Panel OKs recall petitions for five council members

By LeAnne Rogers
Observer Staff Writer

Recall petitions against five Westland City Council members were approved Thursday, while petitions against Mayor William Wild were rejected as being unclear.

Duplicate petitions had been filed by residents William Campbell and Burke Rock against Wild, City Clerk Eileen DeHart Schoof and council members James Godbout, Adam Hammons, Meriam Kadi, Michael Kehrer and Dewey Reeves.

At issue is a vote to approve a 40-year amendment to the city's Tax Increment Finance Authority plan with possible projects including construction of a new city hall. Campbell lives in the Newberry Estates Subdivision adjoining a possible site for a municipal building behind the William P. Faust Public Library.

Prior to the start of the Wayne County Elections Commission meeting, petitions filed against DeHart Schoof were withdrawn. Schoof's brother Bill Johnson and Christine Bryant are the only council members not included in the recall petitions, although the TIFA plan amendment was adopted by a unanimous council vote.

"The purpose of the meeting is for the Election Commission to determine the clarity of the language of the petitions," said Kevin Kavanagh, a county corporation counsel principal attorney. "The commission does not take into account merit or truth, just if it meets the requirements for clarity."

'I figured I was going to die'

At age 90, Albert Gladish of Westland has plenty to be thankful for - the skill of military surgeons who saved his life after he was severely wounded during World War II.

90th birthday is something to celebrate for World War II veteran

By Sue Mason
Observer Staff Writer

Albert Gladish turned 90 on Aug. 7. It's not a milestone in the sense of turning 100, but considering there was a time 70 or so years ago that the Westland resident wasn't expected to live, 90 is something to celebrate.

Gladish is a card-carrying member of The Greatest Generation, a World War II veteran who saw action in the European Theater where he was critically wounded by mortar fire in Belgium near the border with Germany in February 1945.

The explosion that day shattered both of his legs. He sustained compound fractures of his femurs, fibulas, tibias and ankle. A medic, he knew he was seriously injured and immediately gave himself two shots of morphine.

Study session to look at how to replace city hall

By LeAnne Rogers
Observer Staff Writer

How to replace Westland City Hall, including a possible millage to fund the project, will be the topic of a council study session scheduled for Monday, Aug. 27.

There isn't any dispute among city officials about the need for a new building. The question is where it will be located and that affects how the construction can be funded.

The current city hall, on Ford just west of Carlson, is located within the Downtown Development Authority district, but it has insufficient revenue to fund what would likely be a $13 million building.

Other sites that have been discussed — on city-owned land behind the William P. Faust Public Library and vacant commercial buildings around Westland Shopping Center — are located in the Tax Increment Finance Authority district. Unlike the DDA, the TIFA generates enough funding to pay for a new city hall without asking taxpayers for more money.

"I hope to break it down — the TIFA option and the DDA option. We'll have information from a banking authority on what the dollars can be used for," Mayor William Wild said.

There will also be information from city auditors Plante Moran, Wild said, regarding a possible millage and potential election dates.

"Any information that we have, we'll share," Wild said.

After the study session, Wild said he planned to schedule a series of town hall meetings in different neighborhoods to answer questions and get feedback.

"We'll get input on the feelings about this. It will impact the future of the city," he said. "We'll also get input on that Tattan Park master plan."

In particular, Wild said he wanted to meet with residents on Carlson, who he described as on the front lines of Tattan Park and also the Central City Park remediation.

Central City Park will officially reopen at a ceremony at 4 p.m. Monday after having been closed since 2007.

City gets more Neighborhood Stabilization funds

By LeAnne Rogers
Observer Staff Writer

More blighted homes are going to be acquired and rehabilitated in Norwayne, thanks to an additional $500,000 allocation of federal Neighborhood Stabilization Program funds.

"We should be able to acquire and renovate approximately eight homes in Norwayne," Community Development Director Joanne Campbell said.

The city previously had received more than $2 million in NSP funding, with much of the attention focusing on Norwayne. There have been 22 Westland homes sold through NSP, including four lease/purchases, and 37 demolitions of blighted properties.

Wayne County has selected Westland to receive an $500,000 as part of the county's NSP3 funding from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. The city will use the NSP funds to acquire and renovate single-family houses that can be sold to qualifying families.

This phase of the program will focus on some new partnerships. The city will partner with the Wayne County Family Center, First Step and similar organizations to provide homes for families at risk of homelessness. Westland will also partner with the Westland Housing Commis-

Wayne County Chief Probate Judge Freddie Burton was joined by Wayne County Treasurer Raymond Wojtowicz at the meeting. The third member of the commission, Wayne County Clerk Cathy Garrett, was absent.

Burton agreed with Wojtowicz that the petition language regarding Wild was unclear. The language cited his appointment of two married couples, James and Mary Murphy and Bud and Pola O'Leary, to the TIFA Citizens Council.

"If I'm an elector and asked to sign a recall petition, why am I being asked to sign?" Burton said.

Campbell responded by recounting his complaint that the couples were appointed to the citizens council despite applications from himself and other residents seeking to serve. The plan amendment recommended by the citizens council included a municipal building, although no location was specified.

"They approved a municipal building behind the library, the people oppose it," Campbell said. "We as citizens didn't get a change to be appointed. They put two married couples on the committee. It's not representative."

When it came to the council recall petitions, Wojtowicz offered a motion finding they lacked sufficient clarity, but Burton disagreed and didn't offer to support the motion.

Much of Godbout's objection to the petition language was more on a factual basis than clarity. He noted the references to construction of a city hall/municipal building behind the library aren't correct — council hasn't approved the project or specified a location.

With the two commission members split on the petitions and no action taken, Kavanagh said the recall petitions would effectively be allowed to proceed.

To break the tie, Wojtowicz agreed to find the petitions sufficiently clear and noted that council members had other options for appeal, including filing in Wayne County Circuit Court.

Since Campbell's petitions to recall council members were approved,

Burton asked Rock to consider withdrawing his petitions, noting that legally only one recall petition can be circulated against an elected official at a time.

Rock refused, so the commission voted to dismiss the petitions.

"I guess I'd have to be appreciative that the Election Commission tossed them (the recall petitions)," said Wild, who didn't attend the commission meeting. "The city attorney demonstrated there was nothing improper in appointing two husbands and their wives."

Regarding the council recall petitions, Wild said, "It's sad and unfortunate. We're trying to tackle big issues and they are trying to recall council members."

The county clerk makes the determination on the number of signatures required to put a recall on the ballot. The formula is based on 25 percent of the total Westland votes cast for governor in the last election.

Based on the 22,548 votes cast, that number would likely be approximately 5,637 signatures.

said. "That day we were being attacked, so a sergeant, me and two other guys decided to go up and try to get rid of the enemy. We were going into southern Germany and across the river was Germany. I never made it to Germany."

Gladish "doesn't know to this day" how he got to a Swedish medical ship in the North Sea. He spent two weeks on it. When it docked in South Hampton, England, he was taken off the ship by a crane and sent to a field hospital where he stayed for four-six months. It was one of many hospitals he would find himself in over the next three years as doctors worked to repair his mangled legs.

"I always wanted my legs cut off, but the surgeons wouldn't do that," said Gladish. "I'd see guys who had lost a leg be up and walking in six weeks, while I was bed bound. I never could get out of bed."

Gladish grew up in Arcadia, Pa., a coal mining town near Pittsburgh. He was drafted into the service on Jan. 1, 1943, at the age of 19. He did his basic training at Fort Pickett and was selected to be trained as a medic.

Medic training

Gladish thinks the military just randomly selected him for the job, although he may have unknowingly been following in his father's footsteps. A coal miner, Gladish's father also was certified to administer first aid to the injured. His sister, Bernice Angell, believes her brother took an aptitude test. High school was the equivalent of a college education, and her brother took a lot science classes, she said.

He shipped over to England in June 1943 and went into France in July 1945 where he worked in a field hospital, training to be a field medic. He went into combat with the 88th Infantry just before the Battle of the Bulge.

"I was in a rifle company, you don't get out," said Gladish. "Guys would die, but you'd stay there, if you weren't hurt. They'd just bring up new people."

