Fill the Boot

Westland firefighters will take to the streets Thursday through Saturday, Aug. 13-15, for their second annual Fill the Boot fundraiser for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Rainy weather hampered the original fund-raiser in June.

Look for members of the Westland Professional Fire Fighters Union at Wayne and Warren roads, Ford and Wayne roads, Middlebelt and Annapolis, Palmer and Newburgh and Palmer and Merriman.

Family fest

Westland Convalescent and Rehab Center will be filled with family-friendly activities Friday, Aug. 14, when it hosts its second annual Summer Fun Fest, 3:30-7 p.m.

Both the young and the young-at-heart will enjoy hot dogs, hamburgers and ice cream as well as a Moonwalk, games and clowns. In addition, some lucky guests will take home cool prizes, including a gas grill, children's bicycles, restaurant gift cards and even gas gift cards.

Proceeds of this event will benefit The Senior Alliance.

Westland Convalescent and Rehab Center is at 36137 W. Warren Road between Wayne Road and Central City Parkway. For more information, call (734) 728-6100 or go online to www.westlandcc.com.

In concert

Westland Cultural Society's summer concert series continues this evening with a performance by the Birmingham Straw Hat Band at the Performance Pavilion behind William P. Faust Public Library.

Bring a lawn chair or blanket for an evening of Dixieland, polkas and marches. The concert starts at 6 p.m.

The library is at 6123 Central City Parkway, north of Ford Road. For more information, call (734) 722-7620 or (734) 522-3918.

Swap meet

If you're a Happy Meal toy short of having a full collection, stop by the McDonald's at 33921 Ford Road at Radcliff 4-7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 12.

Collectors of the toys, which range from the current Happy Meal Teenie Beanies to characters from movies, are invited to stop by the restaurant from 4-7 p.m. for an informal toy exchange. Bring in your toys and see what you can swap to complete or add to a collection.

For more information, call (734) 721-2919.

Store has more than office equipment

BY SUE MASON
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Robin Sindici has the ABC's covered at her new Office & More store in Westland.

She has accessories for everything from offices to computers, books and plenty of chairs. But there's also antiques, Barbies and clothing available.

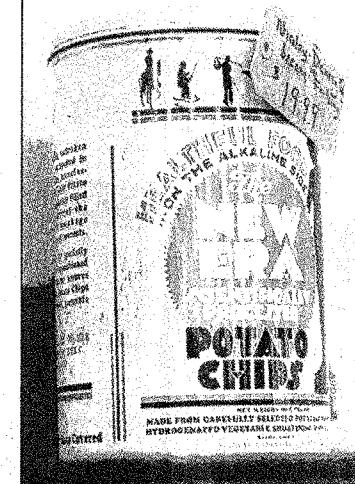

"It's the only place where you can come in one day and then come in the next and it's different," the Livonia resident said. "We're a supply and office store bar none. If you don't see it, ask us. We have a warehouse."

Sindici opened the store last month in a vacant storefront in the West Ridge Shopping Center across Warren Road from Westland Shopping Center. It serves as a liquidator for national office supply companies. Desks, chairs, filing cabinets, credenzas, tables, chairs, projection screens and even artwork for conference rooms are featured in room settings around the former furniture store.

"You actually see what an office can look like," she said. "You can see what you can do."

And there's no need to fear some assembly required. What you see — fully assembled fur-

Curbside recycling: 'Remarkable' start

BY LEANNE ROGERS
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

If the first 21 days are any indication, Westland residents are recyclers.

The first three weeks of the city's new curbside recycling program saw approximately 550 tons of recyclable materials collected, which is more than 1 million pounds of trash diverted from the landfill.

"I really think we are onto something with this program. Residents have really stepped up," Mayor William Wild said. "I have never been more proud of our residents. We asked them to help make Westland a more environmentally friendly city and help control our solid waste disposal costs and they overwhelmingly have done so."

The single-stream curbside

'It's outstanding how well this is going. A lot of people said it wouldn't work in Westland. It's been an outstanding job.'

MICHAEL KEHRER, councilman

recycling program kicked off in late June and allows residents to place all their recyclables into one container with no sorting required. Republic Services collects the recycling on a bi-weekly basis and delivers it to Great Lakes Recycling for processing.

"This is one of the best launches we have ever seen. The quality of the product being recycled is good and resident participation is remarkable," said John Hawthorne of Great Lakes Recycling.

The recycling carts, delivered to all single-family homes in Westland, are equipped with a computer chip that is scanned when the recycling is collected. Residents activate an account with RecycleBank and earn points based on the average amount of material collected. The points can be used for discounts at local and national merchants or donated to nonprofit organizations.

"It's outstanding how well this is going. A lot of people said it wouldn't work in Westland. It's been an outstanding job," Councilman Michael Kehrer said.

Eventually, the program is expected to expand to include mobile home parks and apartment complexes.

When he came back outside, Nguyen was armed with a knife and told the officers he was out of ammunition. After Nguyen went back inside the house, police closed Ford between Wayne Road and Central City Parkway for more than three hours as a precaution against more shots being fired.

Officers eventually forced open the front door of the house after flash bangs — sight and sound disruption devices — and tear gas were unsuccessful in getting Nguyen out of the house. He was found in a bedroom, suffering from self-inflicted knife wounds to his chest, police said.

"We've had minor misdemeanor contact with him (Nguyen). When we talked to him, he was 180 degrees different — he was pretty coherent," Westland police Lt. Dan Kerrick said. "He obviously has some psychiatric issues."

The preliminary examination in 18th District Court for Nguyen was delayed until Thursday, Aug. 27, and he was scheduled for a forensic examination.

niture — is what you get, like a rolltop desk for $99.

There's also reams of paper priced at $4.50, less than major office supplies stores, and hard-to-find items like printer cartridges and type-writer ribbons. Need a pair of reading glasses? Office & More has hundreds of pairs, all priced at $1.49. Looking for clothing for your toddler? There's three-piece Fisher Price outfits priced at $3.99. You can also buy men's flannel shirts for $2.99 and a fleece jacket for $3.99.

That rack caught the eye of Chantique Pringle of Belleville, who spotted the clothing while walking by. The mom-to-be was looking for outfitts for her soon-to-be newborn.

"I walked by and thought, 'Why do they have clothing in a furniture store?'" she said. "I've never seen this before, but at that price, they're a steal."

But you just can't look through the window or at eye level. You have to look up, down and all around to see what else there is — 300 one-of-a-kind Barbie dolls and a mechanical Christmas sleigh from J.L. Hudson.

Shelves are being put up on walls to display even more of the items Sindici once sold in her store in Plymouth's Old Village. There's some 2,000 pieces of vintage costume jewelry, more than 300 autographed photos of movie and rock stars, 300 vintage purses (some dating back to the 1800s) and 400 cameras.

"Every time you turn around, you'll see something different," she said. "That's why it's Office & More, because we have other things."

can share information with 29 cities. We will be able to communicate with communities that we have not been able to communicate with before."

Members of the fire department often find it hard to leave the city for meetings, he said, which can be resolved through the video conferencing. It also saves mileage on vehicles and reduces operating costs, Neal said. It was estimated that the savings would cover the cost of the equipment in less than two years.

John McGuire, who lives on Venoy, was opposed to the city purchasing the equipment although he said he is supportive of the fire department.

"I've put myself in a difficult position. Smoke eaters have always been my heroes," McGuire said, recounting separate medical emergencies in which he and his son were aided by firefighters. "You're getting this from the feds, but this isn't free money, it's taxpayer money. We don't need the equipment and should do without it."

Another resident, Dan

Devlin, recalled his time as a volunteer firefighter in Nankin Township and supported the equipment purchase.

"Any opportunity for the fire department is well-earned," Devlin said.

Once the equipment is installed about a month from now, Neal has invited anyone interested to contact him for a tour to see the video conferencing.

