrounds and beaches have a receptacle to deposit coals safely so they're not a hazard to people and animals.

While children primarily suffer burns on the feet and hands, Walton sees adults with face and hand injuries caused by acceler-

"A mistake all adults make is the fire's not going great and they'll use an accelerant, gasoline and lighter fluid. Once a fire's started you should never do anything like that. I recently saw an injury to someone who had been using alcohol to start a fire," said Walton. "He was severely burned trying to make the Consuming alcohol, whether around a hibachi or campfire, makes the situation even more dangerous. Holly Bair, a registered nurse, warns adults to take precautions so they don't end up in the emergency rooms at Beaumont Hospitals in Royal Oak and Troy. Every summer, Beaumont Hospitals' emergency centers experience an increase in burns related to people being around fires. As trauma program manager (Royal Oak), Bair oversees the care of patients from the time they arrive in the ER. She says trauma is preventable, especially when it comes to backyard fire pits.

KEEP IT SAFE

"The new fire pits they use on decks are very popular. The problem is they sit close to the ground and decks are made of wood and very flammable. You don't want them on wooden decks," said Bair. "You have embers that pop and squirt. A wooden deck can go up in a matter of minutes but they can be used safely if kept away from wooden structures and anything flammable, and they need to be attended to. Children can put their hands on it and don't realize it's hot. The openings are right at kids level and the wood can spark and cause eye injuries as well as burns to the skin. You have to worry about their clothing catching on fire or accidentally knocking them over."

Bair is always trying to prevent injuries before they happen. As manager of Safety City U.S.A., she oversees an education program to teach kids, teens, parents, and senior citizens about fire as well as other safety issues around the home. Safety City U.S.A., a collaboration between Beaumont Hospitals and the Royal Oak Police and Fire departments, opened in January and offers field trips to schools from Livonia to Richmond. "During our summer camp, kids (ages 5-12) spend one day doing fire safety," said Bair. "We're set up like a house. Kids learn fire safety in the kitchen. Kids get to practice what to do in case of fire." For more information about the weeklong camps held in July and August, call (248) 551-0103.

Check on senior citizens during extreme heat

During the hot summer weather, the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency (OLHSA) would like to remind residents to check on their senior citizen neighbors.

Older adults are less efficient at regulating body temperature, which can lead to dangerous health problems. People at a higher risk include those with cardiovascular disease, kidney or lung problems, unhealthy body weight, or those who take certain medications.

Tips for keeping safe and comfortable during higher heat days include drinking plenty of fluids; avoiding alcohol and caffeine; keeping your home cool by letting cool morning and evening air in; taking a break during the hottest part of the day by going somewhere air conditioned like the movies, mall or library; wearing short sleeved, loose-fitting, natural fiber and light colored clothing; pace your activities; wear sunblock even when the sky is overcast, and check for air-conditioned emergency shelters in the area which may open during periods of extreme heat.

"If you have an opportunity to do so, I suggest peeking in on elderly neighbors. Just say hello and make sure they're all right. Some seniors must rely on their community to look after them and this is a perfect chance to be a part of that," said Ron Borngesser, OLHSA CEO.

For assistance call the OLHSA office at (248) 209-2600. If emergency assistance is needed, call 911 immediately. Information for this news release comes from caringnews. com and the Right at Home Newsletter.

Gum packages relay anti-drug message

The Detroit-Wayne County Community Mental Health Agency and its substance abuse service providers, the Southeast Michigan Community Alliance and the Detroit Bureau of Substance Abuse are distributing chewing gum packages with an antidrug use message, statement about the recent fentanyl overdoses, and help line numbers.

Part of the ongoing public education and outreach efforts by the Agency and the Fentanyl Substance Abuse Workgroup, which has distributed flyers, run public service announcements, made presentations at community meetings, and participated in educational and academic forums to address an increase in drugs deaths in 2006 related to fentanyl-laced cocaine and heroin.

The statewide 24-hour toll free help line can be reached at (888) 736-0253, the 24hour Crisis and Mental Health Help Line at (800) 241-4949, or the Southeast Michigan Community Alliance at (800) 686-6543.

Why the St. Mary Mercy 25-minute ER promise is greater than zero.

Not waiting in an emergency room sounds good, doesn't it? Our 25>0 ER promise means more than that. At St. Mary Mercy Hospital, you're seen right away-a service we've provided you for years.

What's NEW is that our ER promise goes beyond the front door...and it's greater than before. In fact, we promise you'll see a board-certified doctor in 25 minutes or less. Of course, you'll receive immediate care if necessary.

That's why 25 is greater than zero.

You're seen by a registered nurse certified in cardiac, trauma and pediatric care; and your information is quickly entered into our electronic medical records for accuracy. As you are escorted to a treatment room, your medical information is transferred to a tracking board for treatment updates. Important information that our doctors need before they see you.

25 minutes or less well spent. St. Mary Mercy Hospital...

where award-winning care, including life-saving procedures for heart attacks, such as primary angioplasty and stroke care are offered.