Gladish received the Purple Heart for his battlefield injuries, but the medal he is most proud of is the Bronze Star.

"They give a Bronze Star for courage," he said. "I got it and got a five-day pass as a reward."

He met Ike - twice

He eventually returned to the United States and was in a field hospital set up in a hotel on 41st Street in Chicago where he met General Dwight D. Eisenhower. He was there a year as doctors worked to clear up an infection in his legs. He was sent to Texas where he again met Eisenhower, then to Mayo General Hospital in Minnesota where doctors did skin grafts to cover up his smashed bones.

"I had 30-40 operations," said Gladish. "They did some bone grafts by taking bone from my hips and they did skin grafts. I had 27 pints of blood during my recovery. I wrote letters of thank you to everyone who took care of me. I remember one of them was George Washington, he was a man of color."

From Minnesota, he was sent to a hospital in Valley Forge, Pa., where he stayed "for awhile" before heading to Fort Dix, N.J. There he was discharged with a 100 percent disability.

His sister remembers a friend coming to their house to tell her parents that her brother "wasn't going to make." She was 12 years old, when her parents left to go to Chicago to see their son.

"I remember mom crying," said Angell. "We just thought it was a miracle that he was alive."

The family had left Pennsylvania to come to Detroit where their father worked in the factory doing war work. He didn't want any of his sons working in the mines. They all ended up as engineers and all got good jobs, Angell said.

He worked a lifetime

And even though the military determined he was completely disabled, Gladish worked his entire life, including in the Wayne County Clerk's office where he was a clerk. The county gave him credit for his five years in the military and he retired in 1987 after 25 years.

Gladish left Detroit and moved to Westland 21 years ago and has been here ever since, except for a two-year stay in Athens, Tenn., where his youngest brother lives. Described as a very proud and very independent man by his nephew Ron Angell, he's happy to celebrate his 90th birthday. Sidelined by an illness, he hasn't been able to use his car. His birthday wish is "to drive my own car."

"He's pretty social and likes to go to fine restaurants," said Angell who has been staying with him. "He's not fond of my cooking."

To this day, Gladish is experiencing the effects of his injuries. One leg is 3 1/2 inches shorter than the other and one is straight as a board. He's still prone to infections and pieces of shrapnel still work their way out. But getting a pacemaker two years ago has helped and he now feels younger than his 90 years.

"Right now, I'm doing pretty good," he said.

sion to provide supportive services under the Family Self Sufficiency program.

"This NSP grant is another step to creating a Community of Choice for the Norwayne subdivision," Mayor William Wild said. "Providing lease-purchase opportunities for families, in completely renovated homes, helps strengthen the neighborhood."

The Westland City Council approved the NSP grant agreement with Wayne County earlier this month.

Council also approved the acquisition of blighted duplexes that are slated for demolition, using Community Development Block Grant funds. Those units are located at 32013-15 Ottawa, 32213-15 Oscoda and 33516-18 Berville and sold for just over $25,000.

In addition, two single-family homes in the south end of the city were acquired for rehabilitation and sale. The homes, located at 30125 Matthew and 5044 Middlebelt, were purchased for $15,200 and $25,410, respectively.

Through these activities, the city is eliminating vacant, blighted structures and reducing the density in the neighborhood, Wild said.

Westland is one of only seven projects selected by Wayne County to further NSP effort. The activities solidify the city's commitment to rehabilitation of the Norwayne community, Wild said.

"This is a good example of federal dollars supporting local neighborhoods and the local economy, not only by creating new homeownership opportunities, but also by providing job opportunities for small businesses in the area," Wild said. "And we are seeing some improvement, through increased neighborhood involvement and decreased vacancy rates."

CORRECTION

An article in the Aug. 9 edition of the Westland Observer should have said that State Sen. Glenn Anderson, D-Westland, was the top vote-getter in the 13th Congressional Democratic primary election race within the City of Westland. Anderson received 63 percent of the votes within Westland but was defeated district-wide by U.S. Rep. John Conyers, D-Detroit.

Leadership Challenge is experience of lifetime

By Cadet Alexander Zalgout
Correspondent

Every year, Phelps Air National Guard Base in Alpena hosts the JROTC Cadet Leadership Challenge.

This year, 17 Garden City High School Air Force JROTC cadets attended JCLC. The week-long camp takes in JROTC cadets from different high schools all over Michigan and at the base, they participate in different activities that most normal high school students would never get the chance to experience.

Over the week, the cadets meet new people, learn how an enlisted soldier lives and eats, and gets memories that last a lifetime.

The cadets were divided into one of six companies usually containing 75-80 other students. Upon arriving, the cadets are hurried off the busses and into formation, where their belongings are dumped and checked.

After that is cleaned up, the cadets are marched to their barracks and get to settle in to their rooms. At 5 a.m. every morning, they were awoken and told to get dressed and get outside for morning physical training exercises.

After the morning breakfast, each company moved on to its daily activities. The breakfast was a three time a day "event" many cadets looked forward to. Cadets waited in single file lines quietly in order to receive their meal. They would get their food and eat quickly and quietly. After breakfast and lunch, cadets would return to their company and head to the daily event. After dinner, cadets would go back to their barracks for the night.

Cadets also participated in various fun activities, including repelling, rock wall climb, river rafting, marksmanship, academic challenge, sports, science, camping and an obstacle course. At repelling, cadets repelled down a four-story building, repelled without a wall down three-stories, and climbed a rock wall. River rafting taught cadets how to row in unison and how to control a rubber boat. At the overnight camp site, cadets learned how to pitch a tent and work as a team.

All of the other activities were a lot of fun, too.

The camp ended with the graduation of the cadets who attended JCLC. Many of the Garden City High School AFJROTC cadets served in various leadership positions and remained active in the camp. Cadet Senior Airman Jeffrey Ball was awarded the Top Male in Company Award, and Cadet Col. Anthony Gonzalez was awarded the Top JCLC Male Cadet Leadership Award.

JCLC was an event that none of these cadets will ever forget. The cadets at JCLC learned how to be leaders, how to work together and put others before themselves, and that if you set your mind to something, any obstacle can be overcome.

Coco Jones headlines annual Back 2 School celebration

By Sue Mason
Observer Staff Writer

Two years ago, Coco Jones thought being on Disney's N.B.T. was a "big thing to do," but she discovered that it was the first step on her way to stardom.

The 14-year-old Jones, who is criss-crossing the country this summer doing concerts and making appearances, will be in Westland Saturday, Aug. 18, for Radio Disney AM-910 Detroit's Back 2 School celebration at Westland Shopping Center.

"The funny thing is I didn't win N.B.T. (Next Big Thing), I was only a finalist," Jones said. "Everyone thinks I won. I thought being on it was a big thing, but it's gotten better as it's progressed."

Jones will be performing a free concert at the shopping center. This is the fourth year that Radio Disney has joined with the Westland Shopping Center and Wayne-Westland Community Schools to stage the family friendly event.

From noon to 3 p.m., parents and their children will be treated to Jones's concert and a Q & A and interactive entertainment featuring the JROTC program, cheerleaders and marching band. Representatives from transportation services, preschool program and schools of choice will be on hand, and the culinary arts program from the William D. Ford Career Technical Center will be giving out dessert samples as part of the event. There also will be face painting and a mall gift baskets and gift cards will be given away.

Derrig estimates that 500 to 1,000 people will attend.

"It's a celebration of the Wayne-Westland Schools," said mall marketing director Patrick Derrig. "This will be one-stop shopping to learn about Wayne-Westland. This school district is amazing. We proud to have them in the mall to showcase their programs. The purpose behind this event is to bring brand awareness of Wayne-Westland and let people have a first, second and third look."

Singing sensation Coco Jones will headline the Back 2 School celebration, hosted by Radio Disney, the Wayne-Westland Community Schools and Westland Shopping Center at the mall on Saturday, Aug. 18.

Jones, 14, plans to "do a couple of covers and a couple of my songs that nobody has heard" for her appearance at the mall. Described as a singer and rapper, she has become popular with tweens and teens since she first appeared on N.B.T. in 2010. While she didn't win the show, it helped launch her music career. She has guest starred on the Disney Channel's So Random! as herself, and as player Roxie, a teenage singing sensation, in the film Let It Shine. She also released a self-titled debut CD, Coco Jones, which led to her concert series, UBU-Stop the Bullying.