"I'm sensitive that it's a big expense. Once it's in operation, I'll give you a personal tour. You can see for yourself what it does," Neal said.

teacher, that was my niche, and I look forward to working with the district on a larger base and working with the teachers."

Both appointments were praised by school board members.

"I've watched them over these few years take a leadership role in the community," board Vice President Cindy Schofield said. "They took their buildings and transformed them. They took them to a new level and a new height. I'm excited that you will be able to take what you did at your buildings and do it for the school district."

"I think we're so lucky to have them in our school district," board Secretary Martha Pitsenbarger said. "I'm sure a lot of parents at Marshall will be upset, Mr. Salah was very well-liked."

"These are mighty important positions and the board is proud of you and confident in you," Trustee William Gabriel said.

In June, the schoolboard approved the appointment of Sandra Morante Brock as principal of Franklin Middle School.

Brock has a bachelor of arts degree in Spanish and history from the University of Michigan, a master of arts degree in education from Pepperdine University in Malibu, Calif., and a doctoral degree in education administration from Michigan State University.

She taught at Seven Arrows Elementary School in California and as a night and summer school teacher with the South Redford School District before joining Wayne-Westland in 2004 as a history and Spanish teacher. She was appointed assistant principal at Wayne Memorial High School in 2006.

"Thank you for this wonderful opportunity," Brock said. "I will miss my Zebras with all my heart, but I look forward to becoming a Hornet."

"I'm so excited about this appointment," Schofield said. "I've known Sandy for five years and as a parent and as a school board member, I've seen her grow and mature. I'm excited to see what she brings to Franklin and the collaboration that will surely happen between Franklin and Wayne Memorial."

Starfish becomes newest hub for Early Learning Community

Starfish Family Services is partnering with United Way for Southeastern Michigan to become the first neighborhood hub in western Wayne County to offer United Way's Early Learning Community program.

Early Learning
Communities were launched this year to provide free neighborhood-based resources to parents and caregivers of children ages birth through 5 so they are equipped to enter school ready to learn. Starfish is now the sixth ELC Hub in the tri-county area and will service children living in the Garden City, Westland and

Plymouth. "The Great Start Collaborative-Wayne (GSC-W) was able to strongly recommend and support the newest Early Learning Communities (ELC) hub being Starfish Family Services," said Toni Hartke, Director of the Great Start Collaborative-Wayne. "It was logical to expand the ELC initiative beyond the two existing ELC's in Detroit to western Wayne County. The members of the GSC-W help to strengthen the quality of child care for Wayne County children so they are safe, healthy and ready to succeed in school and in life."

Beginning this month, Starfish Family Services will offer more than 20 Early Childhood classes, including preschool development; health and safety, such as CPR, first aid certification and SIDS prevention; nutrition guidance; interactive playgroups and a Lending Library. Computers will also be available for use. Classes will be held primarily at the agency's Family Resource Center at 30000 Hiveley Road in Inkster, with occasional meetings at other locations throughout western Wayne County.

An open house will be held for anyone interested in learning more about the program 5-7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 12, in the Family Resource Center. Childcare and food will be available and prizes given out. A schedule of classes also will be provided. For more information, call Kristen Chateau at (734) 727-3114.

The Early Learning Communities provide free resources to ensure children start school prepared and ready to learn. They aim to advance opportunities for early development and learning of children in the preschool years. The ELC is facilitated by a neighborhood organization to allow eligible individuals and groups, such as grandparents, friends, relatives and neighbors who provide childcare to young children, licensed home-based and center-based providers and parents to receive training and resources that are convenient and personalized to their needs.

ELC offers an Incentive Program to earn points, certifications and other rewards for participating in ELC events. The points can be redeemed for gift cards or professional development opportunities to help advance childcare skills and quality. ELC Hubs are also located in Warren, Roseville, Hazel Park and Detroit.

Starfish Family Services offers programs to help educate and empower vulnerable families and children in western Wayne County. These include free preschool programs, a crisis shelter for teens, family enrichment activities and a comprehensive array of behavioral health services. The agency serves more than 9,000 children and their families at its numerous service sites each year. More information can be found at www.starfishonline.org.

Toastmasters offer youth chance to speak

BY LEANNE ROGERS
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Bill Tremper will be the first to confirm that being able to speak well in public increases self-confidence.

"I like to talk. I used to be tongue-tied and shy. I joined the Toastmasters several years ago — they brought me out of my shell and I'm eternally grateful for that," said Tremper, a member of the Westland Easy Talkers Toastmasters.

Tremper was in his mid-40s when he originally joined Toastmasters but he'd like to see local teens gain the benefits he received from the group. To that end, the Toastmasters are offering a free Youth Leadership public speaking training program for junior and high school students.

"I hope we can start the classes in the next two or three weeks. We want to give back through this program," said Tremper. "This would be the first time for us to offer this program. It's a leadership program. It builds confidence. It gets rid of the ums, ahs, you know and like. It teaches responsibility."

'This is in the beginning stages. I think it is a wonderful opportunity for youths. It will provide an opportunity to share with others, build camaraderie and in terms of confidence, it's a great confidence booster.'

PAUL MOTZ, Westland Youth Assistance director

Tremper is hoping that 10 students will participate in the 10-week program which will culminate in their each making a two- to three-minute speech at a banquet.

To find those students, Tremper has been in contact with Westland Youth Assistance and will also work with Wayne-Westland school officials.

"This is in the beginning stages. I think it is a wonderful opportunity for youths. It will provide an opportunity to share with others, build camaraderie and in terms of confidence, it's a great confidence booster," said Westland Youth Assistance Director Paul Motz. "Let's face it, public speaking is one of the biggest fears people have. Dealing with one of those fears at a young age, a person gets a leg up."

Just getting involved with a group of interested adults like the Toastmasters can be beneficial to youngsters, he said.

"When kids are intertwined with the community, they are more likely to make better choices," said Motz. "The more different opportunities for kids to be involved in the community, the better off we all will be."

Toastmasters is also offering a short public speaking course for adults in business, education, industry and government. The cost for the adult program is $10.

$249 million grant targets battery technology

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Michigan has turned a new page in its industrial history, and the city of Livonia may be a part of a chapter yet to be written on battery technology.

Vice President Joe Biden announced Wednesday that $1.35 billion in federal grants will be awarded to 12 projects in Michigan to support advanced battery and electric vehicle manufacturing and development.

Gov. Jennifer Granholm visited A123 Systems in Livonia Thursday to highlight that company's $249.1 million grant from the Department of Energy at the site of what will be the company's new regional headquarters and production facility.

The grant will help A123 develop a strategy for constructing lithium ion battery manufacturing facilities in the United States with the first construction location in Livonia. Under the grant's terms, A123 will be required to match the funds over time as they are spent. Grant funding comes from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act's electric drive vehicle battery and component manufacturing initiative.

A123 will be located at 39000 Seven Mile, just west of I-275. Company officials would not comment Thursday on specific plans for the building.

A123 officials said the manufacturing system is expected to be U.S.-based with research and development, manufacturing of the company's proprietary Nanophosphate cathode powder, electrode coating, cell fabrication, module fabrication and so on through the final assembly of complete battery pack systems for vehicle integration.

David Vieau, A123 Systems president and chief executive officer, said battery development will reduce the dependency on foreign oil and lead to cleaner air. "We hope to be a big part of that," he said.

A123's Mujeeb Ijaz talks with Gov. Jennifer Granholm about the battery systems.

The grants were necessary to help with capital investment in factories, he said.

"With the recession, the cash was tightening up," Vieau said. "Battery factories require a lot of cash." The grants allow companies to fulfill commitments, he said.

A123 was born out of the research labs of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and was funded initially with a $100,000 grant from the Department of Energy in 2001. The company says it has raised more than $350 million in private capital from investors, including GE. The company will make lithium-ion batteries for Chrysler.

The press conference gave A123 officials a chance to thank state, county and local officials for the grants and tax incentives to A123, and allowed state, county and city officials a chance to thank A123 for locating in Livonia and facilities in Brownstown Township and Romulus.