She has gotten support from her parents, professional football player Mike Jones and session vocalist Javonda Jones, and found inspiration in another Disney star, Raven-Symoné, in pursuing her "dream job."

"The great thing about my parents is they let me choose my career and are standing behind me," she said. "When I told them I wanted to do this as a career, they said OK, but if you do this, you do it 100 percent, and I've been doing it 100 percent ever since.

"And Raven-Symoné inspired me to go after my dream and to be myself," she added.

Jones compares her style to Beyoncé and is developing a following among kids ages 8-16. Her goal is to grow with her music like Justin Bieber has.

"He got his little girl fans and then he grew up and his music matured," she said. "I do have fans, but I'd like more."

While Jones is doing back to school events, she won't be headed back to school when the concert tour ends. Instead, she will be heading to the recording studio to finish her first album and then focus on promoting it.

"I do get home, but rarely," she said. "My family has sacrificed a lot for this life. My mom travels with me."

Westland Shopping Center is at 35000 W. Warren Road, at Wayne Road, in Westland. For more information, call the mall at (734) 421-0291.

'Night Out' event brings watch groups, residents together

By Brad Kadrich
Observer Staff Writer

John and Amy Sullivan took their children, Hannah and Max, to Canton Township's annual Night Out event Tuesday because they thought it would be fun, and an excellent chance to meet some neighbors they might not otherwise meet.

"We went a couple of years ago and the kids had a lot of fun," Amy Sullivan said. "It's a good chance to maybe meet some other neighbors in the area."

And that's exactly why Canton Police Special Services Lt. Pat Sullivan (no relation) wanted people there. Canton's sixth annual event, held Tuesday in Heritage Park, is part of the 29-year-old National Night Out effort staged in hopes of strengthening ties between vigilant neighborhood groups, police officers and firefighters. He said the event, which annually draws hundreds of people, is a kind of reward for neighborhood watch programs (he estimates there are a couple hundred such groups in Canton), and a way for people in those programs to network.

"We want to unite the community and their them involved in crime prevention," Lt. Sullivan said. "We want them to be our eyes and ears in the community. We can't be everywhere."

"It's a good opportunity for people to meet their neighbors, and expand their friend base outside their own groups," he added. "They can talk to each other and get some ideas from each other."

This year's event featured a hotdog picnic, inflatable bouncers, a disc jockey, several displays such as police cars and fire trucks, crime-prevention handouts, child identification kits and other activities.

Target is the national corporate sponsor of this year's event. It's run in partnership with the Canton police and fire departments and the township's Leisure Services Department.

Ginger and Eric Barringer brought their children, Leah and Eric, for the second straight year.

"The kids are super excited to come to this," said Ginger Barringer, formerly of Canton and now living in Westland. "They like the interaction of the games."

Three staffers arraigned in suspected signature fraud

By Ken Abramczyk
Staff Writer

Three members of former Congressman Thaddeus McCotter's staff were arraigned Friday morning in connection with alleged fraud surrounding nominating petitions filed in May on McCotter's behalf.

Don Yowchuang, 33, deputy district director in McCotter's office, of Farmington Hills and Paul Seewald, 47, district director, of Livonia stood mute in 16th District Court in Livonia. Magistrate Dennis Epler entered not-guilty pleas on their behalf. They were released on $50,000 personal bond each, meaning they will have to pay that amount if they do not show up for scheduled court appearances.

Yowchuang was required to give up his passport as a condition of the bond, and both were told to contact the court if they leave the state. Yowchuang and Seewald are scheduled for a pre-exam Sept. 18 and a preliminary exam Sept. 20 in 16th District Court.

Mary Melissa Turnbull, 58, of Howell turned herself in to officials Friday morning and was arraigned in Troy's 52-4 District Court. Turnbull was given a $5,000 personal bond. Her pre-exam was set for Aug. 16.

Yowchuang faces 17 charges, including 10 counts of election law forgery, a five-year felony; one count of conspiracy to commit a legal act in an illegal manner, a five-year felony; and six counts of falsely signing a nominating petition as circulator, a misdemeanor punishable by up to 93 days in jail.

Seewald faces 10 charges: one count of conspiracy to commit a legal act in an illegal manner, a five-year felony; and nine counts of falsely signing a nominating petition as circulator, a misdemeanor punishable by up to 93 days in jail.

Turnbull, a district representative in McCotter's office, faces two charges: one count of conspiracy to commit a legal act in an illegal manner, a five-year felony; and, one count of falsely signing a nominating petition as circulator, a misdemeanor punishable by up to 93 days in jail.

Lorianne O'Brady, 52, of Livonia is expected to be arraigned on charges early this week in Livonia's 16th District, according to Attorney General Bill Schuette's office, who brought the charges against the suspects.

O'Brady, a former scheduler employed by McCotter at the time of the alleged crimes, faces five counts of falsely signing a nominating petition as circulator, a misdemeanor punishable by up to 93 days in jail.

At Friday's court hearing, both Seewald and Yowchuang sat at the rear of the courtroom before their arraignment. Then as they were arraigned by Epler, they responded yes when asked if they understood the charges and their rights.

Defense attorney Timothy Dinan, who represented both Seewald and Yowchuang, requested a court waiver of the usual 14-day period between the arraignment and preliminary examination to review evidence.

William Rollstin, first assistant attorney with Schuette's office, said the attorney general's office had no problem with the waiver. Rollstin appeared in court with Special Agent John Buck, who assisted in the investigation.

Neither Buck nor Rollstin would comment further on the case, referring all questions to the attorney general's communications office.

Rollstin requested that Yowchuang turn in his passport to the court because he believed that Yowchuang had traveled overseas recently. Yowchuang agreed to do so.

Both Seewald and Yowchuang left the court without talking to reporters.

Dinan said after the arraignment that his clients had no prior criminal history and provided details early in the attorney general's investigation. "My clients are presumed innocent; they deserve that," Dinan said. "They cooperated fully with the investigation."

Dinan said Schuette's press conference Thursday "went beyond what was necessary" in outlining the accusations against his clients.

AG: McCotter not charged, but he was 'asleep at the switch'

By Ken Abramczyk
Staff Writer

Former U.S. Rep. Thaddeus McCotter was admonished Thursday by state Attorney General Bill Schuette for McCotter's lack of control over his staff, but Schuette added that his office did not have evidence of his involvement in the alleged signature fraud.

"McCotter was asleep at the switch," Schuette said. "He did not mind the store. There was no guidance or supervision whatsoever."

Three members of McCotter's staff were arraigned Friday in two separate district courts in connection with alleged fraud surrounding nominating petitions filed in May required to declare McCotter's candidacy to run for re-election.

On Thursday, Schuette announced the following charges:

- Don Yowchuang, 33, deputy district director, of Farmington Hills faces 17 charges filed in Livonia's 16th District Court: 10 counts of election law forgery, a five-year felony; one count of conspiracy to commit a legal act in an illegal manner, a five-year felony; and six counts of falsely signing a nominating petition as circulator, a misdemeanor or punishable by up to 93 days in jail.

- Paul Seewald, 47, district director, of Livonia faces 10 charges filed in Livonia's 16th District Court: one count of conspiracy to commit a legal act in an illegal manner, a five-year felony; and nine counts of falsely signing a nominating petition as circulator, a misdemeanor punishable by up to 93 days in jail.

Attorney General Bill Schuette announced the charges against McCotter's staff members at a press conference Thursday morning.

- Mary Melissa Turnbull, 58, district representative, of Howell faces two charges filed in Troy's 52-4 District Court: one count of conspiracy to commit a legal act in an illegal manner, a five-year felony; and one count of falsely signing a nominating petition as circulator, a misdemeanor or punishable by up to 93 days in jail.

- Lorianne O'Brady, 52, former scheduler employed by McCotter at the time of the alleged crimes, of Livonia faces five charges filed in Livonia's 16th District Court: five counts of falsely signing a nominating petition as circulator, a misdemeanor or punishable by up to 93 days in jail. She is expected to be arraigned next week.

No evidence McCotter involved

McCotter was not charged. Schuette said his office "did not have specific, direct evidence" of his involvement.

Schuette alleges that these four members of McCotter's Michigan staff were involved in a deliberate fraud involving a pattern of copying and altering petitions in order to qualify the five-term congressman for the 2012 primary ballot. Schuette revealed examples of petitions that were allegedly manufactured electronically by transposing signatures collected in previous election years on to 2012 nominating petitions. In several cases, the fraudulent petitions were also copied and submitted to the Secretary of State as originals. Schuette indicated that everything on the petition forms appears to be exactly the same except for the dates, which appear altered. Schuette's investigation also revealed evidence that duplicate petitions were knowingly submitted to pad signature numbers and that multiple petitions were falsely certified by defendants who did not actually circulate them.

The charges came about as the result of an investigation by the Attorney General's Public Integrity Unit. The investigation lasted 10 weeks; it included interviewing 75 witnesses, procuring sworn statements from nine people and reviewing thousands of records, including 136 nominating petitions filed with the Secretary of State.

Constituents 'got stiffed'

Schuette called it a "cut-and-paste job that would make an elementary school art teacher cringe."

"This was not simply keystone cops run amok ... it was a blatant attempt to commit fraud," Schuette said.

Schuette said the "McCotter crew" acted above the law like the law "didn't apply to them."

"They were sadly mistaken," he said. Schuette added that McCotter has "resigned in disgrace." People in the 11th District McCotter represented "got stiffed," Schuette said. "He is responsible for the conduct and misconduct of his employees. In this case, Thad was asleep at the switch."

McCotter could not be reached for comment as there was no answer at his home. He issued a statement via email through spokesman Randall Thompson.

"I thank the Attorney General and his office for their earnest, thorough work on this investigation, which I requested, and their subsequent report," McCotter said. "For my family and I, this closure commences our embrace of the enduring blessings of private life."

The alleged election fraud investigation began an ignominious exit for the five-term congressman. The nominating signatures were turned into the Secretary of State Bureau of Elections office, and the petitions were checked.

Bureau employees determined that the filing contained numerous duplicate and triplicate copies of petitions and that the filing was padded to obscure the fact that the petitions did not contain the necessary 1,000 signatures.

The Secretary of State's office contacted McCotter on May 25, saying there were not enough valid signatures to qualify him for the ballot. McCotter announced May 29 that he was conducting a write-in candidacy, but then dropped his candidacy June 2. He later resigned from office.

Hundreds chip in to build home, spruce up local neighborhood

By Stacy Jenkins
Observer Staff Writer

It's a mix between Extreme Makeover: Home Edition and Habitat for Humanity — and the volunteers couldn't be more excited to see the dream of home ownership come true for a Farmington Hills family.

At the crack of dawn Monday began the Life Remodeled six-day home building project at 21337 Rensselaer in the area of Shiawassee and Inkster Road in Farmington Hills.

By noon, the crawl space was completed and the walls were going up. By Monday night, the roof was on. By today, the home is to be finished and the keys turned over to its owners, the Goodwin family.

"I think it's incredible," said volunteer Gloria Irwin. "It has the excitement and the buzz — and people really want to participate."

A slew of volunteer contractors and others who are helping in a variety of ways, are building a 1,200-square-foot, two-bedroom home for the Goodwin family, who was selected from numerous applicants to receive the home from Life Remodeled.

"Unlike Habitat for Humanity or ABC TV's Extreme Makeover: Home Edition, we don't just build a structure, we take a more holistic approach, providing the family with financial, and spiritual counseling so that the families' lives can, indeed, be remodeled," said volunteer Tom Beaman.

Bruckner Construction led the crews at the start of the build Monday morning. By Sunday, the home will be completed and the keys will be turned over to the Goodwin family.

The Goodwin family will live in the home, while receiving support from Life Remodeled, including counseling, financial counseling, home ownership courses and spiritual counseling. The family will show that they can maintain the home and pay taxes, utilities and insurance for the first three years.

"After that three-year mark, the deed is transferred to them for $1," said Chris Lambert, president of the Westland-based Life Remodeled nonprofit that works with local churches on each project. "It's hope giving. There's a really strong recipe for success there."

For the Farmington Hills project, they're working with four local churches: Faith Covenant in Farmington Hills; The Crossing Church in Farmington; Oak Point in Novi and Grace Chapel in Farmington Hills.

Divine intervention

Life Remodeled did its first home build last year in Westland. Lambert said it's more than a coincidence that the Goodwin family is connected to that project. They lived on the same street and they had a family member who lived in the home that was demolished to make way for the Life Remodeled home.

There have been "coincidences" like that, all the way through the process, said Lambert.

It was decided several months ago, for example, that the Farmington Hills home would be a single-story ranch. Lambert said that was also an example of God's intervention and guidance in the project. Brad Goodwin is physically disabled, following a construction accident, and a single-story, fully accessible home is the best option for him and his wife and daughter. They currently live in the neighborhood, in an apartment.

"That's the kind of stuff that's been happening," said Lambert. "It's just, wow!"

The project is the fourth home that's been built so far by Life Remodeled. A fifth is planned to start Aug. 20 in Redford Township, in the area of Seven Mile and Inkster Road.

All of the materials are donated and the professional contractors and volunteers are all giving their time and talent to the six-day build that goes around the clock.

Getting donations from the already struggling construction industry hasn't been easy, said Irwin, but no needs are going unmet.

"Everything comes just in time," she said. "We've seen it throughout this project."

Army of volunteers
There are about 100

volunteers working on the house structure and another 200 who have been working for the past few weeks beautifying the Old Towne neighborhood. They've done projects such as painting, yard work, rebuilding porches and power washing at 34 homes and at the Salvation Army in the Old Towne area.

Colleen Allen, who lives directly behind the building site, is a volunteer and also a recipient of the Life Remodeled project. Her garage was in need in some TLC. The wood was blackened with mold and the cinder block frame was bare. Volunteers power washed and scraped the wood to restore its natural beauty and they power washed and painted the entire garage.

"I'm so grateful," said Allen. "I never would have been able to do it myself. Look how pretty it is — now, you can actually see the wood."

There are many other happy neighbors, too, including an elderly woman who is disabled and living in the trailer park across the street from the site. Volunteers removed the rotted porch at her home and built a new one.

The home building project will conclude with a 2 p.m. "reveal" today, when the Goodwin family will be presented with the keys.

Family touched by Westland's Life Remodeled

By Stacy Jenkins
Observer Staff Writer

You can see it in their eyes and hear it in their voices. The Goodwins are overwhelmed and overjoyed that their lives are about to take a turn for the better.

On Sunday afternoon, Brad, Ann and their 6-year-old daughter Mae-li will be whisked off in a limo, which will arrive at their brand new home.

Although the ride will only be around the block, the journey has been much longer to get to this point.

The Goodwins were selected as the recipient family for the Farmington Hills six-day house-building project led by the Westland-based Life Remodeled nonprofit. Hundreds of volunteers have been working around the clock since Monday to build the 1,200-square-foot ranch, located at 21337 Rensselaer, right around the block from the Goodwins' apartment in the area of Shiawassee and Inkster.

Everything from blueprints to materials and contractor labor to home furnishings, appliances and even landscaping has been donated by a slew of local businesses to make the dream of home ownership a reality for the Goodwins.

"When I think about what this means for Mae-li to feel and know that people genuinely love and care, it gives her an experience that she'll carry with her — it's priceless," said Ann. "It's priceless for a child to feel that love."

Brad said it's a very emotional time for their family — feeling everything from extreme gratitude to a sense of guilt when they consider how much so many people have given to them.

"It's incredible," he said. "To have a home is a precious gift."

Their journey

The Goodwins were living in Texas, where Brad was working as a construction site superintendent when he severely injured his back. He was on a job site in Kansas when he was lifting a heavy object — like he'd done a million times before — and twisted the wrong way before hearing a "crunch and a pop."

He ruptured a disc and it became progressively worse, despite surgeries. He had permanent damage. The 41-year-old now needs a motorized scooter to help him get around and he's unable to do the physical things he used to do before the injury.

"I deal with constant, horrible pain, all day and all night," he said.

They lost their business and their home in Texas and moved back to Michigan last year.