Granholm thanked A123 for choosing Michigan. More than half of the federal grant money was going to Michigan, she said. That level of opportunity was a "game-changer," she said.

"With this seismic shift, we want people to understand how significant this is for Livonia," Granholm said. Statewide the grant's projects are estimated to create 6,800 jobs in the next 18 months and up to 40,000 jobs by 2020. A123 is expected to create 300 new jobs by 2011 in Livonia and another 500 more at a later date.

Earlier this year Granholm signed into law legislation providing refundable tax credits to encourage companies to develop and manufacture advanced batteries. In April, the Michigan Economic Growth Authority approved $400 million in refundable advanced battery tax credits for A123 Systems and three other companies.

"We worked and cooperated in a bipartisan way," said Sen.

Glenn Anderson, D-Westland, who also represents Livonia, referring to the tax credits granted to battery companies. "This investment represents exactly how federal, state and local officials can come together to support local businesses and move toward diversifying and reenergizing Michigan's economy," Anderson said.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Bishop called it "great day for Michigan."

County Executive Robert Ficano said A123 was a company working in a developing economy in a traditional industry of automobiles. "You could have chosen any place in the world, but you chose Wayne County and Livonia," Ficano said, referring to the Watertown, Mass.-based company. A123 is currently manufacturing in Asia, but will bring 90 percent of its operations to the U.S. next year, Vieau said.

State Rep. John Walsh, R-Livonia, admitted it was difficult to vote for tax incentives for companies while cutting the budget.

"We're competing with other locations," Walsh said. "Investors and companies are going to be looking at taxes, and we need an active MEDC (Michigan Economic Development Corporation) to compete with other states for locating their business. These companies can go anywhere, and they do. It's a bottom-line decision."

Even if the jobs created were only half of the 40,000 projected, Walsh said it is still a significant number of jobs. "If people have jobs, they buy houses and pay taxes, and that increases revenue, helps the communities and increases the values of the homes," Walsh said. "The more jobs, the better off we'll be."

Mayor Jack Kirksey, a one-time school principal, called it an outstanding lesson from a civics textbook of all levels of government working together on an issue. Kirksey cited his city's work on local tax breaks in discussions with Maria Thompson, general manager of A123's governmental solutions group, along with Turkia Mullin, director of Wayne County's Economic Development, who helped the city lobby to get A123 to come to Livonia, and the Michigan Economic Development Authority, which approved the state's tax credits.

"There's a lot of competition with other venues, and to get (A123) here, we are absolutely delighted," Kirksey said.

Careless smoking blamed for apartment fire

BY LEANNE ROGERS
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Careless smoking is being blamed for a fire Friday morning that damaged a unit at the Landings Apartments in Westland.

The fire was reported about 8 a.m. in a third-floor apartment in a building at 6654 Lakeview. The complex is located at the corner Warren Road and Central City Parkway.

"The gentleman was smoking a cigarette in the bedroom. He left the cigarette unattended while he was in the restroom and the table top ignited," Westland fire Capt. Colleen Pennington said. "There was nail polish remover in the area and other combustibles."

The 19-year-old man attempted to extinguish the fire himself, but soon realized that wasn't going to be possible, Pennington said, then got the other occupants

— a 19-year-old woman and three children — out of the apartment. The children, siblings of one of the adults, had spent the night, but don't normally live at the apartment.

"The apartment was on the third floor, so the fire went up into attic but didn't spread. There is water damage to other apartments," Pennington said. "The damage was mainly in the bedroom of the apartment, but smoke damage throughout."

Noting there are 1,000 deaths annually in the United States due to smoking-related home fires, Pennington said the fire department recommends that smokers take their habit outside.

"Basically, most smoking-related fires start in bed. People fall asleep or put the ashes into a trash can when the cigarette isn't put out," Pennington said. "If you are going to smoke, smoke outside. That's the safest thing."

Insurance: Buy what suits your situation

Q: Dear Rick: I am a single mom with two children ages 7 and 9. I need to buy life insurance to protect the kids if I am not around.

I've talked to my homeowner's insurance agent who has recommended a type of whole life insurance.

My parents recommended a term life policy. My insurance agent said that the downside of term insurance is that it gets very expensive down the road. Considering the ages of my children, how should I proceed?

A: I agree with your parents and recommend term insurance for you. As far as I am concerned, for the great majority of people, term is the best type of insurance available.

There are a number of reasons why I like term insurance better than whole life or other types of insurance. First, term insurance is relatively straightforward and simple and it's much easier to receive competitive bids. The only issues are how much insurance you want, how long and do you want the return of premium option.

In whole life or other types of permanent insurance, there are a variety of issues and the policies are much more complex and difficult to understand. In addition, it is hard to compare whole life or permanent types of insurance policies because of the different variables.

One reason I am a big fan of term insurance is because most people do not need insurance for their entire lives. You need insurance while your two children are still on your payroll. Once your children are independent and on their own, you no longer need insurance. With term insurance you are able to buy insurance for a fixed period of time. When you buy a whole life, universal life or some of the other permanent type of policy, you are paying a much higher price because you have coverage for your entire life. My view is: Why pay for something you do not need?

The most important reason I like term insurance is you can cover your insurance needs at a fraction of the cost of a whole life policy.

Whole life insurance is sold more than term insurance because there are greater commissions on whole life.

Term insurance is straightforward, simple to understand and offers few options. These are 1) the length of time that you want to be insured — 5 years, 10 years, 20 years or 30 years; 2) the amount of insurance that you need 3) whether you want a return of premium option.

The return of premium option works like this. If you hold the policy and pay the premiums to the end of term, you receive all your premiums back.

This sounds like a can't-lose situation. Either you collect on the insurance if you pass on during the term of the policy or at the end of the policy you get your money back. It sounds great. However, the reality is somewhat different. Selecting a return-of-premium option increases your premium. It becomes a forced savings vehicle. In addition, on many of these policies if you cancel the policy before the end of term you receive nothing back.

I am not a fan of the return-of-premium option. My philosophy is insurance is not an investment. It is a matter of risk management and there are much better investment vehicles than an insurance policy. Therefore, in the majority of cases I do not recommend a return-of-premium option.

Life insurance is important when it comes to personal financial planning. If you do need life insurance, the key is to buy what suits your situation. Shop around for competitive bids and don't get caught up with aggressive sales people.

A good insurance agent, and there are many out there, is one who doesn't worry about commissions, but rather whose goal is to match you with the correct policy. Good luck!

Education for life.

Faith for living.

When you send your children to school you are, in essence, preparing them for a life that will not always include you. Among the many important lessons they will learn, one of the most significant is learning to be independent.

In our schools we treat every child as an individual with unique gifts, and we help them find the confidence to share those gifts. We teach them to welcome every challenge with strength, with faith, and with self-assurance, and to make decisions of which they can be proud. As they learn, your children will come to believe in themselves and their capabilities – a wonderful consequence of our commitment to provide education for life, and faith for living.

Koalas are not your average bear

Not too many people know this, but the koala is not really a bear. Many people began calling them koala bears because of their apparent similarity to teddy bears. A baby koala is called a joey and is hairless, blind and earless. At birth, the joey is only a quarter of an inch long and they spend the next six months of their lives living in their mother's pouch, drinking their mother's milk.

Koalas rest motionless for about 15 to 18 hours a day, sleeping most of that time because of their low metabolism. They usually spend three of their five waking hours a day eating 18 ounces of eucalypt leaves. Koalas have to eat constantly because their natural food is very low in protein. For most animals, eucalypt leaves are indigestible and contain substances that are toxic to many species.

There are only about 100,000 koalas left in the wild and are listed as a priority species for conservation status assessment by the Australian government. In the early part of the 20th century, koalas were almost driven to extinction because they were commonly hunted for their fur. Now they face the additional threats of a shrinking habitat.