"It's been so hard, for so long," said Ann.

Unable to work or play with his daughter, Brad is feeling the overwhelming sense of loss from the injury.

"I can't do all the things I liked to do," he said. "You see what it does to your family."

Meant to be

A series of coincidences led to the Goodwins being connected to Life Remodeled, which is a nonprofit that works with local churches to build a home, Extreme Makeover: Home

Edition style — 24 hours a day for six days. The family receives the home, along with home ownership, financial, spiritual and psychological counseling. After three years, if the family has paid the taxes, insurance and has maintained the property, the deed is turned over to the family for $1.

The Goodwins had already heard of Life Remodeled, because they lived with Ann's mother, across the street from the group's first build in Westland last spring. The home that was demolished due to black mold, was that of Ann's brother, who died last year from cancer.

They watched that build take place; chatted with the Life Remodeled volunteers and even donated some shovels for the crew.

Little did they know, they'd be selected to receive a home built by Life Remodeled a year later. They received a flier at their current apartment and decided to give it a shot.

"It was meant to be, for our lives to be touched when we were having such a hard time," said Ann. "I just kept praying and taking one day at a time."

Ann works full time at a dental office in Redford. They didn't know what their next move would be from the apartment.

"I said I'd leave my heart open, and let what was meant to be happen," said Ann. "You never know until you try."

They were soon contacted that their application made the top 18 out of some 87 that were turned in. They were contacted by Life Remodeled for more information and before they knew it, they were in the final three.

"So many people, when they found out (that they had applied), started praying," said Ann. "Even people who don't pray, started praying."

The news

They were reluctant to get too excited, but when they looked out their living room window one day and saw a group of people approaching their apartment with roses and balloons, they knew their dream had come true.

"It was surreal," said Brad.

"We were pretty much in shock," said Ann. "Then, it all became a blur."

They started packing. They attended a neighborhood picnic hosted at the site, and were overwhelmed by the kindness shown by everyone involved.

"We met so many awesome people," said Ann. "It's overwhelming that so many people are so happy for us and genuinely care for us."

Brad said the whole whirlwind has been good for him.

"It's really helped me out," he said. "At least I have something to look forward to."

He's thrilled that something good is happening to his family.

"I'm real happy this is happening, especially for my wife," he said. "She deserves it. She's been there for me."

Holding hands on the couch, Brad and Ann had tearful smiles in anticipation of when they'll be given the keys to their new home.

Vigil at Sikh temple calls for understanding after shootings

By Matt Jachman
Observer Staff Writer

People from an array of faiths reached out to the Sikh community Wednesday to call for healing in the wake of the Aug. 5 mass shooting at a Sikh temple in a Milwaukee suburb.

And local Sikhs reached back, opening the doors at Gurdwara Sahib, a temple in Plymouth Township, to those who don't share their religion but do share a belief in a common humanity. Gurdwara Sahib, nicknamed Hidden Falls, hosted a traditional Sikh evening meal and worship service, which were followed by a candlelight vigil.

"We want people to come and see what we practice," said temple member Amrit Gill.

The event was organized by the temple and the Interfaith Leadership Council of Metropolitan Detroit in response to last Sunday's killing of six worshippers at a temple in Oak Creek, Wis. The gunman, Wade Page, opened fire in the temple as a meal was being prepared and, wounded by a responding police officer, also killed himself, police said. Three people were wounded, including Oak Creek Lt. Brian Murphy, who was shot multiple times while tending to a victim.

Breaking bread

At Gurdwara Sahib on Wednesday, Sikhs and about a dozen non-Sikhs gathered in the dining room and sat on the floor, many cross-legged, to be served dal, or bean stew, lentil soup, and flat bread. Sikhs normally eat before worship, and Gurdwara Sahib's member families rotate the cooking duties, said member Mandeep Singh.

"It's a community meal. It's just a normal, everyday meal we eat at home," Singh said.

Sitting on the floor, he said, is meant to symbolize equality among people.

Tajmann Kaur, who is 6 years old, was at Wednesday's service.

"It doesn't matter who you are, rich or poor. God created everybody equally," he said. Chairs are available for the elderly or those with physical problems, however.

Later, in the worship hall, Sikhs lined up to pay respect to the Guru Granth Sahib, the Sikh holy book.

Singh said the book is the compiled writings of the 10 Sikh gurus, or holy men, and that it offers Sikhs guidance for their lives. Sikhs are encouraged to visit the temple daily to worship the book and read the passage for the day, he said.

500,000 U.S. Sikhs

Sikhism is a monotheistic religion that originated in the Punjab region of India in the 15th Century; the faith has an estimated 30 million followers around the world, an estimated 500,000 in the U.S. Sikh men and women cover their hair, the men often wearing turbans, and men are instructed not to cut their hair or shave their beards. Shoes are not worn in most parts of Sikh temples.

During worship, Sikhs and their guests sat on the floor, men on the right, women on the left, as musicians performed Shabad Kirtan, or singing of the scripture, in the Punjabi language.

"I don't see enemies in others and I don't see anyone as a stranger," read one verse, projected in English on a screen above the musicians.

Bhai sahib, or priest, Raja Singh then offered prayers for the souls of the Oak Creek victims, and for those recovering from the attack, mentioning Lt. Murphy by name.

Shared prayers

Around 8:30 p.m., hundreds of people, many holding lighted candles, stood outside Gurdwara Sahib as sunset approached to again pray for the Oak Creek victims and call for healing and understanding.

"We're here to let you know that we stand with you," Steve Spreitzer, of the Michigan Roundtable for Diversity and Inclusion, told the crowd.

"We pray especially at this time for peace in the world and in our neighborhoods," said Victor Begg, chairman emeritus of the Council of Islamic Organizations of Michigan.

Begg remembered the six who died in the shooting. "To God they belong and to heaven they'll return," he said.

Begg blamed the killings on what he called "a growing culture of intolerance." Page, the gunman, had reportedly been active in the white supremacist movement.

Also speaking Wednesday were representatives of Christian, Baha'i, Hindu and Jain faiths.

Sense of identity

Temple members said the event was an important part of the healing process.

"It gives us a sense of assertion of our identity. It helps us come together," said Parvinder Mehta of the gathering.

Mehta, a professor of English, read a poem she wrote after the shooting that touched on a range of emotional responses to it: anguish, mourning, seeking and giving comfort, forgiveness, and gratefulness for the gifts of life.

Mehta said she also looked toward the commonalities between religions rather than emphasizing differences.

"Sometimes we get carried away by our differences but I think it's the similarities we need to focus on," she said.

Livonia police and Crime Stoppers are asking for the public's help in locating a stolen urn containing the ashes of a soldier killed in Afghanistan last year.

The urn was stolen from a 2012 white Ford Mustang parked in a driveway at 14977 Arcola at Howell Road between 3-7 a.m. Sunday, July 8. The urn contained the ashes of Brian Backus, a private in the U.S. Army from Harbor Beach, Mich., who was killed June 18, 2011.

The urn is described as teal green and black in color. The urn, which was inside the glove compartment of the car, was stolen along with a GPS, iPod and an Army uniform.

Mike Oliver moved to Livonia about a year ago.

Crime Stoppers is offering a $1,000 reward for information that leads to an arrest.

Backus, the 22-year-old father of a 3-year-old son, had also attended the University of Michigan and planned to become a doctor.

Oliver said his son and Backus were best friends throughout childhood and their teen years, serving in the Boy Scouts together. Both were in the Army in the spring of 2010 in Fort Campbell, Ky., and both had tattoos put on their chests that read "Burn wood" which is what Backus used to yell at Oliver when the two camped. "My son was in charge of building the fire and Brian would yell, 'Burn wood, Michael, burn wood!'"

Today, Oliver is a mortician, and soon to become a sergeant Sept. 1. He is stationed in Fort Campbell.

Oliver was also serving in Afghanistan when Backus was killed. Oliver could not attend the funeral. "Brian's father was gracious enough to let me carry his son's casket because my son was in Afghanistan," the elder Oliver said.

Oliver is part of the Backus family, visiting them when he is on leave and during holidays, Mike Oliver said of his son. On one of his trips home on military leave, the younger Oliver received a surprise from the Backus family when they offered him an urn with some of Brian's ashes, the elder Oliver said. Oliver also kept a memorial table dedicated to Backus.