If you want to see a koala in America you will have to visit a zoo, and if you want to learn more about koalas you can visit the Westland Public Library. You can start by checking out the book "Koalas: Australia's Ancient Ones" by Ken Phillips or watching the video, "World of the Koala."

We also have a number of books about koalas for children, including "Koalas," "Koala Magic for Kids" by Kathy Feeney, "A Koala Is Not a Bear" by Hannelore Sczak and Bobbie Kalman and "The Koala Book" by Ann Sharp.

To learn more about how to save the koala visit the Australia Koala Foundation's website at www.savethekoala.com.

At 40, McLaren races to the future

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Racing legend Johnny Rutherford remembers when he started his association with McLaren Racing in the early 1970s.

He rattled off his Indy 500 finishes: a first-place win in 1974, a second-place finish in 1975 and another win in 1976, all with McLaren.

"For me it was perfect," Rutherford said. "In about seven years, it was a great experience and great relationships. It's the key to success in anything in business and in life. Tyler Alexander and I just really hit it off. It took us a year to get comfortable in 1974, but then it was 'High Ho Silver.'"

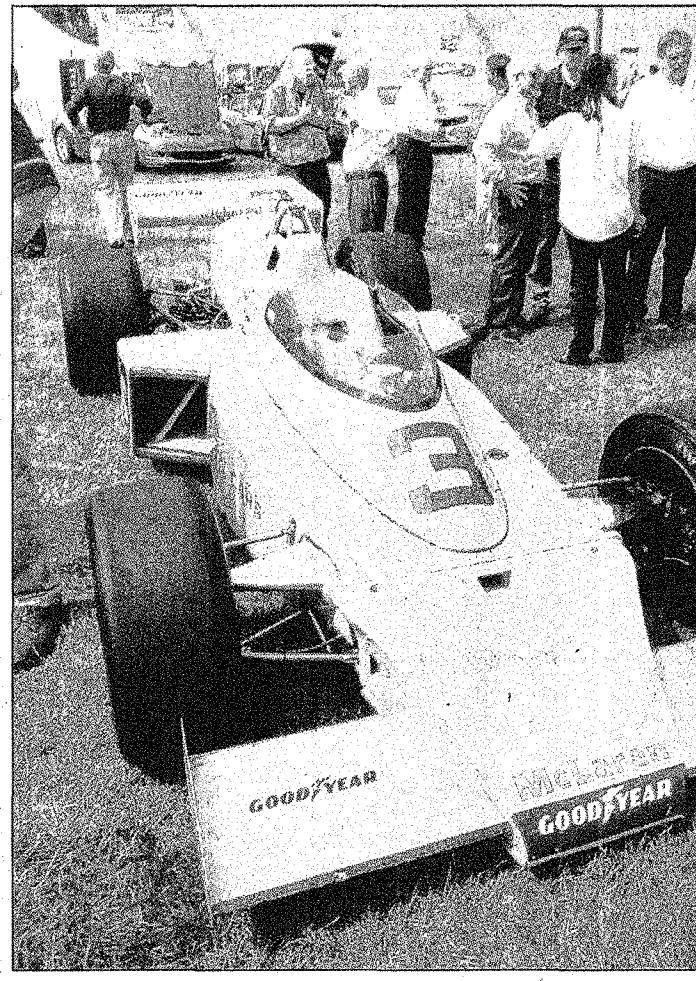

Rutherford, Alexander, racing legend Bobby Rahal and other racing officials gathered at McLaren Performance Technologies recently to celebrate the company's racing heritage and history, and catch a glimpse of the company's future in researching and developing powertrain and driveline engineering.

McLaren recently received tax breaks from the city of Livonia and the state to add a $8.5 million 10,000-square-foot expansion for driveline development.

McLaren Performance Technologies was founded as McLaren Engines by Bruce McLaren, and partners Alexander H. William (Bill) Smith and Teddy Mayer to build racing engines for Team McLaren's Can Am and Indy Cars. After Bruce McLaren Motor Racing left the U.S. racing scene in 1980 to concentrate on Formula 1, McLaren Engines reinvented itself as an automotive powertrain engineering company and serving Detroit-based OEMs (original equipment manufacturers).

Today McLaren Performance Technologies is a subsidiary of Linamar Corp, a Canadian supplier of powertrain components.

The event celebrated the "Canadian-American spirit of cooperation, embodied by the original Can-Am Racing Crowds gather behind Indy 500 cars.

Services," said Wiley McCoy, former McLaren CEO and organizer of the event.

McCoy highlighted several milestones for the company: the Can-Am racing series in 1969-72, the Cosworth turbo DFX engine for Indy in 1976, the BMW IMSA racing program in 1977, and the Cadillac LeMans in 1999.

"Not many companies can claim this (work) in a lot of different areas," McCoy said.

The company will focus its future on transmission development and energy, particularly with the company's expansion.

The expansion will help the company set up a dynamometer development lab for gear train systems, according to Phil Guys, vice president, engineering for McLaren.

Two state-of-the-art drive-line test cells measure accuracy of the gear transmission and durability, Guys said. "It's extremely important for us to have tools to give us precise information to create the next generation of product," Guys said.

The company will test and develop power train units (which takes the torque from the front to the back) and rear differential units (distributes the torque to the two rear wheels).

McLaren also will embark on a solar energy project as well for its parent company.

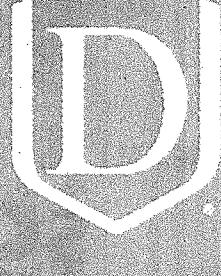

In 2008 the company won a development contract with Sterling Energy Systems for a power conversion unit. Guys said the company has won two major driveline contracts with one American company and one European company, but he would not discuss details of those contracts.

Livonia netter Dube looks forward to nationals

BY BRAD EMONS
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Joseph Dube doesn't hand out any easy grades when it comes to assessing his performance recently in the junior tennis ranks.

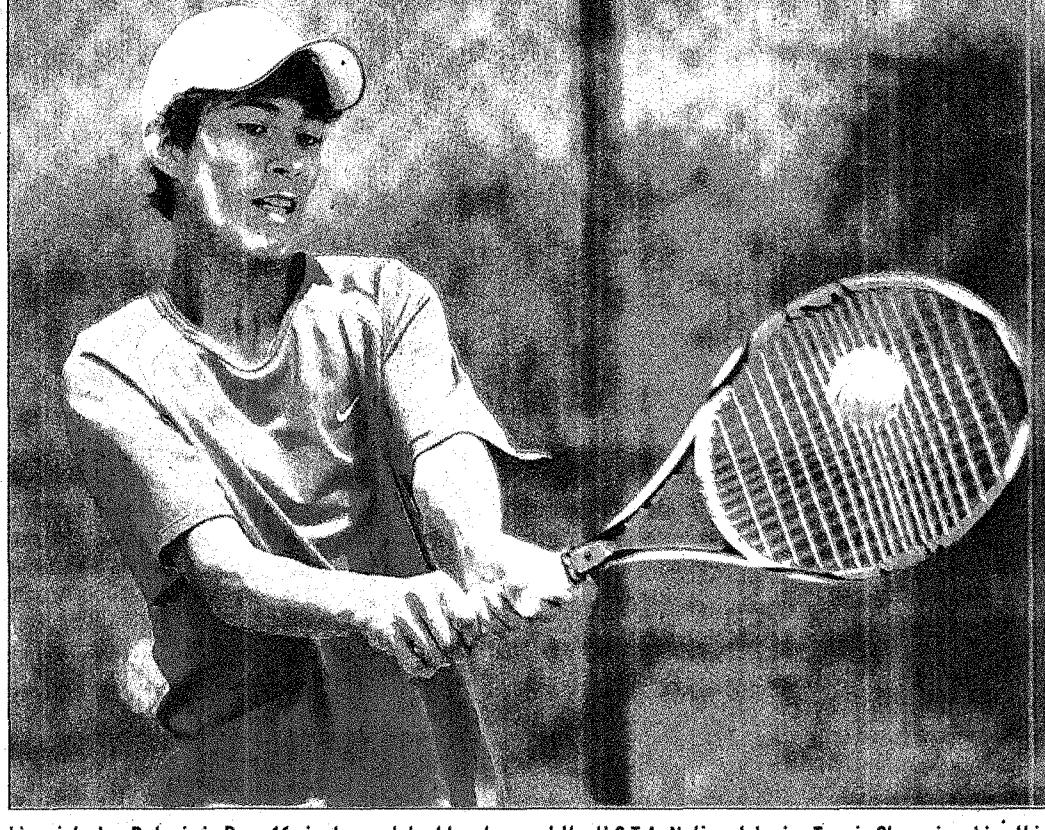

"It's been decent, but it could have been better," said Dube, a Livonia native who will be a junior this fall at Novi-Detroit Catholic Central High School. "I've had better summers."