Oliver had just visited Brian's relatives and friends in Harbor Beach during the July 4th holiday, then returned to his father's home in Livonia when the theft occurred.

"My son is just totally devastated," Oliver said. "Whoever has it or knows who has it, call Crime Stoppers. My son is totally devastated by not having this."

Anyone with information can call Crime Stoppers at (800) SPEAK UP. All calls and cash rewards are anonymous. The Livonia Police Department also can be contacted at (734) 466-2470.

Professional help always a good idea when facing audit

By Rick Bloom
Guest Columnist

Q: Dear Rick: I just received a notice from the Internal Revenue Service that it is going to audit my return for two years. I think it's auditing me because I had some large deductions in those years. I have all the backup documentation, so I'm not overly concerned. Do you think I need to bring someone to help me or can I do it on my own? I should mention that I used someone to prepare my return, but I think I know more about taxes than they do. What should I do?

A: I love your attitude that you have nothing to fear. When we get notices from the IRS, we shouldn't shake in our boots; even the IRS has rules it have to follow. However, that being said, we should all take notices of an audit seriously.

I believe it makes sense to bring a professional with you. If nothing more, a competent qualified professional knows the rules which the IRS has to follow and won't be intimidated.

It's sort of like going to a court of law. Whenever you go to court, in order to make sure you are fairly treated, it pays to have an attorney on your side to represent your interest. The same can be said about an audit. Having the proper documentation is only half the battle. The IRS can also claim that even though you have the documentation, you're not entitled to the deductions.

A professional can help craft your argument in such a way that you have a better chance of resolving the issue favorably. Even if it turns out that you owe money for one reason or the other, a professional can better deal in negotiating with the IRS.

If nothing more, a professional won't be emotional in the same way you will be. When it's your own tax return, you tend to take it a little more personally.

Many consumers think that the only people who handle audits are tax attorneys. Although tax attorneys are certainly qualified, they're not the only ones that can assist you with an audit. Many certified public accountants specialize in audits and can be helpful. In addition, there are enrolled agents who also are very qualified to deal with IRS audits.

One bit of advice — whenever you hire a professional, make sure you have an understanding of fees. Any qualified and competent professional in any profession should have no problem discussing fees. Understanding how you are going to be billed up front is essential in developing a good relationship with your professional.

Most of us will never be audited and, certainly, that's a good thing. If, however, you do get a notice from the IRS or the state of Michigan, take it seriously and don't procrastinate.

One thing I can assure is that the IRS does not like to be ignored and it won't go away. Good luck!

'64 Olympic champ gains Hall of Fame

Farmington's Cawley honored in Michigan

By Dan O'Meara
Observer Staff Writer

As a former teammate of Rex Cawley at Farmington High School, Dave Catherman is pleased to know the 1964 Olympic champion is finally going to receive due recognition in his home state.

Rex Cawley

Cawley, who won the 400-meter hurdles at the Tokyo Games, will be inducted into the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame Thursday evening at the Gem Theater in Detroit.

He is one of 24 former athletes and sports figures to be honored at the 56th Induction Event, which is planned as a homecoming for many Michigan-bred stars who achieved success elsewhere.

Cawley, 72, starred for the University of Southern California after an outstanding prep career at Farmington and became an NCAA champion for the Trojans.

He still resides in California but is expected to be in attendance Thursday. Catherman, who also was a star athlete for the Farmington Falcons, and Jerry Young, the school's former boys cross country and track coach, plan to attend the event.

"I ran with Rex, when I was a senior and he was a junior, on two (all-state) relay teams," Catherman said. "I was a hurdler with him in high school. We both were tall and could run the same step patterns. We had a wonderful team; we were undefeated and league champs."

"Rex was really versatile. He probably tried seven or eight events. Toward the end of the (1958) season, he wanted to try the long jump, and he had to get one jump in to qualify for the regional, which he did. He won the league meet and the regional, and he was all-state in the long jump as well as the hurdles and the (sprint) relays. He did the high jump pretty well, too."

LeDuc goes long — to Poland — for pro football success

By Tim Smith
Observer Staff Writer

Josh LeDuc just wants to play professional football, and he's proven he'll go to great lengths — and distances — to do just that.

The Baltic Sea anyone?

Yes, the 22-year-old Canton resident and 2006 grad of Plymouth High School recently finished playing with the Gdynia Seahawks, helping that team win the title game of the Polish League of American Football.

"I was happy to go there and do what I did," said LeDuc, during a phone interview from his family's home last week. "I haven't been on a winning team since I was in high school, so it was something different."

"It was like you played freer, more carefree, and it was just a fun time." Winning a championship certainly was the caper to a season where he grabbed 55 passes for 1,200 yards and tallied 20 touchdown receptions.

In front of a raucous crowd of 25,000 in Warsaw, Poland on July 15, the 6-4, 240-pound receiver scored a key touchdown as the Seahawks

Whalers hire two scouts

The Plymouth Whalers have added Jim Debenham and Norm Robert to the Ontario Hockey League team's scouting staff.

Debenham, in a sense, is coming home to Plymouth. He worked as the Whalers scouting director from 2002-09 before moving to Sarnia in the same position for the past three seasons.

Robert worked in Peterborough as a scout from 1996-2010 before going to Sudbury as the Wolves' scouting director for the past two seasons.

"We welcome Jim back," said Mike Velucci, coach/GM of the Whalers. "He brings a lot of experience and he already knows what kind of player we want to play Whaler hockey. Norm has a ton of experience in the Toronto area. I look forward to getting to know him and working with him."

Debenham and Robert worked for the Central Scouting Bureau before moving on to the OHL.

The Whalers finished 47-18-2-1 last season, winning their 10th West Division title in 22 years while making the OHL playoffs for the 21st consecutive season.

Plymouth opens training camp the last week of August. Tickets for Whalers games can be purchased by calling Compuware at (734) 453-8400.

Mary Angela Run No. 10

The 10th annual Mary Angela Run starts at 9 a.m. Sunday at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills.

The race is conducted in memory of the late Mary Angela DiGiovanni, a 23-year-old Mercy alumna and University of Michigan student.

Proceeds will benefit Angels' Place, a nonprofit which provides housing and services for people with developmental disabilities.

The event offers chip-timed 5K and 10K runs, a one-mile fitness walk and a children's run.

"Mary Angela was a caring and dedicated person who wanted to help many different people, and we believe that Angel's Place has the same ideals," race coordinator and Mary Angela's aunt Sue Vincent said.

"We have had a great turnout every year with nearly 500 people attending, and we're hoping to have another great event this year."

Late registration begins at 7:30 a.m. Sunday. The entry fee is $25. For more information, visit www.angelsplace.com.

Paul Soucy of Livonia won his fourth title belt in the Ringside World Championships Aug. 4 in Kansas City.

Livonia senior boxer wins fourth title belt

By Dan O'Meara
Observer Staff Writer

Paul Soucy still packs a potent punch for a man his age.

Not only does he remain active in the boxing ring, the 73-year-old Livonia resident continues to win title belts.

Soucy became a four-time winner in the Ringside World Championships Aug. 4 at the KCI Center in Kansas City, Mo.

That's a pretty fair achievement for a guy who, as Soucy himself states, had heart bypass surgery eight years ago, has metal plates in his ankle and neck and is diabetic.

"Outside of that, I'm in good health," he said.

The RWC is billed as the largest boxing tournament in the world with six rings in use simultaneously and fighters from 16 countries participating.

Since there aren't many pugilists in his age group, Soucy had just one bout in the 165-pound weight class.

He defeated Bill Cruze, also 73, with a standing-8 count in the third round of a scheduled three-round fight.

"They took the two oldest guys in the tournament and matched us up," Soucy said. "He's from Missouri. If anything he was the hometown favorite, so I could not let it be close."

"When you get in my age bracket, it's not as highly competitive, because there's not too many people still boxing. We wear headgear and they make us wear 16-ounce gloves (as opposed to the regular eight)."

Soucy also defeated Cruze in 2005 to win his first RWC title. He won his next two in 2006 and 2008.