Dube may be a bit too harsh on himself considering what he has accomplished during the past year, which includes a 66-31 overall record, a No. 1 ranking in the Southeastern Michigan Tennis Association and a trip this weekend to the prestigious U.S. Tennis Association Junior Nationals in Kalamazoo.

Dube, ranked No. 171 nationally for his age group and sixth in the Midwest Tennis Association, earned a first-round bye in singles and will play the winner of Saturday's first-round match between Ryan Smith (Weston, Fla.) and Becker O'Shaughnessy (Macon, Ga.). Dube will also team up with Ben Shkyar (Riverwoods, Ill.), ranked No. 22 in the Midwest, in doubles.

Livonia's Joe Dube is in Boys 16 singles and doubles draws at the U.S.T.A. National Junior Tennis Championships this weekend in Kalamazoo.

Josh Gatt, a soccer standout for Novi-Detroit Catholic Central and the Michigan Wolves, now is making an impact in the Discover Europe International Showcase.

Plymouth's Gatt in 'Discovery' mode in Europe

BY TIM SMITH
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

There's no denying that Josh Gatt is in the midst of a once-in-a-lifetime experience.

Gatt, a Plymouth resident, is an elite soccer player at home with Novi-Detroit Catholic Central and the developmental Michigan Wolves.

But he currently is competing until mid-August at the U.S. Football Club SuperElite Discover Europe International Showcase in places like Austria, Germany and Belgium.

"It is a huge honor to make it into such a great tournament," said Gatt, a talented outside midfielder for the Shamrocks and Wolves who one day would love to do a World Cup. "It is something that I have always dreamed of and for it to be a reality is simply amazing."

"To play with this much talent from all over the U.S. and to then take that team (Discover Europe) and compete against the top youth talent in Europe is something that I did not believe was possible. Now that it is here, I can only say that I am as fired up as I have ever been about soccer and playing at the next level."

Gatt said he earned a spot with Discover Europe by way of his performances at the Michigan Wolves/Derby County Wolves Academy Showcases and Adidas ESP (Elite Soccer Player) Camp.

"They have seen me play in all those showcases and apparently liked the way I played," noted Josh. "It was a process that has taken over a year."

The Michigan Wolves were considered the top

U18 team during the U.S. Development Academy regular season.

LOOKING TO FUTURE

Meanwhile, there was plenty to like, namely Gatt's ability to attack from the outside or leave defenders in the dust with his combination of speed and power.

Of course, the current tour (which began on July 24 and is designed to spotlight U.S. talent to European pro scouts) is whetting Gatt's appetite about how far he can go in soccer.

First comes his senior season at Catholic Central.

"The impact this would have on my team is being able to take all my knowledge and experience I learned in Europe," Gatt said, "and see if I could relate what I learned to my fellow teammates and make us a stronger team and a contender for a state title."

He already has verbally committed to playing collegiate soccer at Indiana beginning in fall 2010 but is also at least thinking about turning pro someday.

"I am trying to put this all in perspective and be realistic about it and take whatever comes from this as a positive stepping stone for my soccer career," added Gatt, who certainly wouldn't mind returning to Europe to compete in the World Cup.

But first, there's some unfinished 'discovering' for Gatt to do.

Michigan Rams' manager savors Johnstown trip

BY BRAD EMONS
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The 6-hour car ride to the All-American Amateur Baseball Association Tournament in Johnstown, Pa. never gets old for Michigan Rams manager Rick Berryman.

Representing the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League, the 20-and-under Rams will open the 16-team, double-elimination tournament Monday following the draw on Sunday.

This will be Berryman's eighth trip to the hills of western Pennsylvania and the site of the historic flood.

Teams from Johnstown, Altoona (Pa.), Zanesville (Ohio), Brooklyn (N.Y.), Buffalo (N.Y.), Columbus (Ohio), Elk County (Pa.), Lansing, New Orleans (La.), Schenectady (N.Y.), Washington (D.C.), Youngstown (Ohio), Toledo (Ohio), New Brunswick (N.J.) and Philadelphia (Pa.) will join the Livonia-based Rams at the tournament.

And for the Rams manager, the novelty never wears off.

"Johnstown is a very historic and one of the unique tournaments," said Berryman, who also doubles as the baseball coach at Livonia Stevenson High School. "It's been going since the 1940s. It's a small town and the whole town gets into it. And if you draw that first (Monday) night game at Point Stadium, you'll see 8,000 or 9,000 fans. There's the parade and the fireworks - against the backdrop of the mountains - it's what makes it unique."

"The other thing that makes it special for the teams is that they pay for your housing and two meals per day, which most tournaments don't do."

Berryman's squad finished runner-up with a 22-10 record in the wooden-bat LCBL to the 22-and-under Michigan Bulls, who posted a league-best 26-6 mark.

The Rams, 23-13 overall, will start left-hander Tom Hansen in Monday's AAABA opener.

After a stellar season at Madonna University where he went 8-2 with a 3.52 earned run average, Hansen continued his strong mound work this summer with the Rams going 6-2 with an 0.46 ERA with 40 strikeouts.

"He was a late addition and he's been the biggest surprise," Berryman said of the Rochester Adams grad. "He's not a large man (5 feet, 11 inches, 158 pounds), but he's thrown wonderfully all year. He's got a good fastball, a great changeup and a great curveball. And he just gets people out."

Berryman said that Wayne State's Brady Cooper, who is 2-2 with an 0.88 ERA with 38 K's, will most likely get the call to start on Tuesday.

"He's another guy under a 1.00 ERA and the won-loss record doesn't reflect how well he's pitched," Berryman said.

Meanwhile, the offense starts with lead-off batter Aaron Cieslak, a Dearborn Divine Child High grad who has signed with Oakland University after playing this spring at Kellogg Community College.

The center fielder leads the Rams with a .388 batting average and sports a team-best .500 on base percentage. He also leads the Rams with 41 hits and is second in RBI with 22 only behind teammate Jason Forster, an infielder from Spring Arbor College who has 28 (while batting .366).

"Aaron came out hitting from the first game and has been hitting all year," Berryman said. "He's had no slumps and he's a tremendous center fielder, especially at (Livonia's) Ford Field because he's been worth so many outs."

Needless to say, Dube is excited and is looking forward to the challenge.

"This is my first time," he said. "It's the biggest tourney. I heard it's a lot of fun and good competition."

Dube's coach at the Franklin Racquet Club, Grant Asher, who played high school tennis in East Lansing with former ATP pro Todd Martin, is one of the Joseph Dube's biggest advocates.

"He's separated himself by his work ethic and passion about the game," said Asher, who played at Michigan State and currently serves as head men's tennis coach at the University of Detroit Mercy. "He's developing his game to another level and he's unique because he can play a variety of ways. He can take the net and play the power game, but also has the ability to outlast an opponent from the baseline."

"And he has the desire. He wants to continue to develop his game."

Dube is a tireless worker who is always willing to improve. Just during the past month he played in the Northeast Zone Team Championships in St. Louis, Mo. (sporting a 3-2 record representing SEMTA); captured the Schoolcraft College Junior Open (July 17-19); and played in the Lexington, Ky. Hard Courts.

What earned Dube's ticket to Kalamazoo was winning the SEMTA Qualifier (the highlight of his season) in May followed by a 6-2 record at the Midwest Closed Junior Championships held in June in Indianapolis, Ind.

"I've been working on my footwork, moving quicker from side-to-side," Dube said. "They (Franklin Racquet Club) have a program through the DMC (Detroit Medical Center) where I work out two times per week on my strength and flexibility.

"My strengths are that I can play all-court. I can come to the net, but I pick my spots."

I have a good relationship with my coach. He's a nice guy, but he is pushing me to the limits."

Dube began playing tennis at the Livonia Family Y at age six under the direction of head pro Jack Kingsbury and teaching pro Bob Miller. He began to play competitive tournaments at age nine.

His father Dan, a French Canadian, is retired from United Parcel Service, will accompany him to Kalamazoo. His mother Seny, a nurse assistant at Angela Hospice and a native of the Philippines, will stay with younger brother Michael, another promising tennis player in the Dube family who is ranked No. 19 in the Midwest and No. 5 in SEMTA in the Boys 14s.

Joseph Dube, who carries a 4.0 grade-point average at CC and would like to study medicine, is undecided where he would like to go to college.

He enters the fall high school season as the MHSAA Division 1 runner-up at No. 1 singles after leading the Shamrocks to a runner-up team finish.

"I haven't really looked at colleges yet, I really haven't thought about it," said Dube, who is rated a four-star Rising Junior in the Class of 2011 by TennisRecruiting.Net.

That could all change after a week in Kalamazoo as Dube looks to make the grade.

"He's going to go this weekend to the premier junior tournament in the country and he's one of the 196 best players," Asher said. "Sure, there's pressure with the all the college coaches being there, but we're just going to keep the blinders on, make sure he continues to concentrate on his footwork and his game. He should fare well, and he has the game to do it."

Quite a bite

The Motor City Bulldogs wrapped up a successful 2009 campaign by placing fifth in the 24-team BPA World Series recently held in Indiana. Coached by Ken Montroy, Rob Moyers, Dallas Kidd and Ron Hollenbeck, the Garden City-based Bulldogs compiled a 38-5-1 season mark that included a perfect 17-0-1 ledger in Northwest Suburban League 11U play. The team also placed first in three tournaments. Making it all happen were team members pictured above (front row, l-r) Sammy Hollenbeck, Donovan Sheridan, Jacob Lesdesma, Jordan Pressley, (middle) Jarid Latham, Vinnie Bakerian, Robbie Moyers, Cody Montroy, Frankie Lucska, A.J. Storm-ing through Almont

What a season for the 12U Canton Storm, winning all five games at the recent Almont Baseball Tournament for yet another tourney victory. Members of the Storm include: (front row, from left) Mike Noe, Pete Carravallah, Ryan Watson, Alex Zoltowski, Mike Vernon; (back row, from left) coach Mike Noe, Dom Murphy, Colin Staub, Dante Toppi, Tyler Brooks, coach Pat Watson. Popular Gavie tourney rolls on

The 73rd Annual John P. Gavie Memorial Tournament will take place on Monday, Aug. 17, at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park. As in past seasons, this event marks the actual "kick-off" of the new bowling season.

What is different this year is that the newly formed World Series of Bowling is taking up the entire month of August at Thunderbowl, and then some. Some very smart people got together and figured out a way to squeeze in the Gavie, so this grand Detroit tradition rolls on.

The Gavie has always been a popular event among our local bowlers and enthusiasts, with a rich history dating way back to the '40s. In those days this tournament was organized and run by John P. Gavie who was also known as the Night Mayor of Detroit.

Back then one of the highlights was the motorcade parade up Woodward Avenue to the State Fair Grounds.

This is a five-member team tournament with separate divisions for Seniors (3 p.m.), Women and Open entry divisions starting at 7 p.m. The 4th Annual Frank Gavie Youth Tournament is slated for Saturday, Aug. 15, with scholarship money to be awarded. For entry forms and additional information, call Kathy King at (313) 928-4688 idngthunderbowl@yahoo.com or Frank Gavie (586) 773-1544.

Ed Burns of Westland brings sad news that Doug Uhl passed away recently. He was 83 and had retired to Seminole, Fla. He had moved there from Livonia in 1996.

Many bowlers in the Wayne/Westland area will have fond memories as Doug had been in the Wayne-Westland Men's Bowling Association (WWMBA) and served in the American Bowling Congress on a part-time basis for 23 years.

He was buried with military honors on July 28 at Bay Pines National Cemetery. He had served his country in World War II and Korea. He had worked for General Motors as a contract salesman. He was a great guy and long time secretary of the association.

Al Harrison is a resident of Southfield, a member of the Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame and the Bowling Writers Association of America. He can be reached by email: tenpinalley710@yahoo.com.

Jump-start the school year with reading, routines

BY JULIE BROWN
O&E STAFF WRITER

The start of school's still a ways off, but local educators have some common sense advice for parents on getting young kids off to a good start.

Jan Blumberg, principal of Henry Ruff Elementary in the Garden City district, says parents can begin developing a routine for September now. They can start gradually with earlier bedtimes and evening rituals.

Morning wakeup times also should be earlier. Children need time for a good breakfast, as well as grooming, and should be able to pick clothes independently. Children need comfortable, washable clothes, layered and clearly labeled with the child's name.

Blumberg, a Canton resident, suggests talking about school, perhaps with a countdown calendar. Kids need time to voice hopes, dreams and fears about school.

Walking the school route now is a good idea, especially for kindergartners, and parents can drive the school route now "so that it becomes a comfortable part of normal routine," Blumberg said.

Parents can talk about expectations and beliefs. Parents who didn't have positive school experiences should "think before they speak and talk about how important it (education) is."

Children should understand appropriate behavior and expectations, such as the need to wait and use "manner words" like please and thank you. It's good to work on reading, writing and math in the summer, and public library resources and good Web sites will help.

A good idea is a journal or album of the child's summer, with writing and artwork, Blumberg said.