"This was a last-minute decision," Soucy said. "I was going down there to be the coach. Two or three days before we left, I decided I was going to give it defeated the Warsaw Eagles 52-37 to clinch Superfinal VII. Throwing the touchdown pass was Gdynia quarterback Kyle McMahon — LeDuc's former teammate at Eastern Michigan University.

"There was a play where I was wide open, but he threw it somewhere else," LeDuc said. "I told him 'Let's go back to that later because there's nobody covering me.'"

"We ran it again and he hit me (with the pass). There was someone probably at the 10-yard line that was in my way so I went around him and just jumped from like the five and dove in."

With a successful pro season in Europe on his resume, the former Plymouth Wildcats prep star is hopeful that he'll soon get an opportunity to play closer to home. Maybe in the United Football League or Canadian Football League.

But if a North American-based team doesn't call the rest of this year he wouldn't mind returning to Poland in 2013 — to play American-rules football in front of enthusiastic fans who pretty much treat players like royalty.

Enthusiastic fans

"People are excited when they watch it, they stick around after our games," LeDuc said. "They want to take our pictures on the field."

"Sometimes we're on the field for a half an hour or hour after games having our pictures taken."

THE LEDUC FILE

Who: Josh LeDuc, 22, member of the 2012 Polish League of American Football champion Gdynia Seahawks.

Grid background:

The 6-4, 240-pounder is a 2006 graduate of Plymouth High School, where he starred in football and made the All-Observer team. LeDuc then played four seasons as a tight end at Eastern Michigan University. He first started playing football at age 10 with the Canton Lions.

Whirlwind: After being out of football last winter, he hooked up with a semipro team in California before moving on to another squad in Tacoma, Wash. A month later, he was recruited by ex-EMU teammate Kyle McMahon to join the Seahawks.

Family: He lives in Canton with mom Carol Hennells and stepdad Jeff Hennells and sister Samantha.

LeDuc added that he was thrilled with the experience, which included sharing an apartment with McMahon, eating kabobs and traveling all over Poland.

"They have these things they call kabobs," he continued. "When I thought of it I thought of like shish kabobs, but they're not, they're just pita wraps and stuff like that."

"It's basically like how coney islands are in Michigan, that's how they are in Poland. They are right next to each other, that's one of the things, they have everywhere, these little kabob stands and shops and stuff like that. The Polish food is phenomenal."

Of course, lifestyle and cuisine weren't reasons LeDuc hopped on a plane last March to go from a semipro team in Tacoma, Wash. to Poland after being recruited by McMahon.

"I just moved out to Washington, working a couple days a week in a casino and getting ready to play the season there," LeDuc said. "My friend Kyle got a spot in Poland, playing quarterback. And one of their receivers left and went to another team."

"So he called me up and said 'Is there any way you can get here?'"

Actually, several things had to happen in the weeks before that for LeDuc to show up on the Seahawks' radar.

Last December, he worked in Novi at a pizza restaurant, thinking his career finally was over.

"I didn't know if I'd be playing football," LeDuc recalled. "I was trying to find an actual real job, to grow up. 'All right, football is done now. I'm going to have to go and be an adult now and not play a sport anymore.'"

A second chance

Then in January, a California semipro team

'Obviously, the NFL is always the primary goal and the top goal everyone's trying to get to. But I just want to be able to move up the ranks.'

JOSH LEDUC, pro receiver

gave him a tryout but that didn't work out.

"When I went out there it wasn't as competitive as I thought it was going to be," LeDuc went on. "A couple coaches from a different team were watching me."

By February, he was playing for that team (Tacoma Cobras), albeit briefly thanks to McMahon's invitation to join Gdynia.

Since football is in LeDuc's blood, and it has been ever since he suited up as a 10-year-old player for the Canton Lions, it didn't surprise anybody when he accepted the invite.

He'd do it all over again if he had to.

"Over there it's a little different because football is new to them," LeDuc noted. "They just started playing American-style football six or seven years ago."

"But the people who come watch the games, they understand the rules for the most part, and outside of the game, they all are real, real nice to us. ... it's like they're the nicest people in the world. They'll do anything for you and they don't want anything (in return), they just accepted us as soon as we got there."

Staying the course

Make no mistake though, LeDuc's ultimate career objective isn't about the Polish AFL, even though some players there do have big-league ability.

"Obviously, the NFL is always the primary goal and the top goal everyone's trying to get to," he stressed. "But I just want to be able to move up the ranks. Hopefully I can get into the UFL or the CFL or something around here so I'm not in Europe and so far away from my family."

"But next year, I just don't want to stop playing. So wherever I can play, I'll play."

That objective's always been on Page 1 of his to-do list.

"Josh has worked since he was 10 years old to get where he is," Carol Hennells said. "... His dream is to get to the NFL and he is a very determined young man. I'm sure he will get there."

If LeDuc does, he's already guaranteed it will come at the end of a long, winding and wonderful football journey.

ball player and trackman, also was the teammate of Hayes Jones, another U.S. Olympic hurdler and gold medalist, at Eastern Michigan University.

"It was very unique to train with both," he said. "Both were wonderful hurdlers. I felt blessed to be able to follow them across the finish line."

"I used to tell my son (Steve), who became a hurdler at Harrison High School, I still had little imprints of cinder on my chest, because I was beaten by two Olympians."

As a college freshman, Catherman recalled going to the Class A championship track meet to see Cawley compete.

"I watched him make that glorious final leg when he anchored Farmington's winning team in the 880 relay," he said. "He got the baton and was in fourth place. He caught everybody coming around the curve."

"It was remarkable. Don Canham (the former U-M coach and later athletic director) started recruiting him right at the meet."

Late AD's effort

Catherman added the late John "Jack" Cotton would be thrilled to know Cawley is going into the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame.

Cotton was Farmington's longtime district athletic director, and he lobbied for years to have Cawley considered for inclusion in the Hall of Fame.

"Jack was also very involved with the Michigan High School Hall of Fame," Catherman said. "He was very diligent about making sure due justice was served. We all felt Rex was deserving, and Jack took the lead on that."

When Farmington High started its hall of fame in 2001, Cotton was co-chairman of the selection committee, which included Catherman, also a former football and track coach for the Falcons, and Young. Cawley was the No. 1 nominee.

"His induction was a big moment for Jack," Catherman said. "Rex made such a wonderful impression and had an inspiring speech for the athletes in attendance, about being proud of their heritage and Farmington. He was very graceful and presented a very strong and credible voice for being a student-athlete."

Claim to fame

Cawley, who was named the 1960's Hurdler of the Decade by Track & Field News, set a world record of 49.1 seconds in the 400 hurdles at the 1964 Olympic Trials. He subsequently won the gold medal with a time of 49.6.

Cawley was the NCAA and USA outdoor champion in 1963, and he won the USA title again in 1965. Track & Field News twice ranked him the world's No. 1 hurdler, and he also received rankings in the 400 dash and 110 high hurdles.

He will join Farmington Hills resident Rick Leach and Mercy High School grad Meg Mallon in the Hall of Fame. Leach is a former U-M quarterback and Major League baseball player, Mallon a star on the LPGA Tour.

Roller skaters earn national awards

Twelve roller skaters from the Riverside Arena in Livonia received top placements at the recent USARS National Roller Skating Championships in Lincoln, Neb.

Livonia residents Ryan Heersink and partner Sofia Cueva earned gold medals in Juvenile/Elementary Team Dance, and Ryan Heersink was a silver medalist in Elementary C Boys Figures.

Taking home bronze medals were Ian Heersink of Livonia and Amanda Smyser of Westland in Freshman/Sophomore B Team Dance, Pirro Marko and Emma Chappell, both of Livonia, in Juvenile/Elementary B Team Dance and the Riverside RASCals Junior Precision Team.

The members of the Junior Precision Team are Chloe LaMay of Plymouth, Hanna Denes of Garden City, Andrew Esser and Tina Stadnik of Northville, Smyser and Jade Ross, Ian and Ryan Heersink, Stephanie Cueva and Sofia Cueva, all from Livonia.

The Riverside RASCals are coached by Lawaun Modrich and Jillian Heersink, who is a national competitor in Sophomore A Ladies figures and loops.