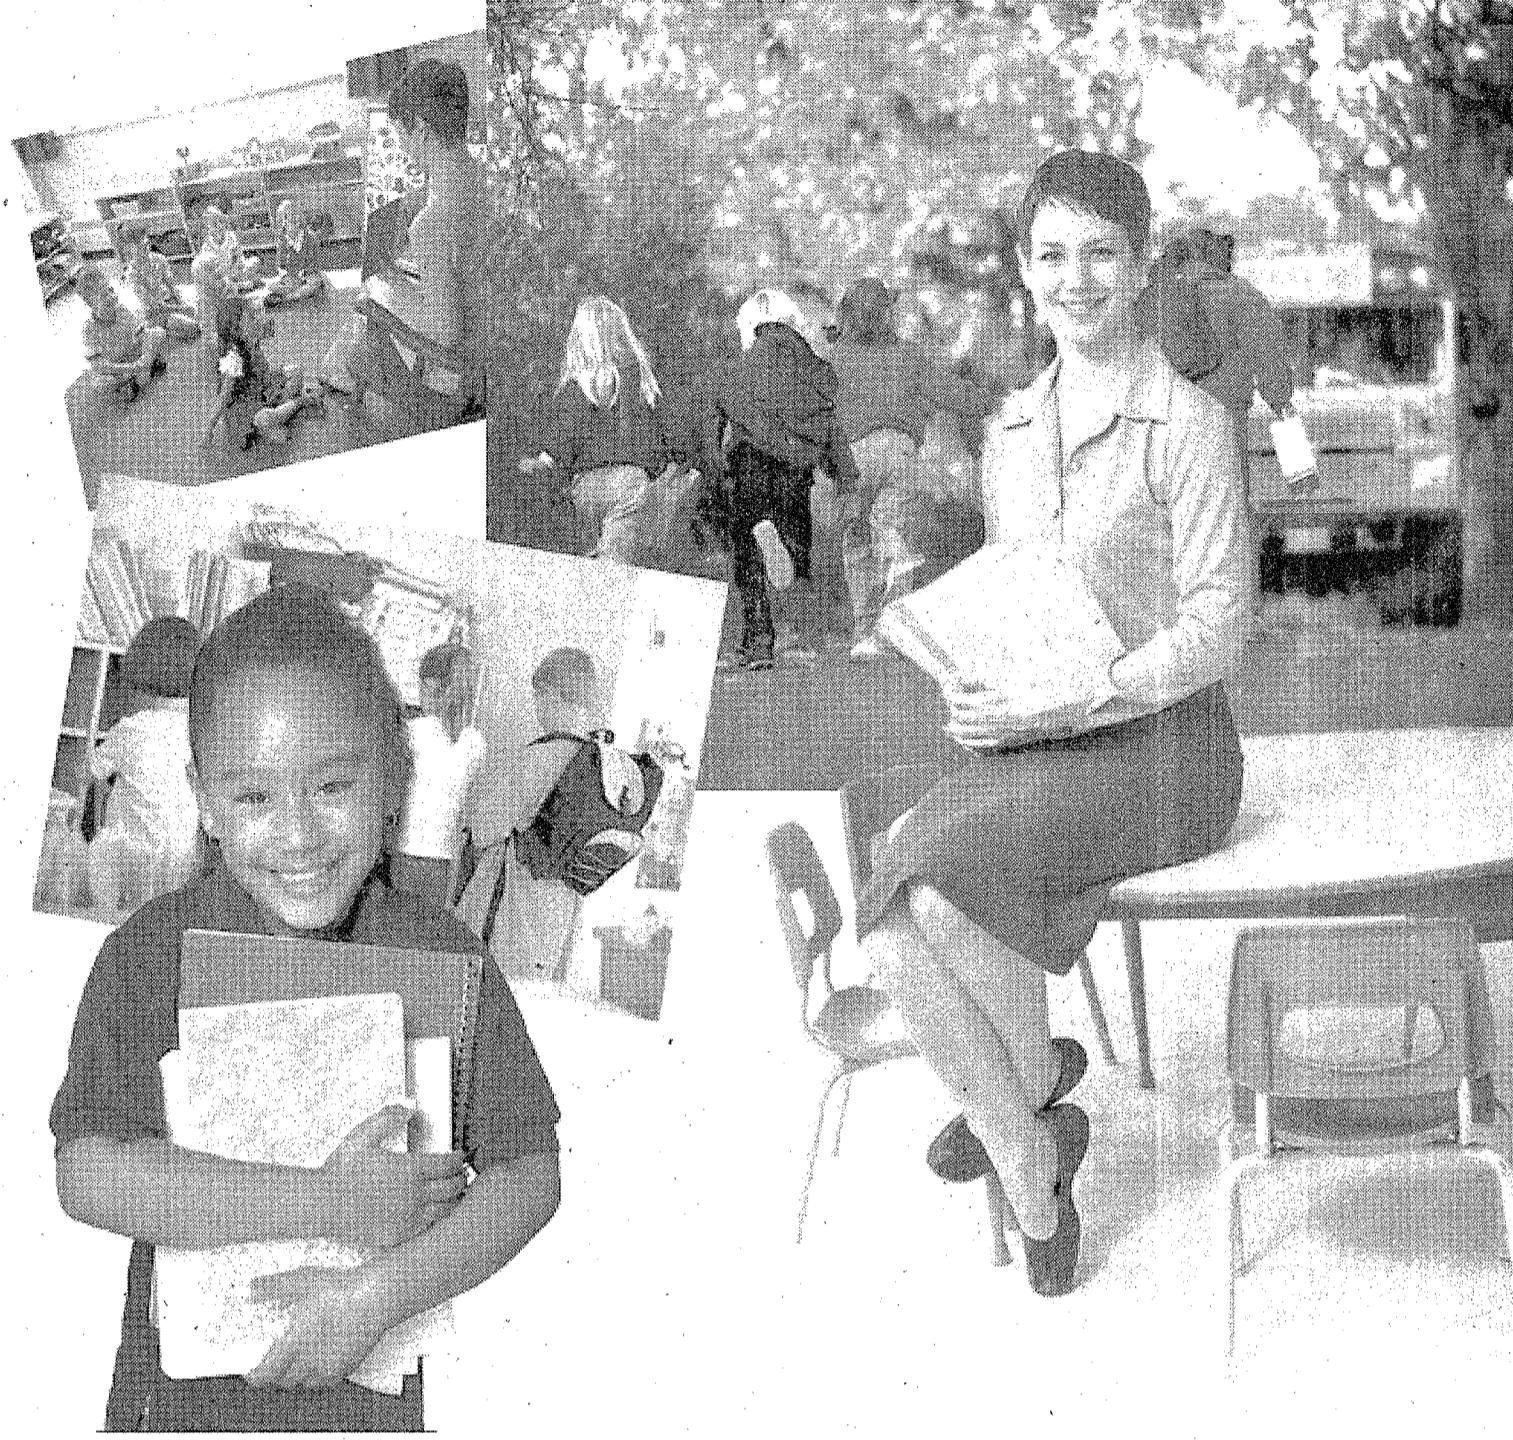

"Have fun with the children during the year," she said. Many worry now about making ends meet financially, but they need to remember the kids. "If they can put their kids first, everything's going to work out," Blumberg said.

FAMILY DINNER

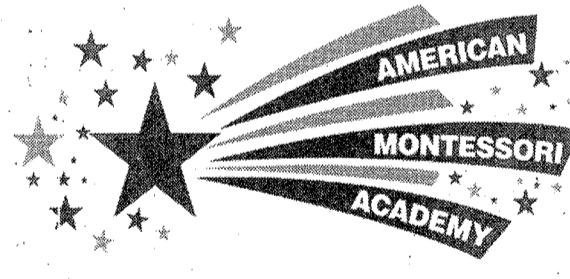

Priscilla David, a fourth-grade teacher at Grant Elementary in the Livonia district, also looks forward to a great school year. Livonia resident David agreed starting school year routines now is good. That includes a good breakfast and dinners together as a family.

It's vital to work out how to handle homework and

Some problems remain the same

The gentleman called the radio show and informed me that his 20-year-old side by side refrigerator was no longer cooling at all. It was kitchen temperature inside the product and he wondered if he should just junk it and go out and purchase a new one.

After asking a few questions I directed the man to pull the refrigerator out away from the wall and remove the cardboard cover on the lower back portion of the refrigerator. He did so and informed me that the compressor was hot to the touch. He noticed that the fan blade on the cooling motor was not turning and he touched it with his finger which prompted it turn at full speed.

Through trial and error this person discovered what was wrong with his refrigerator.

Now it was a simple matter of changing the fan motor. Not a difficult job for any homeowner, he removed the three screws that hold the motor into a bracket and replaced it himself. The old motor had a dry bearing and would only work some of the time. The compressor overheated and stopped cooling.

Another person called and said the jam on the top shelf in the refrigerator was warm and so was the rest of the refrigerator section. I asked him to open the door and press in on the light switch button to see if the light goes out. It didn't and so the light stayed on while the refrigerator was operating. The person replaced the light switch and solved the problem themselves.

Speaking of light switches

I've read where there is a problem with a certain model of LG refrigerators. The light switch is failing and causing the plastic covers to melt and create smoke inside the refrigerator. They are using two 60-watt light bulbs which will cause any plastic piece to possibly catch fire. I expect we will hear more on this problem as soon as it has been reported to the Product Safety Commission.

The major appliances of today are still made with many of the basic concepts incorporated many years ago. Yes, there is a ton of electronics designed to make appliances more energy efficient than ever before and these have proven to be very expensive repair tabs for consumers.

needing service. Even so, I still maintain that the do-it-yourselfer can do many of the repairs necessary when the need arises. Many times all a homeowner needs is a little direction on how to take the product apart and the rest is common sense. The problem is sometimes finding a place to call or a service technician who will take the time to explain what has to be done in order to save the expense of a service call. This has always been an age-old problem. The manufacturers may direct you to a toll-free number which allows you to speak to someone in a far off land. The conversation sometimes turns out to be far-out and you're more irritated than before you called.

A few months ago my son Mark decided to open his own business in appliance repair and do what I spent years teaching him. Located in Livonia, he is doing quite well and I am receiving compliments from his customers and thankfully no complaints. I asked him for a part time job recently as I need something more to do with my old age. In the near future I will sit behind a desk in his office and answer the telephone continuing to help consumers who have a question on how to fix an appliance. People will be able to contact me at (734) 953-6991 or on the Web at appliancedoctor@jgagnon@yahoo.com.

any sports played, said David, a former second-grade teacher.

"It's always a good idea to let children know what your expectations are ahead," said David, a 14-year veteran of teaching, mostly at Grant. Routines help children feel more secure, she said.

David recommends sticking to the school supply list and avoiding unnecessary purchases. There are sales now for supplies, and kids will need such basics as crayons, markers and pencils. "The moderation thing applies," she said, adding some items are available at garage sales.

Younger kids need help with homework, so parents can sit with them to boost confidence. Parents can check over work of older kids, circling problem areas or adding a question mark to give a hint.

"Sometimes they speed through it and they think nobody's going to notice," she said of checking homework.

OPEN A BOOK

"Children should be reading every single night," said David, a view echoed by Blumberg. Parents can read to young children, reminding them of left to right and beginning to end. "The pleasure reading is most important," she added, noting fourth-graders typically read 30 minutes of pleasure reading a night.

Parents may tire of a certain book, but children benefit from rereading. "Sometimes you comprehend new things," the Livonia teacher said. "It helps build your confidence level."

David was just back from a Wayne RESA conference and excited about the new school year. "It's always a good school year," she said. "It always turns out that way. It's what we make of it."

Also excited is Laura Beckman, principal of Jefferson-Barns Elementary in the Wayne-Westland district. "Routines are the key to success," agreed Beckman, who lives in the Wayne-Westland district part of Canton.

Beckman cites bedtimes, evening routines and having the child's backpack and lunch ready "so students come to school rested and ready to learn."

TURN OFF TV

The Westland principal recommends a well-lit homework area with needed supplies. Getting into the routine of doing homework and reading each night will help.

"That will make the biggest difference, especially with the early learners," Beckman said.

"Turn the TV off" she added of nightly reading time. She does that herself as a mom.

Beckman likes to post the school newsletter on the fridge to help keep organized.

She urges parents to meet the teacher early and keep lines of communication open. Open houses are a great meet and greet, and a chance to learn homework procedures.

You can meet the teacher at another time if you have a work conflict, she added.

"It's going to be a great school year. I'm looking forward to it," Beckman said.

The educators agree teachers need to know about family issues like a divorce or major illness at home. A family death will be shared with classmates as appropriate, David said, noting children will be encouraged to show sympathy to the grieving child.

Blumberg finds there's some sense of entitlement and an assumption of "My child is perfect" among some parents. She said parents "have to come in with an open mind," and have the ability to sit back and listen.

David urges parents to maintain a positive attitude toward learning and not to badmouth a teacher. If there's a problem, parents should talk to the teacher first and not the child.

"We're the adults, they're the children," David said. "You can talk it out" by being honest and forthright, she said. "Communication is really important."

HEALTH & FITNESS

Go back to school healthy Walks raise donations, awareness, memory

With the start of school just around the corner, Deepa Pai, M.D., a physician in Family Medicine at Henry Ford Medical Center – Canton, talks about the importance of back-to-school physicals.

Q - How often do children need a complete physical?

A – At least once a year, a health care provider needs to examine the child and touch base with the parents. The beginning of the school year is a good time for this. Students who will be participating in athletic programs need sports physicals.

Q - Aside from examining the child, what else is included in a physical?

A – I am going to be looking at age-appropriate development, activity levels, nutrition, safety and check that immunizations are up to date. A good family history from the parents is important, as any significant family history can indicate if a child is in a high-risk group for a future condition. In that case, further screening may be needed.

The annual physical is a good time to review any prescriptions. Although most children do not take medications regularly, those with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), diabetes, or asthma need to have their medications adjusted periodically.

Q - Don't children with asthma have some restrictions on their activities?

A – I don't recommend restricting their activities, as long as the asthma is under control.

However, it's important for coaches to be informed about medical concerns, so they will know what to watch for in students on their teams. A doctor may need to consider whether the child should be using rescue medications (bronchodilators) prior to activities.

Q - Do you talk to families about healthy eating?

A – Yes, nutrition concerns are becoming increasingly important. Working parents don't always have time for cooking healthy meals, but they are in charge of what foods are available in the home for children to select. The alternative is that the next generation of children will be obese and at high-risk of heart disease. I'm seeing more teenagers with elevated blood pressure and diabetes, and they are taking medications at a younger age than in previous years. This definitely tells us the next generation is going to have more advanced cardiovascular issues.

Q - Even kids have full schedules. What about getting enough rest?

A – Eight to 12 hours of sleep a night is recommended for children. I always emphasize a good bedtime routine. Proper rest helps to keep metabolism at an optimum level.

Q - Is there anything parents need to bring to their child's physical?

A – Bring your child's current immunization records, medications the child is taking, any test results from other doctors, medical issues, and your questions. It's a good idea to write down your questions in advance, so you will remember to discuss them with the doctor.

Q - So parents and doctors are equal partners in their children's health care?

A – Parents need to take an active part in their children's health care. The doctor only gets about 20 minutes with the child. Parents have the best effect on their children's health and can always ask their health care provider for advice. That's the way it should be.

Lace up those sneakers and go "Walkin' on the Wild Side" with the Hemophilia Foundation of Michigan Saturday, Aug. 29 at the Detroit Zoo.

Walkers can form a team, walk as individuals or "walk" virtually by supporting the cause without actually pounding the pavement.

Adults, children, families, co-workers, and friends; people of all ages may join the cause. Registration (with breakfast) begins at 7:45 a.m.; the 2.1 mile walk kicks off at 9 a.m. There will be entertainment, prizes, and fun for all ages. Walkers may stay and enjoy a day at the zoo after the event.

The foundation's fund-raising goal is $100,000 — nearly the annual cost of treatment for a person with hemophilia. Each walker who raises at least $100 will receive a Walkin' on the Wild Side T-shirt, souvenir water bottle, and $5 in "Zoo Bucks," good at any concession within the zoo.

A minimum donation of $10 is required for entry to the event. There is no admission charge for children under 2. To form a team online or donate to a team, go to <http://www.active.com/donate/wild-walk> or contact Dawn at (800) 482-3041.

ARTHRITIS AND ACTIVITY

Activity is the most important medicine the elderly individual can self prescribe. Both common sense and the medical literature confirm that keeping active yields benefits of the mind, lungs, bear bones and muscles. Networking and social interaction depend on the ability to leave the home and join others at church and social luncheons, and meet with the extended family at anniversaries, weddings and impromptu outings.

Furthermore, with good reason, any manual on elder care emphasizes the importance of walking or undertaking a similar activity for at least 45 minutes daily.

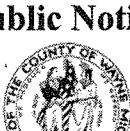

Arthritis of the hips or knees can bring an active way of life to a halt. As soon as the person or someone in the family notes a slowdown in activity, that elderly individual should see his or her physician. The change cannot be waved for as just "growing old." A cause exists, and often the cause is an arthritis in a knee or hip that has been coming on for years and has now reached a point the individual cannot overcome.

Diagnosing arthritis is important. Improvements in surgical care mean that a person who needs hip or knee replacement should get one. Age is seldom a barrier. If an individual does not want surgery or has a condition that precludes operations, physical therapy or joint injection can provide marked improvement and rekindle a willingness to return to an active life.