This is the first year in the skating club's history that every skater who entered the national championships either medaled or coached a medalist, according to Modrich, who has been with the club for five years.

"Six members of the club — Stephanie and Sofia Cueva, Hanna Denes, Andrew Esser, Jade Ross and Amanda Smyser — are first-time national competitors, which bodes well for the upcoming season," Modrich said.

"Every skater, from the newest to the most experienced, performed to the best of his or her ability, which is all any coach can ask. I couldn't be happier with our results, and I fully expect to double our medal count next season."

Cruise Woodward before the cars

By Marty Budner
Eccentric Staff Writer

Before cruising Woodward in cars, cruise it on your feet. That's the footnote to the 2012 Woodward Dream Cruise.

The highly-popular and internationally recognized classic car bash is officially scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 18. The 18th annual Woodward Dream Cruise will be preceded by the inaugural Cruise in Shoes 5K Fun Run/Walk which begins 7 a.m. near Royal Oak Shrine High School. "It's exciting and it's really taking off," said Woodward Dream Cruise Executive Director Tony Michaels. "I mean, how often do you get to run down the middle of Woodward."

"It starts early and we'll be long gone by the time the cruisers come along," he said. "We think we're adding something really exciting to the Woodward Dream Cruise."

According to Michaels, the WDC executive committee had been "toying around" with the idea for the past couple of years. With the help of the Royal Oak City Council and police department, and the financial backing of primary sponsor Fifth Third Bank, the event became a reality this year.

"The Woodward Dream Cruise is a family event and it's all about enjoying yourself," said Michaels. "The idea was to add another family event that would not get in the way. People can come dressed up in their 50's costumes and we thought a run of this kind would be a lot of fun."

The Cruise in Shoes activities are based in the 13 Mile and Woodward area.

The Fun Run/Walk begins on Yorba Linda Blvd. and ends at Shrine High School. Besides Woodward, the 5K-certified course snakes through surrounding Royal Oak neighborhoods.

The costume contest kicks off the festivities at 7 a.m. and prizes will be awarded.

Plymouth artist pens colorful children's book

By Sharon Dargay
O&E Staff Writer

Keith Mazur hopes his latest art project appeals to preschoolers.

And that's quite a stretch for the Plymouth artist, who studied special effects at The Art Institute of Pittsburgh, in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mazur

"Anybody who knows me would tell you this is the last thing you'd expect to see out of me. I grew up with monster movies and sci-fi movies and all that stuff," he said.

"It was a struggle for me not to want to throw a werewolf or something in there," he said, with a laugh.

Youngsters and their parents will find birds and butterflies, monkeys and clowns, a girl and a boy — but no werewolves — within the pages of Mazur's first book, Lily & Louie's Colorful World.

2 Moon Press, a small publishing company in Marshall, published the book, which is available for $9.99 from the company online at 800publishing.com and from Amazon.com. Mazur expects Barnes & Noble to sell it online.

Mazur, who is also a musician, wrote the verse and drew the illustrations for the book that takes readers on a trip through the world of color.

"I've always thought of doing a children's book but I always figured it was one of those things I would do when I retired," said Mazur, who works

"I like to write like I'm writing music. I like for everything to fit a certain rhythm pattern."

Mazur said he first became interested in art as a child while growing up in Plymouth. Whenever a cousin babysat him and his siblings, she would draw for them. Mazur said he was fascinated by her pictures and tried to mimic them.

At Plymouth Salem High School, he took art classes, and at age 21, headed to Pittsburgh in 1993. He studied special effects, which at that time consisted mostly of make-up, masks and props for the movies.

Doing what he loves

"Nowadays everything is so geared to computer imaging. A lot of what I know — it's not that it's outdated — it's just not as much in demand," he said.

"I still do a lot of props and things like that, especially around Halloween. I get people asking me to make them masks or props. Every now and again I get a call from someone who wants me to build something."

He also does custom work on guitars.

"You've got to do what you love to do, so I still keep up with it," he said, referring to his special effects work.

Mazur is toying with another book idea that would use the Lily and Louie characters.

"There are always a million projects in my head that I want to get started on. If the book does well I'll look at doing another one. I'll have to wait and see how it goes."

"A couple of years ago I just started sketching out some pictures and I thought, well, I will give this a shot," he said.

"I sketched out the little girl and little boy one day and started thinking, how can I apply a little story to this? I was in between projects ... so I figured it was a good time to sit down and try something different."

"It took me a lot longer than I expected. It took a year from start to finish. It's a 34-page book and the publisher added a few pages."

Pictures and rhyme

Mazur drew his ideas on a tablet of paper with colored markers, later editing and "cleaning up" some of the illustrations on computer.

He considers himself primarily a sculptor, producing mostly three-dimensional work in clay or resin cast pieces.

"When it comes to two-dimensional drawing, it's usually pencil, ink or marker. I don't really do a lot with paint," he said.

Mazur said he developed the images first and then came up with

Pack healthful items in school lunch

It's that time again — the new school year is just a few weeks away.

With the return of school comes the return of school lunches.

The nutritional quality of foods and beverages in schools has been a hot debate, largely driven by trends in childhood obesity in this country. Since 1980, according to the CDC, the obesity rate for children and teens has nearly tripled.

While kids eat plenty of foods outside of school, the foods and beverages available at schools are an important consideration because it's been estimated that for some children, 50 percent of the calories they eat in a day are from school meals. Packing lunches and snacks can help provide healthful and filling meals that pack a nutritious punch without overloading on the bad stuff. But coming up with a variety of healthy options that kids will actually eat, won't get bored with, and that can survive (from a food safety perspective) with insulated lunch bags, freezer packs, and/or a thermos, can be a challenge for any parent.

Colleen Doyle, director of nutrition and physical activity for the American Cancer Society, offers some guiding principles:

- Always include at least one fruit and one vegetable.

- Choose grains are mostly whole grains.

- Proteins should be lean and/or sources of healthy fats.

- Dairy products — and peanut butter, for that matter — should be low in added sugar.

Here are some easy lunch box foods that can be mixed and matched:

Easy 'entrées'

- String cheese or cheese cubes and whole grain crackers

- Hummus and whole wheat pita bread

- High-fiber, low-sugar cereal, eaten with milk from school. Look for cereals with at least 3 grams of fiber and less than 8 grams of sugar per serving.

Sandwiches and wraps

- Whole wheat tortillas smeared with low-fat refried beans or filled with black beans and/or leftover rice, with salsa for dipping

- Whole wheat tortilla with turkey, cheese, and apple or avocado slices

- Peanut or almond butter sandwich on whole grain bread with banana slices or raisins

Fruits, vegetables and salads

- Single portion-sized cups of unsweetened apple sauce or fruit packed in its own juice, without added sugar

- Carrots, pepper strips and celery sticks with ranch dressing to dip

- Celery sticks stuffed with peanut butter and sprinkled with raisins or other dried fruit, such as cranberries and blueberries

Other "sides" and snacks

- Individual serving-sized packages of low-fat, low-sugar yogurt. Look for no more than 20 grams of sugar per 6 ounces; about 12 grams of that is naturally-occurring sugar found in dairy products.

- Baked tortilla chips and salsa

- Trail mix made with cereals, nuts, pretzels, dried fruit, or raisins

Healthy drinks

- Freeze small bottles of water to help keep your child well hydrated and his/her lunch cool.

- If you pack juice, make sure it's 100 percent juice. Freeze these also to help keep the lunch cool.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Many people are wrongly rejected when they apply for Social Security Disability benefits. Money was taken out of their paychecks for Social Security taxes to ensure that they would receive disability benefits if they could no longer work full-time. Sadly, the government denies approximately 60% of those who apply for disability benefits.

Attorneys J.B. Bieske and Jennifer Alfonsi have 42 years combined experience representing only Social Security disability clients. And they personally meet with all clients and appear personally at all court hearings. Many large firms assign inexperienced attorneys to your case. And some of these firms are located thousands of miles away and only fly the attorney in the day of the court hearing. Attorneys Bieske and Alfonsi have vast experience before local Michigan judges.

Attorneys Bieske and Alfonsi can often make a winning difference at the application stage. And, if an appeal is necessary they have won several hundred cases before a court date is even set.
